The winning teams will meet in the final round for the title and the right to continue in the playdowns.

Chairman Weiner Orders Bass To Continue Fight After Decision Is Already Awarded

The novelty took place last night after Penny Bass, junior lightweight champion, had been awarded a "technical knockout" in the second round over Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., in a ten-round no-title bout.

Both boys noted as hefty punchers, concentrated their attack on the body in the opening round, and before it ended Referee Leo Houck ordered Bass to keep his punches "up." They were flailing away in the second when Bass shot a left to the stomach. Taylor sank to the canvas claiming a foul. Houck made no count over the writhing boxer, but called the club physician into the ring. After an examination the physician said Taylor had not been struck low, and Houck declared Bass the winner.

The crowd jeered the decision and Frank Weiner, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, after learning that Taylor was willing to continue, ordered Bass back into the ring. Bass, who had gone to his dressing-room, returned under protest, contending he had won the fight, but agreed to continue with a five-round no-decision exhibition.

The regulation fight was fast and furious while it lasted, with honors about even. Most of the newspaper men at the ringside favored Bass in the exhibition. Some of the comment on the double-header bout was:

Taylor—So this is Philadelphia!

Bass—I didn't foul him.

Chairman Weiner—The blow was low. Taylor said he was willing to continue, and I ordered Bass back to fight.

Referee Houck—Nothing to say.

Dr. A. Baron, club physician—The man was not fouled.

The crowd—"(Censured.)"

CATARACTS TIE TERRIERS 2-ALL

Galt Rallies to Notch Tieing Counter in Final Minutes of Play.

STRATFORD DEFAULTS.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP)—Galt Terriers are still leading the Ontario hockey league parade, although their leadership claims were strenuously disputed during 70 minutes of thrilling hockey last night by Niagara Falls Cataracts, second place holders. The game ended in a two-all deadlock when the Terriers rallied to notch their second counter in the last two minutes of the third period.

Kitchener Silverwoods advanced to within two points of the Cataracts by defeating the Guelph Maple Leafs, 6 to 4, in the other match.

The scheduled Stratford at Oshawa game was not played when the Nationals failed to put in an appearance. The Pats after considerable waiting then skated out on the ice poked the disc into the net for a goal and won the two points by default.

No reason was advanced by Stratford officials for their failure to arrive at Oshawa and it is understood the league officials are planning drastic punishment for the offending club.

THE RING.

Minneapolis — Ernie Schaaf, Boston, knocked out Dick Daniels, Minneapolis (1).

Chicago — Joe Sharkey, Albion, Mich., stopped Chip Freeman, Buffalo, N.Y., (6).

Deadwood, S. D. — Clyde Hull, South Dakota, welterweight, stopped Eddie Faye Clark, Hemingford, Bem, (5.)

Pocatello, Ida — Jimmy Hanna, Pocatello, outpointed Walter Clinghorn, Seattle, Wash., (10.)

NEW FIGHT WRINKLE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 17. — (C.P.)—Fight fans to-day contemplated a new wrinkle in the fight game—that a boxer awarded a knockout victory and his victim renewing their quarrel and fighting five-round exhibition just to placate the fans.

Maple Leafs Will Pay $34,000 To Get Bruce Paul's Signature On a Contract

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 17.—(C.P.)—The Toronto Star yesterday says:

"Thirty-four thousand dollars is what it is going to cost the Maple Leaf Hockey Club to get Bruce Paul, star defence and right wing player of the National Sea Fleas of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association — and they will probably sign him inside of two days.

"That is the offer of the Maple Leaf Club—$10,000 to sign and play out the rest of the season with the Leafs and $8,000 a year for the next three years.

"Paul has not yet signed the contract but he told Harry Watson, coach of the Sea Fleas yesterday, that parental objections had been overcome and he had practically promised to sign up on Wednesday morning. That means that Paul will play his last game with the Sea Fleas when they journey to Kitchener to-morrow night.

"The decision of Paul to join the Maple Leafs deprives the Sea Fleas of one of their outstanding stars and gives the professional club a valuable piece of material for the dash down the National Hockey League stretch. He is only 24 years of age and while he is not as rugged as professional clubs usually demand of their defence material, he will probably fill out. At that he is a player who does not have to take much punishment, for he is an adroit poke-checker on the defence and a tricky man carrying the puck.

SOCCER MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT

All Clubs Requested to Register on or Before Second Day of March.

A special meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association was held last evening in the Chanber of Commerce rooms, with president Vincent Stewart in the chair and a fair attendance of the executive.

The council member of the association gave an excellent report of the transactions of the O.F.A. meeting in Toronto. The local delegate gave an account of the affiliation in Peterborough with the O.F.A., also the activities that interested the board. A communication was received by the secretary requesting him to notify the O.F.A. secretary how many registration forms required.

TEAMS PLEASE NOTIFY

To faciliate arrangements for the coming season, the executive desire that all clubs notify the secretary in writing on or before the 2nd day of March on the question of registration with the local soccer board for the present year.

Junior City League Games On Thursday

The Junior City League double-header which was billed for to-night at the Brock Street rink has been postponed until Thursday night. At 7:15 on that night, Stars will play Choates, and at 8:30, Sea-horses will tangle with C.G.E. office.

Language barriers are hampering exports of talkies from France.

Sportsmen Backing U. S. Schneider Entry

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 17.—(C.P.)— The Daily News to-day said a group of young sportsmen had agreed to finance the construction of an United States' entry in the Schneider Cup races, to be flown by Alford J. Williams, speed flyer.

Williams said his backers had banded together in an attempt to restore the United States to leadership in the world speed flying. The editors of Liberty have offered $5,000 as a nucleus for the fund.

An organization known as Alford J. Williams, Inc., has been founded to carry out plans.

Final Scheduled Games In the South End Loop

Final scheduled games in the South-end City League are on the card tonight at the Sacred Heart rink. Three games will be played, two bantams and a juvenile. The play-offs will follow shortly. The first affair to-night will see Fosters' Bantams and the Ravens in action at six. At seven, Canucks battle it out for second place in the juvenile section with Raybestos. Athletics and Canucks, bantams, wind up the evening's hockey at eight o'clock.

This will be the last time some of these teams will be seen in action this season, and the contests are likely to be fast and furious.

In the lineup for the Stars last week, Cotton's name should have been listed instead of Fisher's. The goals were scored by Hope and Tranter.

BRITISH LADY GOLFERS SWING INTO DEBUT FOR U.S. LAURELS

ON FLORIDA COURSES.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17.—(CP)—Miss Diana Fishwick, Great Britain's golfing sharpshooter, held comedal laurels today as she and seven fellow countrymen swung into their United States fairways debut in search of the annual Florida women's championship. The tournament, held at the exclusive Oceanside course of the Palm Beach country club, is the first of three Florida affairs in which the Britons will seek crowns.

Miss Fishwick, leading the other Britons by virtue of her medal score of 78, was paired with Mrs. Louise Heineman, New York, for a first flight 18 hole match.

The United States claimant to comedal honors, Mrs. Stuart Hanley, Detroit, was matched at the other end of the first flight bracket with Mrs. E. M. Troustine, Chicago. Mrs. Heineman and Mrs. Troustine had 88's to qualify.

Players Scattered

The British players were scattered through the four flights of match play, with five of them in the championship group.

Miss Kathleen Garnham, who scored an 87, to keep British colors to the fore, was paired with Mrs. L. Q. White, Cohasset, Mass., who qualified with 91. Miss Betty Perkin, another invader, had a 90 to pair with a formidable opponent in Miss Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, N. Y. The latter, who had 81 to qualify, won two women's golfing crowns in Miami in the last nine days.

Miss Marjorie White, of Great Britain, likewise met stern opposition in Miss Helen Hicks, Hewlett, Long Island. Miss White qualified with a 90 and Miss Hicks with an 81.

Miss Jessie Firth, fifth of the first flight Britons, with a qualifying 91, was matched with Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kansas, a veteran of Florida courses. The latter qualified with 86.

Mrs. Bee Brindle, of Great Britain had a 95 for a place in the second flight, while Misses Mona Dixon and Cecilia Wolesley, with 111 and 116 respectively, were far in the van.

SKI CLUB RUNS

The Ski Club held a successful run to Nassau on Sunday, and a large turnout attended. While the skiing conditions were not the best, everyone had a good time. Jumping conditions were good, and several nice jumps o around seventy feet were made. There was a large number of spectators present, and motion pictures were taken of all the jumping.

Championships Decided In Ottawa Valley Loops

OTTAWA, Feb. 17. (C.P.)—Two junior league championship were decided and first games completed in two senior championships series last night in the Ottawa district hockey playdowns.

Chesterville won the central Ottawa Valley Junior title by defeating Morewood 2-1, taking the round 5-2, and Brockville became champions of the Junior Rideau group by tying Perth 2-2 in Perth after defeating them 1-0 in the first game in Brockville.

Renfrew held Arnprior to a tie in the first game of the Upper Ottawa Valley Senior League Semi-final series. The second game will be played on Renfrew ice to-night, the winners meeting Almonte for the title.

Kemptville Green Shirts sprung a surprise by defeating Brockville 3-2 in the first game of their Rideau group championship series. The second game at Brockville Wednesday will decide which team will represent the group in the Allan Cup playdowns.

Western Teams End Schedule In a Tie

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 17. (C.P.)) Winnipeg's three senior hockey league teams finished up their season's schedule last night just where they started. By defeating Elmwood Millionaires, the 1930 Manitoba champs., 3 to 0, Winnipeg jumped up to even terms with Elmwood and Native Sons.

Native Sons drew a bye in the playoff, leaving Elmwood and Winnipegs to battle Thursday and Monday in a two-game total score series. Sons meet the winners in a two out of three game clash for the Manitoba senior title.

Jumping Joe Savoldi Begins Mat Career

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 17. — "Jumping Joe" Savoldi, the former Notre Dame gridiron star, began his career as a professional wrestler here last night by defeating Don Delong (Cap. L.) billed as the French heavyweight champion.

Savoldi, weighing 204 pounds, felled Delong the first time with a body slam, in 8 minutes, 30 seconds. The second and decisive fall was scored in the same fashion in 4 minutes 29 seconds. Delong weighed 222 pounds.

After the deciding fall, Delong was taken to a hospital for treatment of an injury to his shoulder, which appeared to be either dislocated or broken.

EINSTEIN FOREST PLANS ARE LAID

Two Thousand Trees Pledged at Banquet in Los Angeles.

SET OUT IN PALESTINE.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 17. — Seeds for an Einstein forest in Palestine were planted last night at a banquet by the Jewish organization of Southern California given in honor of Professor Albert Einstein, world famous psysicist.

Rehabilitation of Palestine is one of the philanthropic activities of the Berlin professor, who for many years has contributed to the movement. Two other forests have been started in honor of Thedore Herzl, founder of the Zionist movement, and Lord Balfour, for his service in the work.

Jewish leaders of Los Angeles originated the plan for an Einstein forest and two thousand trees were pledged. Proceeds of the banquet will be added and the hope was expressed of having a quarter of a million trees in the forest through contributions from all parts of the world.

Paper Flower Petals Make Colorful Scene

Flowers in bitter weather bloom all the year around, when their peals are made of paper rather than of the etheral substance that goes to manufacture the real blossoms.

In the south window of The Examiner office these perennial and cheerful flowers bloom in rainbow colors. A pottery vase of Wedgewood blue and white holds pink and white carnations with the lacy fern that seems to belong to these perfumed aristocrats. A wicker basket is filled with the stiffly cheerful yellow of daffodils and a tall glass vase is quite approrpriate for the tall fronds of cosmos, in pale yellow, red and mauve.

They are pretty artificial flowers, designed to brighten the darkest corner of a sombre room. Their maker's telephone number number is 954w; should anyone desire to order their duplicates.

Playing Dates Set For C.L.G. Tourney

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP)—The annual open championship of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union will be held at the Toronto Rosedale golf club course during the week of Sept. 28, it has been decided.

The United States women's national title will be decided at Buffalo, N. Y., during the week of Sept. 21, and the C.L.G.U., executive believe many of the players who compete in that championship will also enter the Canadian tournament.

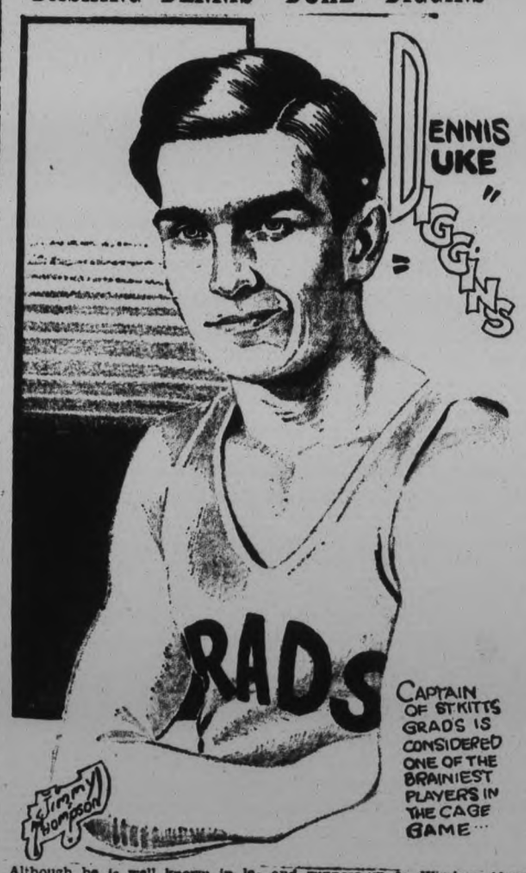
DASHING DENNIS "DUKE" DIGGINS



Although he is well known in lacrosse, baseball, rowing and rugby circles, Dennis J. (Duke) Diggins is nationally known in basketball. As captain of the St. Catharines 'Grads' since their organization, he piloted them through a juvenile Ontario Championship in 1924; runners-up in junior in 1925; junior Ontario and semi-finalists for Dominion in 1926; runners-up to Windsor Black Arrows in 1927; intermediate champs of Ontario and Dominion finalists in 1928; Dominion intermediate champs in 1929; Big Four Ontario champs and runners-up to Windsor Alumni for senior title in 1930 and are now in the throes of the present season. During the seven years of play he has never subbed once and is regarded as one of the brainiest and most daring guards in the Canadian cage game to-day. Recently while playing against Hamilton "Y" he broke his knee-cap and will be out for the rest of the season, but the operation was a complete success and the Niagara Peninsula will see its most colorful athlete in action when the cage curtain lifts again.

INDUSTRIES FAIR OPEN IN ENGLAND

QUEEN MARY ATTENDS.

LONDON, Feb. 17 (By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent) —Queen Mary paid a visit to-day at the opening of the great British Industries Fair. The main portion opened at Olympia, with the Cotton Section at the White City, Artificial Silk Section at the Albert Hall, and the fourth section, Heavy Industries, at Birmingham.

All the products of the Empire some of them never seen in this country before, are on view. The Empire Marketing Board is again the biggest exhibitor. Newfoundland and Ceylon are new exhibitors and others are England, Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, the Gold Coast, Southern Rhodesia, the East African Dependencies, Malaya, the British West Indies, and Irish Free State.

Great Britain is represented by a big display of home-produced foodstuffs, special emphasis being given to "National mark" beef, eggs, flour and malt. Northern Ireland's products are in a modernist setting. In addition to tinned cream, the Irish Fee State shows how it manages to export 540,000,000 eggs yearly.

Canada shows a great number of food products and various leather and rubber goods.

FRIENDS HONOR HASTINGS GIRL

Presentation and Address Read to Miss Irene Doughty.

AT FAREWELL PARTY.

HASTINGS, Feb. 17 (Examiner Correspondence)—A large number of girl friends of Miss Irene Doughty gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Spooner on Thursday evening. The occasion was a farewell party for Miss Doughty, a popular member of the younger set of Hastings, who leaves shortly for Ottawa.

During the evening, Miss Mary Spooner read the following address:

Dear Irene:

"The girls will miss you sadly,
The boys will miss you badly,
For a pal you've been to those who love you best;
May your future life be bright,
Full of sunshine, full of light,
And the days to come be happy and blest.
We wish you to accept this little gift,
As something to remember us by."

Miss Mary Coveney made the presentation of a beautiful silver cake dish. Miss Doughty feelingly replied to the address.

COUPLE DESCRIBES TRIP TO THE WEST

Senior and Junior Institute Members Hold Joint Meeting at Warsaw.

WARSAW, Feb. 17 (Examiner Correspondence.)—The members of the Senior and Junior Institute met in the Institute rooms on Thursday afternoon, when, after opening the exercises conducted by Mrs. George Weller, the junior members adjourned to the north room to transact their business.

The assessor's statement was shown, as the Institute being a property owner, it must pay taxes. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowe for the splendid talk they gave on their trip to the west.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter of appreciation to the officers of the United Church for their kindness in allowing the Institute the use of their equipment when they catered to the banquet given by the classes in agriculture and home economics.

Miss Cora Drain gave an itemized account of all money spent for the banquet. The class gave the Institute an amount to cover half of the running expenses of heating and janitor's fees.

Mrs. David Miller gave a short synopsis of Miss Powell's talk on "Textiles" and Sir Joseph Flavelle's talk on "The Value of Research Work."

The members of the Junior Institute then returned and Miss Annabell Carlow, the president, stated that the members wanted to meet at the same time as the others in the north room, if they could move the seats. The senior branch decided the junior institute could have the use of the room for the payment of half the janitor's fees. The members would not have to contribute anything toward the heating, at least until they are established. They may have the use of the library and they were given permission to move the old school seats.

Miss Velma Payne conducted a nut contest, prizes being won by Mrs. Thomas Crowe, who secured first prize and Miss Annabel Carlow who won the least number of points.

A BEDTIME STORY

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PRESENT.

"Well, now that have picked these bright, red rose beads," said Uncle Wiggily to himself on Candlemas Day, "I wonder what I had better do with them?" The rabbit gentleman, as I told you in the story last night, had left his bungalow to go call on Mr. Stubtail, his bear friend, and on Mr. Chuck, the groundhog daddy of Woodie and Waddie Chuck, those jolly little animal boys.

Mr. Longears wanted to ask the bear and the groundhog not to come out of their dens, perhaps to be frightened at their own shadows if the sun shone. For there is an old saying, or story, or belief that if, on Candlemas Day, which is the 2nd of February, the bear or groundhog sees his shadow, he goes back in his den and sleeps forsix weeks more of winter. But if he doesn't see his shadow the bear or groundhog only sleeps four weeks and spring comes that much sooner.

"There may be no truth at all in that jolly story," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he picked the bright, red beads or seeds pods from the dried rose bush. "But I'll soon be at Mr. Stubtail's den and I can at least ask him not to come out of his den until the sun goes under a cloud. Then he won't see his shadow."

Uncle Wiggily reached over and picked some more red rose beads, at least they looked like beads, and he knew they would make lovely necklaces for some little animal girl when they were put on a string. And then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily heard a queer noise.

"Huck! Gluck! Muck!" was the noise the rabbit gentleman heard behind him as he stood in front of the prickly, stickery rose bush pulling off the red seed pods for beads.

"Dear me! What a funny noise!" murmured the rabbit gentleman.

"It ought to be funny, for I'm laughing!" growled a voice.

Looking around, Uncle Wiggily saw the Bob Cat standing right back of him. And, truly, the Bob Cat was laughing in the queer way such animals have of making mirth.

"Huck! Gluck! Muck!" chuckled the Bob Cat, sticking out his claws and then pulling them back in again.

"What are you laughing at?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Huck! Gluck! Muck!" snickered the Bob Cat, most impolitely. I'm laughing at you."

"At me!" exclaimed the rabbit in surprise. "Why so?"

"Because you look so silly there, sticking your paws over in that bush," went on the Bad Chap. "And you didn't know I was there but I knew it and I looked at your ears, thinking which one I would nibble first. But you didn't know a thing about it and you looked so funny I just couldn't help laughing. Huck! Gluck! Muck!"

Again the Bob Cat snickered, most impolitely.

Then all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily began to laugh.

"Ha !Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit, as politely as he could.

If he had pulled the whiskers of the Bob Cat that Bad Chap could not have been more surprised.

"What are you laughing at?" inquired the animal with the silly little tail of which he was much ashamed

Instead of answering Uncle Wiggily, with a sly twinkle of his left eye, at the same time twinkling his pink nose, began to pick more red seed pods of the rose bush. Then the Bob Cat saw what he was doing and howled and said:

"You can't fool me that way! I know why you are laughing! You think I don't see you picking those strawberries! Bur I do! You think you can pick all those strawberries for yourself and not let me have any. Well, I'll show you. I'll get some strawberries for myself and then I'll nibble you!"

With that the silly Bob Cat, thinking those red rose beads, or seed pods, were strawberries, and not stopping to think that strawberries don't grow in winter (except in the warm Southland), made a big jump over Uncle Wiggily's head and landed smack in the middle of the scrithcie, scratchie, thorny rose bush. The prickers and stickers caught in his fur and made him smart. But he wasn t smart enough to tell rose bush seeds from strawberries.

"Oh, wow! Oh, dear me! what a pickle I am in!" howled the Bob Cat and he couldn't get out of the thorny bush to catch Uncle Wiggily.

The rabbit gentleman, having carefully picked many rose red seed pods, without getting stuck himself, now ran away.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny. "The Bob Cat will not get out of that thorny rose bush in time to catch me, and I have a fine present of red beads for some little animal girl. I guess I'll give them to Beckie Stubtail." So the rabbit hopped on toward the bear's den.

Norway Pine Syrup

Mrs. A. W. Power, 581 Jane St., Toronto, Ont., writes:—"Eight years ago I had a very serious illness. I had a bad attack of pleurisy and pneumonia and was six months in bed. This illness left me with a terrible cough. I tried several cough medicines, but they did not seem to have any effect. One day my mother brought me home a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after I had taken several more I noticed my cough gradually leaving me. Since that time if ever my husband and children or myself have bad colds I always get 'Dr. Wood's'."

350 Men Get Work When Steel Mill Opens

SAULT STE. MARIE., Ont., Feb. 17 (C.P.)—The new rail mill of the Algoma Steel Corporation, which has been reconstructed at a cost of $1.-259,000, opened this morning, working on an order of 39,000 tons of 139 pound rails, the first time rails of that weight have been manufactured here. The opening of the rail mill has absorbed 350 of the Sault's unemployed who were laid off work when the mill shut down for rebuilding.

C.P.R. Incorporated Fifty Years Ago Today

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 17 (C.P.)—Fifty years ago to-day incorporation of the Canadian Pacific Railway took place. George Stephen, afterwards Lord Mount Stephen, was the company's first president. The company deposited with the Dominion Government at Ottawa a check for $1,000.-000 as a guarantee that it would fulfil its contract to complete the railways to the Pacific Coast. This pledge was completed in five years instead of ten the contract called for.

SOCIETIES HONOR MRS. C. P. DOUGHTY

Hastings Church W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid Pay Tribute to Departing Member.

HASTINGS, Feb. 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Friday afternoon the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid Society gathered in the basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church to make a presentation to Mrs. Charles P. Doughty one of their members who leaves shortly for Ottawa. Mrs. J. Scott Fife read the following address:

Dear Mrs. Doughty:

We, the members of the Women's Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, would take this opportunity to express our regret at parting with you after a friendship of the past twelve years, yet we rejoice to think that the move you are to make is to the advantage of both you and yours, and we would wish you all every success in your new home.

No doubt Ottawa will give you many friends, but we would not like to think that any new friends were any better, or more loyal, than the old.

We are sorry to part with old friends, but hope we may meet again from time to time throughout the course of life. Should you at any time favor us with a visit we will always welcome you.

With every good wish and God's best blessing we would ask you to accept, in the spirit in which they are given, these gifts from the members of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's, Hastings. (Signed) Mrs. William Hill, president M. S.; Mrs. W. E. Wilson, president L. Aid; Marguerite Fife, secretary; Annie Spooner, treasurer, L.A.; Annie M. Fleming, secretary, W.M.S.

Mrs. Annie Fleming made the presentation of a beautiful silver flower basket from the Ladies Aid, and a gold Society pin from the W.M.S.

Mrs. Doughty although taken by surprise, suitably replied to the address.

Company Director Held On Fraudulent Charge

GLASGOW, Scotland, Feb. 17 (C. P.)—Alexander Young, described as a company director, was arrested today on a charge of promoting an allegedly, fraudulent scheme to obtain money "through false representation" in connection with Scottish Amalgamated Silk Limited, which is now in liquidation.

He and several co-defendants are charged with having obtained approximately $1,190,000 in public subscriptions which, it is charged, they appropriated to their own us.

W. P. CELEBRATES 68TH BIRTHDAY

Walter Peters Has For Over Forty Years Been an Employee of The Examiner.

VETERAN WEATHERMAN.

With over forty years' continuous service to his credit on the staff of The Examiner, and still going strong, Walter Peters is to-day celebrating the sixty-eighth anniversary of his birth.

"W. P." also has a hobby, apart from his work as a printer—a hobby which has made a real contribution to the city and district. He is local weather expert, and his useful and continuous diligence gives to the citizens pretty much all there is to be said from day to day as to the vagaries of that perpetual subject of remark and conversation—the weather.

Mr. Peters was born in the village of Kirby, three miles north of Orono, in the adjoining county of Durham. He has lived in this city over a half century, and few employees of any plant here have exceeded his years of continuous service. He first learned to set type in The Examiner, when the office was on the east side of George street, about where Dave Jordan's flower store now is. He set type by hand for many years, and recalls the column upon column he has set in Long Primer, Bourgeois, Brevier, Minion, and Nonpareil, as it was then known. It is now designated by the point system. This veteran printer has seen many radical changes in his craft, the most remarkable, possibly, being the introduction of typesetting machines of various patterns.

"It was generally said in those days," recalled Mr. Peters, "that machines would never be a success unless they were endowed with brains. However they came, and made good, and are now in univeral use." He did not think that the newspapers of to-day will approach those of thirty or forty years, as to literary quality or freedom from errors. Everything that was put into type had been carefully written, and was corrected and revised at least once and usually twice. Slang was avoided, and the English was good," he remarked.

While not as young physically as he once was, Mr. Peters says that his spirits are still youthful, and he enjoys life to the full, and trys to look at things from an optimistic angle. "I have always endeavored to follow the Golden Rule. I have no enemies and lots of friends."

As a mark of evidence of the trust and esteem in which Mr. Peters is held by his fellow craftsmen it is interesting to note that he has held the office of treasurer of the local Typographical Union for a period of a quarter of a century without a break.

As weather observer, Mr. Peters has held the position since 1896, and the weather notes in The Examiner over the initials "W.P." have appeared all through the years. It is worthy of note that Peterborough is, with the exception of Toronto, the oldest established weather station in Canada. Records have been kept here continuously for fifty-six years, and intermittently for about twenty years previous. Before Mr. Peters took over these duties they were formerly discharged by the late Thomas Telford.

Mr. Peters is able to definitely state weather conditions on any day during the period covering the last thirty-five years. He is frequently stopped on the street by people who are strangers to him, and told that they always read his weather notes with interest. He has also been complimented by the heads of the Meteorological service on the accuracy and completeness of his reports.. "While this is but a side line with me," he stated, "it has nevertheless been the means of producing a methodical mode of living, as observations as to temperature, etc., have to be made at a certain hour each day."

MOTORING NEWS

By Roly Young.

The crack is often made that automobiles are not made in Canada, but are merely "assembled" here but in this connection it is pointed out that wages paid in Canada for the fabrication of the average Canadian car total $450.00. In addition chassis springs are purchased from Canadian concerns at Gananoque and Oshawa. Front axles are manufactured by the General Motors plant at Walkerville from forgins supplied by a Canadian firm at the border. Propellor shaft tube and differential are made at St. Catharines from tubings that is turned out at Woodstock. Motors are built from start to finish at Walkerville and radiators at Oshawa. Toronto factories supply batteries, wiring, paint, trim, hardware and other items. From Oshawa come malleable castings, bumpers and glass. Hamilton contributes forgins. Galt and Ingersoll supply bolts and nuts, a firm in Windsor manufactures the cushions and back springs. Windsor and Chatham factories make the wheels, and Kitchener and Toronto firms the tires. This could go on almost indefinitely, but is just a sample of how much the Canadian automobile is really Canadian.

The Dodge Marathon car is still "dodging" around United States and had done well over 75,000 miles and is still going strong. This car has visited every state in the union and has been to more than 500 cities of 25,000 population or over. It has crossed the continent ten times and made the trip from Canada to Mexico five times.

The drivers wore out before the car five different drivers having taken a crack at the job and at present two men are alternating week about. The car started its record making marathon on July 1. Ray Priest, the official A.A.A. observer, has stuck to the job so far, and has succeeeded in putting on 36 pounds since he started to sit down and go places for no good reason at all. He now weighs 201 pounds and if the car hangs out long enough, doubtless said Observer, will have to transfer to a truck.

If you've ever sold or bought a used car you'll know what I mean when I say that: The owner asks $1,000: He means $500: But he'll jump at $300: The buyer offers $100: And he gets it for $150: To find out it's not worth $1.50.

To the advantages of the four speed transmission, with its wide range of ratios suitable to any driving conditions and its two silent and efficient high gear drives, Graham has added the further improvement of positive and quiet gear changing through the adoption of the synchro-silent gearshifts The new device automatically equalises the speeds of the rotating parts before the actual engagement of the gears takes place. The synchro-silent gearshift is described at the simplest means yet devised to insure positive and silent changes of gear ration. Only one self contained unit, consisting of a sliding cone collar, is added to the transmission. Before the meshing members can come in contact, the external cone collar bears against an internal cone on the gear wheel, and the clutching action of the two cones brings the rotating parts to the same speed. The shift is then completed as quietly as if both gears were standing still, since there is no relative motion between them.

Now is that perfectly clear? If it isn't don't ask me, ask Einstein.

The appearance of a power plant embodying both conventional and Diesel features is predicted by Prof. Walter E. Lay, automotive expert in the University of Michigan College of Engineering.

The Diesel engine principle embodies such marked advantages in simplicity and economy that it cannot be disregarded, says Professor Lay. Due to high pressures and excessive weigh in the pure Deisel, however, it is probable that the eventual form which will be commercially produced will be some combination of advantageous features of both the present day gasoline engine and the heavy oil burner and will originate in the truck and bus field where economy is imperative. Modified Deisel trucks are already being built by a British firm, he points out.

"The modern idea of home has been expressed as the place one goes to from the garage," says George W. Wickersham, but maybe that's just another Wickersham report!

The following has been contributed with a guarantee that it's a true story. However, it's your own fault if you believe it, you've been warned.

A taxi driver, giving evidence in a divorce case said: "They only kissed once, but it was a long one." Counsel asked just how long, and the driver replied "Ten cents by the meter."

"Why didn't you blow your horn?"

"Who do you think I am—Little Boy Blue."

Trinidad Roads Now Open Rich District

PORT-OF-SPAIN, British West Indies, Feb. 17 (By The Canadian Press.)—Trinidad's road development scheme continues to progress and as a result a rich district is being opened up and marketing on the Island being made easy. The road development scheme has been under way for the past three years and is being continued along the same definite lines as previously, according to Hon M. A. Murphy, Director of Public Works, in an interview with a representative of the Tirnidad Guardian. "This is a silent department," Mr. Murphy remarked to the interviewer. However, he expatiated on the good work being done by the Government under his direction. "Our road programme," he said, "is intended to push wheeled traffic routes into new districts until the entire Island is connected with a network of roads to enable agriculturists to market their produce easily.. Concurrent with this there is, of course, the work of maintaining the roads already built. Our aim is also to assist in relieving unemployment."

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 74 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In Tarzan's camp, by dint of threats and promised rewards, the ape-man had finally succeeded in getting the hull of a large skiff almost completed. Much of the work he and Mugambi had done with their own hands, in addition to furnishing the camp with meat. Tarzan sensed the undercurrent of unrest, especially that of the grumbling mate, but since he could not lay his hands on anything tangible for open distrust, he decided to await developments.

Upon the day which the mate and Kai Shang intended to carry out their carefully laid scheme to sail away on the pearl ship, Lord Greystoke set out at noon to hunt deer in the jungle for meat which Mugambi reported he had seen there the day before. Bidding his wife a fond farewell and as usual cautioning the faithful Mugambi to watch over her, the ape-man swung easily through the tangled verdure of the forest.

Along the game trail he plunged deep into the jungle and joy sang in his heart. Never was he more nearly the Tarzan of old than when in the leafy solitudes of the jungle he stalked some wild game. He moved leisurely, sometimes upon the ground and again among the lower branches of the trees, gathering an occasional fruit or turning over a fallen log in search of the larger bugs which he still found as palatable as of old.

He had covered a mile or more when his attention was attracted by the scent of a herd of small deer. Mingled with that was the faint trace of a different and strange spoor. He knew not yet the nature of the thing that moved so stealthily through the jungle. But curiosity beset him, and toward this new prey the ape-man turned his silent way, swinging swiftly through the upper terrace of the tree-tops with the grace and ease of a monkey.

In Police Court

Parting with his hard-earned cash proved the last straw in a series of unfortunate events, which dogged Carman Watson's short visit to this city. Imbibing too freely of liquor yesterday, he ran foul of the law, and perforce had to spend the remainder of that day and the long hours of the night in the cells. He was hailed before the Police Magistrate this morning, and appeared to be in a very penitent frame of mind. Pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication, he was ordered to pay $10 and $4.50 costs into the City Treasury. He did so very reluctantly, remarking that he had worked hard all winter to build up his small financial reserves.

BULLETIN ON ROSE CULTURE

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin, No. 353, entitled "Rose Culture" which local rose growers should find helpful. It is is well edited and its illustrations should be of great assistance even to those who have not included roses in their flower gardens. There are forty-six pages in this bulletin, and presumably it may be obtained simply by applying to the Department.

Bible Society Workers Are Tendered Banquet

The workers who are canvassing in behalf of the Bible Society were tendered a banquet at George Street Church last night, by the executive committee of the Society. There were over one hundred present for the occasion.

The speaker, Reverend J. B. M. Armour, general secretary of the Bible Societies of Canada, gave a very inspiring address.

Reverend E. R. James, and Mr. H. B. Cowan, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

The canvass for funds will proceed for the next two weeks. The city is divided into districts, with the different churches being responsible for each district. A great deal of enthusiasm was shown at the gathering last night, and satisfaction over the gratifying returns so far was expressed. A. S. Zavitz, president of the local branch, presided.

HITLER WARNS FOLLOWERS.

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 17 (C.P.).—Adolf Hitler, in the National Socialist (Fascist) organ, Voelkische Beobachtet, to-day appealed to his followers to beware of the agitators within their ranks who would attempt to incite them to overt acts, thus making it possible for the Government to outlaw the party.

He warned particularly against possession of arms since "spies" were trying desperately to get evidence of one kind or another against the party.

W. F. REYNOLDS IS GUEST SPEAKER AT B.Y.P.U. RALLY

'LIVE FOR YOUR BOSS.'

W. Fred Reynolds, of Brockville, secretary of the Inter-provincial B.Y.P.U. of Ontario and Quebec was the guest speaker last evening at one of the largest gathering of Baptist young people held n this city for some time.

More than two hundred and fifty young people including guests from Gilmour Memorial, Norwood, Park Street and Murray Street Unions, sat down to a delightful banquet sponsored by the members of the B.Y.P.U. of Park Street and Murray Street Churches and served in the banquet hall of Murray Street Church last evening.

The tables were prettily decorated with the Convention colors of blue and white and were centred with yellow daffodils.

The banquet was under the convenorship of Fred Ward, president of the B.Y.P.U. of the Peterborough Baptist Association, and an energetic committee composed of members of the Unions of Park Street and Murray Street Churches

Mr. Ward in his opening remarks expressed his appreciation of the wonderful gathering—a gathering which went to show of the great great interest which the young people of the Baptist Churches of this district are taking in their spiritual welfare. He welcomed Mr. Reynolds as one whom is known to all who have attended any of the B.Y.P.U. conventions and one who is giving his entire time to the development of the young people's work.

Short Conference Held.

Following the banquet a short conference was held during which time Mr. Reynolds answered many questions for the young people regarding their work in the B.Y.P.U. This portion of the evening's program was very helpful and splendid suggestions were given for furthering the work. The Study Book for the year and the working of the Commission Plan program were also discussed.

Community singing enjoyed during the banquet was led by a seven piece orchestra which also contributed several numbers during the supper.

An open meeting was held in the Sunday School room room following the conference and a number of the older members of the Churches gathered to hear Mr. Reynolds.

"If you were to ask a man on the streets in a Southern city "who is your boss?' he would be likely to reply, 'Why Mr. So and So who lives in the big house at the end of the street,'" But, said Mr. Reynolds, "If I were to meet you on the streets of Peterborough and ask you the same question you would invariably answer, 'why nobody's my boss—I'm my own boss.'

"You are not your own boss," said Mr. Reynolds, "you belong to God, you are bought with a price—the blood of Jesus Christ. You belong to Christ on account of creation and preservation.

"The only foundation for the success of the B.Y.P.U. or any organization is the cross of Jesus Christ. If we would only realize that Christ, the Son of God is the boss of our life, a great many of our problems would banish forever—if we would only have faith.

We may serve our Master no matter where we are stationed—whether it be on the mission fields in China or clerking in a store on George Street we may do just as much for our Lord."

In closing, Mr. Reynolds threw out a challenge for the two hundred and fifty young people who composed the audience to try for one week to live for your boss."

The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe gave a fitting closing to Mr. Reynold's remarks by singing that lovely hymn, 'If Jesus Goes With Me."

Greetings from Brockville.

Ralph Clark, of the First Baptist Church Brockville, who had accompanied Mr. Reynolds, brought greetings from his local Society and also from the Canada Central Union of which he is president.

The importance of the great convention of the B.Y.P.U. of Ontario and Quebec which meets this year in Toronto from May 22 to 24, during which time 4,000 delegates are expected to be in attendance, was stressed by Mr. Reynolds during the announcements. It is hoped that this will be one of the greatest gatherings in the history of the Convention.

For the devotional part of the meeting nine members of Park Street Union gave a short sketch after the fashion of a Seth Parker program, which included the singin of familiar hymns and sentences of prayer. The group included the Misses Viola Tranter, Dorothy Pearce, Margaret Harton, Doris Inkpen, Messrs. Gordon Young, Stanley Young, Stewart Young, Newton Hamilton, and B. H. Smith.

Arthur Collison, A.D.C.M., L.A.B., organist of Murray Street Church, was the accompanist for the evening.

Votes of thanks were extended to Mr. Reynolds for the splendid address which he had given, to the ladies who served and to the committee in charge of the banquet.

The Rev. Mr. Downing, of Norwood, pronounced the benediction.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH ARTHUR KIERNAN.

The very sad death occurred of Joseph Arthur Kiernan, eleven months old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Kiernan, 160 Rubidge Street. The deceased leaves to mourn his loss his parents and two sisters.

The funeral will be held from his late home at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Interment will be made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

JOSEPH L. WALTON.

Word was received in the city yesterday of the sudden death of Joseph L. Walton, at his home in Bryant, Sask., on Monday, Feb. 16.

Surviving him are his wife, formerly Maggie Scott, and four sons: Albert, Allen, Wilfred and Andrew, and two daughters, Mrs. Alex. Reynolds, and Mrs. David Middleton, all of Saskatchewan, and one sister, Mrs. Martin, and a brother, William, also of Saskatchewan.

Mr. and Mrs. Walton were formerly residents of Smith Township.

JAMES H. CONNAL.

The funeral of the late James H. Connal, prominent merchant, business man and church worker for many years in this city, will be held from the family residence, 270 Brock Street, at 2.00 p.m. on Wednesday. Rev. Wm. Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will conduct the service, and interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

Besides Mr. Connal's business activities and curling interests, he was for 25 years on the Y.M.C.A. Board. He was one of the directors and on the Trust Fund at the time of his decease. Mr. Connal was also chairman of the Wm. Hall Trust Fund. He was an active member of the I.O.O.F. and the Foresters.

Mr. Connal is survived by his wife, two daughters, Jeanette at home and Mrs. R. W. Little of Lakefield; a sister, Mrs. W. G. Cameron of New York City, and a brother, W. F. Connal of Montreal.

GROUP PRESENTS PAGEANT DRAMA

"WORLD FELLOWSHIP."

A large congregation gathered at Saint Andrew's United Church on Sunday evening, when the Wide Awakes group of Canadian Girls in Training in C.G.I.T. Week being observed over the whole of Canada from February 8 to 15 inclusive, was granted permission to present in dramatized form, the story of "World Fellowship", based upon Basil King's book, "The Clash of Color."

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., conducted the opening worship service, and previous to the presentation of the pageant-drama, the leader of the group gave a brief outline of the history of the C.G.I.T. movement, which began in 1915, and specified the reasons for observing one week every year specially in the interests of the Canadian Girls in Training work.

A history of the "Christian Flag" was also given, the speaker using the one at the rear of the platform where it was crossed with the Union Jack, as she pointed out that the white ground stands for purity, innocence, and peace; the blue square in the right hand corner for faith, trust, and sincerity; and the red cross on the blue bringing to mind Calvary and the Saviour's shed blood. The pledge to the Christian flag was given during the pageant, and is: "I pledge allegiance to my flag, the Christian flag, and to the Saviour for Whose Kingdom it stands; one brotherhood, uniting all mankind in service and love."

The idea of world peace was strongly emphasized during the dramatized story; those taking part including.

GEORGE BOUCHER WINNER OF PIANO

PROCEEDS FOR RELIEF.

George Boucher of 269 Edinburgh street, was the lucky winner of the piano donated to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, and drawn for last night at the concert held in the Legion Hall. Ticket No. 5 was the lucky slip of pasteboard which brought Mr. Boucher the piano.

The concert was an extremely fine one, with a splendid program. The audience was intensely appreciative of the good music, which had pleasing variations in band and vocal numbers. The Peterborough Rangers Band, with Lt. W. H. Peryer, B. M., conducting, played as snappily and as tunefully as usual. It is seldom that a band is heard indoors, and the hall of the Legion seems to lend itself admirably to this type of music, for which the bandsmen shaded their playing with admirable precision. The numbers were of the popular type and proved very pleasing.

The other numbers on the program were from boy choristers of St. John's Church, from the boy choir which recently broadcasted so successfully from a Toronto radio station. The young men covered themselves with glory in the manner of their splendid singing of various pretty numbers, which were encored loudly in every instance. Their trainer, F. G. Mann, L.Mus., provided their accompaniments.

The proceeds of the entertainment will be used for relief purposes, for the work among ex-soldiers and their dependents, which the Ladies' Auxiliary carries on so well. The president of the Legion, James Abraham, was present last evening, and spoke briefly about the work being carried on, and the excellent manner in which the ladies handle the calls, year in and year out.

Mrs. W. R. Morris acted as chairman and also spoke very pleasingly along the same line.

The program was as follows: March (Hughes) "Hospitality," by the Band of the Peterborough Rangers; also "Oriental Overture," (Chenette); solo, "Apres La Guerre," (Packer) by Master Roy Pitchford; solo, "Absent," (Metcalfe), by Master Griffin Young; Idyll, "Mill in the Forest," (Eilenberg) by the Band; also Novelty number, "The Policeman's Holiday," solo, "Come to the Fair," (Martin), by Master Gerald Perks; solo, "Daddy," (Behrend), by Master Gerald Coleman; Fantasia, "Home, Sweet Home," as played the world over, a brilliant and extremely popular number by the band; also March, "With Sword and Lance," (Starke), by the band.

Wide-Awake Bible Class Holds Annual Meeting

A good representation of class membership was present on Thursday evening when the Wide-Awake Bible Class of St. James' United Sunday School held their annual meeting at the home of their teacher Mrs. Wm. Prest 271 Prince street.

After a short preliminary business session Mrs. Prest took the chair for the election of officers, which resulted in the following efficient executive for the coming year:

President, Miss Jean Rose; Vice-President, Miss Lillian Baldry; Recording Secretary, Miss Zoe McDonald; Treasurer, Miss Hazel Reesor; Social Committee: Misses Alberta Frost, Muriel Moorhouse, Florence Cripps and Marion Wood; Sick and Visiting Committee, Misses Edith Smith, Jennie Smart, Dorothy Lockhart.

The "Wide-Awakes" are living up to their name, not only in their Bible study, but in the splendid progress shown in all their undertakings.

Legge's Resignation Cannot Be Confirmed

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 17 (CP) Everything in connection with the reported resignation of Chairman Legge from the Farm Board on March 4 appears about correct, but the information still is entirely unofficial.

Personally, Legge neither affirms nor denies the report.

By those who expect early retirement it is held significant that Vice-Chairman Stone recently has presided at all board meetings even with the chairman present, and that Stone has been shouldering wide responsibilities. It was said at the board that Legge has recommended to the President that Stone become chairman in event of his departure.

"NEURITIS"

WE ARE GLAD TO QUOTE YOU WHAT MR. HARRY GODIN OF NORWOOD SAYS ABOUT THERONOID:

"To the Theronoid Co. Norwood, Ont.,
Peterborough, Ont. February 12th, 1931.

Dear Sirs,—

I was suffering with Neuritis for twenty years and I got so bad that my physician could not help me any more.

I decided as a last chance to try THERONOID, and after using it for one month I was completely cured. What THERONOID has done for me is more than I can express. It is simply marvellous, and I am sure that only those who have used THERONOID can really understand the due credit that I am trying to give it.

I feel that it is my duty to tell all the sufferers about it and to try and induce them to use THERONOID which will bring them Health and Happiness, for without health it is impossible to be happy."

Yours truly,
(Signed) HARRY GODIN.

We do not as a rule publish our testimonials, but on this occasion we were asked by Mr. Godin to do so, as he wants to tell everybody what THERONOID has done for him.

Come to our Office and take a Course of FREE TREATMENTS until you are convinced that THERONOID will help you. We will also be glad to give you a FREE HOME DEMONSTRATION at any time to suit your convenience.

DOCTOR CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

DOMINION AND PROVINCIAL RIGHTS IN RADIO BROADCASTING QUESTION IS TAKEN BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Preparation Under Way of Questions to be Contained in Reference.

NO DATE SET.

Judgment Not Expected in Time to Bring Down Legislation at Next Session.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.)—The respective rights of the Dominion and the Provinces on radio broadcasting will be the subject of a reference to the Supreme Court of Canada, it was officially stated to-day. Preparation of the questions to be contained in the reference is under way.

No decision has been made by the Dominion Government as to whether or not it will be represented at the hearings being initiated in the Quebec Courts by the Taschereau Government on radio broadcasting. It is quite possible that the Dominion will not be represented at the proceedings started by the Quebec Government; but will proceed to bring its own reference before the courts.

Much Depends on Date

From all indications, the matter of introducing legislation at the coming session of Parliament will be dependent on the date on which the proposed Dominion reference is argued before the courts and a decision has been rendered. The probability, however, at the moment is that the judgment of the court may not be secured in time to bring down legislation next session.

The whole subject of radio broadcasting, involving the question of nationalisation, had been under Government consideration. Premier Taschereau of Quebec, though, raised the question of Dominion control within that Province, and early this month the Quebec Premier announced that his Government was submitting a series of questions to the Superior Court of Quebec. The controversy over Dominion and Provincial control has recently been the subject of public utterances by Mr. Taschereau and members of the Dominion Government.

VICE OPERATIONS WILL BE PROBED

Mother of Four and Lawyer Held in Case Involving High School Girls.

SERIOUS CHARGES.

BOSTON, Mass., February 18 (C.P.). — An investigation of alleged vice operations in Boston involving High School girls, led to the arraignment of a lawyer and the mother of four children on serious charges to-day.

Mrs. Joan Fielding, 54, mother of four, pleaded not guilty to three charges, one of which included keeping a house of ill-fame. No bail was set. She was held for further hearing in Municipal Court on February 26.

Sidney S. Winston, 22, a lawyer, also pleaded not guilty. He was charged with abusing a minor girl, and the bail of $2,500 in which he was released yesterday was continued.

Max Hoffenberg, 299, of Boston, was to appear in court to-day for sentence on three indictments on which verdicts of guilty had been returned. His trial last week brought about revelations of operations of an alleged vice ring. Assistant District Attorney Daniel J. Gillen has predicted that a dozen more arrests would be made before a complete clean-up was effected.

MEET VICEROY LATER.

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 18 (C.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi and Lord Irwin, the Viceroy of India, talked together for three hours this afternoon, seeking a way out of India's political difficulties. Gandhi appeared cheerful as he left the Vice-Regal Palace, remarking, "The issues are still in the clouds. I am not coming back to-morrow."

Now the Mahatma will consult with other leaders of the Indian Congress Party, and within the next few days will resume his conversations with the Viceroy.

ROOMER PERISHES IN BOSTON BLAZE

CAUSE UNDETERMINED.

BOSTON, Mass., February 18 (C.P.). — One man was burned to death and a second was overcome by smoke during a fire in a south-end rooming house early to-day.

The dead man, James Sullivan, 56, a city employee, was trapped in his bed in his attic room at 31 East Canton Street. Nasad Agood, a neighbor, was overcome while aiding lodgers from the house. He was taken to the city hospital and later released.

The fire was confined to the top floor of the three-storey brick building. Lodgers on the lower floors returned to their rooms an hour after the fire started. The cause of the blaze was undetermined and the loss unestimated.

INEXPERIENCE OF FLIER BLAMED BY JURY FOR AIR FORCE TRAGEDY

Surviving Expert Claims He Was Pushed From Controls as He Sought to Help.

SHAW TESTIFIES.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Feb. 18.— (A.P.)—A verdict of accidental deaths was returned to-day by a coroner's jury that investigated the crash of a Royal Air Force seaplane Feb. 4, in which nine men were killed.

The jury found that the accident was caused by the inexperience of Wing Commander C. G. Tucker.

Flight Lieutenant M. H. Ely, who was instructing Tucker when the accident occurred, confirmed the testimony of previous witnesses that Tucker knocked his hands away when he attempted to take over the controls as the ship was about to alight.

Testifies at Hospital.

He testified propped by cushions, in a hospital cot where he is recovering from injuries received in the fatal plunge. Tucker was killed in the crash.

Witnesses at the inquest over nine men, killed when a big Royal Air Force seaplane crashed here on Feb. 4th, testified to-day that two officers were contending for the controls as the ship came down in its fatal plunge into Batten Bay.

Aircraftsman Shaw, better known as "Lawrence of Arabia," who watched the dive, said that men of the Mount Batten seaplane station were disinclined to go up with Wing Commander C. G. Tucker, who was killed in the crash.

No Confidence.

Shaw, who was noted for his reckless bravery when he was Colonel Thomas E. Lawrence, fighting in the Arabian desert, said he would have flown with Wing Commander Tucker if ordered to do so, but not if he were given his choice.

Survivors testified that Tucker was the ranking officer on the plane but that he was inexperienced. Flight Lieutenant M. H. Ely was actually in charge. It was said that when the time came to alight Ely placed his hands on the controls to take over from Tucker, whom he had been instructing, but Tucker knocked his hands away.

Lieutenant Ely survived the crash but was seriously injured.

DR. GLEASON WAS DRIVING CAR AT TIME OF CRASH AND WHICH RAN INTO TRUCK WHICH WAS PARKED

Truck Driver Sustained a Fractured Skull in the Accident and Has Not Been Able to Recall Anything About What Happened Since.

OSHAWA, Ont., February 18 (C.P.). — Dr. H. J. Gleason of Lindsay was this morning committed for trial by Magistrate Willis at Whitby, on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of his mother, Mrs. John Gleason, in an automobile accident which occurred on the Whitby-Lindsay Highway, near Brooklin Village, on September 3 of last year. Dr. Gleason was driving the car in which his mother was riding when it ran into the rear of a truck which was parked at the side of the road while its driver, Joseph Wilson, of Port Perry, was repairing a tire. Wilson sustained a fractured skull in the accident, and a feature of the hearing was the fact that since the accident his mind has been a complete blank, and he was unable to tell the court anything about what happened.

7-Year Term Given For Series Of Thefts

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 18. (CP) George Anderson, who committed a series of housebreaking and other thefts in Western Ontario and has been sentenced in Chatham and London, pleaded guilty in county police court this morning to breaking and entering the premises of C. McCormick, Paris, and stealing $25 and some fountain pens. Two other charges against the man were not pressed.

Magistrate Blake imposed a sentence of five years in Portsmouth Penitentiary to run concurrently with the sentences imposed at Chatham and London, which amount to seven years.

ARCTIC OWL IN TEMISKAMING.

UNO PARK, Ont., February 18. — This section of South Temiskaming is experiencing visits by species of the Arctic or Snow owl for the first time in the memory of the oldest settler. Several fine specimens, some with wing spreads of more than five feet and of beautiful color, have been secured by local Nimrods.

Lonesome Actress Leaves Cast Flat

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 18. — Aboard a speeding eastbound train somewhere in the middle-west, Edna Best, a lonesome British actress, was bound for London to-day, and Hollywood was gasping because she "walked out" on John Gilbert yesterday.

The British actress left the film leading man, a full cast of players and an irate director flat on the lot at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. She telegraphed she was homesick.

Miss Best was to have played the feminine lead opposite Gilbert in "Cheri-Bebi."

Schneider Cup List Closed—U.S. Too Late

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Executives of the Royal Aero Club said today that the Schneider Cup race had been closed and that it would be impossible to accept the entry of Lieutenant Al Williams, United States flier.

The list closed Dec. 31 with France and Italy challenging Britain's right to permanent possession of the cup. One of the race officials said, "we would like to accommodate the United States but we could not possibly alter the rules."

ATTACK IS MADE ON BEAVERBROOK BY MRS. BALDWIN

Claims Free Traders Policy Should Not Be Mistaken For Patriotism.

SHEER EGOTISM.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent.)—Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the Conservative chieftain, sallied forth into the East Islington district to-day and delivered some remarks obviously directed at Lord Beaverbrook. Lord Beaverborok, supporting Brig.-General Critchley, a native of Calgary and Empire Free Trade candidate in the East Islington by-election, has been strongly attacking Mr. Baldwin and the Conservative party.

"This attack by irresponsible people is not going to help the country," declared Mrs. Baldwin. "Do not mistake egotism for patriotism. It is sheer egotism on the part of a man with a policy which has failed to make any impression on the Dominions, to pursue the same for his own private ends.

The Right Course.

"It would have been patriotism if, after failing, he had gone to the Conservatives and said, 'I have tried and failed but for the country's good I will throw in my lot with you'." Mrs. Baldwin added.

The campaign finishes to-day on a note of feverish enthusiasm, with the electors going to the polls to-morrow to choose between four candidates—Big.-General Critchley; Miss Thelma Cazalet, Conservative; Major H. E. Crawford, Liberal; and Mrs. Leah Manning, Labor. The seat was held by the late Ethel Bentham, Labor, elected in 1929 in a three-cornered contest with a majority of 1358.

Lord Beaverbrook spoke at various points, while all the four candidates were guests at a luncheon of the Islington Chamber of Commerce.

PETER VEREGIN'S AIMS ARE DASHED

LAW LAID DOWN LAST YEAR.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 18. — The proposal of Peter Veregin to bring to Canada "all members of the Christian community of Universal Brotherhood," was dismissed by the immigration officials here last night with the statement that "under the existing regulations governing immigration to Canada they would not be admissable."

It was recalled that on August 14 last year the government passed an order-in-council which drastically restricted migration to Canada. This policy was enunciated in a statement issued then by the Department of Immigration which read as follows:

"Discontinuance of immigration from the continent of Europe is announced to-day as the policy of the government, by Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, with the exception of experienced farmers of suitable type who are in possession of ample means to immediately establish and maintain themselves on farms, and the wives and children of persons already established in Canada."

Walkerville Brewery Appeals $5,000 Fine

WINDSOR, Ont., Feruary 17 (C.P.). — An appeal against a $5,000 fine, assessed by Magistrate D. M. Brodie in September last, has been made by the Walkerville Brewery, Limited, and is being heard by Judge J. O. Coughlin in County Court.

The fine was assessed for breach of the Liquor Control Act on the grounds that the company had 704 cases of beer stored in an illegal place and that sales had been made illegally. The defense contends that if beer was sold illegally it was done by a shipping clerk and not by the company.

Appeal for return of the seized beer had been lodged with the Liquor Control Board.

W. PERKINS BULL IS BADLY HURT IN AUTO SMASH

Two Companions of Toronto Barrister Injured as Car Hits Trailer.

NEAR QUINCY, MICH.

Injured Man Was Under Subpoena to Appear To-day in Chicago Court.

COLDWATER, Mich., Feb. 18. — (CP)—W. Perkins Bull, K. C., of Toronto, whose right hip was fractured in an accident near Quincy, Mich., yesterday, left here in an ambulance at 11:30 a.m., today, to complete the trip from Chicago to Detroit which he started in a taxicab before the accident.

From Detroit it is planned for Bull to enter Canada and go by train to Toronto. He was accompanied by a physician and an attorney from Chicago, whose names were not learned, and by his wife and a son. They rode in a taxicab behind the ambulance and were followed in turn by another cab occupied by Chicago newspaper men.

Two Companions Hurt.

Bernard Magruder, a vice-president of the Horlick Malted Milk Company, who was riding with Bull at the time of the accident, was hurt, but was able to go back to Chicago yesterday. Carl F. Moore, driver of the automobile, suffered a fractured knee. He is in the hospital under number 112 near Quincy, Mich., the Bull car crashing into the trailer of a motor truck.

Tailors Specify The Perfect Man

NEW YORK, February 18 (C.P.). — Here, say the tailors of the United States, is the perfect man:

Height, 5 feet 8 inches; weight, 138 to 140 pounds; waist, 30 to 31 inches; hips, 37 inches; arms (Sleeve), 18 inches; legs, 32 inches. He has poise, is well mannered, observes the niceties of public conduct, speaks intelligently, acts like a gentleman.

Reward for fitting these standards:

He, or they, will be allowed to model the advance summer and fall fashions for the Clothing Designers' Executives' Association, February 27 and 28.

AVALANCHE KILLS SEVEN.

ISTANBUL, February 18 (C.P.)—Seven peasants were buried alive yesterday in a snow avalanche in the mountains of Eastern Turkey near Malatia. Rescuers found the bodies.

It was feared also to-day that seven farmers travelling between the villages of Ortakeuy and Boulane had been lost in a blizzard.

TREATY ON NIAGARA FALLS POWER TO BE CARRIED OUT WITH CANADA, REJECTED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

Wish Power Treated Separate From Preservation of Scenic Beauty.

Oppose Private Companies.

Would Have U. S. Gov't Do Work Direct Without Entering Into Contracts.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. —(AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today rejected the Niagara Falls Power Treaty with Canada unanimously.

The treaty has been pending before the committee for some time and provided for the allocation of additional power from the Falls to both Canadian and United States power interests.

Chairman Borah announced the committee "desired to have the power matter treated as a separate matter" from the other treaty provisions relating to the preservations of the scenic beauty of the falls.

He related the testimony of Brigadier General Pillsbury of the army engineers that the contract for power allowed under the treaty would be worth $5,000,000 to the power companies.

Committee's Statement

In a statement issued after the unanimous decision of the Foreign Relations Committee, Borah said:

"The Foreign Relations Committee favors, however, all reasonable action upon the part of the United States to preserve the scenic beauty of the Falls.

"It objects to this treaty because it purports to enter into a contract with private companies to do certain work and for which they are given the use of a certain amount of water for power purposes.

"It is the view of the committee that the Government of the United States, insofar as its part is concerned, ought to do this work direct and not enter into a contract, with private power companies and pay the price which is here proposed to be paid."

Imposter Seeking Funds for Relief

Information has come to The Examiner from various sources that a woman has been making a door to door canvass for money, claiming that she represents the Peterborough Relief Association. She is described as of medium height, with a black, fur-trimmed coat, and is quite insistent on her claims. She also says she has been sent out by some of the churches, and that she comes from East City.

The Relief Association, which is working through entirely different channels in its campaign for relief purposes, has not authorized anyone to make such demands, and wishes to repudiate this canvasser altogether. ... ...

PETERBORO RINK IN THIRD ROUND OF YORK TROPHY

W. J. Oke Wins From Currie, of Ayr, by 10 Shots in Second Round.

FOUR RINKS UNBEATEN.

W. O. Tudhope of Orillia Defeats W. J. Brydson of Lindsay 15 to 12.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—(C.P.)— The 72 rinks which won their first games on Monday in the competition for the Royal York trophy, premier prize of the Toronto bonspiel, swung back into action in that competition today. Six rinks that had passed undefeated through the first two days of the bonspiel were among them and four came back unscathed.

W. O. Tudhope, Orillia, went into the second round by defeating W. J. Bryson, Lindsay 15-12, Charles Bulley, Toronto, Granites advanced by a 11-7 win over Bob Falconer, High Park, Toronto, to reach the third round. The other two unbeaten rinks which won second round games were: R. G. Hall, Kitchener, winner of the grand aggregate last year, who defeated W. B. Walton, Agincourt, 10-9, and F. R. Michael, Oshawa, who won from Sam Meredith, Barrie, 9-8.

All three London rinks, Sage, Wilson and Wright, won their games as did B. C. Hall, Kitchener, Ross Marstone, Hamilton, Norman Rule, Col-

$3,107.93 IS CONTRIBUTED TO DATE TO AID RELIEF ASSOCIATION'S WORK

Canadian General Employees Boost To-day's List of Contributions.

INTEREST WIDESPREAD.

A glance at the following list of contributions to the fund being raised by the Peterborough Relief Association will show just how many citizens are casting their bread upon the waters these days in a whole-hearted effort to help those who are a little less fortunate than themselves. According to Biblical prophecy, this bread comes back in happy ways and those who help have the warm conviction that they are doing a good and fine thing.

Widespread interest is being taken in the effort. It is impossible, as has been stated, for the civic authorities to help all those who are in need, and this fund will supplement the efforts already being made. Peterborough can pat itself on the chest later on in the year and reflect that in this city, at least, there was no bread line and no soup kitchen.

Yesterday, the employees of the Sun Life Insurance Company contributed to the total of $125 among twenty-one employees. If every establishment in town would do likewise, the fund would be a sizeable and a generous one, and enough to meet all eventualities.

The following is a list of donations:

Hangman Overtakes Escaped Dervish

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The law caught up today with the 25-year-old Dervish, Hussein, who made a spectacular bid for freedom recently when he broke from the hangman who was to have executed him with 27 others, and escaped in the gloom of the dawn.

He was captured last night, half starved after fifteen days wandering through the mountains about Smyrna and this morning he was hanged. He and the others executed were charged with participation in a brief revolt at Menemen.

New Italian Forts Mean Budget Boost

ROME, February 18 (C.P.). — Projected new fortifications in the frontier zones which the Italian Government proposes to build have led to an increase over last year of $5,905,232 in the military budget, presented the Chamber of Deputies last night.

While the expenses of the Army are somewhat reduced because of the general cut in the pay of all Government employees, the total military expenditure shows an increase because of the new fortification estimate.

The items responsible for the increase include "work needed for the defence of the country, replacement of war materials, erection of military works and transport expenses."

EX-SERVICE MEN MAY ALL UNITE

PROPOSAL APPROVED.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 18.—(C.P.)—The amalgamtion of all the ex-service men's organizations in Canada into one integral association was seen to-day as a development from the executive meetings of the Army and Navy Veterans held in Ottawa this week. The A. and N. Directors advanced a long step towards this unity when, in a declaration of policy given to the press to-day, they asserted their belief "that steps should be taken immediately to complete the uniting of all national ex-service men's associations in Canada into one corporate entity; and that the body thus formed should be the Canadian members organization of the British Empire Service League."

The associations whom the Army and Navy Veterans' resolution has to do with are the Canadian Legion, the Amputations Association, the Sir Alfred Pearson Club for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors and the Canadian Pensioners' Association. All of those organizations have given tentative approval to the project. It is made clear that the autonomious character of the different amalgamation bodies would be preserved.

The proposal was confirmed to-day by Col. W. C. H. Wood, president of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada.

German Fleet Sunk While British Waited

MONTREAL, Que., February 18 (C.P.). — The British Navy followed the Nelson tradition and put the telescope to the blind eye when the Germans scuttled their ships at Scapa Flow, Professor George W. Scarth of McGill University suggested last night, speaking before the St. James' Literary Society here.

His hypothesis, based on the fact that when the German Fleet surrendered at Scapa Flow every British ship put out to sea and returned only when the German ships had been scuttled, was incidental to a lecture on the Orkney Islands. Professor Scarth's explanation of the move was that the British did not want to distribute the ships among the other nations.

Admiral Aznar Forms Spanish Cabinet

MEMBERS TAKE OATH OF OFFICE ASSUME CONTROL

Expect New Gov't Will Move For General Election in Municipalities in March.

ATMOSPHERE LESS TENSE.

Political Prisoners Lose All Hopes of Being Pardoned.

MADRID, February 18 (C. P.). — Admiral Juan Bautista Aznar formed a Cabinet to succeed that of General Damaso-Berenguer this morning, and at one o'clock this afternoon its members took the oath of office before the King, and assumed charge of the Government.

It was understood that the new Government would move immediately for a general election in all municipalities next month, for election of general councils in May, and a National Parliamentary election in June.

May Revise Articles.

It was understood also that there would be a constitutional convention with power to revise such articles of the 1876 constitution as appears advisable.

The atmosphere to-day was much less tense than yesterday, when there seemed imminent danger of another revolution or coup d'etat to re-establish a military Dictatorship.

Fear of a general strike called by the Socialists was passing, although it was felt generally such a strike would surely result if the suspension of constitutional guarantees should be lifted. Political prisoners who probably would have been freed if Snachez Guerra had worked out his Government now are expected to stay in jail.

Designs New Type Of Aeroplane

MAKES 35 MILE AN HOUR LANDING

Landing his aeroplane at a rate of only thirty miles per hour is a feat which Earl McClary has accomplished several times. This Los Angeles aviator believes this will mean a great deal to aviation. McCleary during the past two months has completed a plane in which the engine has been located in the rear of the airship instead of at the front as with the ordinary plane. It has a four-passenger cabin and is of the monoplane type.

LONELY WOMAN KIDNAPS CHILD AS COMPANION

Four Year Old Girl Found in Restaurant With Abductor Six Hours Later.

Lonely For Companionship.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—Mrs. Mary Winters, nineteen, a tall, rather comely young woman, was lonely—lonely for human companionship—lonely for a child.

She was brooding on this as she walked along Myrtle ave., Brooklyn. And when she saw four-year-old Arlene Hayes playing in front of her having stopped, yielded to temptation. She persuaded the little girl to go along with her.

This was the story Mrs. Winters told police yesterday as she awaited arraignment on a charge of kidnaping. She said simply:

"I was going to take her and love her. I have nobody."

Six hours after Arlene disappeared from before her home the child and Mrs. Winters were found in a restaurant on Saturday night. Arlene, happy, was eating spice cake and drinking milk. She told Detective Drumm, who found the pair, that she had been treated very well.

The detective, who had been searching the neighborhood, recognized the child from the description given by her father.

Mrs. Winters elected to remain something of a woman of mystery. She said she was separated from her husband and had been living in a rooming house. She refused to give the address or to tell more of herself other than that she was born in Austria. Her husband, police say they learned, is connected with the Long Island Railroad.

PLAN EXPEDITION INTO VENEZUELA

Party of Dozen Scientists Using Three Planes to Start in August.

STAY SIX MONTHS.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 18.— A proposed scientific expedition into the "lost world" of Southern Venezuela by land and by air was described by the New York Times today.

The sponsors are the American Geographical Society, the American Museum of Natural History and the New York Botanical Society.

A dozen scientists, equipped with three planes, plan to start in August and spend six months in the field. They expect to cover 160,000 square miles in the vicinity of Mount Roraima.

G. H. H. Tate, assistant curator of mamals in the museum, will head the party. Others will be Charles Hitchcock representing the Geographical Society, Captain Ashley C. McKinley, third in command of the Byrd expedition; and George A. Thorne, Jr., who was also in the Antarctic.

The scientists will study human, plant and animal life and the geological origin of the terrain, collecting specimens to be brought home. They hope to find biological data substantiating the theory of evolution. Captain McKinley and the flyers will map the border between Venezuela and Brazil.

SUICIDES WORRY HEADS OF CASINO

Three Foreigners Taken Their Lives in One Week After Heavy Losses.

DETAILS LEAK OUT.

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Feb. 18 (C.P.). — The increasing number of foreigners committing suicide here is beginning to worry the Casino directors probably for the first time in the sixty-five years of the gambling palace's existence. In one week three men, an Austrian, an Italian and a German, committed suicide after losing heavily in the Casino.

When a gambler takes his life within the Casino grounds it is practically impossible to check up on the fact, and in many cases even the resident Consuls are not notified. Before the war the gardens in front of the Casino were favorite suicide sites, but now it seems that the despondent losers prefer the privacy of their hotel rooms, with the result that the public knows what is going on.

Though the Casino several years ago stopped the system started by Camille Blanc, the founder, whereby losers were given tickets to their homes, it is reported that the plan has been unofficially working for the past few weeks.

LEGISLATURE IS ASKED TO STUDY FARM CONDITIONS

W. E. N. Sinclair Appears as New Man of Floor of House.

NIXON SPEAKS.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—It was a new Sinclair the Ontario Legislature saw in action yesterday—a man who, now "freed from the limitations of party leadership," spoke, as Liberal lawyer, Liberal farmer and Liberal citizen, an emphatic desire to co-operate rather than to criticize—an old guardsman who buried the hatchet on the brokerage and the "booze" questions that he was so prone to slash at and into in other sessions, to plead, in quiet but compelling language, the cause of the Ontario farmer under present-day depressed conditions, and to urge upon the House and Government the immediate adoption of steps which, in his opinion, would aid immeasurably in relieving the agriculturist's plight.

"My suggestion today," said Mr. Sinclair during the debate, "is that this session be given over almost entirely to a study of farm conditions in this Province. I am making the suggestion early, so it cannot be said there is no time."

The Agriculture Committee of the House—a committee which, he contended, had long been "a society for the entertainment and improvement" of the farmer members of the Assembly, and, as such, "largely useless" to the farmers of the Province at large—should, he submitted, be converted into an inquiry committee for the current session, at least, empowered to take evidence, and to submit to the session some report out of which could be built further benefits to the "hard-hit" and suffering man on the farm.

Mr. Sinclair's reception in the Leader's day debate of yesterday was probably the most outstanding accorded an Opposition group head in the past quarter of a century. His own supporters and Government benchers, alike, dinned out applause, not only when he took his seat for the first time this session, but when he rose to speak; and still again when he had concluded his forceful presentation of the farmer's part in the progress of the Province, and the need for aiding that farmer if progress and growth, in which the urban centres shared equally, were to be continued.

No Politics.

There was no rancor in the Liberal House Leader's remarks. Not one "hot shot." Not one sly gibe. "This is no political question," he said of his single-track discussion, "and I hope to serve not in a critical, captious, biased manner but in a constructive manner which will be helpful to our people."

Associated with Mr. Sinclair in upholding the Opposition end of yesterday's debate was Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Progressive Leader, who also

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make 16 ounces. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

ECONOMY ERA IS TO BE PRACTISED PROMISES HENRY

New Premier Says Day of Less Spending Has Come to Ontario.

TWO-FISTED FIGHTER.

Pays Tribute to W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal Group Leader in Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—From a comparatively recent sick bed, Premier George S. Henry stepped into the Leaders' day debate in the Legislature yesterday and "mixed it" with Fergusonian abandon on behalf of his Government and the policies it espouses.

It was no "flu"-hit Prime Minister that struck out at Liberal candidature criticism of his Administration in the recent Grenville and West Hamilton by-elections — who condemned the Liberal campaigns of "villification and abuse" as "the worst ever seen"— who single out Mitchell F. Hepburn, Provincial Liberal Leader, who "ran around doing a lot of talking, but who hadn't the courage to allow his name to go on the ballot paper"—but a two-fisted fighter who, in this his maiden Legislature speech as successor to Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, time and again roused his supporters to thunderous applause by the sheer weight of his argument and the sting he packed into it.

Warning of Retrenchment.

Mr. Henry touched off all the fireworks in yesterday's House debate, but above all their snap and sizzle and splutter he sounded, not to the legislators in partcular, but to the Province at large, a solemn warning of a retrenchment by the Government in its expenditures. None, he informed his hearers, was of the depressed conditions — particularly those affecting the farming classes—better than he. None was more anxious to co-operate and work to the improvement of those conditions than he. The Government, he felt, had to "go slow and live within its income."

"Yes," said he, "we've to retrench. In the face of the exisiting situation we cannot go on as we've been going."

From the Prime Minister the House had confirmation of recent forecast that Ontario's cancer treatment — whenever it was adopted—would be given free to the sufferers of the disease, and the suggestion that a radium institute, long mooted, might be established as the means of providing this treatment. From the Prime Minister the House had an emphatic denial of stories that the Government was aiding bus lines to the detriment of railway transportation. And from the Premier the House had an expression of willingness to co-operate with the Liberal group under Mr. Sinclair in working out policies of benefit to the country at large, and a brief testimonial to the Sinclair leadership that even brought a blush to as praisehardened a political warrior as the member from South Ontario.

Liquor Question Views

In a bill of indirect crossfire, the Prime Minister manoeuvred from the Liberal benches a significant admission as to its attitude with regard to the liquor question that brought lusty desk-thumping from the Government benchers. One progressive step, at least, said the Premier, had been made by the Liberals in the past year, in spite of conventions and what not. They had at last agreed that Government control was the only satisfactory method of handling the

BISHOPS JOIN IN LONDON DISPUTE

EXPECT DECISION SOON.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(By Thos. T. Champion, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — Frankly recognizing that the old rigor of Sunday observance cannot be maintained nowadays, a council of bishops and free church leaders, considering social questions, proposes that the question of Sunday operation of moving picture theatres should be governed by local town and county officials.

The council, however, urged that there should be no Sunday operation for commercial profits, no institution of a seven-day week for theatre employees, and that the films to be exhibited on Sundays should be carefully supervised.

The Government is understood to be considering some sort of three-party agreement on the main principles of a new legislation dealing with the subject, which was brought to the fore by the Appeal Court's decision upholding a ruling of the High Court that Sunday films were illegal under the ancient Lord's Day Act.

The Government's legislation is expected to be along the lines of leaving the matter to local authorities, much as the bishops suggest. This, however, obviously does not completely determine the larger question of theatre opening. Upon this the theatrical profession itself is divided, some of the leading personages favoring Sunday opening and in turn closing on some other day of the seven in the week.

WEALTHY JEWELER IS FEARED KILLED

Kin Believe Bandits Murdered Victim For $30,000 Worth of Uncut Gems.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—The mysterious disappearance of Abraham H. Levy, well-to-do diamond broker, was disclosed Monday, as police of all metropolitan precincts searched for him on the theory he had been kidnapped and perhaps murdered.

At 11.30 a.m. Saturday, Levy with uncut gems in his possesion of a value between $25,000 and $30,000 walked out of his office to keep an appointment. He was not seen nor heard from again.

He was to have met his brother, Matthew, of the law firm of Panken and Levy. When he did not appear the brother got in touch with the broker's wife, Marie, at their home. She had not heard from her husband, either.

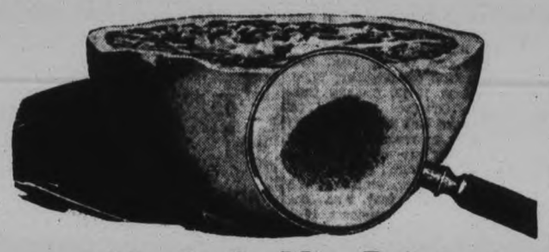
Safe Robber Convicted by Grapefruit



He Left His Print

Los Angeles had an epidemic of safe-breaking. But the robber always erased his finger prints with grapefruit juice, and thus baffled the police. Then Lieut. Barlow, the famous expert who convicted Hickman, the kidnapper, found a finger print on one of the grapefruits the robber used. That print identified the thief, and he is now behind the bars.

Just another of the thousands of examples of how people, innocent and guilty, leave prints on whatever they touch.

So On Your Foods

So you leave prints on every thing you touch with contaminated hands. On bread, on toast, on cookies and candy — everywhere! Those prints convey dangerous germs. You may have picked them up from others, by a handshake or by touching something others have touched.

Life Extension Institute lists 27 diseases which may be conveyed in this way. The most common is colds, conveyed by hands which stopped a cough or sneeze.

Your only protection lies in washing hands often with a germ-destroying soap, and always before eating. That soap is Lifebuoy Soap. It destroys most germs, and makes others inactive.

Safety—Luxury—Protection

Lifebuoy Soap is based on two palm oils. There was never a soap more luxurious, more helpful to the skin and complexion. But, instead of a perfume, there is a germicide. You can smell it for a moment, but the scent disappears. Countless tests prove that no germs can live or thrive after its application.

You have three supreme results whenever you use Lifebuoy.

First, a gentle and luxurious soap, based on oils which, since ancient times, have been recognized as best for the skin.

Second, a germicidal soap which protects you from contaminations.

Third, a soap which stops body odour and thus prevents embarrassment. That is why people use it as a bath soap.

Millions of people, in every country of the world, are using Lifebuoy for skin help—for combating germs — for insurance against body odour.

Keep Lifebuoy handy for the wash basin and the bath in your home. Encourage the family to use it often. Your dealer has Lifebuoy for you.

A BETTER METHOD.

It is predicted that during the present session legislation will be introduced to place the administration of the Security Frauds Prevention Act in the hands of a commission.

The proposal, which was suggested some time ago by the present leader of the Progressives, would be received with general approval, and none more hearty than that of the Attorney-General himself.

Hon. W. H. Price, up to the present, has had control of the administration of the measure and the results have not been particularly happy.

His handling of the responsibilities entailed in the regulation of the brokerage and stock-selling business has been bitterly attached by his political opponents, and there is little reason to doubt his anxiety to wash his hands of the whole thing.

The suggested change will take the administration of the Security Frauds Prevention Act out of politics completely and effectually dissipate political criticism.

Instead of a minister of the crown being responsible the burden will be assumed by a commission with the same powers as a judge, an arrangement that should effectually dispose of complaints that political interference and influence have been allowed to prevent a fair administration of this important legislation.

The new method will appeal to most Ontario people as a move in the right direction.

SAVING IN THE WRONG PLACE.

It is undoubtedly the case that there is need at Ottawa for retrenchment; rapidly falling revenues make it necessary for the Federal Government to reduce expenditures wherever possible.

But surely the situation is not so bad that the Government should have to save at the expense of those partially disabled war veterans who are out of employment and who have been dependent upon Government relief to keep body and soul together.

The intimation that, without any warning, the allowance to these men has been cut from $10 to $13 a month demands an explanation.

It is said the reduction is only temporary and has been occasioned by the fact that the appropriation for this purpose has been exhausted, but that excuse does not justify this abrupt reduction in grants that have been skimpy enough without any further trimming.

More than 5,000 ex-service men are affected by the order, and it is inevitable that much hardship will be created for them and for their families unless the Government realizes that a mistake has been made and takes prompt steps to rectify the matter.

Men who risked everything for this country should be the last and not the first to suffer through new policies of economy; the predicament in which the part pensioners now find themselves is not of their creation, and it should be relieved by a restoration of the old allowances to those who need them so badly.

KEEP THEM ALL OUT.

The federal authorities have barred from Canada a book called "The Life of Al Capone," the title of which is enough in itself to justify the action that has been taken.

The Examiner congratulates the Government upon keeping such doubtful literature out of this country, but at the same time would suggest to the powers-that-be that they make a real job of it by banning at the same time the crime story magazines that are crammed full of exactly the same kind of stuff as is to be found in the Capone book.

As a matter of fact, a life story of the Chicago gangster is at the present time running in serial form in several of the highly colored, profusely illustrated publications from over the border that are to be picked up at any Canadian newstand.

To shut out the book and at the same time to allow the cheaper and therefore more likely to be read magazines to have entry into Canada is certainly not a demonstration of consistency.

This new crop of "detective" stories based on actual crimes and containing ghastly pictures of murders and executions should have no place in this country, much less be exposed for sale and flaunted before the eyes of every youngster who can secure enough money to buy one of these cesspools of American gang wars and racketeering.

By all means bar "The Life of Al Capone," but don't stop at that; eliminate at the same time the crime magazines that are decidedly more dangerous.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

Municipal councils and other bodies which have been urging that a system of unemployment insurance should be adopted in this country are hasty in endorsing something that they cannot have given a great deal of thought.

The latest figures from Great Britain as to the operation of unemployment insurance there are not reassuring.

Another one hundred million dollars has had to be added to the dole fund, the ever-increasing demand making further loans inevitable.

The British scheme is already $336,000,000 in debt, and borrowing has increased to about five million dollars a week.

Miss Bondfield, Minister of Labor in the MacDonald Government, reports that there are 2,642,000 people without jobs in the British Isles, and that there is no assurance that the peak has been reached.

In other words, the dole, already a heavy drain upon the resources of the country, is certain to increase steadily, and the end is not in sight.

Unemployment insurance may eventually be adopted into the social system of Canada, but it is not an obligation to be rushed into without long and careful investigation of the whole situation and all that is entailed.

Certainly no plan that is not founded on a sound acturial basis should be entertained for a moment, and those municipal bodies which are blithely passing resolutions should make that proviso a feature of the program they are in such haste to endorse.

WANTS MEIGHEN BACK.

Some time ago The Star suggested that Premier Bennett would honor himself and the country and do much toward the strengthening of his administration and public confidence generally, by inviting Mr. Meighen to accept the still vacant portfolio of finance. Next to the Premiership itself, this post is the most important in the ministry. Mr. Bennett, obviously, cannot continue to administer it indefinitely. The double strain is too much for any one set of shoulders. The Finance Department has been held open for more than six months in order that the Prime Minister might secure the best possible man for the appointment. We cannot say that Mr. Meighen's services are available, but there can be no question as to his fitness for the post, also as to the desire of the people for him to have it. To a nicety he fills the bill so far as the description, "the best possible man," is concerned. He is, obviously, the best possible man because his generation has produced no public figure who can begin to compare with him in sheer mentality, in grasp of public questions, in analysis of public problems, in the power to grapple with the realities. Arthur Meighen is unique. It is a pity that the country should not be enjoying his services at a time when they could be used to such advantage.

We have no way of knowing what is in Mr. Bennett's mind. It may be that he has approached Mr. Meighen regarding the finance portfolio and that the former leader has not been receptive to the idea. If this is not the case, however, we would respectfully suggest to the Prime Minister that public opinion would heartily second any effort he might make along these lines. Arthur Meighen, in retirement, is more appreciated to-day than he was in th e later years of his parliamentary career. To-day, people of all shades of political opinion are hoping for his early return to the field he so long adorned and in which he was so often misunderstood.—Border Cities Star.

SENDING CRIMINALS TO THE DOCTOR.

In his interesting and thought-provoking address to the Local Council of Women at the Vocational School Dr. J. M. McCutcheon presented cogent reasons for supporting two of the recommendations of the Public Welfare Commission, of which he is a member; one with regard to the high cost of hospitalization, and the other with regard to the treatment of that class of mental defectives known as "morons," or "high-grade" defectives. These comprise a large class of people, above the imbecile and idiot grade, who, for various reasons, have sub-normal mentality.

No one can question the assertion that the cost of medical service, referring principally to operative surgery in a hospital, with consequent treatment and nursing there for a number of weeks, is more than the average man can afford. It is true, of course, that the medical profession is generous and gives the best that is in them, knowing that they are unlikely to collect the fees that are their just due, or may only get part, but one serious illness in a hospital can quite easily cripple a man financially for years. There has not been developed in this country the "hospital consciousness" that is a feature of old country life. Such a vital service should not, as Dr. McCutcheon says, depend on sporadic gifts of testators to help out, but should be a definite charge upon the Government and municipal bodies. In that way every man would get the service that his needs require, and professional service of doctor and nurse would be recompensed as it should be.

In claiming that the criminal should come in contact with the medical profession before he comes in contact with the law, Dr. McCutcheon referred chiefly to that large body of sub-normal people who are potential criminals because of their mental condition. The underworld gangster and rum barons may be regarded as a class apart. Frequently they comprise men of high intelligence who prefer to use their brains that way, in the expectation of getting "easy money" and plenty of it, or of getting rich quick, rather than by the safer, but slower method of hard work.

But statistics show that even among ordinary prisoners who have committed the lesser crimes, the intelligence of the majority is sub-normal. Instead of punishing them the commission would have them examined to find the cause of their sub-normality, which can often be removed, and the commission believes that the most hopeful avenue of effort is by the examination of school children, so that the sub-normal can be taken in hand while they are quite young and their mentality directed into normal channels.

It is in this way that valuable results may accrue to society in years to come. Crime can never be eradicated, but the psychiatric treatment of the sub-normal in early life will most probably bring about a very substantial reduction of crime in Ontario within the next decade or two.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

The Red-Headed Goddess

By

ALICE ROSS COLVER

Red Jim dwelt in a dirty disorder that was unspeakable, but on which he seemed to thrive. His bony, dingy cattle presented the most dejected appearance imaginable; his chickens were listless; one of his two horses, wavering on wide-spread feet, with his head swung to the sands, would have fallen willingly into a grave if Red Jim had bestirred himself to dig one. His cat was a nightmare, and his dog the last hope in the world. But he himself was a formidable figure. He towered six feet four inches, and had correspondingly broad shoulders and great arms that could life a cow with ease—so went the story. His mop of unkempt hair, once red, was now streaked with gray and dirt, as was his wild ragged beard. Taken all in all, he was enough to strike terror to the heart of the casual beholder until you saw his eyes. They were gray and deep set, under bushy brows, and they looked out at the world with a piercing wisdom that was as unexpected as it was kind and humorous. For in his desert home Red Jim had developed a philosophy that was all his own and that nothing could shake.

His one-room shack held simply two berths, a few incomplete chairs and a long table. A shelf in the corner contained some cracked plates, a coffee pot, a boiling pot and a frying pan. With these, and a most dilapitaded oil stove, Red Jim's unvarying meals were concocted daily by a hunchbacked Chinaman.

The Chinaman had appeared out of the horizon about ten years after Red Jim arrived. He was simply and inexplicably there one morning. He could apparently speak no English, nor could he, it seemed, understand any gestures for, though the red-headed hermit chased him from his domain a dozen times, and finally shot bullets into the sand so close to his feet that the Chinaman leaped in the air until he fell breathless, he could not be persuaded to return whence he had come. Finally Red Jim put away his gun, scratched his head and named him after a valley in the state.

"I'll call you Chin Lee. Go build a house for yourself. You are my cook. But if you bake any flies in my biscuits I'll make you look like an excellent piece of cheese."

"All lite," answered Chin Lee agreeably.

Red Jim stared.

"I thought you couldn't understand English."

"All lite," answered Chin Lee agreeably.

Red Jim stared.

"I thought you couldn't understand English."

Chin Lee shrugged.

"Sometimes," he replied laconically.

"I see. All right. Then you heard what I said about the flies."

"All lite."

"But I don't mind sand."

At this Chin Lee grinned and trotted off in the direction Red Jim pointed, to construct a second story on the open shed which shielded the horse and the cattle from the biting winter winds.

Aside from his retinue of one servant, Red Jim's wealth lay in possessing a Ford car which, although it had no fenders, no steps, and no top, yet boasted a most faithful engine, which Chin Lee kept in a condition of cleanliness that was astounding. He also owned a brand-new radio. It was set up—an incongruous sight in the dirty cabin—on one end of the table; and here the two men met night after night to listen to the sounds of civilization which winged their airy way to a place that had almost forgotten it. Aside from these two known luxuries, Red Jim was rumored to have enough money buried in a sand pit near his shack to last him for the rest of his life.

Early one bright sunny morning in the fall, Red Jim awoke in a humorous mood. Rolling from his bunk, dressed for the day, he dipped himself a small bucket of tepid water from a pail on the floor, drank some and poured the remainder over his head, then strode to his door and bellowed for Chin Lee. A moment later the little hunchback came with his quick running step into the cabin.

"Good morning, Chin Lee!" boomed Red Jim jovially. "I'm full of a new idea this morning!"

"We go lide Flord mebbe?" suggested Chin Lee hopefully.

"You lazy beggar! No!" Red Jim laid a heavy hand on the little man's shoulder hauled him across the room to the table, and turned on the radio. A man's pleasant voice, sounding directions for morning exercises, filled the shanty.

"Hear that, Chin Lee? Hear that?" Red Jim leaned back on his heels with a great roar of laughter; then he gave the Chinaman such a slap on his back that the fellow went spinning across the room and staggered against the wall where he crouched, grinning doubtfully at his master.

"Ride in the Ford? I should say not! It's exercise you need, Chin Lee. You're fat in all the wrong places. Come here!"

Cringingly Chin Lee obeyed and Red Jim lifted his pigtail and turned him about, surveying him with a critical eye.

"Awful!" he growled. "There isn't anything right about you! No wonder you aren't efficient. Well!" he dropped the pigtail and gave the Chinaman a little push, "stand up there! Now! Head up! Hands on hips——"

He sank into a three-legged chair, tipped it back against the wall, and, biting off a plug of tobacco, he alternately chewed, spit and laughed with delight at the sight of the little crippled Chinaman rolling about on his hump in a vain effort to stretch his short legs up over his head until his toes touched the floor.

Suddenly he wearied of the fun and, reaching forward, he switched off the radio. As he did so, another sound reached his ears that brought him abruptly to his feet.

"Airplane, Chin Lee!" he roared. "Maybe we'll have guests for breakfast."

He strode out of doors, followed by the pattering Chin Lee, and the two of them stared up at the machine which appeared so infinitesimal and yet made such a clear, loud noise in the Arizona air.

"Never saw one go this way before Chin Lee. This is bad country. The mail lines don't lie in this direction at all. That's a private plane," he concluded, "and I'll bet my best horse against anything that the party up there doesn't mean to be here at all."

They stood straining their eyes into the sunrise as the machine sped over them and on into the East. Suddenly Chin Lee grasped the white man's arm.

"Lair plane clomin' down!"

"So she is, Chin. So she is. Now what's she doing that for?"

"She tlouble, you b'leeve?"

"I—don't think so. That's a nice slanting descent. It looks deliberate. Still——"

"We go see?" queried the Chinaman, always ready for the company that broke the monotony of the days for him.

"Yeah, sure. We'll just trot that forty or so miles there and back before breakfast, my little yellow boy."

"We take Flord?" Chin Lee suggested hopefully.

By this time the plane was a mere speck in the distance, and Red Jim, stretching his enormous length to its utmost, gave a lzay yawn.

"Maybe, Chin Lee. Later. But first we'll eat breakfast. Then we'll read last month's Sunday paper. Then we'll fix my gun!—because we don't know what kind of birds those are that landed over there—and then we'll feed the livestock, and then we'll—you'll—clean up around here. I can't stand living this way any longer."

His laugh went ringing out over the solitudes and was lost. "You've got to move that box of empty tins at least ten feet further from the house or I'll know why. No. You can bury them. Bury our treasure, Chin Lee! Bury all signs of our past? Then, when that's safely hidden, we'll see about that airplane. It may have started on again by that time."

But by noon no whirring sound had given them any indication of the airplane's flight. No tiny speck marred the perfect blue of the turquoise sky, so Red Jim stood in the burning sun contemplating the horizon before he started across the desert to the distant plane where he had seen the plane descend. While he looked, he became aware of an unusual stillness settling on the already still world, of a curious yellow film thickening the atmosphere, and he shook his head.

"No, Chin Lee. I think not," he decided. "Not in the face of a sandstorm. They aren't pleasant. We'll take a nap instead."

Riding in the cool dawn west toward a Government station was a lone Indian. He was in no hurry, for one day's travel lay behind him and three more before him. His sturdy little Indian pony ploughed steadily through the sandwhere it was deep, and broke into an easy jog trot where the trail presented a harder surface, while his rider sat stolidly in the saddle, oblivious to time, to distance, to hunger, to thirst.

The Indian, Silver Tongue, was young and well set up, and rode with the tireless erectness and alertness of all his tribe, so much a part of his horse that he might have been a Centaur. His costume was picturesque—a green velveteen blouse worn loose outside black trousers. His long hair was bundled up in his neck. Enormous silver bracelets, heavily studded with large turquoises, were about his wrists, and many chains of silver ornamented with the Indian's favorite blue stones, hung over his blouse. Indeed there was nothing in his appearance to distinguish him as being a semi-civilized, educated Indian, yet his thoughts as he rode over the burning sands that golden morning, reflected the mind of one who has come to grips with civilization.

"Nahtahni Yezzi and Washington good friends—mebbe. I find out. Nahtahni Yezzi has written Washington of the Navajo's wish to have those Hopi cornfields in payment that is due them for injuries from the Hopis. Washington has said those cornfields are for the Hopis Nahtahni Yezzi must explain to Washington to make him change his mind. Nahtahni Yezzi must have a letter from Washington in reply. I go find out."

Silver Tongue dismounted in the shade of an out-cropping stretch of rock, climbed swiftly part way up to a tiny crevice, and refreshed himself at a diminutive trickle of water that none but an Indian could have found. Then he remounted and pursued his way.

"Nahtahni Yezzi has had plenty time for a letter to come from Washington The Navajos have been patient. Twice have we been there, and there was no reply. This time Nahtahni Yezzi must answer or the Navajos will grow angry. I think Nahtahni very scared man. He know Washington slow to talk and Navajos swift to do."

Suddenly he touched the pony's neck and the animal burst into a run. For five minutes they flew over the desert, a picture to remember if any one had seen it, but the desert was empty. Then, dripping with sweat, the pinto resumed his jog trot, and the Indian took up his reflections again.

"If the white man's father in Washington is kind and loving, he has arranged to care for Nahtahni Yezzi and the other white people living in the Indian's land, so that they will not suffer by the wrath of the Navajos. If the white man's father believes in the Nahtahni he has chosen to rule over his red brothers, he has heard the words of the Navajos spoken through him. If the white man's father is powerful and kind and wise, all will be well."

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

PREPARED BY THE REV. CLARENCE H. WILSON, D.D. FOR THE COMMISSION ON EVANGELISM, OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

THE NORMAL LIFE.

"They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick."—Luke 5:31. (Read Acts 1:1-14.)

Medi ation

As we enter the Lenten season let us understand that it does not call for an exotic devotion, it calls us back to normal living. Religion belongs to life. Prayer is as natural as eating and as essential to a whole and healthy life. Those who observe a Lenten fast only put themselves back on a wholesome diet So all our devotions restore us to our "reasonable service." It is because we have not been living right that we need these periods. We are looking for restored health and our effort is not to be a straining after excess but a return to normal living. Our program should not be thought of as a temporary expedient but should take us up to new and permanent levels.

Prayer

Almighty God who art the Author of our life and the Father of our spirits, we look to Thee for healing and strength. Teach us Thy ways and subdue our stubborn wills that our life may be abundant. In Jesus' name. Amen.

What To-day Means To You

"AQUARIUS"

If February 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to noon, from 2 p.m. to 4p.m and from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

The planetary aspects of February 18th denote stress and excitement. Mature judgment will be needed to avoid a morass of complications, and it must be borne in mind, especially at this time, that "all is not gold that glitters." Beware of new connections'

A child born on this February 18th, can, by its natural force of character and strong personality, easily become "a hero in the strife." It will be rather unconventional, but never unbridled. It will, however, always seek to conciliate, rather than to antagonise. Its love will be deep-rooted.

If you were born on a February 18th your mind is as active as your body, and you flit from one task to another with equal mental and physical enthusiasm. You are tireless, and can never seek rest in repose. You are always "on the go." If your activities were controlled by sound judgment, your restless energies would reap a reward commensurate with your "pep." The signs, unfortuneately, denote that you are a Jack or a Jill of many trades, but Master or Mistress of none.

Versatility is a great asset, but is not as valuable, in these times, as concentration and specializing. Great rewards await you, if, choosing the one vocation in which you find the greatest delight, you devote all your time and all your energies to its steady pursuit.

You are a brilliant conversationalist, and hardly any subject can be broached on which you are not willing to express an opinion. Your convictions, however, are few. As a friend or a lover, you express in actions the dangerous theory that "variety is the spice of life." The stars indicate that you were born without ballast. This is a handicap that can be overcome by tying-up at the nearest port, and securing a load-sufficient to prevent being tossed hither and thither by every wave of fad, fancy, and desire.

VICISSITUDES OF BOOKS

By F. M. De La Fosse

The lives of human beings are bounded by limits absolutely unknown to them, and the lives of books may very reasonably be placed in the same category. I have heard a nurse, gazing at an infant smiling placidly in its cradle, exclaim "Oh, the adorable little creature," and then, feeling that such a sentimental outburst needed an anti-climax, sententiously added, "But there's no telling what he'll turn out to be, is there?"

With much the same sentiments that animated that nurse, I regard a new book that comes into our library. I instinctively find myself wondering what sort of an existence it is going to have. There is a close analogy between books and babies. Given good homes and careful treatment, the chances are that both will amply repay the attention they are accorded, but placed in homes where neglect is the order of the day the lives of both are likely to be materially shortened.

There is nothing more fascinating than a clean book, and I very much doubt if there is anything more unpleasant-looking and uninviting than a dirty one—and the same can be said of a baby.

It is often assumed that the worst treatment accorded to books comes from the homes of the poor, where overcrowding and lack of proper housing render them an easy prey to the sportive proclivities of a sticky-fingered child or the worrying propensities of a dog. Such unhappy endings to good volumes are not altogether unknown to librarians. But in the home of the rich and well-to-do the same trouble has often been noted.

A common cause of decay in a book, as is also in human beings, is to despatch them to a library without enough covering to shield them from the rain or snow. Books are just as liable to disease as children for they are no more immune from the effects of damp and chill than a scantily-clothed boy or girl. Measles and chicken-pox are unsightly on a child, so is the mildew that fastens on a book or the dampness that peels off the outer cuticle of its binding.

There are other troubles to which books are heirs, such as the turning over of pages with soiled fingers (to which most of us are prone); the bending over of leaves to mark certain passages, and the inditing of sapient remarks on their margins. We are not all of the same mental calibre as Samuel Taylor Coleridge, whose annotations Charles Lamb extolled as enhancing a book's value.

It would be such a blessing, when people feel impelled to air their opinions in this manner, if they would jot them down on a separate piece of paper and place them in a book. This would have the double advantage of presenting their sage ideas for public consideration and of leaving the volume in a becoming condition for other readers to enjoy.

The worst offenders towards books are the mutilators. They are quite outside the pale of human consideration. Their proper place is the penitentiary, and there, let us hope, they may eventually land.

The above remarks hold good for libraries everywhere, for we are a long way yet from the dawn of that golden age when books will be regarded by all, not as mere articles of merchandise, but as one of the chief vehicles by which men may attain to higher and nobler ways of thought and action.

MYSTERY DEATH MAY BE SOLVED

Prisoner Who Claims He Can Solve Windsor Killing Brought From Marquette.

POLICE SUSPECT RUSE.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 18. (CP)—Windsor detectives are questioning Raymond Phipps, 27-year-old prisinor, who is now in Detroit where he was brought from Marquette prison Phipps claims to be able to solve the mystery of the death of John A. Kennedy, of Windsor, who was killed in 1928 and whose body was found beside a lonely road near Toledo, Ohio.

Kennedy was to have been a witness before the Royal Commission on customs in connection with liquor exports but disappeared a few days before he was to appear. Sometime later his body was found and bullet wounds showed how he met death. He was buried at Ottawa, his former home.

Detroit police say that Phipps declared he could clear up three gang killings in Detroit but they have found his stories imaginative and they claim he is seeking a ruse to get out of prison.

Escapes Reformatory Youth Is Still Free

GUELPH, Ont., Feb. 18.— Making his way through the kitchen at the rear of the institution, John Jolliffe, 22, of Windsor, escaped last night from the Ontario Reformatory here and despite a widespread search which was inaugurated as soon as he disappeared he still remains at large. Jolliffe was serving a series of terms aggregated between five and six years. It is believed that he must have slipped away shortly after the men came in from work outside and concealed himself for some time until opportunity to force the kitchen door presented itself. His absence was not noticed for some hours.

MANY STABBED IN STREET FIGHTING

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, Ger., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Serious street fighting in which a number of men were stabbed and beaten occurred today between National Socialists and Communists here.

The fight began when a crowd of Communists attacked four National Socialists on the way to their party headquarters. Their cries brought reinforcements, but a larger body of Communists also appeared. The police made several arrests.

RIVERA'S SON HURT BY MOB

MADRID, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Fernando Primo de Rivera, son of the former dictator, was injured last night when a mob of Republicans attacked an automobile in which he and several other Monarchists were riding through Central Madrid shouting "Long Live the King."

He received only minor injuries and was treated at a hospital.

This was one of several minor disorders during the night, but there was no real fighting and today the city was quiet with large numbers of police patrolling the streets.

PLUMBING INSPECTOR SHOT.

CHICAGO Ill., Feb. 18. — Albert Courchene, 35, a city plumbing inspector who last summer was arrested as a suspect in the killing of two plumbing union agents, was felled by machine gun bullets to-day as he directed work on a south side building. He died shortly afterward in a hospital.

MANITOBA TELEPHONE SYSTEM HAS SURPLUS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 18.—A net surplus of $185,303.07 for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1930, was shown in the annual report of the Manitoba Telephone System tabled in the Legislature by Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney General and Minister of Telephones. Gross revenue amounted to $3,887,916.93 as compared with $3,-873,386.00 for the preceding year.

POLICE MAGISTRATE DROPS DEAD

NEWCASTLE, N.B. Feb. 18.—Stewart A. Demers, police magistrate for Newcastle, died suddenly here yesterday when seized by a heart attack while walking along the street from his office in the court house to the curling rink.

PATEL GOES TO MEET GANDHI

LORD KILBRACKEN INJURED.

LONDON, February 18 (C.P.). — Lord Kilbracken of Killegar, 84, who was at one time the secretary of William Ewart Gladstone when the latter was Prime Minister, was seriously injured in a motor mash near Caterhan, Surrey.

NEW YORK LIST REBOUNDS IN FIRST HOUR'S TRADING

Refreshed By Mid-Week Business Statistics, Market Recovers Lost Ground.

SOME GROUP ADVANCES.

By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—The stock market was refreshed by the mildly cheerful tenor of the mid-week business statistics to-day and quietly recovered the ground lost in yesterday's sharp setback.

Trading was rather active in the first hour, and the list rebounded briskly for a time. Activity was on a diminishing scale as the session wore on, but prices worked steadily higher. Bulls appeared a little sobered by yesterday's setback; but since it did not exceed the proportions of a technical correction such as normally mark the course of a rising market, they were not discouraged. Utilities, particularly the electric bond and share issues, motor and accessory issues, foods and coppers, displayed group strength.

American Can was a leader, pushing up 4 points to a new high for 1931. Other issues rising, about 4 or 5 point included J. I. Case, Allied Chemical, Eastman, American Water Works, Columbian Carbon, Stone and Webster, and General Asphalt. Shares up 2 points or more included U.S. Steel, American Rolling Mill, General Electric and National Power and Light.

NORANDA SELLS SLIGHTLY HIGHER

Uncertainty Regarding Immediate Trend on Larger Boards Affects Higher Issues.

REDUCED TRADING.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 18. (CP)—though underlying strength was in evidence in price action, trading was unusually quiet on the mining market in the forenoon to-day. Uncertainty regarding immediate trend in security prices on larger boards affected higher-priced issues, and turnover in the lower-priced stocks was at a reduced rate.

International Nickel was a relatively firm spot, price moving up 20 to $16.50 at midday. Noranda sold slightly higher but was unchanged at $17 when taken. Abana firmed a point to 18, but Ventures lost a couple to 50½ and balance of the Lindsleys were just holdings.

Eldorado strengthened for a time but dropped back to last night's closing level of 55 towards noon. Dome, Wright-Hargreaves and Howey were somewhat stronger. McIntyre lost a quarter, Vipond a couple and Siscoe a fraction.

Chemical Research, up 30 to $3.80 in good demand, displayed the only significant change in the oil group.

TORONTO LIST HOLDS STEADY

NICKEL UNCHANGED.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 18. (CP)—Bullish operators were content to allow the market to consolidate itself round present levels this morning and as a result the general tone of indifference reasserted itself. Volume dwindled and price changes were for negligible fractions and about evenly balanced so that the weight did not appear on any side.

International Nickel sold at 16½ the greater part of the morning, at which figure it was unchanged from last night. Similarly Noranda was unchanged at 17. Brazilian, Walkers, Distillers sold just where they had left off last night. Ford of Canada; and Bell Telephone were down a small fraction, C.P.R. firm at 44.

In the oil group, B.A. oil held around 14¼ to 14½, firm and slightly highe than last night. There was practically no change in sentiment towards this issue following publication of the annual report. Other oils were about the same. Imperial gained a minimum fraction while International Petroleum lost the same amount.

STOCK ADVANCES 4 POINTS TO-DAY

McColl Frontenac Moves 1 3-4 to 20 3-4 While Royal Bank Shows Gain of 1 1-2.

BRAZILIAN OFF.

MONTREAL, Que. Feb. 18. (CP)—Consolidated Smelting stock forged upward this morning on the Montreal Stock Exchange to sell at 154 at noon, four points higher than yesterday's closing price. McColl Frontenac moved up 1¾ points to 20¾; and Royal Bank was up 1½ at 283½.

Atlantic Sugar preferred appeared on the board with a sharp rise of 12 points over the last sale; up from 80 to 92. The common stock sold off ¾ to 25. Bell Telephone dropped a point at 150¼. Shawinigan was up ¾ at 53½. Nickel showed a gain of 3-8; while Brazilian was off 1-8 at 25¾.

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Feb. 18. (Special to Examiner.)—The mining list was unusually slow to-day. The ticker remaining at a standstill for long periods for the first time in two or three weeks. Uncertainty regarding immediate trend of security prices on larger boards is reflected in dull, though firm action among higher priced issues, while interest in the cheaper stocks appears to be taking a breathing spell.

A special general meeting of shareholders of San Antonio Mines Limited, will be held in Winnipeg on February 25 to consider, and if deemed advisable ratify a by-law increasing the capital stock of the company from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares. It is understood additional shares are needed in connection with the new financing now being negotiated.

No Stock Offering.

It is reported around town to-day, on good authority that none of the stock of Ashley Gold Mining Corporation, subsidiary of Minin Corporation of Canada, will be offered to the general public. Financing of the company' development operations in Bannockburn township, Matachewan, will be handled entirely by the parent company, for the time being at least, it is said. Small interests in the enterprise are retained by Quemont and the prospectors who made the discovery but outsiders, apparently, can only secure an interest through mining corporation stock.

By some members of the mining fraternity the decision to hold the stock is considered a promising sign.

Only one of the four wells drilled by Olga Gas and Oil in the Dover field has showed commercial possibilities, it is stated in the company annual report. The report continues "it is obvious that the location of gas or oil areas in the Trenton formation of the Dover field is extremely difficult and as the average depth of the wells is in the neighborhood of 3,000 feet and the average cost, including overhead is approximately $20,000 it is a very hazardous and expensive exploratory undertaking. The optimism regarding the Dover field, born of the Ajax No. 4 success, has not been justified by the results obtained in subsequent drillings."

Hides Cash In Stove $362 Goes Up In Smoke

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Feb. 18.— The stove, reasoned F. A. Lanier, chain store manager, was a safe place to hide his day's receipts of $451. So the money was neatly covered with ashes and Lanier went home.

When he opened for business, he kindled a merry blaze—and bethought himself too late that the stove was temporarily a safety deposit box. He managed to save some checks and silver, but $362.25 curled through the chimney into circulation—as smoke.

Winnipeg Review

Strong cables and a fair export business overnight and yesterday morning final sales being estimated at close to 750,000 bushels gave the local wheat market a firm undertone yesterday with prices higher throughout the session. Trade volume was not large and the market was inclined to be quiet most of the day, but there was very little selling pressure in evidence. At the start there was some fair buying by seaboard houses and short covering, but this demand was largely supplied by selling coming from Chicago, which was understood to be unwinding of spreads. The market held firm at fractionally higher than the previous close, and finally the local crowd were buying which carried prices to 1¾ to 1½ cents above the previous close. However, it was evident that locals had overbought the market and when an attempt was made to take profits, the demand was found to be very thin and prices eased off. Chicago advanced 5-8 early, but lost all this gain later. Bradstreets available supplys increased 5,342,000 bushels, the total now being 458,759,000 bushels as compared with 428,202,000 a year ago. Conditions over the winter wheat belt are now said to be practically all that could be desired following the precipitation of the past few days.

Coarse Grains.—There was some buying of oats yesterday that was credited to an elevator company and also little short covering. A few cars cash oats were worked overnight for domestic purposes. Barley and rye were very dull but firm in sympathy with wheat and oats.

Liverpool cables due ¼ to 3-8 higher based on Winnipeg.

OPENING TRADE IN CATTLE IS DULL

Hog receipts, $1596. Hogs were steady at the week's decline of 50cat $7.50 F.O.B. for bacon or at $9.50 off car.

Off car basis, select bacon 9; bacon $8.50; butchers, $8.10; heavies, $7.50; lights and feeders $8 to $8.50; sows $4.50 to $5.50.

Sheep receipts 248. Lamb were unchanged at $9 for the best ewes and wethers and $6.50 to $7.50 for culls and sheep sold up to $5.50 for good light ewes and downward to $8.00 for culls.

Good ewe and wether lambs $9; medium $8 to $8.50; bucks $7; culls $6.50 to $7.50; good light sheep $5 to $5.50; heavies $4.50 to $5; culls $1. to $3.

NIAGARA TREATY

disclosed that this contract would be worth something like five million dollars to the power companies' Borah said.

"The committee, therefore, desires to have the power matter treated as a separate matter and that the United States bear the expense."

There has been considerable opposition to the treaty from the western senators who are insistent that negotiations soon be concluded with Canada for the St. Lawrence waterway.

Mr. Justice Duff Opens Parliament Upon March 12th

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.)

—Parliament will be opened on March 12 by Mr. Justice Duff of the Supreme Court of Canada. The ceremony will be performed, it is officially stated, by Mr. Justice Duff in his capacity as administrator.

Canada's new Governor-General —the Earl of Bessborough—will not arrive in Canada until April 3 or 4. Chief Justice Anglin, who is now in the West Indies, will not return to this country until April 23. The Chief Justice will join the official party sailing from Halifax on Saturday to the Buenos Aires exhibition, when they reach Trinidad on March 2 to proceed to Buenos Aires.

KNIVES AND GUNS TAKE TWO LIVES IN BUFFALO FIGHT

Argument Starts When Youngsters Snowball Neighbor Woman.

FAMILY BATTLES FAMILY.

Police Seek Missing Man—Try in Vain to Find Who Fired Shots.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 18 (C.P.).—Two men were dead, three persons were suffering from knife wounds and six persons were being held as material witnesses by police to-day — all because some youngsters threw snowballs last night.

The dead are Anthony Lachino, 37, and Samuel Cala, 22, both of this city.

As police pieced the story together to-day from the lips of relatives and friends of the dead men, guns and knives were used freely in a neighborhood fight which started after some children threw snowballs at Mrs. Maria Cala. Mrs. Cala spoke sharply to the children, who belonged to the Lachino family. The two families took up the argument, verbally at first. Then, to quote Anthony Cala, brother of one of the dead men:

"I told my brother Sam to stick around because something might happen. Pretty soon it happened. I was in the front room when Anthony Lachino, his wife, daughter and Zarbo (Leonard Zarbo, who is sought by police) came into the house."

From there on, the story told to police became a more or less confused tale of crashing revolvers and flashing knives. Police still were trying to-day to find out just who fired the shots and wielded the knives.

INCREASE NOTED IN USE OF GAS

Private Consumption For Month of January Increased 140,000 Cubic Feet.

FUEL COST IS DOWN.

While two items in the cost of production of gas were on the increase during the month of January, the fuel cost was down and was likely to remain so every month of the year 1931. The total consumption of gas has shown a substantial increase over the preceding month, and there are prospects of many more customers during February. These facts were disclosed at a meeting of the Utilities Commission held yesterday afternoon.

The full commission was in attendance, and the chairman, G. S. Matthews, occupied the chair.

The cost of operation of the gas making machine had increased $551 over December, 1930. This item gave rise to discussion, but it was explained that as the machine aged it required more costly repairs. This would continue until complete renovation was effected, and at such a time the cost of repairs would be practically negligible again.

New boiler tubes were required, and this accounted for an additional expenditure of $600. It was also reported that the pension insurance was charged at a higher rate, otherwise there would have been a better statement.

Fuel cost was down because the coke and oil prices did not go up as they had done in previous years. The officials had also been able to obtain a better price on coal. It was the opinion of Mr. Matthews that oil prices would continue to make the largest drop in price of the fuels employed. Through this means the cost of production would most likely be lowered at the rate of $200 every month.

Increase in Consumption.

H. L. Beal reported that there had been an increase in the private consumption of gas of some 140,000 cubic feet in January; in the commercial use of 40,000 cubic feet; while a decrease of 80,000 cubic feet was noted in the industrial consumption. In the latter case the decrease was due to less gas used rather than discontinued service. Mr Beal enumerated several new consumer's of gas who would bring the February consumption up considerably.

It was pointed out that there was a need for 78 more valves in the olderpart of the distributing system. These would cost $50 each. It was therefore decided that the sum of $1000 should be spent annually for 4 years to put in these valves.

The advisability of installing a type of stoker to eliminate the smoke nuisance in the gas plant was discussed. It was further suggested that a tar cleaning machine be purchased so that the residue could be burned instead of being sold as at present. These matters were set aside for further study, and a more definite discussion at the next meeting.

A letter from the C.G.E. disclosed that the plant would not require power from the Commission after March 1, due to the fact that a steam turbine had been installed to generate its own electricity. To counterbalance this loss of business, it was reported that the Auburn Mills wanted power again and that as much electricity would be required as formerly.

For Soviet Russia

Charles A. Gill, engineer and superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, as he sailed on the S.S. Bremen for Russia to take over his duties as consultant engineer and director of the proposed gigantic Soviet railroad system. Mr. Gill expects to remain in Russia for a year, during which he will be active head of the huge development which calls for the expenditure of $900,000,000.

GAS TAX ISSUE IS BEFORE HOUSE

Liberal Members Ask For Paticulars in Gas Tax Cases.

BARRAGE OF QUESTIONS.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.) — Opposition members of the Legislature have opened a barrage of questions, directed at many phases of Government activity, but particularly at the enforcement of the Gasoline Tax.

F. W. Elliott, Liberal, Bruce North, asks the total amount of gas taxes which were in arrears at the close of the last fiscal year; how many firms are in arrears and what efforts have been made to collect arrears owed by Thomas Martin and Lipon of Brantford.

N. O. Hipel, Liberal, Waterloo South, asks the total amount collected in gas taxes last year, the amount allowed to gasoline companies for their services in collecting the tax; the total amount collected since the tax was inaugurated and the total paid to the companies in the same period.

NOTED ORGANIZER PLANS TO RETIRE

Charles R. Flint Announces Retirement at Age of 81 Following Colorful Career.

Once before he retired from business and came back to it because he didn't know how else to occupy himself. This time he says he's through for good. He and his 41 year old wife, whom he married in 1927, are going to devote themselves to "keeping away from business."

If the world was ever anybody's stage it was the stage of Charles R. Flint. Beginning life on the docks at $4 a day after he had failed to land an office job at $4 a week, he spread his operations in dazzling fashion around the whole world.

He bought a navy for the Czar of Russia, and built one for the Republic of Chile. He peddled warships to Japan. One day found him in Constantinople negotiating for the sale of guns to Turkey, and in the next he arrived in Moscow with a $35,000,000 letter of credit from Rothschilds.

Harcourt Judgment For $10,000 Set Aside

TORONTO, Ont., February 18 (C.P.). — While the $10,000 default judgment in favor of Harry E. Harcourt, Toronto mining man, against S. A. Taylor & Company, Limited, and D. S. Paterson, Toronto broker, is set aside by a written judgment handed down by G. A. Drew Master in Chambers, the Master reserves decision as to the terms of his order until hearing further arguments from both sides later to-day.

Harcourt sued on a note for $10,000, given by S. A. Taylor and endorsed by Paterson. Default judgment was given, but the defendants through their counsel sought to set aside the judgment on the grounds that the note was given on a threat of plaintiff that criminal action would follow steps he planned to take to obtain what he alleged was owing to him.

$100,000 FIRE IN NEW BRITAIN.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., February 18 (C.P.). — Fire to-day swept through the central block causing damage estimated at $100,000 in the lower floors of houses and stores. The upper floors were used as professional offices and lodge rooms. The origin of the fire was not determined. Employees of a restaurant in an adjacent building said they heard an explosion before the fire broke out.

FIRS IN SLOUGH RACE

WINDSOR, Eng., Feb. 18.—(AP)—G. H. (Pete) Bostwick, amateur rider, astride his own horse burglar today won the Slough handicap hurdle race at two miles.

Burglar, co-favorite at two to one in the betting, defeated three horses for the purse of 150 sterling ($750). H. Adams' the Philosopher was second and W. Clarke's Mercury, also two to one in the betting, third.

5 JAPANESE DIE IN PLANE CRASH.

TOKYO, Feb. 18.—(A.P.)—Two officers and pilots and one petty officer were burned to death to-day when a plane belonging to the Yokosuba naval aviation station burst into flames in mid-air and crashed up on top of the Fujieda agricultural school at Shizuoka prefecture. The plane and school were burned.

BIGAMY RESULTS IN 40-DAY TERM

Marriage of Two Catholics By Protestant Minister Found Valid and Binding.

Church Annulled Marriage.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 18—Finding that the marriage of two Catholics by a Protestant minister is valid and binding, Judge Lacroix, sitting in the Court Sessions yesterday, held that when Alphonse Simard, Three Rivers, Que., went through a second formality of marriage he committed bigamy even though the first union had been dissolved by an ecclesiastical court. Simard was sentenced to 40 days in jail.

Simard's venture into matrimony occurred in 1924 at Sudbury where he married Marie Louise Savoi. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William McDonald, Presbyterian minister.

A few years later, Simard applied to the Catholic Church for an annullment of his marriage. On the ground that the first ceremony was solemnized by a Protestant minister, the annullment was granted by the ecclesiastical authorities.

The first wife swore out a complaint charging her husband with bigamy.

WILLIAM SAUNDERS HONORED BY SOCIETY

Forty Members of Lily Lake C. E. S. Hold Social Evening.

About forty members of the Lily Lake Christian Endeavor Society gathered Monday evening for a social evening and to honor William Saunders, one of the members, who is leaving the community.

A short devotional period was conducted by the president, when the Scriptural reading was given by Dorothy Rowland and the topic, "Why Should We Go to Church" was given by Cecil Hancock.

Following this period, games and contests were enjoyed, these being conducted by the Misses Evelyn Mason and Helen Stuart.

The president, Katheryn Rowland, expressed to Mr. Saunders, the sincere appreciation of the members for his efforts in organizing the Society about three and a half years ago and for his deep interest since its organization. She pointed out that he was not going far away and extended an invitation, on behalf of the Society, to attend the meetings whenever possible. Mr. Saunders was called to the front and was presented with a dressing case, as a slight remembrance of his association with the Lily Lake Christian Endeavor Society, the presentation being made by Clarence Hancock. Mr. Saunders, although taken entirely by surprise, responded suitably, thanking the members and saying he would always take a very deep interest in the Christian Endeavor Society and that he would attend the meetings as often as possible.

The service of refreshments by the social committee brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

SLADE RE-ELECTED HEAD OF FAIR BOARD

Roseneath Fair Board Hold Annual Meeting—Treasurer's Report Gratifying.

ROSENEATH, Feb. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—President F. J. Slade presided at the annual meeting of the Roseneath Agricultural Society, when most encouraging reports of the activities of the past year were presented.

The treasurer's report was a most gratifying one, notwithstanding the fact that the society ran up against one of the most unpleasant days of the season upon the occasion of the fall fair.

The following officers were elected: President, F. J. Slade; first vice-president, A. J. Campbell; second vice-president, Harry Mouncey; third vice-president, James Webb; treasurer, Andrew Brown; secretary, C. W. Varcoe.

President Slade and Secretary Varcoe were appointed delegates to attend the Provincial Fairs Association in Toronto.

UKRAINIAN HISTORY ECHOED IN MUSIC

Poets and Musicians Without Home, is Clergyman's Observation.

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—In the folk pressing themselves in song, he said. sion of the soul of the nation, which remains hopeful for the future in spite of centuries of oppression, declared Rev. R. G. Katsunoff, in the course of an address in the Central Y.M.C.A. recently. The programme was submitted by the Ukrainian Literary Society and included a concert of folk songs, presented by a Ukrainian choir and string orchestra under the direction of Professor P. Bassa. All the choir and orchestra were dressed in the colorful native costumes and they succeeded in transporting a little corner of Ukrainia into the Y.M.C.A. hall which was decorated with native tapestries and flags.

Ukrainian folk songs told the history of the country, the speaker continued. In the rich native music is unfolded the turbulent story of the state. The Ukrainians themselves, described as "poets and musicians without a home" are, perhaps, more than any other nation devoted to ex-songs of Ukrainia there is the expres-

Many of the songs were of pagan origin, and had been spoiled by efforts to modernize them, Mr. Katsunoff remarked. When the Ukrainians took up the Greek Orthodox faith, many of the pagan songs were taken and changed so as to be more suitable to the Christian spirit. The early pagan religion of the people must have been one of joy, the speaker said, as a spirit of joyous optimism filled the early songs dedicated to the ancient gods and goddesses.

Imports of lumber into New Zealand last year were nearly 20 per cent greater than in 1929.

Three In Rich Home Held On Dope Charge

NEW YORK, Feb 17.—Suspicion of possessing narcotic drugs was charged against two men and a woman arrested in a fashionable apartment on Saturday night Bernard Cohen, thirty-four, tenant of the apartment, Grace Fishel, twenty-six, who said she lived in the house and Harry Mason, twenty-eight of 326 Shakespeare avenue.

Magistrate Dodge held them in $1,000 bail in the West Side Court pending investigation. Fumes from the apartment caused complaints of neighbors and resulted in three arrests.

THOMAS UNINFORMED

LONDON, Feb. 18 (C.P. Cable).—Questioned in the House of Commons yesterday as to when the Earl of Bessborough would assume his new duties as Governor-General of Canada, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominion Affairs, replied he had no information on the matter. No announcement had yet been made by the Canadian Government, he said, so far as he was aware.

SMITH TO SPEND $11000 ON ROADS

Council Passes Road Expenditure By-law For Year 1931.

WARNING TO TAXPAYERS,

The municipal council of the Township of Smith met in Peterborough on Saturday. The members were all present with Reeve H. D. Coons presiding.

In the matter of taxes for 1930 which are yet unpaid, council desires to impress upon all ratepayers of Smith whose taxes for 1930 are in arrears that owing to the brevity of the time before all arrears on the collector's roll must be returned to the county treasurer, when an additional 10 per cent will be added, the necessity for their paying their taxes forthwith, thus saving extra expense.

By-law No. 889, providing for expenditure on roads during 1931 received its several readings and was passed as follows:

On construction, $2,300; on maintenance, $6,800; on machinery, $1,400; on salary $500.

Also by-law No. 890 appointing a "weed inspector" for 1931, viz., E. G. Mullen, received its several readings and was passed.

J. A. Young and Alex I. Edmison being present, it was moved by Deputy-Reeve Fitzgerald and seconded by Councillor McConkey that council receive their report as auditors for 1930. Carried.

After the reading of the auditors' report, it was moved by Councillor Milburn and seconded by Deputy-Reeve Fitzgerald that the auditors' report be received and adopted as read, and that the clerk have two hundred copies printed for distribution. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Milburn and seconded by Councillor McConkey that the treasurer issue cheques to the order of the road superintendent for the following amounts and purposes:

$18.00, to cover pay sheet No. 4, Howard Beavis, foreman; $9.00, to cover pay sheet No. 5, T. H. Graham, salary; $49.50, to cover pay sheet No. 6, buah cutting on 3rd concession, line W.C.R.; $4.50 to cover pay sheet No. 7, brush cutting on 3rd concession, line W.C.R. Carried.

A communication was received from Fred A. Branch containing an affidavit in connection with the killing by dogs of one sheep last October, owned by him and which was valued by the sheep valuator at $6.00.

Joins Roads Association.

Moved by Councillor Milburn and seconded by Deputy-reeve Fitzgerald that the municipal council of the Township of Smith become a member of the Ontario Townships Road Association, and that the clerk issue a cheque for $3.00 to J. N. Lapointe, 323 Clemow avenue, Toronto, as the membership fee. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Milburn and seconded by Councillor McConkey that Albert Barnard be rebated the sum of $2.00 for having erroneously been assesed for one dog in 1930 in assessment roll. Carried.

A communication was received from J. J. Morrison, secretary of "The United Farmers of Ontario", complaining that in the personnel of the new Board of Directors for the Canadian National Railways at present consisting of fifteen members with the possible addition at the coming session of the Dominion Parliament of two more members, agriculture has not a single representative on the Board, and asking council to pass a resolution to the effect that the two new members to be appointed be chosen from among agriculturists, and that copies of the resolution be forwarded to Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals and to Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P., for Peterborough.

The above resolution was passed as a motion with Councillor H. McConkey as mover and Deputy-reeve Fitzgerald as seconder. Carried.

The clerk was requested to report the township's road mileage to Messrs. A. E. Wilson & Co., as 137 miles.

Moved by Councillor McConkey and seconded by Councillor Milburn that the following accounts be paid:

James A. Young, services as auditor for 1930, $15; Alex I. Edmison, $5; F. A. Branch, 1 sheep killed, $6; P. T. Udy, registration of vital statistics, $12.50; W. A. Sidey, goods to George Sidey, $4.92; W. A. Sidey, goods to John Brown, $6.37; E. Metcalf, 500 coke, $3.25. Carried.

Council adjourned to meet on Saturday, March 14, at the hour of 10 a.m.

Rheumatism Routed. Rapid Relief.

Mr. Arthur Padgett, of Barnsley, writes:—"For the last few years I have suffered with rheumatism, also severe attacks of indigestion. I suffered great pain in the back and tried various remedies without relief. A friend advised me to try at once Carter's Little Liver Pills—this I did and received immediate relief. I am a miner, and I strongly recommend your valuable pills to all sufferers of rheumatism, indigestion and constipation."

MISSIONS IN JAPAN SUBJECT OF PAPER

Roseneath W. M. S. Hold Most Successful Monthly Meeting.

ROSENEATH, Feb. 18 (Examiner Correspondence) — The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Delbert Brisbin and was largely attended. The president, Mrs. A. J. Campbell presided. After the opening exercises various items of business were dealt with, among them was to secure a speaker and have an entertainment sometime nearing Easter. Mrs. George Mouncey, Mrs. Lily Turner and Mrs. Delbert Brisbin were appointed a committee to take charge and make arrangements for same.

Devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. Brisbin, a portion of the Lord's Prayer, "Lead us not into temptation."

The lesson for the meeting was very interesting dealing with the subject, "Fruits of Missions in Japan." Speaking of the new ideas for Japan and what the word of God has done for the situation.

The Christian Mission Schools are found to be the greatest practical value in reaching the young and creating an atmosphere favorable to the Gospel. Kwansei Gakuin, a union institution with over 2,000 enrolled students, all boys and men.

Azabu, Tokio has a Girls' School with accommodation for seven hundred girls, while the Women's Christian College has five hundred enrolled in a joint enterprise of various denominations. Seven hundred men and four hundred women are training for Christian leadership in the Theological Schools.

Japan is progressing and surely the "Fruits" are many and of the greatest value for the future of the Kingdom of our Lord.

The March meeting will be held at Mrs. M. Davey's.

The meeting closed by repeating the Mizpah benediction in unison and lunch was served by the committee in charge.

There was a large attendance at service in the United Church on Sunday morning to hear Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A., who delivered an excellent address to his people. The Sunday School was aided greatly by special music given by Miss B. Smith at the organ, Mr. H. H. Lapp, violin and Mr. Edward Turner, guitar. It is hoped that these young people may continue their music as it was thoroughly appreciated on Sunday morning.

ONTARIO LADY SPEAKS WITH GREAT ENTHUSIASM

Mrs. James Baxter Tells Of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She Has Used Them for Her Backaches With Great Success.

Janetville, Ont., Feb. 18.—(Special).—"I think Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best I have ever used," writes Mrs. James Baxter, a well-known resident of this place. "They do me a world of good and I think they are simply wonderful. I had terrible backaches at times and Dodd's Kidney Pills brought me relief. I would not be without them now."

When even slight kidney derangement is neglected there is the risk that rheumatism, backache, lumbago, etc., will eventually result. These disorders are simply the penalty of neglecting the kidneys which becoming weakened, cease to excrete the constantly accumulating impurities. However, no one need be a martyr to these complaints for a single day.

Simply start a course of Dodd's Kidney Pills. You will be surprised how quickly they will strengthen the kidneys and put them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood.

Miss Mary Atchison Reads Meeting Topic

FRASERVILLE, Feb. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Mary Atchison presented the topic for the regular meeting of the C.G.I.T. group held at the home of the Misses Roberta, Edith and Jean Holden on Friday evening, which was on the life of Florence Nightingale.

Miss Reeson presided and Miss Mary Wood was appointed secretary for the evening in the absence of the regular secretary.

During the business discussion Misses Evelyn McElroy and Pearl Carl were appointed to sell peanuts and home-made candy at the concert in the Orange Hall on Friday.

S. S. ATTENDANCE INCREASE SHOWN IN CHURCH REPORTS

Annual Congregational Meeting Held for St. John's United Church.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 18.—With all organizations reporting, a year of progress was revealed at the annual meeting of the congregation of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, held last evening in the Sunday School room and attended by a large number of people.

Through a year that has been difficult and fraught with many setbacks, the church has ably held its own as shown by the statements read. Every organization has been active and in some cases considerable advancement has been made. Such was the case with the Sunday School, which not only had an increase in its membership but showed an average attendance increase for 1930 of eleven over the previous year.

The meeting was presided over by the pastor, the Rev. R. C. Tait. Special musical features were presented during the items of business. These included selections by the Sunday School orchestra under the direction of Albert Hazell, a duet by Mrs. W. Smith and Mrs. H. Jones, a vocal solo by G. W. Lucy and a presentation by the male quartette comprised of Messrs W. Henson, H. Donald, H. Jones and F. Godden. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served to the gathering.

Increased Membership

The report of the session was read by the Rev. Mr. Tait for the clerk, G. A. Kingston. This showed that the total membership of the church was 486 at the beginning of last year. During the year 25 young people had been added to the membership on profession of faith and 7 by certificate. There had however been 10 removals by death and 3 by certificate making a total of 505 at the end of December, with 100 non-resident members on the role, which made a grand total of 605. The total value of the church property was $35,800 and the insurance carried totalled $24,200.

The treasurer's report was submitted by C. A. Maguire. This showed that the total moneys raised by the board amounted to $7,749, out of which $2,200 had been contributed to the Maintenance and Mission Fund. There was a small balance showing on the books.

The W.M.S. report was read by Mrs. D. W. Douglas. This showed that receipts totalled $906.59, expenditures $906.41, heaving a balance of 18c on hand. The secretary's report for this organization was presented by Mrs. Roberts, and showed that 12 meetings had been held during the year. There was a total of 94 members, 65 of whom were annual and 29 life members. The average attendance for the year had been 28, and among their activities was the sending of a bale to the Indians in the West.

Miss Velma Runnells gave the Mission Circle statement, showing that 12 meetings had been held in 1930. $150,000 was given for the allocation and missionary study stressed in their activities. Receipts amounted to $174.94, expenditures $174.64, leaving a balance on hand of 30c.

Mission Band Report.

The Dayspring Mission Band report was presented by Mrs. R. C. Tait, showing 24 annual members on the roll and 4 life members. There had been 20 meetings held with an average attendance of 20. Money sent to the Presbytery treasurer amounted to $22.00.

Miss Ruth Taylor, the missionary treasurer of the Young People's League, read her report. Receipts amounted to $146.53, expenditures $146.27, leaving a balance of 26c. The general treasurer's report was read by Miss Nettie Ford, which showed total receipts of $83.32, expenditures $60.02, leaving a balance of $23.30. The secretary's report gave the total as 26 for meetings held with an average attendance of 35, and much progress made along all lines of activities.

The choir statement, as presented by the president, W. Henson, was very satisfactory, showing as it did a balance of $80.97. Total receipts were $139.36, and expenditures were $58.39.

Mrs. C. W. Turner gave the report of the Ladies' Aid. There had been 8 regular meetings held and 3 executive meetings, the average attendance being 37. The work of this organization had been very progressive during the year, numbering among its activities the staging of the annual garden party. It has also sponsored the complete redecoration of the Sunday School Rooms. Work had been done among the sick and shut-ins, flowers taken to them, and many Christmas cards sent away at that season. Mrs. Turner also read the treasurer's report, which showed that receipts amounted ot $4,319.17, expenditures $318.21, with a balance on hand of $4,005.83.

Needs Overhauling.

J. A. Irwin reported for the Property Committee, stressing the fact that the church needed a thorough overhauling and hoping that this would be seen to in the near future. He also thanked the congregation, as chairman of the stewards, for the liberal support given that body during the past year.

A. D. Bennett, secretary of the Sunday School, reported for that body. Teachers and officers number 20, attending pupils 223, cradle roll 65, home department 35, making a total membership of 342. Total money raised had been $266.18, missionary fund raised $114.60, making a grand total of $380.78. The treasurer's report showed that $335.95 was the amount of the receipts, the expenditure being $320.95, leaving a balance of $15.00.

The Teachers Training Department of the Sunday School held this fall had been very successful. There had been a total of 67 attending, 41 being regular and 26 part time. Out of the total certificates granted 24 had gone to St. John's Church. Reports of the Home Department and Flower Fund were also given. Earl Fairman gave the report of the Men's Bible class, a venture only a year old but which had proved very successful, having an average attendance of 32.

The Superintendent of the Sunday School, G. A. Kingston, also spoke upon the work of that organization. He voiced his appreciation of the work done by Mrs. N. Thompson and Mrs. A. Hazell in connection with the Cradle Role, and the Temperance Department which was ably handled by C. W. Palliser. He spoke in terms of praise for the work of the Sunday School as a whole and expressed his gratification at the attendance at church of a large percentage of teen aged boys. He also expressed appreciation for the assistance given by the Sunday School orchestra under the direction of Albert Hazell.

Officers Elected

The chairman brought up the matter of the election of the Board of Stewards asking for motions as to the term of office. This was proposed, seconded and carried and read that the first five act for four years, the second five for three years, the third five for two years and the last five for one year. Ballot slips were handed to the members bearing the names of those running for office, the report of this election being made known at a later date. T. E. Hall and A. Armour were appointed auditors for the current year.

G. A. Kingston as clerk of the session moved a vote of appreciation to the minister and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Tait. In speaking on this motion he stressed the splendid work done by the pastor and his wife during the past year. For Mr. Tait he said that he was a man who placed the highest value on things spiritual, stressed spiritual leadership and had done excellent work during a very difficult year. T. E. Hall seconded this motion. C. W. Palliser, E. H. Greig, H. Donald and Dr. H. B. Longmore speaking on it. The congregation concurring, the vote was carried to the chairman who pleasingly accepted it.

Votes of thanks were also moved to Mrs. W. H. Ashton, a very faithful worker for the church; G. A. Kingston for his faithful services as superintendent of the Sunday School; S. A. Maguire for filling so ably the office of church treasurer and to the choir and the orchestra for their splendid services rendered.

On motion it was decided that a financial statement be prepared and printed, a copy of which was to be placed in every home.

The Premier then entered on a severe criticism of the Ontario Liberal Leader, Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P. "We stand out as having been endorsed in ten out of eleven by-elections," said the Premier. "We have a unique situation in this Legislature. Since the last session the Liberal Party has held a convention and chosen a new Leader. He has had two opportunities to get into this House. But, although he did a lot of talking, he took good care not to allow his name on a ballot paper. We now have a Liberal House Leader, and a, shall I say, 'Leader at large'—very much at large. We wish Mr. Sinclair a long and happy life in this Legislature. We are so well acquainted that we would not like to lose him."

Referring again to Mr. Hepburn, Premier Henry doubted that he wished to get into the Legislature. "He lets some one else go to the slaughter," he declared. "He wants to remain outside, irresponsible, free to come and go, and not to be called to account for his views."

He said he noted that the Liberal Leader across the floor of the House had not participated in the by-elections, and those who had attended meetings in Grenville had spoken at small meetings where they were not reported.

"Campaign of Vilification."

"There have been Administrations in this Province that the people have thrown out of office and then tried to forget," Premier Henry continued, "but even during such administration there has never been such a campaign of vilification and abuse as that directed against the Government in the last few months. There were accusations that women would have their pensions and mothers' allowances taken from them if they voted against the Government. They were women of the imagination only. There were even letters written me and asking me most specific questions—but they were letters that never got into my office. During the seven years of the Conservative Administration the Public Accounts Committee has had the fullest opportunity of scrutinizing expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars, and not one dollar has ever been found to have gone astray."

Mr Nixon asked if the Prime Minister could point with any pride to the reduced majorities which his party had had in the ridings of West Hamilton and Grenville.

Mr. Henry—Is my honorable friend serious about that question?

Mr. Nixon—I certainly am.

Different in Hamilton

The Prime Minister said that the situation was very different in Hamilton in the by-election than in other elections. In the past the late Hon. Fred T. Smye an outstanding business man and community leader, had been known to his riding for some thirty years. The Liberals had had difficulty in finding candidates to run against him. They ran them, not with any hope of winning, he contended, but merely to put on a show.

Mr. Henry was glad to find he stated that the Liberal Party, in spite of the difficulties which the convention had recently plunged it into, had made some progress in the last twelve months. They had come to see eye to eye with the Government; that Government control was the only satisfactory manner of handling the liquor traffic. "They have arrived" said he, "and they are one with us."

"Not yet" put in Charles A. Robertson (Liberal, North Huron.)

Mr. Henry—Well, your party says so.

Mr. Robertson—You just wait a while.

Mr. Henry—Well, you are the elective representatives of your party. You are the only Liberals in the public life of this Province. It is to you that we look to for a decision on this question.

Co-operation of all parties and all ranks was welcomed by the Government. Mr. Henry added, in the educational which the Government was prepared to extend in educating the public to the benefits of a temperate life and to abuses and evils of strong drink.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—Prices were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday with record receipts of butter and cheese.

Carlot prices of fresh eggs were 30c to 31c for extras, 26c to 27c for firsts and pullet extras and 20c to 21c a dozen for seconds. Recandled storage eggs were quoted at 17c to 19c a dozen. Receipts were 810 cases.

Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized butter was quoted at 32¼c and western at 32c a pound. To retailers solids were 31c and prints 35c a pound. Receipts for the day were the largest this year, being 2,721 boxes.

Cheese receipts were 420 boxes, also the highest this year. Winter white was quoted at 12c and colored at 14¾c to 15c, while summer cheese was 15½c to 16c a pound.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots, were 75c for 90 lbs. bulk, and to retailers, 80c to 85c per 80-lb. bag.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—The demand for fresh eggs continued strong yesterday, and prices for graded and ungraded supplies were unchanged from previous quotations, with the possible slight edge toward higher levels. Country shippers were quoted 26c to 27c for extras, 23c to 24c for firsts, and 16c to 18c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were procuring extras at 34c in cartons and 32c loose; firsts, 29c; pullet extras, 25c, and seconds, 22c. Brokers were offering graded eggs at 29c to 30c for extras, 26c to 27 for firsts, 22c to 23c for pullet extras, and 20c to 21c for seconds, in free cases. British Columbia eggs were on the market, but obtaining the same levels as the Ontario offerings.

Butter

Small lots of butter changed hands at steady prices, and the odd carlot of good quality moved, but at the regular top market quotation. Generally, trading was quiet, but there was no tendency on the part of sellers to reduce the price of their receipts below 31½c to 32c for No. 1, and 30½c to 31c for No. 2. Retailers were offered prints at 33½c to 34c for No. 1, and 32½c to 33c for No. 2.

Cheese

Cheese prices held steady at 15c for new large, 15¼c for twins, and 15½c for triplets, to shippers, and 16c for new large, 16¼c for twins, and 16¾c for triplets.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Corn took a brisk upward swing yesterday after a tumble to almost the season's bottom price record. The rise accompanied evidence that shipping demand for corn had broadened out and was the best in some time. Wheat rallied with corn, but met with selling based on predictions of continued large receipts and on advices that Minneapolis elevators were becoming crowded.

Corn closed unsettled, ¾c to 1¼c advance; wheat unchanged to ⅝c higher; oats ⅛c off to ⅜c up, and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 18. — Strong foreign cables combined with improved export demand to give a buoyant tone to wheat pit trading here yesterday. Values at the close registered gains of ⅞c to 1c for the day.

Gains of more than 1¼c were registered during the morning session, but liberal selling, which set in at mid-session, checked the advance, a portion of which was lost in the last half hour.

Trade volume for the day was appreciable. Shippers estimated that more than 750,000 bushels had been worked for export. The Australian price moved to a discount of only 12 cents, as compared with 14 cents on Monday, and on this basis Canadian wheat again is in line to favorably secure foreign trade, traders state.

There was a fair trade worked in cash and coarse grains, with price reflecting a firm tone.

LEGISLATURE IS ASKED TO STUDY

tackled the agriculture question, but in a biting, cynical vein, attacking the Government's new Milk Act as "a most iniquitous measure," and bluntly pointing out to the House that, while he, like Mr. Sinclair, was not prepared to move an amendment to the motion before the Assembly, it was only because the present Minister of Agriculture was "a new man," and should be given a chance to find his feet.

"Otherwise, said Mr. Nixon, "I would move an amendment, and that amendment would strongly condemn the Government's administration of its Agriculture Department."

Salary Rise Condemned.

Condemnation of the Government's action of last session in raising its salaries from $8,000 to $10,000 per year per member, was coupled by Mr. Nixon with a demand for a retroactive 10 per cent. reduction in the same, and in the salaries of higher-priced civil servants, and an expression of his willingness, in the face of existing "hard times," to accept a similar reduction in his own sessional indemnity.

In the impending appointment of a Commission to administer the Security Frauds Act — an appointment which he had advocated last session, and which he thanked the Attorney-General for acting upon—Mr. Nixon stressed the need for a non-partisan appointee. Such an appointment he felt to be a one-man job. Establishment of a board of administrators would, in his belief, not work satisfactorily.

Ovation for Mr. Sinclair

Mr. Sinclair received a long and hearty ovation from both sides of the House when he rose to speak. After preliminary reference to the changes in the membership of the House and the Government, and after congratulating the new Liberal member, he referred to the fact that the party had not its Ontario Leader in his place in the House. "The members elected by the Liberal Party are here. They have honored me by permitting me to lead them" said Mr. Sinclair, amid applause. He was, he continued, Leader of the Opposition by virtue of the Legislative Assembly Act.

"As such" he said, "I have a duty to perform. I will analyze legislation and suggest improvements. My legal attainments are at the service of the House. I will also scrutinize the finances. I will try to be of assistance to the House. I hope to serve, not in a critical, captious, manner, but in a constructive way which will be helpful to the people. Freed from the limitations of party leadership, I hope to be able to discuss public affairs from a business and economic angle. I am free to give this Legislature my opinion as a Liberal lawyer, a Liberal farmer, and a Liberal citizen of Ontario. I hope the Government will consider suggestions I may make, for I believe I think as very many of the people of Ontario are thinking to-day. I will make suggestions from experience also, for there are only two members of this House who held seats here before I first came, namely, Hon. Mr. Dunlop, North Renfrew, and Hon. Dr. Godfrey, West York.

CHANGE OF CHAUTAUQUA DATES ROUSES HAVELOCK COMMITTEE

Legal Action May Be Taken Unless Verbal Agreement is Carried Out.

LETTER ORDERED WRITTEN.

HAVELOCK, Ont., Feb. 18. (Examiner Correspondence)—That legal action may be taken by the local Chautauqua Committee, against the Canadian Chautauqua Association, was one of the most important questions discussed at the initial meeting of the local committee on Monday evening in the C.P.R. station.

On a motion by T. P. Lancaster and Ed Fennell, Rev. P. C. Howard was re-elected chairman for 1931, but Mr. Howard explained that he would not be able to accept the chair on account of the present dates being in Holy Week. Mr. Percy Yuill nominated Rev. J. Lennox, but found no seconder. H. T. Mathison was then nominated by Mr. Howard and P. Yuill. The motion carried unanimoully. Mr. Yuill was then made secretary to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Mathison.

The letter from the Association was then read, giving the dates for the Chantauqua as March 30 and 31, and April 1 and 2.

When the agreement was signed by the local committee, last year, they had a verbal agreement with a Mr. Evans, a director of the Association. At this time Mr. Evans promised the dates this year would be the same as those of last year or a week later. This would cause the entertainments to take place this month sometime. Those present at the meeting were of the opinion that any time, except Holy Week would be suitable. There are a number of witnesses to the verbal agreement and it is thought they will take legal action with the Company, if they still cling to the given dates, after receiving the second letter, in connection with the matter of changing the dates.

A lengthy letter was ordered written to the Company giving all the reasons for the change and the attitude of the local committee.

Messrs. Howard, Fennell and Coates will be committee to wait on the council, for the purpose of obtaining a lower rate on the Town-Hall, also to wait on the Women's Institute re selling tickets.

The profits, if any will go to the Women's Institute for the library. This was acting on a suggestion of T. P. Lancaster M.L.A., who is a great booster of the Institute and the newly formed Library Board.

Mr. Fennell and Mr. Coates will be the committee to wait on the H.C.S. Literary Society, for the purpose of obtaining the use of the school piano.

The meeting then closed until the call of the chairman, pending word from the Chautauqua Association.

DIED AT LONDON

Sir Laming Worthington Evans, 62, secretary of war in the last Conservative government of Great Britain, who died Feb. 13, had a distinguished political career and was one of the mainstays in the high councils of the Conservative party. MILLBROOK INSTITUTE PLANNING TO ASK DEPARTMENT FOR SPEAKER

Mrs. W. J. E. Gillott is Hostess to Members at Regular Meeting.

PLEASING PROGRAM.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 18. (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. J. W. E. Gillott was hostess for the February meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute, held at her home on Saturday, February 14, an unusually large number of members being present for the gathering.

Mrs. I. M. Nattress opened the door, the hostess giving greeting to her guests in the hall, the large double living-rooms being filled to capacity when the president, Mrs. T. G. Harkness, called the meeting to order, and the opening Ode was sung.

The roll-call was answered by suggestions for the observance of the Institute's thirtieth birthday which falls on March 22, of this year, or by a suitable name for a country home. Unfortunately too many of the members simply answer "present," at the time of the Roll-call, and the meeting loses a considerable amount in interest, and actual knowledge from the practice.

The secretary, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, read letters from the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, the Muskoka Hospital, and some private individuals, expressing appreciation for donations of money, or other kindnesses, one mother's communication mentioning for the bank account started for her new baby. The local branch adopted this custom last fall, and already several babies have been remembered in this manner.

On motion it was decided to write the Department at Toronto for a speake during the summer series of public meetings, a Wednesday evening to be secured for this gathering if possible. The District Secretary, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, has this matter in charge.

The president brought up the matter of a new flag-pole for the green in front of the Town Hall, to replace the one blown down in a storm some time ago, the one already secured having been found too short. Mrs. Harkness had definite word of a pole the proper length to be shortly delivered, and if found suitable, it will promptly be put in place.

The matter of granting the free use of the piano in the Town Hall for the Continuation School concert on Friday, February 20, was brought up and settled in the affirmative, but it was decided to charge this season for the use of the instrument when the Chautauqua Festival is in town the last week of March. Last year, the initial one of the Chautauqua series locally, the Institute generously granted the use of the piano for all the concerts without any charge, and is making a considerable reduction from the usual charge for this season.

A letter from Mrs. M. L. Watts, of Toronto, regarding holding an Art Craft class here, under her tuition, was read, and on motion it was decided to have the secretary write Mr. Putnam asking for Mrs. Watt's services, some time in March if this can be arranged. Practically everyone present gave her name as intending to take the course, which will cover three days, and will include instruction in making vases, jardinieres, lamps, boudoir cushions, crocheted rugs, and several other articles, the small fee of ten cents covering the lessons, with the pupils to purchase individual material required.

The committee for the March meeting includes: Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. H. Nattress, Mrs. Thomas Ingram and the invitation of Mrs. J. R. Eakins to hold the gathering at her home was gratefully accepted.

The important matter of celebrating in a fitting manner the thirtieth birthday of the Institute came up for discussion, and on motion it was decided to attend divine worship at Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday, March 22, a banquet and social gathering to feature the evening of March 23. The committee in charge will include the officers, with Mrs. W. J. E. Gillott, Mrs. F. H. Smith, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, and Miss Burnham.

An interesting paper on "Foods and Food Values," by Mrs. Lavergne Fallis, was listened to with close attention, and many practical suggestions stored away for future use, some points emphasized being sound teeth, and their importance to health; the way to avoid growing fat; the use of nuts as food; the absolute need of fresh air, and of cultivating the habit of breathing deeply when out of doors; the ill results of nervous tension, and the advice to avoid worry, and haste, and yet keep busy.

Mrs. Gillott served homemade candy while the business session was in progress, and a delicious lunch at the conclusion of the meeting, the formal vote of thanks being moved by Miss Burnham seconded by Miss E. Grandy, and heartily endorsed by all.

All the branches in the East Durham district will be invited to meet with the local society, and attend church on Sunday, March 22, at 7 p.m.

For Coughs Too Deep To Risk A Lesser Help

Creomulsion was made to deal with coughs from colds which hang on. A three-day cough is a danger signal. There the utmost should be done.

But a trifling cough may develop into something deep and difficult. Don't you think it wise to use the utmost help, even if a lesser help might do?

Creomulsion combines seven major helps in one. The seven best helps known to medical science. One is best for one type of cough, one for others. Nobody can tell in advance. So the best way seems to be to combine all in one prescription.

Creosote stands first. Here it is blended, emulsified and tasty. For soothing membranes and combating cold germs, the world knows nothing better.

But some coughs best yield to white pine tar, some to wild cherry bark, some to menthol, some to ipecac, etc. So we combine all these factors at their best in a single formula.

For some coughs Creomulsion is better than you need. One of its factors might do. But don't you feel safer when a minor cough is treated in the utmost way?

If so, get Creomulsion. It costs a little more than lesser helps—$1.25. But your druggist guarantees it. He returns your money if you are disappointed. You will feel safer in any cough if this master help combats it. Use it promptly.

CANADA FACES HER PROBLEMS

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY)

Canada, like the United States, is beset by political unrest and economic depression. Mr. Hoover may be bowed down by the problem of prohibition, the plight of Northwestern farmers and the insurgency of Congress, but it is doubtful whether his position is more uneasy than that of Premier Bennett, back from the London Imperial Conference empty-handed, confronted by farmers who want a fixed price for wheat, by nation-wide unemployment, by the threat of an enormous budget deficit. Not since the post-war depression which produced an agrarian uprising in the West and brought new orientations in party politics, has the dominion experienced such vicissitudes.

The London Economic Conference was looked to hopefully to rescue the Canadian farmer from his troubles. It was, in the light of British and world ecomnic conditions, a too optimistic hope. It failed to take accurate account of the world's overproduction of wheat, and failed also, and much more seriously, in comprehension of the free-trade doctrines of the British people. For a quarter of a century Canada has been endeavoring to secure preferential treatment in the markets of the mother country. It was this hope that foundationed the British preferences given by Sir Wilfrid Laurier as far back as 1897. It was the dominating factor in Canada's refusal of Mr. Taft's 1911 offer of reciprocity with the United States. And it was the governing motive in the increased British preferences granted by Mr. King's Liberal Ministry in the budget of 1929. Throughout all of this period the underlying aim of Canadian fiscal policy was that the dominion should become less and less dependent upon the markets of the United States, should promote increasing barter with Great Britain and the British dominions. It was an attitude easily intelligible. Over more than half a century the trade relations of Canadians with the United States has been anything but satisfactory. Time and again Canadian trade pilgrimages to Washington seeking tariff concessions were met almost with contempt, and the memory of this, made more vivid by such recent enactments as the Fordney-McCumber tariff and the Hawley-Smoot schedules, which all but shut the Canadian farmer from the American market, strengthened the determination of the dominion to look more and more to the empire as a market for their products.

Practically one-fourth of all the exports of the United States are taken by Canada. But while 10,000,000 Canadians were buying nearly $900,000,000 worth of United States products annually, Washington showed increasing disposition to limit the purchase of goods from Canadian farms and factories. The hostility engendered by this became more manifest every year, and it reached its climax last July when Mr. Bennett and the Conservative party were put into office with a mandate to impose wthe highest possible tariff against the United States and to seek an outlet for Canadian goods in the empire and the mother country.

Mr. Bennett's present difficulty, politically at any rate, is that while he proceeded to carry out his mandate so far as the United States was concerned, increasing duties against American product to as high, in some cases, as 100 per cent, he also heightened duties against the products of Great Britain. A political imperialist, but an economic nationalist, his policy translated into legislative enactments at a special session of Parliament was "Canada First," the safeguarding of Canadian industry from all external competition, including the competition of the empire. And whi'e the duties he imposed upon British goods were not as severe as those leveled upon American and foreign products, they ranged from 10 to 25 per cent, and undoubtedly struck a blow against British exports to the dominion.

Mr. Bennett's course lacked the approval of even his warmest supporters. The Canadian people are traditionally protectionist, but a large ingredient of their protectionism is a fear of economic penetration by the United States. The background of this is the old United Empire loyalist sentiment, overwhelmingly predominant in Ontario and a potent factor in the provinces of the Atlantic. Thus, while there existed a strong sentiment favorable to tariff retaliation against Washington, not much enthusiasm prevailed for steps that might lessen trade with the mother country. Added to this, and complicating matters for Mr. Bennett, the Western farmer, looking hopefully to the London Economic Conference for a solution of his difficulties, hardly regarded a blow at British trade as creating the right atmosphere for action.

And the plight of the Canadian farmer was a desperate one. His difficulty, which still remains, was his inability to find profitable markets for his large surplus of wheat. This trouble, which is the source of most, if not all, of the existing economic depression, goes back to 1928, when there was a large wheat crop of excellent quality. The Western Wheat Pool, invincibly confident in its collectivist theories, believed that rationed marketing would bring higher prices, fed wheat slowly to the world markets, and closed the crop year with a large carry-over. The same policy was pursued in 1929, the result being that in August of this year (1930) the West found itself with a carry-over of 200,000,000 bushels. This in itself, considering world over production, would have imposed a difficult problem, but when the new crop added 300,000,000 bushels more to the surplus, the price of wheat meanwhile dropping to 60c a bushel, the economic repercussions were bound to be severe. One of the immediate effects was a $500,000,000 reduction in the purchasing power of the nation, followed by acute distress and political turmoil in the three prairie provinces.

The other provinces, including Ontario and Quebec, suffer almost correspondingly. The prairie provinces grain producers, consume about $200,000,000 of manufactured products annually. With this purchasing power cut off, with Eastern manufacturers deprived of much of their home market, the unemployment problem, which would have been serious in any event, was rendered more acute.

It was, therefore, a hard blow to Canadian hopes when the London Conference failed to offer even a ray of promise for the Western farmer. Mr. Bennett departing for Britain, expressed confidence in his mission, and up to the very end, when the failure of the conference became clear to all, faith existed that somehow he would induce the British government to purchase the bulk of the dominion's wheat surplus. Mr. Bennett within the restricted ground of his "Canada First" policy, undoubtedly did his best. His offer to the British people of a preference in Canadian markets, based upon a 10 per cent increase in the duties upon all foreign products, was sincere. The weakness of the plan, so far as the British people were concerned, was that while it involved a guarantee that the British would buy Canada's wheat, where was no corresponding guarantee that the Canadian people would buy British goods. On the contrary, the actual position was that, taking account of the tariff increases imposed by the special session of the Canadian Parliament the barriers against British goods were higher than before.

In the circumstances, Canadian opinion did not greatly blame Britain for rejecting the Bennett plan. The conference might have added amicably, and with possibility for achievement when it resumes next year at Ottawa, had it not been for an unfortunate phase used by Mr. J. H. Thomas, a leading member of the MacDonald Ministry. In a debate in the British Commons, Mr. Thomas, under attack, and caught off his guard, characterized Mr. Bennett's plan as "humbug." It was one of those unfortunate lapses which often influence politics more than men or measures, and it produced a storm of criticism and recrimination between the two countries. The chief effect of the conference, indeed, so far as Canada was concerned, was that Mr. Bennett, who went to England with a high ambition for imperial economic unity based upon tariffs, left London with a veiled threat of economic separatism.

Nor was this the end. Mr. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, recently appointed Canadian High Commissioner to London, committed the extraordinary indiscretion of making a vigorous attack upon the Socialist policy of the Labour government to which he has been accredited. This, not unnaturally has added to the strained relations between Ottawa and Downing Street, has made co-operation between the two governments difficult, if not impossible. Mr. Philip Snowden, the acid-tongued Socialist Chancellor of the Exchequer, has a good memory.

So Mr. Bennett has returned to a Canada which has still some 250,000,000 bushels of unsold wheat, which has an acute unemployment problem, and whose declining revenues threaten an enormous deficit at the close of the fiscal year. The weakness of his position is that, like Mr. Hoover, in the United States, he took office on a platform of prosperity. Mr. Bennett, electioneering told the Canadian people that failure to market the Western wheat crop and prevalence of unemployment were the fruits of the Liberal Ministry of Mr. King. After four months in office, and despite millions voted for unemployment relief, unemployment is still acute, and the wheat of the West remains unsold.

But Mr. Bennett, like Mr. Britling, will see it through. Possessed of unbounded faith in protection as an economic remedy, he will apply it in increasing measure at the coming session of Parliament. If there be those in the United States who believe that failure of the Economic Conference will induce Mr. Bennett's government to turn once more to the United States, they are fated for disillusionment. Precisely what further steps he will take remains to beseen but that duties will be heightened upon American products is as certain as anything can be in politics. The truth is that this policy, undoubtedly in large degree a weapon of retaliation against Washington, will inevitably and unfortunately go on until some new basis in economic relations is arrived at between the two countries.

ODDFELLOWS HONOR ROLL IS UNVEILED

D.D.G.M. Price Has Charge of Impressive Ceremony at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 18. (Examiner Correspondence.)—Featuring a special meeting of Millbrook Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 308, held last week was the unveiling of an honor-roll of deceased Oddfellows belonging to the local branch of the Order, District-Deputy Grand Master Brother Price of Peterborough, performing the interesting and impressive ceremony.

Over forty members of the Oddfellows' Lodges of Peterborough were guests of Millbrook Lodge for the evening, the visiting brethren putting on First Degree work, two candidates coming up for initiation. The attendance in all, totalled over seventy.

Adjournment to the dining-hall followed the business session, the social committee having prepared a delicious and substantial supper, and serving the meal while a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

The lettering on the appropriately-framed Honor Roll was done by Piercey Pitt, and is a fine example of this branch of craftsmanship, space has been left for the insertion of other names when the Lodge membership is again depleted by death.

There are now thirty names on the roll, and the addresses made by Brother Price, D.D.G.M., and others during the evening, showed appreciation of the courteous gesture of the local Lodge in thus honoring the memory of those gone before by giving the Honor Roll a prominent place on the wall space of the I.O.O.F. Hall.

MASON BEHIND RELIEF SCHEME

Not So Much Ordinary Poverty Stricken Home That Needs the Assistance.

NEED AUXILIARY SERVICE.

E. F. Mason, a member of the Ways and Means Committee of the recently-formed Peterborough Relief Association, endorses the present campaign for funds, with unqualified sincerity. Mr. Mason, whose long experience in business life has given him an insight into many of the homes in the city, sees the need of this auxiliary service to the existing relief organizations of the city.

"It is not so much the ordinary poverty-stricken home that needs this supplementary assistance at the present time," said Mr. Mason. "The need is just as much, and probably more, in homes where the head of the house is a clerk, a machine worker or an office man. These are the people who are feeling the pinch now, and, nine cases out of ten, they are the ones who will not apply for assistance through the civic channels, no matter how desperate their need.

"It is true that churches are doing all they can, as they always have done in the past, but their funds, like those of other organizations, become depleted and there is need of fresh money. There are also those who have no special church affiliations. These must not be allowed to want. It is useless saying that everyone should come and apply for aid. Poverty does not necessarily imply that people have lost all the finer feelings they cultivate in happier times. There are many who will not ask for aid, and for these we must depend on the watchfulness of neighbors and friends. Charity has many implications and a wide range.

"In times that were better, there may have been little thought of laying up for a rainy day and then again many homes have so many children and so much illness that it is impossible to save. We have never here in Canada, perhaps, felt the pinch of utter and desperate want that is prevalent at times in the old countries, but this winter is coming pretty close to it, when people are living close to bedrock when it comes to food and fuel.

"I would unhesitatingly recommend consideration of this serious problem among our own people to those who think and who wish well to their fellow men."

District Churches

FENELLA UNITED CHURCH

The Rev. R. W. Paton chose as his text on Sunday evening, Mark 11:12—14 and said, "We find that all the miracles of Jesus were more than mere manifestations of Divine Power: they were unspoken sermons. The miracle of the fig tree comes last in the gospel of miracles; it is deeply significant because it is a great parable and has definite reference to the Jewish nation; that guilty people who were about to put to death their King.

"When Jesus opened the eyes of the blind man it was not only an act of mercy toward a suffering man; it was intended to teach that only through Jesus can the eyes of those whom sin has blinded, be opened.

'Jesus was hungry when He passed the fig tree with a great wealth of leaves upon it. He felt sure there would be figs, but when He found no fruit He pronounced a curse upon the tree, and it withered away. In the withering of the tree we see the prophecy of our Lord, concerning the coming judgment of God, upon a people who were unrepentant, fruitless and profitless.

"Our Lord's teaching was applicable to the whole human race; a lesson for all time. We have today, a large number of people who profess to be religious, who claim to be followers of Jesus Christ, and, wherever we go, we find some kind of Christian church. When Christian brethren love each other, there will be no ill-feeling in the church, no back-biting, no desire for revenge and no divisions.

"Do we manifest a readiness to admit our own mistakes and failings, and a desire to forgive others? Jesus said, 'Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also to them!' Do we carry out the Golden Rule in our religion? We want others to be fair with us; to be tolerant and forgiving—let us befair to them."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

ULCER OF THE STOMACH

One of the commonest ailments is ulcer of the stomach, or of the first part of the small intestine (duodenum) into which the stomach empties its contents. It is called gastric ulcer when in the stomach, and duodenal ulcer when in the small intestine.

An ulcer on the skin is bad enough, but you can see what a serious matter an ulcer on the lining of the stomach can be. What it needs is rest and freedom of irritation.

Now the individual has to eat, and this draws out the gastric or stomach intestinal juice to digest the food. For a long time it was thought that it was the food getting into the ulcer that caused the pain, but it was later shown that it was the acid in the stomach digestive juice (hydrochloric acid) that was the real cause.

Thus the use of an alkali, baking soda or another alkali, to overcome the acid, became the treatment for immediate relief of the pain, and alkalis are still the main a tor in treating and curing the ulcer

Now how does an ulcer get started? Research men are still unable to tell us the exact cause, but it is generally admitted that it is not the stomach itself that is so much at fault, but some general condition of the system.

As you know, the outstanding symptom is distress in the region of the stomach, which comes on at a time after eating. In some individuals it is two hours, in others three, and in others it may be four or more hours. In about half the cases it is really more of a discomfort than pressure or fullness than a pain and in the other half it is an actual pain which may be of a boring or gnawing, cramplike or cutting nature.

And the pain is always relieved by taking food or a dose of baking soda or other alkali.

Now there are two things for ulcer patients to remember. Dr. Ralph C. Brown, Chicago, shows that medical treatment results in a permanent cure in about 50 per cent of the cases and another 30 per cent get relief, about 20 per cent of them require surgery for a cure. Further, he states, that the reason for the poor results in medical treatment in some cases was because the patients did not continue the treatment for the length of time that was really necessary.

The second point. The idea that cancer followed ulcer was not proven in his experience.

Lillian Leitzel To Be Buried In California

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Feb. 18 (A.P.)—Lillian Leitzel, internationally known circus performer who died of injuries received in a fall when her apparatus broke is to be buried in California where she had hoped to spend the last years of her life.

Alfredo Codona, her husband and himself a famous trapeze star, will leave here next Friday with Miss Leitzel's ashes. Heartbroken, he has cancelled all his contracts and there is a possibility that he may never appear on a trapeze again.

He and Miss Leitzel and her mother, it was said, had agreed that the two would work for two years more, then all three would go together to California to live.

The attendants were Miss Josie Lynch and Mr. T. H. Theobald. Following the wedding breakfast at Hooper's, Mr. and Mrs. McDonnell left for Detroit. They will return to Peterborough.

LOCKHART—THOMPSON

ROSENEATH, Feb. 18. — A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the Presbyterian Manse, Hastings, on Saturday, February 14 at 3 p.m., when Thelma Edna, youngest daughter of the late Richard Thompson and Mrs. Ella Thompson of Alnwick township was united in marriage with Mr. Clarence William Lockhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lockhart of Dartford, by Rev. D. A. Thompson, D.D., of Hastings. The bride looked lovely gowned in a jacket dress of blue-glory crepe with eggshell bodice top and chic hat to match. Her coat was of fancy tan tweed and wearing hose, shoes, gloves and purse in tan color of coat.

The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson of Hastings.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. James Thompson, after which they left by auto for Cobourg enroute for Toronto and other points west. Upon their return they will reside in Roseneath. The very best wishes follow Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart as they start out in life together.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MISTAKE

Uncle Wiggily started out, on Candlemas Day, to try and fix it so neither the bear nor the groundhog gentlemen would come out of their dens to see their shadows, in case the sun was shining. For there is an old saying that if the bear (or groundhog) sees his shadow on Candlemas Day he goes back into his den, from which he came to break his long sleep, and seeing his shadow makes him go back in and stay for six weeks instead of four. Many believe that if the bear (or groundhog) doesn't see his shadow there will be only one month more of cold weather.

Uncle Wiggily, going to call on Mr. Stubtail, the bear gentleman, stopped to pick some bright red seed pods from a dried rose bush. The Bob Cat rushed out to catch the rabbit, but the bunny played a trick on the Bad Chap. The Bob Cat thought the red rose seed pods were strawberries, and, jumping over the rabbit's head to get his share of them, the Bob Cat found himself caught in the bramble briar stickers of the rose bush and held fast.

Then Uncle Wiggily happened on to the bear's den, his pocket full of the bright, red seed pods which, he knew, would make a fine necklace when strung on a string as beads.

Uncle Wiggily strung the pods.

'Yes, I'll give this present to Beckie Stubtail," thought Uncle Wiggily as he hopped along, after running away from the Bob Cat who was stuck in the rose bush. And that's where the rabbit gentleman made his mistake.

Up to the den where Neddie and Beckie Stubtail lived with their father and mother hopped Uncle Wiggily. All was dark and quiet in front of the den and hopping in Uncle Wiggily saw a pine needle from an old Christmas tree and a piece of string.

"I'll just string these red seed pods from the rose bush and make a necklace for Beckie," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "Then I'll ask Mr. Stubtail if he will please not go out of his den for his Candlemas Day picnic until I make sure the sun is under a cloud. Then he can't see his shadow and we will have only four weeks more of winter instead of six."

Uncle Wiggily strung the bright, red rose seed pods, making a fine necklace of them and then, all of a sudden, there was a noise in the bear's den and out came Beckie.

"Oh, hello, Uncle Wiggily!" growled Beckie. She didn't growl because she was cross but because growling is the way bears, both big and little, always talk, the same as roosters crow, dogs bark, kittens mew and automobiles honk. "I didn't know you were here, Uncle Wiggily!" growled Beckie, most politely.

"I just came in," said the rabbit gentleman. "Where's your father, Beckie?"

"Oh, he's asleep. He has been asleep ever since before Christmas, he and mother. But Neddie and I don't believe in that old-fashioned notion about Candlemas Day. We don't sleep and then go out and try to see our shadow. But pa always does. Wait, I'll go back, wake him up and tell him you are here."

'Just a moment, Beckie," said Uncle Wiggily, smiling. Here is a little present for you—a red bead necklace. I made it myself from the seed pods of a rose bush."

'Oh, how lovely!" cried Beckie and, even though her voice was a growl you could tell how happy she was.

Uenle Wiggily put the bright, red necklace around Beckie's neck and she walked up and down in front of the den, admiring her new necklace. Then all of a sudden, her father awakened back in his leaf bed. It was still Candlemas Day and it was time he went out to see about his shadow.

"But don't go now!" begged Uncle Wiggily. "The sun is shining, Stubby. Wait until it gets under a cloud. Then you won't see your shadow and we'll only have four weeks of winter instead of six."

'Well, all right," said the bear gentleman, stretching his paws. Then, all at once he cried: "Oh, I see my shadow! Oh, dear! Here is the sun shining right into my den. Oh, I'm going back to bed and sleep six weeks more!" Back to his bed of leaves at the back of his den rushed the bear gentleman. Uncle Wiggily looked but he saw no sun shining.

"I guess daddy saw my bright, red beads and they cast his shadow like the sun," said Beckie with a laugh. Poor daddy!" Then Uncle Wiggily knew what a mistake he had made by giving Beckie the red rose seed pods like beads which shone like the sun. But it couldn't be helped.

"Well, anyhow," said the bunny, "I gave Beckie a nice present and maybe the rest of the winter won't be so bad." (Copyright, 1931, by Howard R. Garis

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S. to Hold Social Evening Next Monday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 18 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The regular meeting of the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford was held on Monday in the church parlor with the president, Mrs. H. T. Scott in the chair. Miss Grace Blue was the secretary for the meeting while Miss Mary McGregor acted as pianist.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn and the Lord's Prayer after which the role was called and the business session entered into. This included the arrangements for a social evening to be held next Monday.

The program was under the direction of the Literary committee, with the convenor, Miss Annie Parks in the chair. The topic for discussion was given by Mr. W. A. Newcourt and was on "Martin Luther." At the conclusion of this a contest was enjoyed, the meeting closing with a hymn and the benediction.

SLIGHT FOOD CHANGES AFFECT THE BODY TREMENDOUSLY.

My grand niece weighed less at eight months than at birth, due to "Infantile eczema." Was plastered with ointments and unbathed for seven months—entire household exhausted from lack of sleep. I added vegetable juice to each bottle feeding, nothing more. After two days she slept fourteen hours without waking. Ointments then discontinued, baths resumed. No rash, no itching in four years since. Why? Vegetable juice alkalinized her blood, killing the acid-caused eczema. Alkaline Roman Meal has kept her blood alkaline since.

Alkaline Roman Meal also saved my life when the great Osler told me twenty-two years ago I could not live four months. Now at 72 not two per cent. of men 30 have muscles, strength or endurance equal to mine, built up out of alkaline Roman Meal. I'll send you a free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," and other literature, also sample of Roman Meal and Kofy-sub, the new alkaline beverage, if you'll write for them to ROBT. G. Partial Pensioners' Relief Is Reduced

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.)—Following an order from the Dominion Department of Pensions and National Health reducing the amount of relief partial pensioners may obtain by approximately $10 a month, officials of the Christie St. Hospital, where the relief offices are located, received many protests from ex-service men yesterday. It is understood the order provides for reducing the relief allowances of single men from $30 to $17.50 a month. Married men with no children are to receive $35 instead of $45 and allowance for children are also cut.

The hospital officials say the order was received Saturday morning. Recipients of relief funds declare no notice was given them of the reduction.

BEWARE OF COLDS NOW

If Neglected They May Pave The Way For Flu Attack

TREAT COLDS PROMPTLY BUT AVOID "DOSING"

Now that flu is in the air again health authorities advise everyone to take these commonsense precautions: Eat wisely; get plenty of sleep and fresh air; avoid undue exposure; and above all treat every cold promptly. Unless checked quickly, colds tend to pull down the body resistance and may pave the way for an attack of flu with all its serious complications.

Attack Colds at the Start

At the first sign of sniffling, sneezing or other signs that you are "catching cold," start treatment at once with Vicks VapoRub. Place some Vicks up each nostril and snuff well back. Do this several times a day. It will often prevent a little cold from developing into a big one.

If the head is clogged with mucus or phlegm, or there is much coughing, melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in a bowl or kettle of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for five minutes at a time. This auxiliary vapor-steam treatment with Vicks has a remarkable effect in clearing the air-passages, easing the breathing, and helps keep the cold from spreading.

Double Action Effective

At bedtime ,in order to get the benefit of its long-continued stimulation and inhalation effect, rub Vicks vigorously over the throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Vicks attacks colds in two direct ways: (1) through the skin like a poultice or plaster, drawing out the tightness and soreness; and (2) at the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the irritated air-passages.

Protect Children, Especially

Children should be put to bed at the first sign of a cold, and Vicks rubbed on throat and chest. Its use brings prompt relief, and avoids constant "dosing" which often upsets the digestion. When used at bedtime, Vicks often prevents sleep-disturbing night coughs, thus permitting needed rest for both mother and child.

Don't take chances with colds NOW!

One of the most successful dances of the season was held in the hall of the Canadian Legion last night when The Examiner Social Club sponsored a second Relief Dance, the funds to be used for assisting in the present unemployment situation. The energetic committee did everything possible to ensure the success of the dance, and Mr. Fred Scates, the secretary, who had charge of general arrangements, spared neither time nor pains to try and put it over. The success of the dance fully justifies all his efforts. The crowd, which numbered close to four hundred people, was bigger than on the occasion of the first Examiner Relief Dance this season. Mr. Bert Gash of the Legion did the bright decorating, and a special feature for the moonlight waltzes was the string of alternating electric blue stars which formed a wall molding. Excellent music was furnished by Mose Yokom and his orchestra, with Mr. Yokom playing the piano, Mr. Gordon Braund the trumpet, Mr. Joseph Nazimok the violin, Mr. Billy Mutch the sax and clarinet, and Mr. Patsy O'Connell, late of Harold Rich's Versatile Canadians, the drums. A pleasing feature was the presence of several friends of The Examiner who came along to help the cause; Mr. and Mrs. George Patton of North Monaghan, Mr. and Mrs. B. Krom and their daughter and Miss Sweet, and Mr. Walter Rye with a party. A few tables of cards were played in the little sitting-room at the rear of the hall. Several novelty events were run off during the dancing program, with favors and serpentine crepe. The prize for the spot dance, donated by Miss Cathleen McCarthy, was won by Miss Marcelle Roach, dancing with Mr. E. Guiry, while the door prize, donated by Mr. Chas. Coleman, went to Miss Hannah Clarke. Guardians of the door were Mr. H. Lacheur and the vigilant Mr. Scates, who spent the entire evening, as well as many hours of the week previous, in preparation for the dance. "Fred" certainly puts it over when he gets going. The Teco Store and Dormer's Sugar Bowl kindly donated novelties for the dance. The committee in charge officers of The Examiner Social Club, includes the following members: J. H. McCauley, chairman; Fred Scates, secretary; R. A. Baker, H. Lacheur and R. Pearse. Mr. Fred Craig also kindly assisted with the advertising.

Mrs. F. H. Rowan of King street, president of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, lent her home on Saturday afternoon for a very successful tea held there under the auspices of the society. The ladies were received by Mrs. Rowan and Mrs. W. Allan. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. J. Garbutt, assisted by Mrs. Harvie, representing the ladies of the south end branch of the organization. The table was lovely with a cloth of Venetian lace centered by a novelty Valentine decoration of silver leaves and red paper, and red candles in silver holders. Spring flowers decorated the rooms. A sale of cooking was in charge of Mrs. S. Taylor and Mrs. J. P. Pulkinghorn and the Wide Awake Girls' class, led by Miss Mildred Rowan, sold candy. Tea was poured by Mrs. Robert Stewart and Mrs. W. A. Logan, assisted by Mrs. R. Flitton, Mrs. C. Crowe and Miss A. Hunter. Mrs. C. A. White ushered the ladies to the tea room and Mrs. John Anderson acted as treasurer. Mrs. Ada Craig had charge of refreshments. During the afternoon, a charming musical program was given, with Mrs. M. B. Chenhall in charge. Miss Emma Lou Chenhall and Miss Lily Kay played piano duetts, and solo vocal numbers were given by Miss Chenhall, Miss Mary Sedgewick and Miss Mildred Rowan, and piano selections by Mr. Russell Rowan.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Judging from the number of shoppers on our uptown streets, many of Peterborough's housewives are bargain shopping.

• • • • • • •

Generally one couples the word "saving" with "bargain," but bargain buying may be a saving or an extravagance.

• • • • • • •

To buy what you consider to be a bargain does not at the time seem out of the way, but unless the articles purchased serve an immediate need, the money spent is tied up.

• • • • • • •

It may not be an extravagance exactly, but nevertheless it is not wise, I don't think, to purchase articles which may not be used even for months.

• • • • • • •

The thrifty way to buy bargains is to know exactly what you require, and to purchase the articles at the time when they cost least.

• • • • • • •

For example, when napkins, towels, sheets and other household linens need replenishing, try to wait for the annual sale of these goods. Then purchase them at the reduced regular stock prices.

• • • • • • •

Of course all housewives are on the look out for bargains, and here I might say that a good slogan for Peterborough's housewives would be: "Buy to Save."

• • • • • • •

Then it is thrifty.

• • • • • • •

It is often possible to gratify a wish for what would be an extravagance at regulation prices, if one finds an article priced so low that it is within the reach of one's purse.

• • • • • • •

The joy of having such an article and not paying more than one can afford for it, is its reasonable excuse. While it is not part of wisdom to indulge frequently in this bargain buying it is possible thereby to introduce exquisite things into a home or to personal belongings.

• • • • • • •

SCOTTISH SLIDES SHOWN AUDIENCE

UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY.

To the Scots of this city and district was last night afforded the rare and unique opportunity of making spiritual contact with the homeland by means of a forceful illustrated travelogue delivered by Rev. Wm. Allan. How eagerly this opportunity was seized may be gathered from the fact that the main portion of the body of St. Paul's Presbyterial Church was comfortably filled by an appreciative audience, who closely followed the pictures of familiar scenes in Scotland and the comprehensive and concise elucidation of the lecturer, who spoke with a fervour and a knowledge of his subject such as only a native of that country of romance and legend could speak.

Providing an appropriate setting and prologue for the address itself, the lecturer of the evening and the chairman, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., were piped in with due ceremony by a member of the Caledonian Pipe Band in the picturesque kilts and tartan, after which Mr. Gordon in opening the proceedings, remarked that he considered it a great honor to occupy the same platform as Rev. Mr. Allan. He continued briefly to outline some of the national characteristics of the Scots race, and pointed out the very prominent part which they are playing in world affairs.

Rev. Mr. Allan replying to Mr. Gordon's remarks in appreciative vein, stated that Mr. Gordon had not failed in his promise to take the chair, although he was appearing at some inconvenience to himself owing to unforseen circumstances.

In its comprehensiveness the lecture covered a period dating from the Roman invasion right up to the present century, and in its presentation included lantern slides of the outstanding places of historic interest and natural beauty; passages of poetry from the works of Scotland's literary geniuses Sir Walter Scott and the immortal 'Bobbie' Burns, and folk songs of which the Scots people are justly proud. The words to such songs as "Loch Lomond" and "Annie Laurie," upon being thrown on the screen were immediately taken up by the audience. Mrs. William Allan accompanied at the piano.

A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer on the motion of R. R. Hall, K.C.

Presbyterial Report Is Read at Tweed Meeting

TWEED, Feb 18. (Examiner Correspondence)—At the regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church, Mrs. Foster gave a splendid report of the Presbyterial held at Picton. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to her by Mrs. Kingston and Mrs. Gordon.

Mrs. McGee presided for the meeting and an invitation was read from the Anglican Auxiliary for the Society to join with them for the Day of Prayer Service, on Friday.

The scriptural reading was given by Mrs. Way and the second chapter of the Study Book was taken by Mrs. Moffat

BLAST SETS STEAMER AFIRE.

RIGA, Latvia, February 18 (C.P.).—An explosion of gasoline aboard the German steamer Leander last night off the coast of North Couland set the ship flaming like a gigantic torch. The crew of thirteen reached the coast in two boats which landed them on the ice where local fishermen helped them ashore.

EIGHTEEN CHILDREN HOUSED BY SHELTER

Child Survey in This Territory Discussed at Meeting of Society.

A monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the City Council Chamber, and items of business for the past month were reported and discussed.

The Shelter gave the necessary protection and upkeep for 18 children during January. It was reported that three more children had been taken on in Saturday last. A dentist's bill, for a young girl who is the ward of a kindly woman, was ordered paid.

A letter from the Department of National welfare was read. This asked for the co-operation of Children's Aids in providing fire escapes to minimize danger to the least possible degree. The matter was referred to the Property Committee.

Much discussion arose concerning a letter which was received asking for a survey of child conditions in the territory of the Society. It was the opinion of some that only appeals should be responded to, while others thought that investigation should be made with idea that conditions could be alleviated, thereby preventing the necessity of many children being brought to the Shelter. The superintendent was asked to correspond and obtain more details.

GROUNDED STEAMER'S CREW REACHES SHORE.

SEAHAM HARBOR, Eng., Feb. 17.—The crew of the steamer Hallmoor, which went ashore on Pin Cushion rocks last night during a fierce north east gale, were landed early to-day by a breeches buoy.

The Sunderland lifeboat stood by nearly all night, but was unable to get alongside because of the high seas.

Fashion Treads a Varied And Exotic Path

Tailenders Upset National Hockey League "Dope"

AMERICANS ONE POINT IN LEAD OF MUNRO CREW

Senators Defeat New York Rangers 5-4 While Quakers Down Falcons.

HABITANTS BEAT MAROONS.

Gerard's Sextet Loss to Boston Bruins Strengthens Leaf Postion.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 18. (By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer).—Pulsating hockey marked the four games played in the National hockey league and, equally thrilling were the results. Ottawa Senators and Philadelphia Quakers, tail-enders of the Canadian and United States sections, respectively knocked the "dope" for the proverbial mile.

The Ottawans, playing in Madison Square Garden, downed the New York Rangers, 5 to 4 after 60 minutes of spectacular hockey which sent the speed crazed Gotham fans home happy even though their favorites slipped a stride in the battle of third placers.

Despite their splendid victory the Senators did not completely dominate the upset spotlight. At Detroit the Quakers flashed forth with one of their good efforts and it was enough to down the Falcons, the final score being 2 to 0.

Montreal Canadiens hung up their third victory of the season over their intra-city rivals, the Maroons, by a 2 to 0 count and increased their lead over Toronto Maple Leafs to four games. The Leafs were idle but benefited to a certain extent for while Maroons were losing. New York Americans, third place holders, dropped their second tilt of the current schedule to Boston Bruins by a 2 to 0 count.

Americans in Lead

The Marcons and Americans have now played two more games than the Duncanites who hold the second rung by a four point margin over the Amerks ,who in turn are one point in the van of the Maroons.

Danny Cox, Bill Touhey and Alex Smith led the Senators to their seventh triumph of the season. The former notched a brace of goals, while Smith and Touhey scored a goal apiece and assisted in the tallying of two others. The latter notched the winning marker unassisted in the last five minutes of play.

Bunny Cook tallied two of the Ranger goals following three man attacks with Brother Bill and Frankie Boucher. Dillon and Murdoch were the other successful blue shirt marksmen.

This marker was not only sufficient to win the game but it also established the popular choice of all-star hockey team selectors as the leading point collector of the league. His nearest rival, Ebbie Goodfellow, was held in check by the Quakers and is now one point behind the incomparable one.

Pete Lepine, capable understudy to Morenz, assured the Flying Frenchmen of victory by scoring the second tally late in the final frame.

The Bruins rapped in two freak goals to clinch the contest with Eddie Gerard's Amerks. Harry Oliver got the first on a pass from "Red" Beattie about 13 minutes after the start. Art Chapman registered the second five minutes later on a pass from Galbraith and the game, as it turned out, was firmly placed in the win column then and there.

Generally the star flecked New Yorkers provide the Bostonians with stubborn opposition. They beat the Rossmen twice previously and lost the first encounter of the season by the odd goal. Last night, however, they met with litte success in penetrating the stubborn Bruin rearguard, and in addition lost the services of their clever young defenceman, Vernon Ayres who suffered a dislocated shoulder in a scuffle with Lionel Hitchman, hard hitting Bruin rearguard performer.

The game at Detroit proved a cruel blow to smiling Jack Adams, who had counted on his Falcons coming through to win and tie Rangers for third place in southern division.

Rosy cheeked Sid Howe and Jerry Lowery scored the Quaker goals in the last three minutes, the first coming when the motor magnates were a man short and the second when the Detroiters sent every one but the goalkeeper up to the attack.

LONDON SEXTET SUFFERS THIRD STRAIGHT LOSS

One Point Behind Cleveland Indians, Last Night's 5-2 Victors.

IN FOURTH PLACE.

Yellow Jackets Making Strong Battle to Rest Among Leaders.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP)—Three defeats in their last three starts has dropped London Tecumsehs a notch in the International Hockey League standing. Today they occupy fourth place one point behind the Cleveland Indians who trounced them 5 to 2, right in London last night.

And to make matters worse for the Tecumsehs their fourth place berth in not very secure either for another contender for a play-off berth has arrived. The latest threat is the hard fighting Pittsburgh club. By downing Detroit Olympics in the Smoky City last night in the other scheduled fixture the Yellow Jackets advanced to within one point of the Tecumsehs, who in turn are trailing the Indians by half a game.

Last season's champions left little doubt as their superiority over the Tecumsehs after the opening frame which ended with the teams tied at one all. The Indians notched three well earned counters before the home team replied with their second tally.

The Tecumsehs rallied in the final frame but were unable to pierce the stubborn Cleveland guard but the Indians had better success and Ken Doraty, third ranking marksman of the league, scored the final goal in the last minute.

Eddie Rodden, hard working pivot, scored the lone marker which gave the Yellow Jackets their hard earned triumph over the Olympics. It came late in the opening frame following a passing bout with "Duke" McCurrs and Gregg.

BEST RINK WINS IN FIRST ROUND

Defeats C. R. Dobson, of Beaverton, 15-4 in Wrigley Trophy Competition.

OTHER CUP RESULTS.

TORONTO, Feb. 18. — Play advanced into the second round of four of the five trophy competitions in the Toronto bonspiel yesterday. Owing to the annual banquet in the evening the last draw for the day was started at three o'clock in the afternoon and there was no further curling after those games were completed. Play was confined to the Wrigley, Seibering, North American Life and Ryrie-Birks events, the Royal York trophy competition which opened the 'spiel on Monday not being resumed until the early morning draw to-day.

Only six rinks remain unbeaten in the two days' play. Strong rinks have been toppling steadily and indications are that there will be new names on some of the trophies this year.

The half dozen undefeated quartets include two from Toronto, Chas. Bulley's Ontario Tankard rink from the Granite Club, and R. B. Cowan's High Park four. The Bulley rink faced one of its hardest games yesterday morning when it opposed E. H. Brower's Granites in the Ryrie-Birks' competition. Considerable interest attached to this match, as they won the Ontario Tankard a week or two ago. Last year the Brower rink won the Ryrie-Birks event, but it was forced to bow to defeat on this occasion, losing by five shots. Skip Bulley and his players counted a six end and that proved too big a shock to their fellow clubmates.

The other four unbeaten rinks are: R. G. Hall, Kitchener, winner of the Grand Aggregate prize last year; W. O. Tudhope's Orillia four; F. Michael's Oshawa rink; H. Meredith's strong combination from Barrie, whose names have previously been engraved on the North American and Royal York Trophies. Although G. O. Cameron is not on the Meredith rink this year, this Barrie quartet is making the same excellent showing that it has in previous years. It scored a notable victory yesterday afternoon in defeating H. H. Chisholm's Toronto club four. The Chisholm rink, which has been prominent among the prize winners in the past, accounted for two strong rinks in the morning draws, but they could not contiuue that fast pace, and after a thrilling struggle the Barrie curlers scored a last end win by one shot. The Chisholm rink eliminated the Fort William rink, skipped by D. Walker, Royal York winners of last year, from the noon draw and in the morning draw defeated Judge L. V. O'Connor's Cobourg rink in the Seiberling competition.

The following are the results of local and district rinks:

CHICAGO CUBS OPEN TRAINING QUARTERS

Advance Guard of National League Land on Wrigley's Island Tuesday.

AVALON, Cal., Feb. 18. —(CP)—Rogers Hornsby's managership of the Chicago Cubs started formally and informally today as he cracked the whip in the first spring practice of the 1931 campaign.

One workout daily, starting at 11 a.m., and lasting "until"—was the rajah's training plan. He has arranged for soccer games during each training session, to strengthen the legs and aid the wind.

The advance guard of the Cubs—the batterymen and the few rookies who couldn't wait for the second squad of infielders and outfielders—landed on William Wrigley's magic island yesterday. Manager Hornsby gave them the afternoon to get located and to play golf—then ordered all hands on deck for today's initial workout.

A weight chart may be used to determine the condition of the players. If the plan goes into effect, each player will be asked to weigh in before and after workouts daily.

NORWOOD JUNIORS DROP CLOSE GAME

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).— Norwood juniors met the local juniors in a friendly game on Monday evening and the locals won after a hard fought battle with a score of 2-1. Louis Sabatino handled the bell. The attendance was fair.

The line up was as follows:

SENSATIONAL FINDINGS FOLLOW TORONTO SPORTS INVESTIGATION

Association Reprimand Recommended For Way Finances Were Handled.

BRIEF REPLY OFFERED.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—Charging that W. J. D'Alesandro was irregular in his actions, "and, we believe, dishonest," in his connection with the Women's softball activities in Toronto, and declaring that Miss Mabel Ray's continued connection with the sport was "highly undesirable," the special committee appointed by the Ontario Athletic Commission last night issued a sweeping report on its investigation of the affairs of the Toronto Women's Softball Association.

Recommendations were made that the Amateur Athletic Association should take steps to discipline the officers involved, and that the officials of the softball association be reprimanded for the way finances were handled.

Highly incensed by the contents of the report, both Miss Ray and D'Alesandro intimated last night that they were considering legal action to protect their reputations.

It was also announced late last night that the amateur association whose duty it will be to carry out the recommendation of the committee for disciplinary action will meet at an early date to consider the cases of Miss Ray and D'Alesandro.

Schmeling Convincing In His Training Bouts

ATLANTA, Ga., February 18 (C.P.). — Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, displayed some of his fistic wares before Atlanta fight fans last night and convinced them W. L. (Young) Stribling will have his work cut out when the fighters meet next June in a batte for the crown.

Herr Max fought three fast rounds with his sparring partners in an exhibition bout and proved fast on his feet and swift and accurate with either hand bouncing his opponents about the ring with ease.

The exhibition was Schmeling's first appearance in Georgia.

BOWLING GOSSIP.

The eight teams of the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' League completed the second series of their schedule this week. The Dorics and Empress teams are tied for first place in the series and the captains of these teams will arrange a play-off this week if possible to decide the winner of the series. The game are all being rolled at the Duffus alleys during the construction period at the Y.M.C.A. 6 teams roll on Monday and 2 on Tuesday at 5.15 each week. The standing:

LINDSAY HERE MONDAY NEXT

Will Meet H. C. Intermediates in Post-season Home and Home Games.

PLAY FOR BOYLE CUP.

Hockey fans will have an opportunity next Monday night of seeing the local intermediates in action once before they park their skates and sticks in the attic till next winter. A post-season series of home and home games, goals to count, has been arranged with the Lindsay Intermediates. The first game will be played in Lindsay on Friday with the final battle being staged at the Brock on Monday.

H. J. Boyle Company of Peterborough has donated a cup to be played for annually between these teams, and the admission taken in will go for prizes for the players. Each team will pay its own expenses and the home outfit will get the whole share of the gate minus rink expenses.

It has been many moons since these old-time rivals have renewed their feud on the ice, and the result promises to be a typical Peterborough-Lindsay mob of rabid fans.

BASKETBALL NOTES

Two basketball games are scheduled for to-night in the Y.M.C.A. Gumnasium—Chevrolet Motors versus Teco and Grafton's versus Westclox. All four concerns have sent up good teams previously, and the play-offs should be of interest to all basketball enthusiasts.

Chevrolet and Westclox each have a lead of one game to their credit, and this evening will decide if they are to maintain their lead.

ARTILLERY DEFEATS CAVALRY 21 TO 11

Winners Gain Top of Garrison Softball League—Hard-Hitting Contest.

In a Garrison Softball League fixture last night at the Armouries, Artillery got the range of Cavalry in the last three innings and trimmed them 21 to 11. It was a hard-hitting contest witnessed by a fair crowd of spectators. The win put Artillery on the top of the heap as they have not dropped a game so far.

The winners were leading till the third inning when Cavalry galloped across with seven runs to make it 8-5. At this time, Hillier twirling for Artillery was knocked out by a hard drive in the face. But he returned to the mound after a few minutes, and held the losers to three runs in the last four innings. His own teammates stepped out and garnered no less than fourteen runs in the final three frames. Plenty of extra-base drives marked the exhibition and both outfits did some snappy fielding, although the contest was not altogether errorless either.

The teams:

Cavalry—Sloan, c.; Stuart, p.; Fanning, 1b.; Sheehy, 2d.; Mason, 3b.; Martin, l.f.; Hughes, r.f.; MacNab, m.; Stewart, s.s.; Col. Johnson, r.f.

Umpires—Capt. Dunkerley and Sgt. Maj. Calladine.

GREYS SHOW POWER IN BEATING CELTS

Owen Sound Held to Tie by St. Michael's But Win on Round.

TORONTO, Feb. 18. The wail of the banshee, signifying death for the Irish, sounded last night at Varsity Arena as St. Michael's College hopes for hockey honors were killed by Owne Sound Greys. The Celts, in their typical fighting style, held the flashy Northerners to a two all tie in the night, but a 5 to 0 defeat in Owne Sound last Friday eliminated them in the O.H.A. playdowns by 6 to 2.

Sheer scrap and fighting determination prevented the Greys from a double victory on the series, for in hockey ability and experience the Irish were outclassed. The Greys revived back memories of other great teams that have come out of the North Countree to sweep all before them, and on their play and power they have royal chances to repeat former successes.

St. Michael's battling method of crowding the puck and puck-carrier, digging in on the offensive in a mad effort to reduce their deficit, spoiled the Greys' chances of playing good hockey. Despit the tie, Owen Sound gave hints of real ability, particularly in the last period, when the Saints tired from their torrid pace and allowed a few liberties for combination play.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"VENGEANCE."

Jack Holt has the stellar role in this picture which has a dramatic background in the Congo. The art of the cinema is apparent in the manner in which the insufferable heat is portrayed. The characters, one and all, have a constant gesture which involves wiping their foreheads and the desired effect is obtained by this simple means.

John Meadham is the African agent who, after five years of ivory hunting, asks for a furlough home to England. Charles Summers and his wife come out to take his place. The husband is one of those unlikeable cusses who earn the detestation of his watchers the minute he appears on the screen, and his wife is a frail and fragile blonde (Dorothy Revier), who compels the admiration of Meadham at first glance. Interwoven in the tale of the jealousy of the two men is the heat and the African glamor. The blacks demand vengeance for the death of one of their number at the hands of the drink-crazed Summers and he dies with a poisoned barb through his vitals.

The short comedy that accompanied the picture is one of the smartest, from point of view of a line of rapid-fire gab by the gentleman, that have been seen here in some time. It is quite entertaining.

—Jeanette.

TILDEN'S 'PRO' DEBUT TO-NIGHT

MEETS KAREL KOZELUH.

NEW YORK, February 18. (C.P.)—William Tatem Tilden 2nd, for more than a decade a dominant figure in international amateur tennis, makes his professional debut against the crack Czech, Karel Kozeluh, in Madison Square Garden to-night.

Under the promotion of Jack Curley, wrestling impresario extraordinary, Tilden and Kozeluh will clash in a five set singles match as the feature attraction of a program in which Tilden's "fidus achates," Francis T. Hunter, and the young Chicagoan, Emmett Pare, also will participate.

Hunter and Pare will open the evening's entertainment with a three set singles match. Then will follow the "battle of tennis titans." A doubles match with Hunter and Tilden paired against Kozelugh and Pare, will close the program.

Tilden and Kozelugh have clashed only once before. A few years ago in Paris Tilden, then a member of the Davis Cup team, took the Czech's measure in an informal exhibition match.

PLENTY ACTION IN TO-NIGHT'S BATTLE

Cogs and C.G.E. Tool Makers Meet in E.P.L. Fixture at Brock Street Arena.

With the promise of hard ice by 8o-night, hockey fans will find plenty of attraction at Brock Street rink when Cogs and C.G.E. Toolroom meet in an East Peterborough League fixture. This game will start at 8.15 o'clock. As Lakefield is leading the league and Norwood Combines are travelling at a fast clip, the two local teams are faced with a tough assignment to make the championship finals. Every Cogs-C.G.E. tussle will be a hard battle. Full time will be played to-night and also overtime, if necessary.

Ross L. Dobbin Trophy Competition Suspended

Play in the bonspiel for the Ross L. Dobbin Trophy was suspended last night owing to the extreme mildness of the weather, which had rendered the rinks in too soft a state to allow of curling. Opening on Monday evening with seventeen rinks participating, there remain but eight rinks between whom the decision lies for the leads and seconds honors. Play will be resumed as soon as the weather conditions permit. It is not probable that this will be to-night, either.

TOWNSEND AGAIN WINNER.

REV. W. BUCKLER IS 75 YEARS OLD

Veteran Minister of Methodist Church Celebrating Birthday To-day.

BORN IN SOUTH WALES.

One of the veteran ministers of the province, Rev. William Henry Buckler, is to-day celebrating his 75th birthday and the 50th year of service in the ministry, first in the Methodist Church and lately in the United Church of Canada.

Mr. Buckler was born in Cardiff, South Wales, on February 18, 1856. At the age of 25 he came to Canada and became engaged in missionary work in the then sparsely settled province of Manitoba which was under the jurisdiction of the Toronto Conference. Mr. Buckler took up his studies in Victoria College, Toronto, and was ordained to the ministry in George Street United Church, Peterborough, in the year 1881.

Since his ordination, Mr. Buckler has held many charges in this part of Ontario, one being assistant pastor of the Lakefield-Bridgenorth-Young's Point circuit.

In 1889 he was married to Margaret Anderson of Hastings. During Mr. Buckler's pastorate in Bancroft two daughters were born to him, Lillian in 1890 (now Mrs. J. F. McBride of Chicago) and Anneta in 1891. Other charges which Mr. Buckler held include Demorestville, Yarker, Plainfield, Hilton, Scugog, and Mountain Grove. He was at all times a zealous evangelist, and was particularly interested in the missionary work of the church.

Some eight years ago Mr. Buckler was superannuated, and came to live at 221 Princess street, Peterborough. During this time he acted in the capacity of assistant at St. James' United Church. However, he has been confined to his home for the past two and a half years owing to heart trouble.

ST. JOHN'S Y.P.L. MEETS.

Topic at Campbellford Organization's Regular Meeting Given By Miss Florence Bibby.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 18 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The regular meeting of the Young People's League of St. John's United Church, Campbellford was held on Monday evening in the Sunday school room with the president, Miss Velma Runnells in the chair.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn and a prayer by Mrs. G. F. Phillips after which the business session was held.

The scripture lesson was read by Miss Reta Palliser, this being followed by another hymn.

The program was in keeping with the citizenship department, and those present voiced their regret to learn of the illness of Lorne Scott, the convenor of that department, and in whose absence the president presided for the rest of the program.

A vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. Ed. Bates. The topic, "Jesus, The Light of the World," was given by Miss Florence Bibby. A contest and an excellent fun period was then enjoyed by all, the Mizpah Benediction bringing a very pleasant evening to a close.

WHY THE PRICE OF BREAD?

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Mr. Editor,—Just a line to fellow farmers re the price of bread. We have all heard the cry among farmers and also city people about the high price of bread. Now, who is to blame? Nobody, but we fool farmers! We are fools enough to sell wheat for 55 cents or 65 cents and still go on paying 9 cents for bread.

Now if we farmers don't bring down the price of bread, who will? Just think what an easy matter this would be. Let us organize on March 1st to do so. Let us bake our bread and refuse to buy until it is reduced to at least 7 cents. Even then everyone will be getting a good profit.

What happened when the bread did go down last fall, why the bakers of Peterborough organized and put it up again. Farmers, and citizens of Peterborough and surrounding district, get into line and make this move a successful one.

Remember the date, March 1st.

Hoping to read of the stand some others are taking toward this question, and thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

Just Another Farmer.

BORROWING MOTORIST

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I am writing concerning a practice which is all too common at present, the practice of motorists who get into difficulty on the road, coming into farm places and borrowing articles to help them out, then going off and not returning them.

The articles borrowed are numerous—containers for gas or motor oil, tire pumps, jacks, shovels, etc.

Last Thursday, February 12, a well-dressed man called at our home and asked for the loan of a shovel saying their car had jumped a rut and gone into the ditch. While somewhat afraid to lend on account of previous experiences, I gave the article asked for, as one does not like to see others in trouble and not give assistance when within your power. He took the shovel and left without giving his name and said he would return it as soon as they got out of the ditch. We have not seen man nor shovel since.

Does this man not realize that such conduct makes it hard for himself and others like him to ge assistance another time and does he not realize he is making it hard for honest people, who would return the article thankfully to get favors also? A person once bitten is not quick to hold out his hand to the next cur who trots along.

Can The Examiner offer any suggestions as to how one might receive such borrowers? We feel the only safe way would be to make them give in money as reasonable amount for the thing borrowed, when they receive it, which would be given back to them when they return the article.

I hope the person who was guilty of this contemptible trick lives in this community and that he will have the pleasure of reading this letter knowing what we think of him and others like him.

Thanking yuo for your space, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
Done Lending.

Evans' Studio
Mrs. ALICE SAUNDERS

London, Ont.—"I was in a general rundown state of health, and so very nervous that I got very little sleep or rest at night, would be just as tired and worn out when morning came as when I retired at night. I was so weak that I could scarcely stand on my feet, but Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription soon made a great change in my condition, quieted my nerves so I could sleep. I regained my strength and was in fine physical condition after taking the 'Prescription'."—Mrs. Alice Saunders, 136 Grey St. Druggists. Fluid or tablets.

SIX and sixty are good pals—for six never has a thought that isn't full of sunshine, and sixty is one of those rare old ladies who has learned how to live. They both get their brimming and joyous health the same simple, normal, natural way.

Doctors pretty well agree that (barring germ diseases) most illness and headache are due to failure to keep "clean inside."

In blaming this condition for most of our sickness, so they agree also on the safe way to relieve it—keeping clean inside by the Nujol type of treatment. Nujol is not a medicine at all. It contains no drugs. It is colorless and tasteless, and children love it.

Two things you have to remember if you want to enjoy "Nujol health."

One. Don't expect results overnight. This is nature's own method; and nature is never violent. Two. Be sure you get Nujol. Your druggist has this pure and drugless product in a sealed package, trade-marked "Nujol" to protect you.

"Say, I do like it!"

● said DAVID McCOY, age 10 years

● More proof that children take cod-liver oil willingly—this emulsified way

LIKE so many other youngsters, David McCoy, pictured above, hates plain cod-liver oil. His mother admitted it frankly when the Scott's Emulsion reporter recently called at her home at 187 Sackville St., Toronto. But Mrs. McCoy was anxious to see if David would feel any differently about Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil, so she gladly consented to let him try it.

David took a spoonful. Then he grinned. . . . "Say, I do like this," he said. "It tastes good!"

Pleasanter to take—but that isn't all!

Pale, underweight, run-down children — they need cod-liver oil. Give it to them the pleasantest way—give them Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion doesn't upset even delicate stomachs. It brings you purest, Norwegian cod-liver oil in its pleasantest form—a perfect emulsion. Easier to take—easier to digest. You get more good out of Scott's Emulsion and you feel the benefits quicker.

Scott's Emulsion contains no alcohol. It is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It also contains vital minerals that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. This gives Scott's Emulsion a special advantage for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers.

Unique Roll Call Idea At Trent River Meeting

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 18.— The February meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Scott, with the president, Mrs. George Brooks, presiding.

The feature of the rollcall was the showing of the oldest article one possessed. Mrs. H. Seabourne received the prize given by the president, when she showed a pair of ear-rings more than two hundred years old.

Following a short business the afternoon was spent in quilting a quilt. Dainty lunch was served at the close by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Mann, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. G. Scott. Mrs. T. Tyler will be hostess for the March meeting held at her home.

PRAIRIE CHATELAINE SMILES SELLS BONDS, PAYS TAXES

"Old Lady Birss" is 84— Farms Three Sections With Her Boys.

PROUD OF BOYS.

(By Wilfrid Eggleston: Special to the Examiner. Copyright 1931)

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—The most remarkable woman I met during my recent tour through western Canada was "Old Lady Birss."

She's the chatelaine of one of the grandest wheat farms in Saskatchewan, under temporary eclipse this year because of the impossible grain prices but bound to shine again as soon as anyone does.

"Old Lady Birss" is 84 and she gets around on one crutch. Her "boys" now nearing 50 themselves, farm between the three of them, about three sections of land and they are reputed to be the best farmers south of Moose Jaw. Mother Birss does all the housework, helps with milk separating, cooks and cleans and sows the seeds and feeds chickens. She won't tolerate a girl around the place. The boys, now grown wealthy, have done their utmost to get her to retire to a well earned evening of ease and luxury. She won't hear of it.

Mixing Oatcakes

The day I was out there she was making oatcakes on the top of the kitchen stove. Her eyes shone with the glean of health and zest, her voice was clear and strong—a wonderful woman.

The Birss family were crofters of Aberdeen. The father died when the boys were wee 'uns. Mother Birss was left to bring up the family. And bring them up she did though it meant going out and doing hard work.

When the boys grew up one of them came out to Canada to try his luck. A couple of years of working for an India Head farmer and he heard of the new virgin lands being thrown open for homesteads southwest of Moose Jaw. He wrote his mother and his brothers and they came out. It took their last penny, but they trekked south and staked out a homstead in the rich, rolling prairie.

That was 22 years ago.

Every morning now, when Mother Birss gets up, she flings open the door and stands for a woment in an attitude of prayer and gratitude, looking sharply up and down across the bread acres of the Birss family. "Ah" she says in a pardonable mixture of pride and pleasure. "The laird in Scotland hadna more land himself than have my boys."

Frank Birss is the youngest of the three but he is the recognized leader. It was his business ability which gave them their magnificant estate.

I met them all in their modest parlor, one room of the simple homestead they built when they first settled 80 miles from Moose Jaw.

Paid Her Taxes

No pretentions at all. Many a quarter section farmer has a finer home. But their affluence now is unmistakable. Frank said casually, as we discussed hard times: "I've $150,000 out among the farmers nearby; but this year I couldn't collect enough from them to settle up taxes."

"But you paid your taxes?" I suggested. "Oh, ay" he said "I sold some Victory bonds I'd put aside for such a purposed.

The gross proceeds of the Birss wheat acres in 1930 was less than one tenth their crop in 1928, but they're not downhearted. They're looking for better times.

Suing Einstein

Era D. Edwards is suing Dr. Albert Einstein on a charge of using his ideas in the famous Einstein relativity and "unified field" theories, basing his claim on a pamphlet of which he is the author. Edwards' theory is that "all constructive activities are the result of harmonized universal rhythm."

STUDIED LAW WITH PREMIER

Dalhousie's Law Class of 1893, Which Included Bennett, Has Interesting Record.

PRESENTATION MADE

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 18 (By Canadian Press). — Personalities of the Dalhousie University Law class of 1893 were reunited in a common expression in the office of the Prime Minister of Canada on January 27. On that day the Right Honorable R. B. Bennett was presented with a leather-bound script, conveying the recognition and regard of nineteen classmates who donned the law hood on the day the present premier was graduated. The presentation was made privately by a member of the class now living in Ottawa.

The idea originated with Halifax members of the class, who in the course of investigation preliminary to the sending out of a draft letter to their classmates, discovered that of the original twenty-one members of that class twenty were living, in various parts of Canada and United States. The whereabouts of the twenty-first '93 man could not be obtained, nor was it known whether he is still living.

Members of the class in Halifax constituted a committee and recommended to fellow-members that some sort of recognition be accorded the class's most distinguished graduate, with the result that a draft of the simple letter which later found its way to the prime minister between gold-embossed leather covers with signatures appended, was sent to each member of the class for approval. The copy journeyed as far afield as Vancouver and Hollywood and returned bearing the felicitations represented in their signatures, of those who studied law with Mr. Bennett.

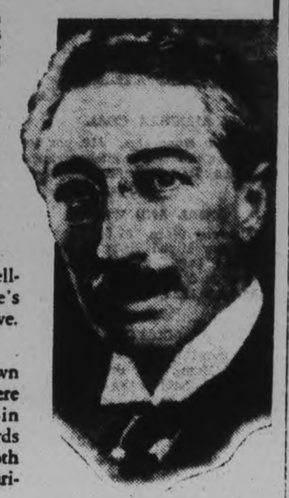
Reduced photostat copies of the letter have been sent to members of the class, and to the Dalhousie law lecturers of that day: Hon. Mr. Justice Russell, late of the supreme court of Nova Scotia, Hon. Mr. Justice E. L. Newcombe, of the Supreme Court of Canada, and Alfred E. Silver, K. C., of Halifax. Copies have also been presented to the University, the Archives, and the Law School.

Members of the class in law of 1893 were: The Rt. Hon. Richard B. Bennett; J. B. Kenney, K.C., Halifax; Major H. B. Stairs, D.S.O., Halifax; Colonel W. E. Thompson, V.D., Halifax; J. A. Fulton, K.C., Guysboro, N.S.; G. A. R. Rowlings, K.C., Sydney; S. E. March, C.E., Bridgewater, N.S., His Hon. Judge J. A. Grierson, Weymouth N.S.; Hon. P. D. Tilley, K.C., Saint John; H. P. Puddington, Saint John; W. B. McCoy, Montreal; Col. A. H. Anderson, Ottawa; C. B. Burns, Ottawa; H. W. Brown, Ottawa; R. Blackwood Graham, K.C., Winnipeg; H. H. Munro, Stetler, Alta.; His Honor Judge F. W. Russell, Vegreville, Alta.; C. M. Woodworth, Vancouver; J. A. Payzant, Hollywood, Cal.; John Montgomery, residence unknown.

RELIABLE PRINTING no order too small

"Colgate's is by far the best cleanser" says Jerome Alexander, B.S., M.Sc.

Fellow A.A.A.S.; Member American Institute Chemical Engineers; Pioneer Worker with the Ultramicroscope; Specialist in Colloid Chemistry.



LET the tests—the scientific experiments of Jerome Alexander convince you, as they have convinced him, that Colgate's cleans teeth better.

Jerome Alexander made impartial, exhaustive studies of the cleansing action of well-known dentifrices. Colgate's was undeniably more effective. Why?

Because Colgate's gets down into the tiny crevices where decay begins. Because—in Jerome Alexander's own words —"It penetrates into the tooth fissures, flooding away impurities which cause trouble."

Jerome Alexander's research agrees with the findings of such noted authorities as Dr. Hardee Chambliss, Dean of the School of Sciences, Catholic University of America; Dr. Allen Rogers, head of the Department of Industrial Chemical Engineering, Pratt Institute; and others of equal fame.

Jerome Alexander says:

"I found that Colgate's exhibits the lowest surface-tension. Because of this, Colgate's penetrates into the tooth fissures, flooding away impurities which cause trouble. Therefore, Colgate's is by far the best Cleanser."

Jerome Alexander

The price is important—but the quality—not the price—has held Colgate leadership for 30 years.

TWEED HIGH SCHOOL SQUAD TIED 3-ALL

O. S. D. Senior Sextet Plays Spectacular Game in Return Fixture.

The fans were treated to some real hockey, especially in the two final frames when O.S.D. team made their bid for the game. Tweed managed to avoid defeat when they scored a counter in the last minute of play.

Micctick on defense, turned in a fine performance, as did McCutcheon, in the nets for Tweed.

The line-up was as follows:

Tweed— McCutcheon, McGuire, Rashotte, Merow, Cotton, Terry, Arber.

O.S.D.— Brigham, Micetick, B. Richardson, Thompson, Meyette, Foster Cecchini, Meloche, Murtell, Harrison.

Referee— B. Thompson.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 75 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan had been gone but a few hours when back in the camp things began to happen according to the plans of Kai Shang and the mate. The latter that morning had announced he wanted a day's hunt, but instead had secreted himself nearby and, watchfully waiting, had witnessed the ape-man's departure. Tarzan, rather than add to the already unpleasant atmosphere of camp life, had permitted him to go.

And now from the opposite side of the camp presently the mate ran breathless. "Quick!" he yelled as he hastened excitedly to Mugambi. "Those apes of yours are coming. They've caught Shorty. (Shorty was the ill-fated Kincaid's cabin boy.) They'll kill him if you don't call them off. You're the only one who can stop them. I'm winded"—And the mate of the Kincaid threw himself on the ground as though he was almost done for.

Mugambi hesitated. He had been left to guard the two women. He did not know what to do. Then Lady Greystoke, who had heard the mate's false tale, added her pleas to his. "Hurry, Mugambi," she urged. "We shall be all right. Shorty must be saved." And Mugambi, heeding the commands of his mistress, though still doubtful of the wisdom of his action started at break-neck speed into the jungle on his supposed mission of rescue.

No sooner had he disappeared than the mate, placing his fingers to his mouth, made a peculiar and shrill whistle. He had not long to wait. Soon the face of Kai Shang appeared at the edge of the clearing and behind him lurched the figures of four of his band. Jane and the Mosula woman sat before the former's door, their backs toward the approaching ruffians. Suddenly she looked up to see herself surrounded by the whole motley crew of villains.

WEEKLY REVIEW WAXES CRITICAL

REFERS TO DEPORTATIONS.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 18. (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent).— The weekly review Truth, to-day commented that in the first public speech since assuming office as Canadian High Commissioner in London, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson "talked very nicely about the bonds binding the Empire—bonds of ancestry, blood and family relations."

"By a stroke of irony," Truth continued, "the newspapers which reported Mr. Ferguson's affecting words also reported certain references in the House of Commons to recent deportations from Canada. The Canadian notion of a family does not embrace poor relations."

The same review criticized Mr. Ferguson some weeks ago for a speech he made in Toronto, though the force of the criticism was somewhat marred by the paper's reference to him as "Mr. Forbes."

The question of deportations from Canada of British subjects who had become public charges, or were found to be suffering from disease, was raised in the House of Commons last week, when Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, informed the House that the British Government was considering the question of making representations to the Canadian Government.

H. DUNFORD RE-APPOINTED.

The re-appointment of H. E. Dunford, taxi proprietor of this city, as examiner of applicants for chauffeurs' and operators' licenses for the current year is confirmed in a communication received to-day by the Chief of Police from J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles, Department of Highways (Motor Vehicles Branch), Toronto. Mr. Dunford has held this appointment as examiner for the city and district for a period of seven years.

COBOURG SEEKS LEGISLATION TO WITHDRAW FROM COUNTIES

Council Will Make Formal Application to Legislature.

ASSESSMENT BLAMED.

COBOURG, Feb. 18.—Even at the cost of losing its position as counties town heid for nearly a century, Cobourg's town council at a special meeting last night unanimously voted to separate from the united counties of Northumberland and Durham.

Figures presented by A. W. Young, town treasurer, backed by local financial experts indicate that Cobourg will save $25,088.87 a year in taxes by becoming a separated town. Action was forced, council members point out, by the fact that Cobourg's assessment for counties purposes was raised by Judge L. V. O'Connor on appeal from counties council revaluation, from $1,600,729 to $4,905,227.08.

Application will be made to the Ontario Legislature, now sitting, asking that special legislation be passed which will permit Cobourg's separation from the counties. The motion to separate from the counties was made by Councillor Morris Booth, chairman of the finance committee, who is leading a movement in Eastern Ontario to foster establishment of independent theaters that will feature British talking pictures and films.

Preparing the bill for the Legislature is in the hands of F. M. Field, K. C., town solicitor, and the bill will be presented by F. J. McArthur, M.P.P., local member, who is also a new member of the private bills committee.

That Port Hope's efforts to have the counties site located there will be redoubled following passage of this bill is anticipated.

BANKER WOUNDED BY CASHIER PAL

Montreal Youths Were Rehearsing Actions in Event of a Hold-up.

BELIEVED GUN EMPTY.

MONTREAL, Que., February 18 (C.P.). — Shot while he and a companion were rehearsing their actions in the event of a hold-up, William J. Leger, 21, a ledger clerk, in a branch of the Bank of Toronto here, was in hospital to-day in a grave condition. He passed an easy night but was still regarded as critically injured.

Leger was shot in the stomach by Alphonse Dorais, cashier of the bank, who is being held by police pending the outcome of Leger's injuries. According to police Dorais and Leger enacted a pretended hold-up with Leger advancing to the cashier's cage with his finger pointed as if he was carrying a revolver. Dorais seized the revolver belonging in his cage, pointed it at Leger, and pulled the trigger. He was amazed, he said, when the gun discharged and Leger fell to the floor. Dorais told police both he and Leger believed the gun had been unloaded.

OBITUARY

MRS. CHARLES CHAMBO

The death occurred on Tuesday of Mrs. Charles Chambo at her late residence, 457 Parnell Street. Mrs. Chambo (nee Mary Elizabeth Staples) was born in England 86 years ago, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Staples. The deceased has lived in Peterborough for the past 65 years. Her husband predeceased her 7 months ago. Mrs. Chambo is survived by four daughters, Mrs. A. Hamilton and Mrs. George Panter of Peterborough, Mrs. George Deline of Watertown, N. Y., and Mrs. Charles Kilman of Weston, Ontario, and three sons, Frank of Peterborough, Edward Holdaway of Watertown, N. Y., and George of Florida.

The remains will rest at Bellegheim's Funeral Home until Friday. The funeral will take place from All Saints' Anglican Church at 10:30 a.m. Rev. J. D. Paterson will officiate and interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. FRANK WHITE

Mrs. Frank White 303 Maitland Avenue passed away yesterday. Mrs. White (nee Elizabeth Tigh), daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Tigh was born August 16, 1865, in Port Perry, Ontario. The deceased has been a resident of this city for some 50 years. She is survived by her husband, three sons, David of Peterborough, William of Windsor, and Frank of Cleveland, four daughters, Mrs. Fred Heasman, of Stirling, Mrs. Percy Ecoblchon of Lakewood, Mrs. Victor Ward of Calgary, and Miss Edith White, R.N., of Peterborough.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

Mexican Ring Bull Escapes On Streets Livens Up Crowds

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Feb. 18. — Pedestrians in the downtown section of Vera Cruz were thrown into panic to-day when a bull escaped from the bull ring and ran amok in the streets.

The animal escaped when it was being led into the ring, crowded with a pre-lenten carnival throng. It dashed through the streets, chasing pedestrians into doorways, and knocking over market stalls.

Employees of the ring finally cornered and captured the beast, after it had seriously gored Ponciano Landero, a merchant.

WEDDINGS

LOUCKS—COWIE

A very interesting wedding took place on Saturday, Feb. 14, at the Sacred Heart Church, by the Rev. Father Mallory, when Miss Gertrude Cowie was married to Mr. John Loucks, both of Peterborough. After the wedding breakfast the happy couple motored to Toronto and other points. On their return they will reside at 21 Aylmer street.

COWARD WRITES KINSMEN CLUB

Author of Hay Fever Sends Best Wishes for Success of the Play.

TICKETS GOING FAST.

Noel Coward, author of "Hay Fever," has sent to the Peterborough Kinsmen Club his best wishes and the expressed hope that the production of his play will go over big in the city.

Mr. Coward's letter to the Kinsmen is as follows:

"In regard to your forthcoming production of "Hay Fever" may I wish you every possible success. I understand the play is being given for charity, and I hope you will have a large gross and enthusiastic audience."

The play, "Hay Fever," is being presented by the Peterborough Kinsmen Club on Wednesday, February 25, in the Collegiate auditorium.

Some three hundred seats are yet available, but the Kinsmen are quite confident that on the night of the play the auditorium will be filled to capacity. The reserve seat plan is to be opened in Riley and Hickey's store on George street on Friday morning. The Kinsmen this week are making a real drive and the results up to present have been most gratifying. The proceeds of the play will go to aid in the relief work of the city.

MACEDONIAN STRIFE ENDED.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, February 18 (C.P.). — A temporary truce between the Protogueroff and Mihailoff Macedonian revolutionary factions is believed to have ended the long feud between the two groups for the time being.

An agreement just signed provides for dissolution of the Protogueroff Party and absorption of its members by the Mihailoff faction.

IN MEMORIAM

GROTTICK.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who passed away Feb. 18, 1930.
Taken from earth so swiftly,
Plucked like a flower in bloom.
So young, so fair, so loving,
Yet called away so soon.
We think of you in silence
And your name we oft recall.
But there's nothing left to answer
But your picture on the wall.
—Sadly missed by Husband and Children.

IN MEMORIAM

GROTTICK.—In loving memory of our daughter, Gladys Ivy Whitworth, who departed this life, Feb. 18, 1930.
There are parents who miss you sadly
And find the time long since you went.
And we think of you daily and hourly
But try to be brave and content.
But the tears that we shed in silence
And we breathe a sigh of regret.
For you were ours, and we remember Though all the world forget."
—Inserted by Mother and Dad

IN MEMORIAM

GROTTICK.—In loving memory of our dear sister, Gladys, who died at Nicholls Hospital, on Feb. 18, 1930.
We little thought when she left home
That she would ne'er return;
That she so soon in death would sleep
And leave us here to mourn.
We were not there at the time of death
To hear her last faint sigh;
Or whisper just one loving word
And say to her "good-bye."
—Inserted by her loving Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

GROTTICK.—In fond remembrance of our dear niece, Glady Whitworth, who died Feb. 18, 1930.
Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears of silence often flow,
Memory keeps you ever near us,
Though it is one year ago.
—Ever remembered by Uncle Ernest and Aunt Mary.

IN MEMORIAM

GROTTICK.—In loving memory of my dear Grand-daughter, Gladys, who passed away Feb. 18, 1930.
Beside your grave we often stand
With hearts both crushed and sore,
But in the gloom the sweet words come:
"Not lost, but gone before."
—Sadly missed by Grandma.

IN MEMORIAM

GROTTICK.—In loving memory of our dear niece, Gladys Whitworth, who entered into rest Feb. 18, 1930.
The world may change from year to year;
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we love
From memory pass away.

A.Y.P.A. Entertained At Valentine Party

St. Andrew's Guild at Stirling Pleasing Hostesses at Social Function.

A short devotional period was conducted when the president, A. Nathan, gave an address of welcome to which J. Crvaan, president of the A.Y.P.A. responded, expressing his appreciation on behalf of the society.

A quartette, "Keep on Hopin'" was given by Louis Faires, Margaret Bateman, Doris Tanner and Florence Faires and an instrumental selection was contributed by Miss L. Scott. Doris Tanner gave a reading on Valentine Day, and R. Coombs and H. Morrow sang a duet, "The River Colorado." Rev. A. N. Reid gave a short talk, welcoming the guests and a guitar selection was given by Ray Williams. Jseph Wilson, agricultural representative, showed moving pictures. The first part was most instructive, showing the destruction done yearly by drifting sand in Prince Edward. The only way to combat this is to plant willow and poplar trees and the sand will then hold firmly to the roots.

After lunch a Valentine contest was conducted, the winners being the groups born in June and July. A Valentine March was staged when the winners were Mrs. L. Rodgers and son Walter, while consolation awards went to Mrs. C. Mitchell and W. Anderson.

PRINCES CROSS LAKE TITICACA

Journey Over Highest Navigable Water in World Aboard Scottish Built Boat.

HEAD FOR LA PAZ.

PUNO, Peru, Feb. 18. (A.P.) — A trip abcard a Scottish built steamer on Lake Titicaca the highest navigable lake in the world to Huaqui, Bolivian lake port, lay before the Prince of Wales and Prince George to-day.

From Huaqui they will continue by rail to-night along a twining Andean route to La Paz, de Facto capital of Bolivia, where is located the highest 18 hole golf course in the world.

Lake Titicaca is famous as one of the beauty spots of South America. It is about 140 miles in length, varies in depth from 100 to 1,000 feet and is located 11,800 feet above sea-level. Lake steamersb uilt in Scotland are shipped to its shores and re-assembled to ply between here and Huaqui, Bolivian rail head.

The two Princes, who have spent two days inspecting Inca ruins in and near Cuzco reached here early to-day from the old Inca capital, stopping enroute yesterday to visit Ollatayambo and Sacsahuaman fortress. Before leaving Cuzco the Fine Arts and Historical Society presented "Gales" the Prince of Wales with an album containing 100 photographs, sketches and etchings of the Inca monuments.

IN POLICE COURT

Pleading guilty to driving north on Aylmer street at a greater rate of speed than 20 m.p.h. Vernon Armstrong was this morning fined $7.50 and costs amounting to $3.25 by Police Magistrate O. A. Langley.

Police stated that defendant was speeding up and down Aylmer street on February 12th at a rate of 40 m.p.h. to which defendant replied, "When going south I was travelling at a reasonable speed, and while proceeding north was certainly not going at 40 m.p.h.

He was urged to plead not guilty, but retorted, "I have just pleaded guilty to speeding above 20 m.p.h., but will not admit that I was going at anything like 40 m.p.h. He added that his car made a lot of noise and gave the impression that it was travelling faster than it really was.

OKE RINK IN SECOND ROUND OF CUP PLAY

AT TORONTO 'SPIEL.

Lindsay Rink Enters Fifth Round of Royal York Trophy Contest.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19. (C.P.)—Only six teams remained in the running for the Royal York trophy, premier prize in the Toronto bonspiel, when this morning's play was completed. By virtue of to-day's victory, Kitchener, Fort William, Toronto Granites, Lindsay, Owen Sound and Toronto advanced to the fifth round. The Kitchener rink, last year's winner of the grand aggregate, had a close call to-day when they defeated the London rink headed by A. Wright, 9 to 8. Hamilton and Fort William played a close game, the latter winning out by two shots, the score being 12 to 10. D. Walker skipped the Fort William quartette while R. G. L. Hartstone led the Hamilton rink.

DRUG OVERDOSE IS NEARLY FATAL

Inoculation Taken By Dr. Best Before Students is 100 Times Too Strong.

LABLED WRONGLY.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19.—The Toronto Star says to-day: "The career of Dr. C. H. Best, who, with Dr. Banting has won international fame for the University of Toronto for insulin research, was nearly cut to a premature close yesterday because of an error on a label which resulted in an overdose of "Histamine," a physiological drug. The uses of this drug are not fully known, but it has no bad effects if taken in the right proportion. Because of the label mistake the inoculation taken by Dr. Best was just 100 times more powerful than it should have been.

"The accident occurred at a lecture in which Dr. Best was demonstrating his researches with the drug to a class of fourth-year students. It was his intention to give each of the students a slight inoculation with the drug and in order to show that its effects were perfectly harmless, he took the first dose.

"Almost immediately he seemed to become seriously ill and on the verge of collapse, holding his hand to his head as if in great pain. After prompt treatment and a few hours' rest, Dr. Best recovered and showed no ill effects."

Noted Lawyer

INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

William Perkins Bull, K.C., internationally known lawyer, who recently has been in the spotlight over a $250,000 suit, was seriously injured in a car racing toward the Canadian border on February 17. Accompanied by Bernard Magruder, vice-president of the Horlick Malted Milk Company, in a high-powered car, the internationally known Toronto lawyer was apparently leaving Chicago for Toronto by way of Detoit when the machine cashed into the back of a heavy trailer on a United States mail truck on United States Route 112, near Quincy, Michigan. The wild ride is known to be connected with the senational lawuit for $250,000 brought against Bull and Joseph J Harrison, head of the Harrison Secret Service Agency, a month ago by Dr. John Streeter Sidley, of Racine, Wisconsin, former treasurer of the Horlick Malted Milk Company, and husband of Mrs Maybelle Horlick Sidley, heiress of the millions of William Horlick, the malted milk king of Racine.

PREDICTS MILLION DOLLAR REFINERY

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Feb. 19. (CP) The new plant being erected at East Saint John for the McColl-Frontenac Oil Company was but the forerunner of a million dollar refinery to be constructed in this part of Canada, C. H. The present work is the providing of a large warehouse and two large storage tanks at expenditure of $100,000.

TEXTILE TARIFFS ARE REVIEWED BY COMMITTEE

Warm Exchanges Between Premier and Deachman Mark Session.

PLEADS CAUSE OF FARMER.

Deachman is Only Person to Appear to Make Representations Against Increases.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 19.—C.P.)—Warm Exchanges between Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, and R. J. Deachman, representing the Canadian Council of Agriculture, featured today's sitting of the cabinet sub-committee on tariffs. The textile items of the Canadian tariff were before the committee. A fairly large attendance of interested persons, in contrast to the opening day when but a scant dozen appeared, was present. In addition to Mr. Bennett, who acted as chairman of the meeting, members of the Cabinet present were Hon. G. D. Robertson, Hon. Murray MacLaren, Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Hon. C. H. Cahan, Hon. R. J. Manion, and Hon. H. A. Stewart.

Pleads Cause Of Farmer

Mr. Deachman was the only person who appeared to make representations against increased textile tariffs. In brief his argument was that agriculture was passing through an extremely difficult period, that the changes in the textile items made at the emergency session of Parliament were extrme, that there had been a decline in the value of agriculture products of 15.4 per cent since that tariff went into effect, that grain prices were down 25 per cent, and that conditions were certainly not such which justified the Government in making it more difficult for the farmer to buy cottons, woollens and other textile commodities.

To-day R. J. Deachman, appearing for the Canadian Council of Agriculture, made his first statements. He recalled that a new tariff came into force last September. This tariff con-

DISASTROUS FIRE SWEEPS GARAGE LOSS IS $50,000

Over 100 Cars Destroyed as Kalbfleisch Building Falls in Ruins.

AT STRATFORD.

Blaze Starts in Boiler Room From Cause Yet Undetermined.

STRATFORD, Ont., Feb. 19.—One of the most disastrous fires in Stratford in years occurred this morning when the large garage at the corner of Erie and St. Patrick street, owned by Kalbfleisch Brothers was almost totally destroyed. It is estimated that there were more than 100 cars in the building, including three new models. The others were second hand models or cars in storage. Many of these are totally destroyed, while others are badly damaged by smoke and water. The owners this morning were unable to give any estimate of the loss but will probably run well over $50,000.

LIBERAL M P SEES NO SILVER LINING

Motherwell is Certain Soviet Five Year Plan Will Succeed.

FAVORS BIG FARMS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19 (C.P.).—"I see no reason why Russia will not be able to carry out its five-year project," said Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture, who is one of the early arrivals for the session of Parliament. "The Russian people are deeply in earnest about this and are willing to wear their knuckles bare to see it through. I can see no silver lining to the cloud. Whether the efficiency they are showing in their five-year wheat-growing plan can be kept up indefinitely is doubtful. I have had some pretty direct information from Russia, however, and I am convinced they will put through the five-year plan.

"We have come out of every other depression and no doubt we will come out of this one," Mr. Motherwell added, but he could not see just how. "Of course it is up to the Government," he declared. "The people of Canada called in a new doctor last July.

HUGE STILL SEIZED

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 18.—Swooping down on a barn a few miles east of Aylmer last night, Federal Police and Inland Revenue officers seized one of the most complete stills ever to be brought to their attention.

The still was located on the farm of Mrs. Earah Benner, aged about 80. Police say she knew nothing of its presence.

The still was found secreted behind false walls. No arrests have as yet been made.

Lindsay Physician Is Not Committed

OSHAWA, Feb. 19.—(C. P.)—Dr. H. J. Gleason of Lindsay, Ont., was not committed for trial yesterday when he had preliminary hearing before Magistrate Willis, at Whitby on a charge of manslaughter in connection with a fatal automobile accident. After hearing the evidence Magistrate Willis reserved decision for a week.

The despatch sent out yesterday, stating the Lindsay doctor was committed for trial was regrettably erroneous, as the decision to commit for trial or to acquit has not been given by Magistrate Willis.

INQUEST OPENED ON FATAL PLUNGE

Undetermined Whether Midland Woman Died From Gashes or Drowning.

WITNESS TELLS STORY.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 19 (C.P.)—An inquest was opened to-day into the death of Mrs. David Heisey, of First Street, Midland, who was killed or drowned when her motorcar was driven into the forebay of the Toronto Power Company here last night.

It has not yet been determined whether death was due to drowning or was caused by deep gashes found in her head. She was held under water in the car long enough to be drowned.

The condition of Gordon K. Castle, 23, of Elizabeth street, Barrie, driver of the car, is reported to-day as fair, but he is still semi-conscious and delirious.

He sustained concussion of the brain. In a calm moment late last night, he said he lost control of the car and fell out when he saw that he could not avoid going into the river. Two men, with ropes attached to them, went into the water and broke open a car window and dragged the body of Mrs. Heisey to the bank.

W. E. Ingram, Chippawa, was driving behind the Heisey car and states that it was being driven in an erratic fashion, going from side to side, but chiefly on the wrong side of the road. In a wild dash, it headed for the river, mounted the hump, paused for a fraction of a second while Castle fell out, then plunged into the water. A son of Mrs. Heisey arrived here this forenoon and is making arrangements for the funeral. The Niagara Falls Park and Provincial Police are investigating.

PLEAD QUICK ACTION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—(C.P.)— Beginning consideration today of the veteran's loan bill, the Senate was urged by its advocates to speed it to a vote before nightfall.

Senators Couzens, Republican, Michigan, and Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, pleaded for quick action to get the measure to President Hoover, whose veto is regarded at the capitol as certain.

McRUER RESENTS O'CONNOR'S HINT OF BEING ATHEIST

Storm in Teacup at A. B. C. Hearing Subsides as Statement is Withdrawn.

HEARING AT LONDON.

Singer Been in Witness Box for Three Days Explaining Exhibits.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 19.—For three full days, Louis M. Singer, K.C., who is charged with four other officials of the A.B.C. with conspiracy to defraud the public, had been in the witness box, examining and explaining over one hundred exhibits with scarcely an interruption from the Crown. Suddenly a little gibe from Crown Counsel J. C. McRuer, K.C., brought a storm in a teacup. W. F. O'Connor, K.C. handing the witness the copy of a speech made by Harvey Weinraub, one of the defendants, at a conference, expected to Magistrate Scandrett: "The [illegible] filed to show that there was a similarity in the sentiments expressed.

"They all opened with prayer," commented Mr. McRuer.

"My learned friend does like meetings being opened with prayer," retorted Mr. O'Connor, "He is evidently an Atheist.

Mr. McRuer angrily demanded an immediate retraction of the statement.

"I withdraw it gladly," said Mr. O'Connor, "not because of the tone of my learned friend——"

"I don't want to hear from you at all," said Mr. McRuer abruptly.

Slaght Takes Part

A more amiable exchange occurred earlier when Crown Counsel A. G. Slaght, K.C., suggested that it was not necessary to file certain exhibits concerning the registration of the Toronto Plumbing and Heating Contractors' Union. The Crown, he said, was not greatly interested in that matter.

Mr. O'Connor replied that the exhibits were filed to show that so far from going against the law the defendants had been working hand in hand with officers of the Government. "I am obliged to give evidence as to our virtues, for I have not the least idea what charge the Crown has made out against us," added Mr. Singer, to which Mr. Slaght replied that as the defendants were convinced that no charge had been made out against them, they should not think it necessary for them to make out any defence.

CHICKEN THIEVES AWAIT SENTENCE

Young's Point Man Recovers 33 of His Chickens Alive—6 Were Dead.

MEN PLEAD GUILTY.

WHITBY, Feb. 19.—"It's pretty cold out here, I'll go inside and get my coat." With these remarks, a Jewish dealer with whom two chicken thieves were attempting to do business slipped away to phone the police. As a result, Joseph Robinson, a native of Burleigh, and George Perry, stated to have come from Saskatchewan, were hailed before the Police Magistrate here and pleaded guilty to the theft of thirty-nine chickens from J Tedford of Young's Point. They were remanded for sentence until Wednesday, February 24th.

Mr. Tedford recovered thirty-three of the chickens alive; the other six were dead. The chickens were stolen from his premises some time during the night of last Friday or early Saturday morning, and were taken away in an old automobile by prisoners, who attempted to dispose of them at Whitby. The two prisoners are stated to have come from the West together and were believed to have been living in Peterborough.

Toronto Cafe Burns Hasty Exits Made

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.)—Several persons were forced to make hasty exits from their apartments early to-day when fire razed a cafe on King Street. The fire is believed to have originated in the kitchen of the restaurant, and quickly spread throughout the upstairs. A woman with a child in her arms who was trapped by dense clouds of smoke on the third floor, was carried to safety by firemen. Mrs. Nellie Smokler and her five children who live on the second floor managed to escape from the flames before the fire brigade arrived.

TRAPPED UNDER BROKEN GAS MAIN WORKMAN BECOMES UNCONSCIOUS

WAS PIPE LAYER.

Rendered unconscious by coal gas after being trapped under a broken gas main for a period of ten minutes, Frank Schiarrizza of 582 Bethune street, employed by the City Board of Works Department as a pipe layer, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital at 9.30 this morning. He was attended by Dr. F. C. Neal. Members of the City Fire Department were on hand with the pulmotor, but resorted to other methods of artificial respiration.

Schiarrizza was at work in the company of another city employee in one of a series of trenches at present being dug out on North George street, on the City relief work undertaking. The trench extended in depth to about a foot or so below the gas main, and Schiarrizza, who was in the centre was pinned down when, without warning, the main sagged in the middle. His cries for assistance were soon stifled as he was overcome by the deadly fumes, but help was immediately forthcoming. He was carried on to the verandah of 733 George street North, where his fellow employees and City firemen worked feverishly in an effort to bring the stricken man back to consciousness.

Meanwhile Dr. Neal arrived and after an examination of the man, he accompanied him to hospital in the Police Department car. Word was sent to the various city officials concerned, and E. F. Reid, Ross L. Dobbin and H. G. Beatty and the assistant city engineer were soon on the scene. Warning was issued to bystanders to keep clear of the trench from which a strong smell of was was issuing.

Dr. H. V. Dobson who examined the injured man in St. Joseph's hospital, stated at noon that he was suffered from a fractured left leg, and from gas poisoning. Schiarrazio has regained consciousness and is being kept under observation.

DAVIDSON STORE IS BROKEN INTO

Entry is Forced For Second Time Within a Period of Six Weeks.

LOSS SET AT $40.

For the second time within a period of six weeks, Hebron Davidson has fallen victim to midnight marauders, who last night entered his grocery store at Braidwood and Lock streets, getting clear away with booty in the form of groceries, candy and tobacco. Mr. Davidson after a casual check up on his stock estimates his loss at $40.00. He states that his son was over at the store at 12:30 a.m., at which time everything was normal. Entry was gained to the store by breaking the glass panel in the front door. City Police were summoned to the scene this morning as soon as the owner was apprised of his loss, and investigation has been handed over to Provincial Police, as the store is in the suburban area.

MINISTER FOLLOWS SUGGESTION MADE BY LIBERAL HOUSE LEADER, FARMERS WILL BE SUMMONED

Record Will Be Made of All Evidence in Attempt to Solve Farm Conditions.

COMPLIMENTS SINCLAIR.

Plan to Aid Establishment of Seed Cleaning Plants is Considered.

TORONTO, Ont., February 19 (C.P.). — Following the suggestion of W. E. N. Sinclair, Leader of the Opposition, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, to-day announced at the first meeting of the Agriculture Committee of the Legislature, an exhaustive inquiry into agricultural conditions throughout the Province. The committee was called considerably earlier in the session than usual in order to get the investigation under way as soon as possible.

Seek Province-Wide Evidence.

Starting next week representative farmers from all parts of the Province will be called to give evidence as to farm conditions before the committee.

The inquiry will endeavor to get as many facts as possible in connection with the difficulties of the farmers. A record will be made of all evidence taken, and it will be used in drafting the policy of the Department of Agriculture.

Representatives of the dairy branch of the industry will be heard first. The committee adjourned until Tuesday when a sub-committee will be appointed to arrange the dates of hearing and select the farmers the committee wishes to hear.

Hon. Mr. Kennedy complimented Mr. Sinclair on the suggestion he made in his speech in the Legislature Tuesday when he urged also the whole session should be over to a study of farm problems, the committee. The minister suggested the inquiry before recommended the adoption of Mr. Sinclair's suggestion by the committee.

Seed Cleaning Plants

To-day the committee had under consideration Mr. Kennedy's plan for the establishment of seed cleaning plants. The idea is to improve the quality of seed grain sown in Ontario and consequently the quality of the grain crops.

The Government will pay half the cost of the installation of a seed cleaning plant up to $500 whether established by an individual of a group where 50 farmers of the district sign an application certifying the need of such a plant.

The person receiving the grant will be required to enter into a contract to maintain it in operation and repair and to levy only a reasonable charge for his services.

There was a good deal of discussion on the plan but it received the unanimous approval of the committee.

In reply to a question Mr. Kennedy said the Government would be able to start on the scheme in seven days.

W. P. BULL'S MOVE WILL BE PROBED

Canadian Barrister Fails to Appear Before U. S. Master in Chancery.

INJURED—IN HOSPITAL.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 19.—Attorney Jay Fred Reeve, representing Dr. John Streeter Sidley of Racine, Wis., was under orders of a Mastrey in Chancery to-day to investigate the precipitate departure from the United States to Canada of W. Perkins Bull, K.C., wealthy Canadian barrister.

The order was given yesterday by Master in Chancery James P. Harrold before whom Bull was to have appeared yesterday in connection with a suit brought by Dr. Streeter to enjoin Bull from employing detectives to shadow him. Bull, however, was injured in a motor car accident near Coldwater, Mich., last Tuesday. Yesterday he was removed to a hospital at Windsor, Ont., and the hearing was postponed until Friday.

Mrs. Sidley was suing Dr. Sidley for divorce and Bull has been acting as her attorney. Should it develop that he fled to evade action of a court here, contempt proceedings might be brought against him, it was said at Harrold's office. It was doubtful, however, it was added, whether he could be extradited.

RAISES CANCELLED

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 19 (C.P.)—At a secret caucus last night the City Council decided to cancel this year all automatic salary increases of city employees. Economy was the reason given.

INVENTOR KILLED AS GLIDER FALLS

Odd Mystery Ship Crashes When Only 50 Feet Up on Initial Flight.

WAS TOWED BY AUTO.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N.Y., Feb 19 (C.P.)—Emry Davis, inventor of a mystery glider, took his ship into the air to-day for the first time and was killed when it crashed.

Carl Nelson, his co-pilot, was slightly injured.

The craft, a tandem monoplane with an odd, square-shaped fuselage and front and rear wings of equal length, was being towed by an automobile when it nose-dived to the earth. Davis, a man of seventy-five turned up here a couple of years ago and refused to tell anyone the details of the airplane innovation he was tinkering with, was instantly killed.

The glider was only about fifty feet in the air when it crashed.

Davis had been carrying on his experimental work in a hangar, the doors to which were always kept locked. Curtains covered the windows to prevent curious persons from seeing anything that was going on within. Visitors were not welcome.

Field officials estimated that during the last two years the inventor expended about $100 000 on his ship.

Little was known about him except that he lived at a hotel near the field and had no intimates.

VETERANS' RELIEF PAYMENTS ARE RESTORED BY GOVERNMENT PREMIER BENNETT ANNOUNCES

Government Responds to Widespread Protest Against Recently Announced Cut.

Premier Says Minister of Pensions is Satisfied Urgency is Great.

OTTAWA, February 19 (C P.).—Relief payments to pensioners will be continued by the Dominion Government at the same rate as heretofore Official announcement to this effect by Premier R B. Bennett last night will be received with widespread approval by pensioners affected throughout the Dominion.

"Payments alread made for relief purposes to pensioners had exhaust the appropriation by Parliament," the Prime Minister declared "and, in addition, a substantial sum secured through Governor-General's warrants. The law provides that Governor-General's warrants can be issued only in cases of urgent necessity The Minister of Pensions and National Health has been investigating the situation, and, being now satisfied of the great urgency of the case, an additional warrant has been issued by the Administrator, and relief payments to pensioners will be continued at the same rate as heretofore There was no desire, much less intention, to cause hardship to those who had been receiving relief."

The schedule of monthly allowance for unemployed pensioners, which Premier Bennett announced will be continued, is as follows: Single men, $30; married men with no children, $45; married men with one child, $57; married men with two or more children, $67.

The maximum of pension obtainable for unemployed pensioners has been $67 monthly From this amount is deducted the pension the man was receiving, and the difference is paid in the form of a voucher to be used in the purchase of the necessities of life

Payment of moneys at the former rates will be resumed immediately.

"Nice Decorations" Cost Woman $300; Are Worth $50,000

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 19. (C.P.) Mrs. Jason F. Whitney of Evanston, could have a neat little profit of some 16,667 per cent. in case she ever wanted to dispose of the "nice decorations" she purchased from a Chicago dealer, art experts claim.

The "nice decorations" were identified by Maurice Goldblatt, connoisseur, as authentic paintings of the Flemish master, Rubens, and estimated they were worth about $50,000.

Mrs. Whitney paid $300 for them.

APPEAL OF C.P.R. PARTIAL SUCCESS

Action Outcome of C.N.R.'s Attempt to Have Certain Telegraph Lines Moved.

Nova Scotia Storm Centre.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 19. (C. P. Cable).—The appeal of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, against the 'King' in a dispute in which the Canadian Government on behalf of the Canadian National Railways sought to compel the C.P.R. to remove certain telegraph lines, succeeds in part and fails in part, according to their Lordship's judgment to-day.

It is established that the appellant at the present time is not a trespasser in respect to any section of the telegraph lines but the appeal fails insofar as it sought to establish that its line right was irrevocable as regards the whole telegraph line. The part of the telegraph system concerned is that running into Nova Scotia over the old Intercolonial, now Canadian National, right of way.

Originally a Trespass

Their Lordships concluded that although the placing of poles and wires on the Intercolonial right of way into Nova Scotia was originally a trespass by the C.P.R., the poles have remained there for a long period; the fact they were on Intercolonial property must have been known those representing the Intercolonial, for many years before the action was brought the poles must be regarded as having been there by the consent of the Crown; consequently, the appellant was not a trespasser at the time of the trial.

Their Lordships found the appellant must be taken to have erected the telegraph lines subject to permission being withdrawn, if no agreements were effected. There was no conduct on the part of the Crown which might have induced the C.P.R. to build in the belief that rights in perpetuity would be acquired.

The appellant's claim that their license is irrevocable, therefore fails. The Crown is at liberty to revoke the license.

The question of license was not determined before the original action was brought, in their Lordships' opinion. The appellant is in occupation as a licensee, whose license is revocable, but unrevoked.

Wyoming Governor Dies in Cheyenne

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 19 (C.P.).—Governor Frank C. Emerson of Wyoming, weakened by a 5-day illness, died of a heart attack last night. He was 64 years old.

The Governor left his office last Friday because of a mild attack of influenza, which developed into pneumonia Sunday.

Born in Saginaw, Mich., May 26, 1882, Governor Emerson received an engineering degree from the University of Michigan in 1904, and came to Wyoming the same year. In 1910 he married Zennia Jean Reyders, also a graduate of the Michigan University. Surviving him are his widow and three sons.

Doings in Legislature

TORONTO, Ont. Feb. 19. (CP)—Debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne will continue.

Yesterday in the Legislature: First reading was given acts to amend the Summary Convictions Act and the Justices of the Peace Act. Resolution authorizing introduction of money bill providing $4,000 for unemployment relief was tabled and bill based on it given second reading.

HOLOGRAPH WILL BE MADE VALID UNDER NEW ACT

Object of Bill is to Bring Ontario Law Into Conformity With Other Provinces.

NO WITNESSES NECESSARY.

Illegitimate Child May Take Property Under Mother's Will Same as Legitimate.

TORONTO, Ont., February 19 (C. P.). — Two important changes to the law governing wills are provided in the new Wills Act now before the Legislature "A "holograph will," or a testamentary document written wholly in the handwriting of the deceased and signed by him without witness will be valid if the will passess Hitherto such wills have not been valid in the Province of Ontario.

The Bill also provides that an illegitimate child shall take property under the will of a mother in the same way as a legitimate child This means that if property is left by a mother to her children or her heirs without naming them, an illegitimate child will be entitled to the same share as if of legitimate birth

The Bill recasts and simplifies the existing Wills Act, but its chief object is to bring the law of Ontario on this matter into conformity with the laws of the other Provinces The Act was prepared by the Commissee on Uniform Legislation, composed of representatives from the different Provinces which has been engaged for some years in achieving uniformity throughout Canada in different branches of statute law.

The change to make valid the "holograph will" means the adoption by Ontario of the law now in force in some other Provinces The ordinary will, not in the handwriting of the maker, requires witnesses to prove the signature

To-day the Legislature continues the debate on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Celebrated Jurist Goes Back To Bench

LONDON, Feb. 19 (C.P. Cable). — Seven Judges of the High Court are now on the sick list, and, as many are now holding country Assizes, the arrears of judicial work have been piling up steadily in the Capital.

Lord Darling, the celebrated jurist, who is now retired, has returned to the Bench in the emergency, despite his 81 years, which rest lightly on his shoulders. He will hear non-jury cases.

WOMAN DROWNED IN NIAGARA RIVER

Rescuers Held by Ropes Reach Submerged Auto Too Late.

DRIVER BADLY HURT.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 19.—The Niagara River claimed another victim late last night in Mrs. David Heisey, 65 years old, of Barrie, Ont., who was drowned or killed when her car went into the Toronto Power Company forebay. Her chauffeur, F. K. Frank Gastle, 29 years old, of Midland, is in hospital with concussion of the brain, suffered when he fell or leaped out of the car just before it plunged into the water.

Gastle is in hospital, delirious, but Dr. G. B. Snyder, attending him, expects him to recover.

Loses Control of Car

According to Gastle's story, told in lucid moments late last night, he lost control of the car as he turned a curve, and, knowing he was headed for the river, fell out. Police say local witnesses told them that the Heisey car was running in erratic fashion and on the wrong side of the road. It mounted the bank, hesitated at a bump, then plunged into water so deep that only the top of the back of the car was visible, the witness said.

Brave Rescue Effort

Men, held by ropes from shore, plunged into the water and broke the windows of the car, and pulled Mrs. Heisey to shore, but life was extinct. When taken to the Morse morgue, it was found that she had gashes on the head, Coroner Thompson has ordered an inquest.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

VETERAN BARRED FROM HOSPITAL

PENSION SUSPENDED.

TORONTO, Feb. 19. — Suffering from a rare malady known as Berger's disease, and threatened with amputation of both legs, Lieut. Alfred Winslow, of Scarboro Bluffs, lay in Toronto General Hospital yesterday through the financial assistance of brother Orangemen; while in Ottawa before the pensions appeal court, strenuous efforts were being made to upset an alleged "technicality" which is claimed to bar the incapacitated war veteran from Christie Street Hospital.

Because the pensions commission granted Winslow an allowance based on one disease, and later suspended the pension when the ailment was diagnosed as something else, the sick man could not gain admittance to Christie Street Hospital, according to Dr. C. McMane, superintendent, who declared last night that no responsibility for letting Winslow in or keeping him out rested on officials of the hospital.

"As a matter of fact," Dr. McMane said, "Winslow was admitted to Toronto General Hospital through arrangements made by Dr. Harris of the staff of Christie Street, who examined him when he applied for admittance here.

Denies Any Technicality

"I don't know why they attempt to deceive the public by calling these things 'technicalities'," he went on. "Pensions procedure is established by law, enacted by parliament. Because the pensions board tries to take advantage of the legislation laid down, that seems to me to be no reason for raising the perennial 'technicality' cry."

After Winslow's pension had been suspended by the pensions board, it had been granted by the tribunal. The board had promptly appealed to the appeal court at Ottawa. Because Winslow was not in receipt of a pension, there was no alternative but to refuse him admittance to Chrstie Street.

NO UNBEATEN RINKS REMAIN IN BONSPIEL

Starting To-day's Draw Eight Rinks Boast of Only One Setback Marring Record.

NEARING CLOSE.

Best Defeats Weller of Hamilton 13-3 to Enter Third Round of Wrigley Cup.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19.—(CP)—Dreams of coasting right through without defeat are only poignant memories to the hitherto undefeated rinks competing in the fourth annual Toronto bonspiel. The last shot making four to flourish a perfect score sheet fell by the wayside early this morning and today renewed confidence was reflected in the countenances of numerous curlers who had despaired of taking the measure of the mighty half-dozen.

Starting todays draw eight rinks boast of only one setback marring their record. These are R. G. Hall, Kitchener; Ross Marston, Hamilton; C. Bulley, Toronto Granites; D. Walker, Fort William; H. H. Chishold, Toronto, F. Machael, Oshawa, Sam Meredith, Barrie and W. B. Cowan, Toronto High Park.

It is from this octet that the grand aggregate winner is believed likely to emerge although there are numerous other rinks that can jump right into contention for the premier honor Aesby.

Yesterday's play brought down the number of competitors in each of the six events to sizeable proportions and three prize winners will be declared today. There are 19 survivors in the Royal York Trophy, 10 each in the Selberling and Wrigley competitions and 16 each in the Ryrie Birks and North American Life.

The following are the results of local district rinks in the various events:

NIXON EXPOSES GUN LICENSE BILL

PROTEST 'RAILROADING.'

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Determined to expose the "unfairness" of the gun license and the Ontario Government's method of applying it to the Province, Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Progressive group leader, will—provided he is in order—move before the Legislature this session that the license be made operative immediately in the Sudbury and East Simcoe constituencies of Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister in charge of Game and Fisheries, and Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests.

Mr. Nixon bases his proposed action on the principle that "what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." A brief trial of the license will, in Mr. Nixon's opinion, convince these two Government Ministers in question of the injustice of the gun tax. The move, however, is only part of an effort on his part to convert the House to the need of some new method of legislating its annual changes in the game laws.

Protests "Railroading"

"I have long felt," said he yesterday, "that making a lot of recommendations in the Game and Fish Committee and then bringing them down to the House on the last day of the session and expecting the members to put them through in three hurried readings is not a proper way of doing things, and I intend to protest against the practice this session. What should be done is to have amendments to the game laws introduced to the House like any other legislation, and then referred to the Game and Fish Committee for its consideration."

Long a vigorous opponent of the gun license, Mr. Nixon is prepared this session to cite—either in the Budget debate or in consideration of the Game and Fisheries Department estimates—instances of the "iniquitous way" in which the license is working out. If it were applied generally to the Province, said he, there would not be so much objection forthcoming, but to single out only a comparatively small section of Ontario for its application is "totally unfair."

BARN IS BURNED AT CROOKSTONE

CAUSE A MYSTERY.

CROOKSTON, February 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — Shortly after six o'clock on Tuesday morning the barn belonging to Mr Thomas Emmerson was destroyed by fire. There seems no way whatever of accounting for its origin. The building was situated quite close to the dwelling, and the occupants knew nothing of it until some neighbors seeing the blaze called them on the telephone It was indeed fortunate that the house was not ignited also from the heat

Much sympathy is felt for Mr and Mrs. Emmerson, as with the barn and other contents they lost a Jersey cow and a horse. The horse was a much valued animal, it having won prizes at different times on the race track. On Monday hay that had been recently purchased had been delivered and placed in the barn . It is understood there was some insurance on the building.

FARMER INJURED RESULT OF FALL

William Franklin Lying at His Home North of Queensboro in Critical Condition.

(Special to The Examiner)

QUEENSBORO, Feb. 19.—William Franklin, 73, is lying at his home three miles north of here in a critical condition as the result of an accident while hauling wood.

Mr. Franklin, who is subject to weak spells, went after a load of wood and was late discovered by a neighbor, on the road a short distance from his home in an unconscious condition. The team had not run away and were down the road a short distance from where the wounded man was found. Mr. Franklin was taken to the home of Arthur Wyatt, a doctor was called and it was found that several ribs and a shoulder blade were broken. It is thought that he had taken a weak spell and had fallen in front of the load which passed over his body inflicting severe injuries.

MAROONS BREAK LOSING STREAK TO COP 4-2 WIN

Frankford Falls Before Onslaught of Millers in T.V.L. Fixture.

CLEAN EXHIBITION.

Three Juniors, Hendy, Lambert and Busche Play Clever Game.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 19.— (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.) — The clouds lifted for the Campbellford Maroons last evening and the local hockey fans had the pleasure of seeing their team romp home to victory when the Millers trimmed Frankford in a scheduled Trent Valley Hockey League fixture staged at the Davidson Arena, Campbellford, to the tune of 4-2.

Coming as it did after a run of bad luck and many defeats in this year's schedule the win was more than appreciated by the fact that the sub forward line of the Home Towners consisted of three juniors, Hendy, Lambert and Buscke. These three men played more than a good games, all assisting with two of the goals, Lambert making the first count. Giving a good clean exhibition of hockey, they proved themselves playmakers and fitted in splendidly with the more seasoned players.

The game was fast and clean, each squad playing well up to form and taking every advantage. The Frankford outfit was a little ragged in the first period, most of their play centering around Bowen and MacLean, who staged splendid games. In the absence of Legault the two O'Malleys played defence, Fillion and Shaw being the only subs. Although their defence was strong, it failed in some of its combination, which weakened it considerably when attacked. The Maroons played their old brand of hockey, with Cowall and Ingram on defence; they were a formidable team to face, and with the fast forward line with Whitton in the pivot position supported by McArthur and Flemming, the play was carried forward very successfully for the entertainers. The sub forward line of Lambert, Busche and Hendy played splendid combination and put up a fast game, throwing every ounce of beef they had into the play.

Walter Jackson of Peterborough, handled the bell and kept the game clean, only eight penalties being handed out. All these were for minor offences. The first period of the game was slow, and did not seem to warm up until a few minutes before the gong, when Lambert drew first blood for the Millers with two minutes to go.

The second session was decidedly better, with both squads on their toes to make a tally. Four goals were counted in all, Borland and MacLean scoring for Frankford and Ingram and Flemming for Campbellford The last period was a fight for supremacy, the visitors throwing all their weight into the game in the hope of evening and passing the count This they were unable to do, and only succeeded in having one tally chalked up against them by Ingram.

Summary of the Game

First period—

Goals — Campbellford, Lambert, 18 minutes

Penalties—Campbellford, Ingram.

Second period—

Goals—Frankford, Borland, 18 minutes; MacLean, 19½ minutes. Campbellford, Ingram, 18 minutes; Flemming, 19 minutes

Penalties — Frankford. Borland, Campbellford, Whitton.

Third period—

Goals — Campbellford, Ingram 12 minutes

Penalties—Frankford. Bowen, W. O'Malley, Bowen. Campbellford, Flemming, Cowall.

The teams:

Frankford — Goal, Prevost; defence, W O'Malley and C. O'Malley; centre, Bowen; wings, MacLean and Borland; subs., Fillon and Shaw.

Campbellford — Goal, Sanders; defence, Ingram and Cowall; centre, Whitton; wings, Flemming and McArthur; subs, Busche, Lambert, and Hendy.

Referee—Walter Jackson. Peterborough.

The first period opened with Flemming in possession of the puck which he carried forward but lost to Bowen, who in turn was checked by Whitton who carried the rubber forward and shot. Borland returned to the attack, but lost to Ingram, who drove forward but failed to net the rubber. Cowall came into play with some pretty forward rushes, having some near goals, but the two O'Malleys played good defence besides starring in some swift attacks, which the Millers' defence were able to break. Half way through the period a fierce scramble was staged in centre ice for some minutes, featuring some heavy checking with Whitton and McArthur driving the Frankford forward line back many times in succession. Flemming cleared this mess, staging a scrum in the visitors' house, but Prevost was on to his job and able to repel the Millers 'attack

Toward the end of the session the sub line played splendid combination. Hendy gained possession of the rubber, carrying it forward and passing to Busche, who shot but struck the cross-bar. Lambert caught the puck on the rebound and netted the first count of the game for the Home Towners, with two minutes to play.

Sanders Is Good

Borland and MacLean started the play in the second period, taking the rubber up to the Millers' net, but Sanders was playing up to form and foiled their attempt to score. Flemming came back with a rush down the centre of the house when Borland was fenced for tripping him with the open goal ahead. Ingram and Cowall again came into play with some fine rushes from defence, but the visitors were on their mettle and checked the onslaught. Eight minutes after play Ingram made another tally for the entertainers from a pass from Lambert. This worried the Greens, who fought hard until Borland made the first count for Frankford after some stiff play in the Millers' house. Whitton was put on the fence for tripping soon after, but this did not seem to affect the Home Towners, for Fleming drove forward, carrying the puck behind the Frankford net and making another tally by slipping it into their front door from the rear, with one minute to play.

From the face-off MacLean drove a long shot, which passed Sanders, the gong sounding before the puck could be faced.

The last period was featured by defensive hockey on the part of Campbellford, some pretty forward drives being made, however, in one of which Ingram scored from a pass from Whitton twelves minutes after play Bowen was fenced for tripping Whitton, W. O'Malley also receiving the same dose for tripping Hendy. Toward the epd of the session Bowen and Flemming were both boxed for getting into a mix-up, and Cowall was penalized with three minutes to go; the Greens trying to count with the weakened defence, but failing. The game ended in a 4—2 victory for the Millers.

STIRLING WINS FROM MADOC

Score Was Tied Two All Up Until Near End of Third Period.

FINAL SCORE 4 TO 2.

STIRLING, Feb. 19.—The Madoc squad again went down to defeat in another Trent Valley League game here last night when Stirling administered the fourth trimming of the season to the Madoc sextette. The final score was 4 to 2.

Over 500 fans were held on tip toe with suspense as they watched the tense struggle for supremacy.

First Period

The offensive was begun by Red and Whites. Ingram started with a shot on goal which was deflected. Speedily in turn Davis, Ty Little, Dib Little and Beatty stick-handled their way into scoring position but Hulin in goal was too much for them.

Dib Little had several uneffective shots netward resulting in no score. Henderson, Moon and L. Hemex took turns in securing the rubber but with no results. Day was penned here for minor offence. Beatty shot on goal lost to McGuire who took a wallop at the net and scored.

Second Period

Davis shot on Hulin who nearly muffed but cleared in time. Watson had another shot on Morton. Beatty, Ty Little and Ingram went up only to lose to Moon, Watson and L'Heaurex coming down.

Dib Little passed to Ackers who shot and missed. L'Heaurex grabbed the puck, split the defence and scored. Period closed 2-1 for Madoc.

Third Period

With Madoc in the lead the locals played a desperate game. They had good combination but lacked scoring punch. Beatty made repeated rushes, but failed to score.

The visitors rested on their oars and played defense. Jack Beatty and Davis went up the ice; in a scramble around the net Ingram picketed a tally.

Things began to happen fast and furious. Before the supporting fans got through saying "I told you so" Ty Little followed suit with another tally.

By this time locals were all on their feet. White started up with the puck, passed to Ackers, who notched another neat marker just before the final gong.

Score: Stirling 4, Madoc 2.

Referee—Smith of Kingston.

Line-up:

Sterling—Goal, Morton; defence, Ingram, Beatty; centre Davis; wings Little, Little; subs, Day, White, Ackers.

Madoc—Goal, Hulin; defence, McGuire, Moon; centre, L'Heurex; wings, Watson, Henderson; sub., Rupert.

Golden Links Circle Holds Valentine Tea

MILLBRROOK, Feb. 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—A very successful Valentine Tea was held in the Waverly ice cream parlors on Saturday, February 14, under the auspices of the Golden Links Mission Circle, of which Miss Marjorie Sayles is the capable president.

The tea tables were most attractive with their Valentine decorations of tall red hearts standing upright in the centre of each well-laden board the lower point of the hearts resting on a round of softly-curled red petals, while from this centrepiece ran narrow strips of red each tipped with a tiny heart, the whole lovely ornament making a gay splash of color on the white damask of the cloth. Valentine runners were used on the walls.

The hostess and president welcomed her many guests at the entrance door, Miss Phyllis Kidd acting as cashier, and assisting with looking after the wraps for which a generous sized coat rack was in readiness, serving at the tables, and helping with the service of the delicious viands in the adjoining kitchen, were Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. Cecil Hubbeard, Misses Jean Stinson, Jean Burnham, Francis and Beatrice Jones, Mary Burnham, Bryar Edmunds, Eleanor Ferren, Marjorie Skitch, Marian O'Brian, Mrs. M. Weatherup and Madeline McDowell.

Most of the business men of the town, with their wives, and many other residents including the parents of the girls who are members of the Mission Circle, were among the guests who enjoyed the hot supper served between the hours of five p.m. and 7.30, or until all comers had been satisfied.

Financial results were satisfactory and Circle funds will profit about $30.

MEETING HELD AS VALENTINE PARTY

Delightful Program Provided By Group Members of Havelock Girl Guides.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 19 (Examiner Correspondence) — Havelock Girl Guides had a delightful evening on Friday last, which took the form of a Valentine party in place of the regular meeting.

Each of the three groups had prepared a program, and entertained the others for a short period with delightful musical numbers. They had as guests on this occasion their Commissioner, Mrs. Dr. Lennox, and Mrs. J. Kinnaird, who has so graciously placed the Mission hall at the disposal of the Guides for their meetings.

Miss Betty Mathison was in charge of a Post Office, through which Valentines were exchanging among the girls, their captain and guests.

Prizes were awarded for the prettiest costumes and were won by Miss Norma Bullied as queen of hearts, Miss Florence Jones, as St. Valentine, and Miss Marjorie Long, as a Shiek.

A competition in table-setting was held among the three patrols, and as a result the tables were most beautifully decorated for the occasion. Red and white tissue paper, hearts and arrows, streamers played a large part in the decorative scheme of the winning table. Colorful salads, jellies, candies, cakes and biscuits, were also used as part of the color scheme. Orchid patrol, number two, Leaders Misses Roxy Rutherford and Marie Berford, was declared first prize winner.

After the games and competitions, the members sat down to the beautifully appointed tables and partook of the delectable dainties. The Guides and their captain Jean Moore, were warmly congratulated by their Commissioner, who expressed delight in the progress the girls are making, in their several lines of endeavour.

One Horse Fires Barn Another Kicks Master

LINDSAY, Feb. 19.—While Thomas Sheehy was doing the evening chores a horse kicked him. The lantern upset and the barn and contents were lost by fire. Mr. Sheehy found one of the horses loose and, when he tried to prevent it going back in its blazing stall, the animal kicked him. He managed to get all the stock out of the barn before collapsing from his injuries. The contents of the barn were not insured. The total loss will be about $4,000.

Norwood Pie Social Is Much Enjoyed

NORWOOD, Feb. 19 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Women's Association of the United Church sponsored a pleasant evening's entertainment on Friday when they served a pie social.

A number of the older ladies gave a chorus entitled, "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet" those taking part were in costume with grey bonnets and shawls. Readings were given by Miss Laura Metcalfe and Mrs. McNeil; vocal duets by Learl and Hamilton Humphries and a piano solo by Karl Wildman.

Several selections were given by the orchestra and two contests were enjoyed.

MIGHT SAVE SOME LIVES.

Arthur Ellis, Conservative member for South Ottawa, has introduced a bill to the Ontario Legislature that would compel all motorists to come to a full stop at a radial or railway crossing.

This legislation is identical with the measure that has been in force for some time in the Province of Quebec, and that is given credit for reducing the number of grade crossing accidents in that Province.

Opponents of regulations of this nature protest that they do not serve the purpose intended because they are ignored by many motorists, and that they are a nuisance and an inconvenience to careful drivers.

However, the situation in regard to level crossing fatalities is such as to justify trying any policy that gives even the faintest hope of producing results.

The death rate from this cause is constantly increasing, and while the only sure remedy is the complete elimination of grade crossings, that can only be accomplished by a long and expensive process, and in the meanwhile every possible means of reducing accidents must be sought.

A law compelling all motorists to stop before crossing a railway track might not be obeyed by everybody, but at least it might be the medium of saving a number of lives, and on that ground is entitled to support.

Certainly the situation is serious enough to justify trying anything that offers some chance for relief.

AN ERA OF ECONOMY?

"We've got to retrench. In the face of the existing situation we cannot go on as we've been doing."

In these words Premier Henry informed the Ontario Legislature of the intention of his Government to inaugurate an era of economy.

The statement was explicit enough and apparently sincere enough, but there will be natural wonder as to just where and how Mr. Henry expects to retrench.

The simple truth is that despite their complaints about the burden of taxation most people at heart have no desire to see Governments reduce expenditures.

They are much more concerned about inducing Governments to spend more money, to expand existing services and provide new ones.

As an example of what is going on, the speech of Hon. R. J. Manion, Federal Minister of Railways and Canals, delivered a day or two ago, was illumining.

Hon. Dr. Manion declared that if all the requests that had been made for betterments in connection with the Canadian National Railways in the way of new stations, branch lines, etc., were acted upon they would entail a capital expenditure of $150,000,000 or $200,000,000.

And the flood of demands pouring in for expenditures in connection with Canada's National Railways is symptomatic of the general attitude toward public expenditure of all kinds.

However, in spite of that fact Premier Henry is to be commended upon the decision that he has made, and if he can live up to it and really put into effect a policy of economy he will have made a worth-while contribution to the public life of the Province.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE.

In his opening speech of the present session of the Ontario Legislature Hon. H. C. Nixon, leader of the Progressives, argued that the regulation requiring candidates for the Legislature to put up a deposit of $200 should be rescinded.

"This law can do no good," declared Mr. Nixon, "and might seriously embarrass at the present time the entrance of very proper individuals to an election contest."

With this opinion The Examiner cannot agree.

The requiring of a deposit works no hardship in the case of a legitimate candidate, and it prevents the entrance into political fights of candidates with an axe to grind who have not the slightest chance of being elected, but who are quite willing, for the opportunity it affords them to air their views to get a little cheap publicity, to precipitate a contest so long as they are not out of pocket as a result.

In the last provincial election the absence of a deposit requirement prevented acclamations in several ridings where the vast majority of the electors did not desire a contest, but where a campaign was forced by the last-minute entrance of a hopeless candidate.

There is no need, as The Examiner views the matter, for a change in the present law, unless it is desired to make it easy for Communists and other folks with bees in their bonnets to use political campaigns as a means of circulating propaganda.

A NEW RELIEF PROPOSAL.

From H. Martynse, a resident of Essex County, comes a suggestion that has been forwarded to all members of the Provincial Legislature as a plan of unemployment relief that the proposer claims would be permanent in its effect and render 10,000 of the unemployed citizens of Ontario independent for life.

Mr. Martynse says that public work done years ahead of actual need in order to provide employment is going to prove a burden in taxation and at best the relief is only temporary.

He would put the unemployed on the land under the following plan:

* * * *

In order to give the unemployed a chance to get settled in a gainful occupation, the Government offers for sale, he says, an improved farm consisting of:

(1) 100 acres of land, five acres of it cleared and stump.

(2) One house, 18 x 20 feet, either frame or log structure.

(3) One barn, 12 x 12 feet, either frame or log structure.

(4) $100 worth of farm implements.

In order that the settler may have ready money for necessities, the Government to furnish him 120 days work the first year, 80 days work the second year and 40 days work the third year at the rate of $2.50 per day. The money will be paid weekly at the rate of $6.00 per week the first year, $4.00 per week the second year and $2.00 per week the third year.

The money paid by the above after the settler agrees to pay the Government, after the end of the third year, $1,200 at the rate of $100 or more per year until fully paid with interest at five per cent.

The settler also agrees to clear and make ready for crop at least one additional acre in each of the first three years.

To protect the family against non-payment in the event of the death of the settler, the Government will take out an insurance policy in its own favor for the amount of the farm and equipment.

INDUSTRY MOVES WEST.

That Western Canada has during the last 50 years gone ahead industrially at least eight times as fast as the rest of Canada, is asserted in McLean's Magazine by John Armitage in an article entitled "Industry Moves West."

"Fifty years ago," says Mr. Armitage, "Saskatchewan and Alberta combined had eighty-five employees in industries producing annually $196,000 worth of manufactured articles. Those figures have grown to 19,000 employees producing $160,000,000. In the same period employees of manufacturing concerns in British Columbia have multiplied by twenty-four to 49,000, while value has jumped from $3,000,000 to $271,000,000. Alberta and Saskatchewan have increased their output eighty times, British Columbia ninety; an average increase for the three Western Provinces of eighty-five.

"The total value of Canadian manufacturers over the same period has increased from $309,676,086 to $3,769,845,000, not quite ten times the value. A very good record indeed, but . . .

"Eliminating agriculture altogether, Western Canada has gone ahead in the last fifty years much more rapidly than Eastern Canada. To bring it down to the final analysis, the West has gone ahead industrially at least eight times as fast as the rest of Canada in the last fifty years, so it is that we find Winnipeg and Vancouver, two places which a few decades ago were not counted as industrial centres, are now racing neck and neck for fourth position among the industrial cities of Canada.

"These are startling facts. I said in commencing this article: There is a revolution under way in the West; an economic revolution which may well prove a revolution of greater moment to Canadians than the revolution in which the farmer displaced the hunter and the trader. The West holds the key to our export trade with the Orient, and for that reason the key to Canada's nation destiny. The West is export-minded; is looking for further phenominal expansion by manufacturing for the Pacific markets.

"These facts have an enormous significance for the East. The East cannot afford to remain aloof in this revolution; to see the union of Canada which the farmer accomplished new severed by indifference or neglect. On the outcome of the revolution in the West depends Canada's national destiny. That revolution should be guided, destiny-shaped, by Canadians."—Brockville Recorder and Times.

NEW ECONOMIC PROPOSAL.

A movement has been started in Britain for a complete reconstruction of the British economic system, that is practically certain to provoke violent discussion and opposition. It is almost as drastic as the Russian experiment, being based on a scheme that covers a term of five years. The proposal has for its most striking feature the transformation of all industry, transport and commerce in Britain into a series of huge amalgamations, or federations, on the lines of public utilities. Workers and consumers would be represented in the new organization, and within the various industries competition would be restricted and, in many cases, wholly eliminated.

"It is now clear," says the authors of the scheme, "that America has been on the wrong track. There is still the risk that belatedly absorbed American ideas, which America is already being forced to discard, may be accepted in some such shape as British Empire economic unity for a new economic gospel. There is the opposite risk that, in incompetent hands, this country may go on drifting either toward a sharp precipice, which might have revolutionary consequences, or to a dictatorship, or perhaps worse still, to a gradual decline through failing to understand in time that things have changed since 1890." Furthermore the plan recommends that as soon as similar industries have become federated, an industrial court established and an agreement to limit property adopted, they should be allowed to govern themselves free of state interference. It declares that, if self-government is good for sections of the Empire, it is good for commerce and industry.

Undoubtedly there is tremendous fermentation going on in the British economic system. There is bound to be reconstruction and reorganization, but there is hardly likely to be any such change as that proposed by these radical reformers. British industry is confronted with the most acute crisis which it has been called upon to meet since the economic revolution. Her foreign trade is threatened by the competition of countries where wages and the cost of production are lower than in Britain. The question is as to how British industry, which is largely dependent on export trade, can retain the required volume of exports in the face of this competition, and still retain a high standard of living for the workers. Truly it is a baffling problem, and probably it will take the radical proposals of extremists to induce the ultra-Conservatives to adopt new methods. —Brantford Expositor.

Peter Veregin says the Canadian Doukhobors intend to remain in this country, which may or may not be good news.

Hon. Frank Carrel's protest in the Quebec Legislature against Red propaganda in Canada and against Canadian trade with Soviet Russia will be echoed by all patriotic Canadians.

A snowball caused a fatal fight in Buffalo. In Chicago, however, they kill you without even that much excuse.

Mr. Sinclair has proposed that the present session of the Legislature should be given over to a consideration of agricultural problems. There is merit in the suggestion.

From the Progressive leader in the Legislature has come a proposal that Cabinet salaries should be cut. The cheering that followed was decidedly subdued.

The Red-Headed Goddess

By

Abruptly the Indian's meditations were interrupted as a distant sound came down to him from the air. Checking his pony, who stood attentive and frightened under something mysterious and unknown, he sat like a graven image, his dark face uplifted, his keen eyes scanning the brilliant blue of the sky to discover the airplane whose drumming was so faint yet so clear.

At last he saw it, a tiny gray insect, moving at a swift and steady rate out of the west before him, toward the rising sun.

"That is strange," thought Silver Tongue, holding his quivering pony tightly as the airplane came closer and lower. "The white people do not care for our desert, even in their magic flying birds. They go safer ways. For if a white man is lost in the desert he is lost forever." There was a breath of scorn in this idea, as the Indian felt his superority. For a long moment he held his rigid, attentive attitude, then his eyes narrowed and his body bent slightly forward as he tried to pierce the distances, with his hand shading his eyes.

"The white man's magic has left his toy. The power is going out of the white man. He is falling to earth. He should have known. Only gods and goddesses can fly over desert space in safety." It seemed a source of secret satisfaction to him that the heavens—over these ancient haunts at least—were still sacred, for a triumphant smile, holding all the fanatical fervor of the ancestral worship he had half discarded, lit for a second the cold intelligence of his face.

"The white man has fallen a long way from anywhere," he said softly to himself, as he drew the frazzled rope that constituted the bridle, and turned his horse westward again. "And in the desert the white man is a sick old woman." The horse beneathhim pranced uneasily. "In the desert the white man is a lame rabbit." The pony rose on his hind legs impatient to be off. "In the desert the white man is a blind child," the Indian concluded, and shrugged his shoulders as his pony shot forward like an arrow from a bow.

It was dawn, the hour that the Indians love. But though it was dawn on the desert, and the red sun had already killed the bitterness of the chill, fall night, and brought a glowing magic beauty to the great stretches of waste land, it was still dark and cold in the canyon.

Nevertheless the tiny settlement down by the river's edge in the deep depths of it was astir. The women in their wide full skirts were emerging into the gray light from their frail hogans of sticks and mud, and little children, bare-legged, scantily clad in a one-piece garment of no particular color, hopped up and down to keep themselves warm while breakfast was being prepared over the tiny fires.

Little Creep-Foot was not hopping up and down. She was snuggled with her younger sister, Bird-in-the-Sand, under a dirty blanket, watching with hungry eyes the motions of the old grandmother who was both mother and father to them. Their own father had been divorced many years ago, before they could remember him. It was done in the effective way. One night on his return home from a day's labor in the cornfields he had found his few personal possessions, such as his blanket, his bow and arrows and his moccasins, carefully placed outside the door of his hogan. From this simple gesture of dismissal there was never any appeal. His wife had had more than enough of him, and from that time on he was an outlaw in his home. The alternatives were a return to his boyhood home or an endless wandering on the desert. In this case he wandered so far that he was never seen again.

Shortly after dismissing him, the mother had been taken ill, when a pestilence of smallpox swept over the community where she was then living. Her son, Silver Tongue, and her two little girls, Creep-Foot and Bird-in-the-Sand, were saved by their absence in the Government school, but after this tragedy, when the two little girls came back to the settlement for the summer, the grandmother had escaped with them, and a few other like-minded, to this canyon retreat where they had dwelt in safety and hiding ever since. Here Silver Tongue had found them, after finishing his course at the school.

The old woman, She-Who-Sees-Far, turned from her fire and beckoned the two little girls. They rushed forward hungrily and dipped by turns into the family bowl for their share of the hot mess that She-Who-Sees-Far held out to them. When they were satisfied Creep-Foot spoke to her grandmother.

"Bird-in-the-Sand and I will go up to the desert to play where it is warm. It is cold down here. The sun only looks in and is gone."

She-Who-Sees-Far nodded assent and in a moment the children, accompanied by a few others of the tribe, were scrambling up se side of the gorge, following a steep and dangerous pathway hewn out by the men. One young mother stood watching them anxiously out of sight.

"They will be safe," She-Who-Sees-Far said reassuringly. "The Sun God will watch over them. They will be safe."

"Silver Tongue does not believe in our gods and goddesses since he has gone to the white man's school," ventured a young maiden.

"Silver Tongue cannot help but believe," She-Who-Sees-Far retorted. "The beliefs of the Indians are in his blood. Their religion is his. It was put into his heart years ago by his father and his Father's fathers. What the white men have put into his head in a few seasons is another matter—and of no importance. Did he not return to us and our ways?" she concluded proudly. "Is he not even now at this moment talking to Nahtahni against the white people for his red brothers?"

Several Indian men, who had been listening attentively, grunted assent. It was a matter of great price with them that Silver Tongue had returned to their midst, after three years of schooling, and had immediately taken up tribal ways again. Scar Face, the old medicine man, voiced it for them all.

The white man's ways were not better than the red man's ways. Had not Silver Tongue tried them and found them wanting? The white man's education was of no use to the red man. Let the others not be troubled by it. Let the tribes hide here in the canyon with their children as long as the little green patches at Bend-in-the-River grew corn and melons and beans, as long as the sheep could graze at the Widening-Out Place; and, when that was no longer possible, let them wander to another and a better hiding place, where they could continue to bring up their children in the ancient, proper ways. Let the white man and the red man go their separate paths, except when the white man did injustice to the red man. Then let the red man ride to meet the white man as they had long ago, as they soon would again, unless Silver Tongue and Nahtahni talk the white man's language together with understanding.

And now let the men all go with Scar Face swiftly to the green patches at Bend-in-the-River, and begin to harvest for the winter the corn and melons and beans that were ripe and ready.

The canyon was bright by the time the men had departed down the river bed, and the sunlight was dancing on the tops of the tallest trees that lined the sides of the walls of the canyon. In a little while, said She-Who-Sees-Far, the sun would be high in the heavens, and would smile benignly down upon the women at their blanket weaving. Let them, then, take down their looms, from their resting places in the branches, and set them up in the small space that was not occupied by the hogans, and let them finish their sork so that they would be ready to care for the food when the men brought it in that night. Let them work fast while the little river of sweet water sang beside them.

But they had scarcely settled themselves to their tasks when the Young Mother lifted her head alertly. What was that strange noise?

In a moment all the women had heard it!—a curious, distant purring, a louder-growing throbbing, an immense roaring that seemed to fill the canyon and shake it, that filled their ears and deafened them, that rushed up and down the rocky walls beneath which they huddled in terror, until it had become, in their primitive imaginations, a hidden, monstrous thing, alive, menacing.

Suddenly She-Who-Sees-Far lifted a thin, shaking hand and pointed up to the blue strip of sky visible between the tree tops.

There it was! There was the Noise. And it was not a Noise, but a Bird. A great Bird with immense wings that never moved, the largest Bird they had ever seen, with the stillest wings. It was like nothing they knew. Its singing was like nothing they had ever heard before. It was deep and powerful. It was awful in its steadiness. It had a threatening sound. What a throat that Bird must have to make such a volume of sound! And it flew fast with a terrible directness, straight from the West, straight to the East. Who had sent it? Where was it going? Down! Down! Oh! It was coming down, the great Bird! What did it want? Why was it coming here? Why—oh—why?

They stook like images, enchained by this appalling mystery, their faces frozen in an expression of mingled fear and worship, until suddenly the great Bird swerved and disappeared over the canyon rim. Then the Young Mother screamed:

"The children!"

In a moment figures were flying up the canyon path where the little ones had gone so short a space before. Sure footed, reckless, they panted to the top and rushed onto the open, scanning the floor of the desert, the roof of the sky. There goes the Bird! Oh, how far! It is but a hawk now. Did it pause on its way? Bird-in-the-Sand! Creep-Foot! Child-of-Dew! Maid-of-the-Night-little toddler still! Where are you all? Has the Great Bird swept upon you and caught you up in strong cruel talons and borne you away? Where are you? Where are you?

She-Who-Sees-Far gave a little cry and again pointed with her bony, trembling hand. Out on the sand a half mile away were little leaping figures, little running figures. How many? One—two—three. No more? Ah! There comes Creep-Foot with her little lame walk that had given her her name.

The Indian women met them in silence, felt them all over, touched their eyes, their hands, their heads, as though they had been made sacred by the passing over of the great, mysterious Bird. Then the children opened their hands. Each held a tiny, shining bead of deep yellow color.

"The bird dropped these," said Creep-Foot. "We found them. We would like to play with them. See!" She held them up in the light. "They are like little suns!"

Little Suns! Awed, fascinated, the women stared at them in silence. Little suns! So they were! Then an excited talking broke out among them. Little suns! What else could they be? Most precious tokens. Most marvelous gifts from the Great Bird who was sent by the Sun God himself. It was a good sign. It was magic. Let the children keep them always. Some wonder would come of this strange happening.

A Thought

SELF-CONQUEST

Self-conquest lies in obedience, obedience lies in knowledge; and if to know that it rests with man to make or to mar the lives of others be not sufficing stimulus to learning the true that we may do the right, no other motive can avail. Whatever power the threats of punishment and the promises of reward in an after life may have had in lawless and superstitious ages, they have now but the smallest effect on conduct; their remoteness exhausts their powers, and, moreover, the belief in them is slowly decaying.

For the conduct of life brief maxims are enough; all the law and commandments are in the golden rule; all ethics in the teaching that if man be true to himself he cannot be false to his fellows.—Ed. Clodd.

What To-day Means To You

"AQUARIUS."

If February 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

February 19th promises much. Many opportunities will present themselves, while few complications will arise. In almost all lines of endeavor—and endeavor is not speculation—a material advancement is assured. After sundown, the astrological atmosphere will be benign and amorous.

Children born on this February 19th will be moody and undependable. Their temperaments will be mercurial, and these traits, in adulthood, will not inure to their material advancement. They will live in a world of their own creation and will be happier alone than with companionship.

If you were born on a February 19th, the astrological signs denote weakness of character, in spite of an exceptional intellect. You absorb information very easily. You never have to burn the midnight oil in order to learn. You, too, are very versatile, and, speaking generally, can do all things well. You are, however, too much swayed by outside influences, or by your environment, to "put your better foot forward." Purposefulness in life is lacking. You swim with the tide; never battle against it.

As a companion, you are delightful. You easily accommodate yourself to the whims and wishes of others. You never force them to adapt their ideas to yours. Contradiction and argument are never used by you as weapons. Your friends like you, but they do not ever seek your advice or counsel. They know you would only echo their own thoughts.

As a lover, you are very attractive. As a life-long mate, the party of the other part will soon tire of the glamor of a too-ready accquiescence and the absence of an honest different of opinion. Your innate charm, your all too willing complaisance, will, so the Stars say, earn for you a modicum of material success and an absence of disharmony. You will, however, never experience the thrill of a "go-getter," or a "Do-doer."

ADRIANOPLE FLOODED.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 17 (C.P.).—Adrianople, ancient capital of the Ottoman Empire and treasure house of Moslem architecture, has been flooded by the rising Maritza River, and three populous districts of the city have been evacuated.

Electricity has been cut off, for the central power house is flooded, and it was said that if the waters did not recede to-day or to-morrow the Simplon express and other important trains would be cut off.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

PREPARED BY THE REV. CLARENCE H. WILSON, D.D. FOR THE COMMISSION ON EVANGELISM OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

CHRISTIAN SONG

"My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour."—Luke 1:46 and 47. (Read Luke 1:48-55 and 68 to 79.)

Meditation

The "Beautiful Book" of St. Luke's gospel makes the Christian era to begin with a burst of song. In Acts and the Epistles there occur what seem to be snatches from early hymns. One of the earliest pagan reports about the Christians tells that they were accustomed to meet in the morning and sing hymns of praise to Christ. And the Church has sung its way down through the centuries. The great revivals have borne witness in song. What would John Wesley have been without his brother Charles? Or Moody without Sankey? How would our faith languish without its great, sweet hymns! When we are cast down these hymns lift us as on wings, when we are wayward they recall us to memories of better days. They express our joy, they comfort our sorrow. A singing faith is secure, it has the victory that overcomes the world.

Prayer

O God who has put melody in our hearts, we thank Thee for the songs that help us on our way. Keep us ever in this grace, we beseech thee. And when life grows dark about us, give us songs in the night. Amen.

SEVEN CENT SOCIAL SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Christ Church Y.P.C. Campbellford Sponsor Merry Evening—Over 100 Attend.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 19 (Examiner Staff Correspondence)—Fun and jollity was the order of the evening on Tuesday, when the seven cent social sponsored by the Young People's Club of Christ Church, Campbellford, and held in the Parish Hall, went over big with a registered attendance of over one hundred.

The program, which was under the direction of M. H. Sergeant, Jr., went along with a swing. Old-time and new dances were featured and several musical numbers presented, the latter including a banjo solo by Grant Morrison, and "Amos 'n' Andy" by Jim Dunn and Jack Brady with violin and guitar.

Those assisting with the music and to whom thanks are extended, were Mrs J. Benor, Grant Morrison, Peter Monaghan, Jim Dunn, Jack Brady, and Miss Lola MacPherson. Wilbert Reid and M. Runions were the official callers-off for the square dancing.

Between the program and the dancing a delightful lunch was served by the young people. This will be the last social activity of the club before Easter.

HIGH SCHOOL BOARD ELECTS OFFICERS

Chairman Ridpath Re-appointed in Lakefield—Dr. S. J. Gibson Re-elected to Board for 3 Years.

LAKEFIELD, February 19 (Examiner Correspondence)—The first regular meeting of the High School was held recently in the Council Chamber. The clerk reported that Dr. S. J. Gibson had been re-appointed to the Board for 1931, 1932, and 1933 by the County Council, while Dr. J. C. Smith had been re-appointed by the Village Council for the same period.

On motion, Mr. J. W. Ridpath was re-elected chairman of the Board, and Dr. S. J. Gibson vice-chairman.

Trustees Gibson, Wesley, Smith, and Dench were appointed to the Finance Committee.

Trustees Dench, Smith, Wagar, and Wesley were appointed to the Supervision Committee, the first-named acting as chairman.

Mr. Marling was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Board at the same salary as last year.

The report of the High School inspector was presented, also a letter of thanks from the secretary of the Literary Society for assistance to the conversat.

The Finance Committee presented their report, which was received and adopted. Accounts:

STUDY CLUB MEETS.

Campbellford Catholic Women's League Hears Interesting Travel Talks.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 18 (Examiner Staff Correspondence)—A meeting of the Study Club of the Catholic Women's League of Campbellford was held on Tuesday evening in their rooms in the Herold Block, with a good attendance present. The chief feature of this gathering was a series of interesting and instructive travel talks on some of the provinces of the Dominions. These were given by Mrs. G. O'Sullivan, Mrs. Charles Black, and Mrs. F. Lee.

Interspersed with the addresses were a piano solo by Mrs. Kerr and vocal solos by Mrs. O'Keefe, Miss Marie Crosson, and Miss Anderson.

USE WHEAT AND POTATOES TO MAKE RUBBER.

AKRON, Ohio, Feb. 17 (C.P.).—Use of farm products, such as wheat and potatoes, for the manufacture of rubber on a large scale is seen as a possibility by Professor H. E. Simmons, head of the department of chemistry of the University of Akron, if the rubber industry would pool its research activities.

TEXTILE TRADE

stituted an increase in the textile schedules which had been regarded by the agriculture interests as "somewhat extreme." The textile schedules had been raised, said Mr. Deachman, more than ever before. Since that increase there had been a decline in the value of agricultural products of 15.4 per cent. The price of Western grain had gone down 25 per cent. The price of textiles was down 4.7 per cent.

Bennett Speaks.

It was not very long before Mr. Deachman was checked by Mr. Bennett.

Counsel had said a firm called Courtaulds, had raised the price of yarns immediately after the passing of the tariff.

"What proof have you of that statement?" asked Mr. Bennett.

"I got the information from Canadian firms," answered Mr. Deachman.

"Why are they not here?" asked Mr. Bennett.

"They are afraid they may be subjected to persecution," Mr. Deachman answered.

"Then you are dealing with rumors," went on Mr. Bennett.

"No they are not rumors."

"It is the old story of the anonymous letter writer," the Premier returned.

Mr. Deachman produced a sample of cloth which he said had been made in England. The price of this cloth had been increased since the tariff of last fall went into effect, said Mr. Deachman.

"What proof have you of that?" Mr. Bennett queried.

"I will be quite frank with you," said Mr. Deachman. "I'll leave you the sample. You can investigate it if you like."

"But I am asking you. You are submitting hearsay as evidence," the Prime Minister went on.

Serious Position

"The position of agriculture in western Canada is serious" Mr. Deachman said.

"It is not so serious as in Argentine or Australia" interjected Mr. Bennett.

In Australia, replied Mr. Deachman, they had gone into an extreme tariff and the result was revealed in the condition of that country.

"What about Argentine?" Asked Mr Bennett.

Mr. Deachman retored that by jumping all over the globe it might be possible to find a country where there was a measure of prosperity.

Hon. C. H. Cahan remarked that everyone in Canada regretted the fall in wheat prices. But would Mr. Deachman suggest that because the farmers were suffering every other industry should be penalized.

Mr. Deachman retorted that when farmers were unable to sell their product was not an appropriate time to raise the duty on commodities they must use by 96 per cent. He was endeavoring to make a reasoned plea for agriculture.

"This isn't a reasoned plea for agriculture. It's a stump speech" Mr. Bennett said.

At another point Mr. Cahan protested against one of Mr. Deachman's statements.

"You are saying things in which there is no basis of fact" he told Mr. Deachman.

"That is hardly an answer I would expected from a Cabinet Minister" retorted counsel.

"Would you be prepared to have the tariff taken off wheat?" asked Mr. Bennett.

"Yes" said Mr. Deachman.

"Off eggs, butter, cheese?"

"Yes".

St. Patrick's Day Has "Wet" Signs

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 19.—(AP)—If a bill introduced in the Dail today passes before March 17 citizens of the Saorstat will be able to observe the ancient custom of "drowning the Shamrock" in alcoholic beverage this Saint Patrick's Day.

During recent years there has been prohibition over St. Patrick's Day, Good Friday and Christmas, but the new bill would permit licensed houses to remain open for two hours on Saint Patrick's Day.

NEW YORK MARKET RETURNS TO QUIET BUT STEADY TRADE

Steels, Coppers, Utilities and Miscellaneous Industrials Made Moderate Progress.

RAILS HOLD BACK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The stock market settled down to a quiet, orderly upturn to-day.

Bulls appeared to have been tamed by recent setbacks, and willing to proceed at a pace more in keeping with the moderate pace of business recovery. It has been no secret in Wall Street that conservative banking interests viewed the tendency to stir up a widespread fever of speculation at this time as unhealthy, and some observers express the opinion that blocks of stock were dropped upon the market earlier in the week as a warning to over-zealous bulls.

Steels, coppers, utilities, food shares and miscellaneous industrials made moderate progress. Rails and oils were still inclined to hold back. U.S. Steel, Republic, Otis, Colorado Fuel and Buyers gained 2 points or more and Inland, Bethlehem and others were firm.

TORONTO MART PUSHES AHEAD

International Nickel and Noranda Are Outstanding Issues of Session.

BRAZILIAN EQUALS HIGH.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19. (CP)—Strong, but not overly active, the Toronto Stock Exchange market this morning pursued the upward course of earlier this week.

Outstanding this morning, were Nickel and Noranda and these issues really gave to the market its tone. Nickel advanced to a new high for the year at 17¾, while Noranda sold up to approximately its former top of 18.

Brazilian got up to 26 3-8, which compares with its 1931 high of 26½. Ford of Canada, was slightly easier at 26½ and Bell Telephone eased again, selling under 149 at times.

Consolidated Smelters shot up again, registering again of 8 points to day and setting a record price of 165 for this year. Oils were quiet, mostly unchanged. Liquor stocks continued to seell at the same levels. Steels and foods were inactive.

BROADCASTING QUESTIONS READY

Will Be Submitted By Dominion Gov't to Supreme Court For Decision.

LIST GIVEN OUT.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 19 (C.P.) — Questions contained in the reference on radio broadcasting which are being submitted by the Dominion Government to the Supreme Court of Canada for decision were announced early this afternoon. The reference for adjudication on the respective rights of the Dominion and the Province is formulated as follows:

1. Has the Parliament of Canada jurisdiction to regulate and control radio communication, including the transmission and reception of signs, signals, pictures and sounds of all kinds by means of Hertzian waves, and including the right to determine the character, use and location of apparatus employed?

2. If not, in what particular or particulars or to what extent is the jurisdiction of Parliament limited?

Received Application March 3.

March 3 has been set as the day on which the Supreme Court will receive an application to inscribe the reference for hearing and to decide on what date the reference will be argued before the court. Instructions were given to F. P. Varcoe, legal officer of the Justice Department by acting Chief Justice L. P. Duff, of the Supreme Court, to notify Attorneys General of the various provinces of the terms of the reference.

Decision to place the reference before a Supreme Court was given official sanction by an order-in-council.

Baby Runs Gamut Sees Famous Pianist

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Feb. 19. Ignace Jan Paderewski couldn't be seen.

Reception committees, public officials and musicians were kept out of the private car in which the maestro lives, by a vigilant retinue.

But the gray shaggy head was bowed in grave surrender to a wide-eyed little girl yesterday. Martha Anne Holmes, 3-years-old, just walked calmly past servants and attendants to a room in which Paderewski was eating luncheon and presented him with a big red apple.

ON EQUAL TERMS.

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19. (Special to Examiner.)—Improved copper prices for both foreign and domestic account is attributed in part to the announcement that the Pennsylvania and other eastern railroads are pushing forward their electrification programs in order to take advantage of low material prices, particularly for the red metal. There appears to be a general change for the better in the commodity picture, and the belief is expressed that plans which have been awaiting a more stable condition in commodity markets may now be implemented.

Notices of annual meetings of mining companies are beginning to make their appearance in increasing numbers. The fourth annual general meeting of shareholders of Waite Ackerman Montgomery mines will be held in the King Edward Hotel on Monday, March 2. The Barry Hollinger annual general meeting has been called for Wednesday, March 4, in the Prince George Hotel, reports of officials and the financial statement will be submitted at the latter gathering.

According to visitors from the camp there are about sixty men working on the Ashley property of Mining Corporation in Bannockburn township. Operations consist of clearing, construction and surface work, and quantities of equipment are being teamed in daily from Elk Lake. Several parties are working on other properties in the vicinity preparing for an early start this spring, and an unusually active season is anticipated for the district. A number of the older companies are believed to be planning a resumption of operations this year.

Staking Continues.

There is still a lot of staking going on, particularly in Hincks and Montrose townships to the west, and Argyle is reported to be tied up almost solid, right through from Bannockburn to McNeil on the north. Parties of prospectors and mining men are going in and out steadily. J. Benson of Elk Lake is operating a snowmobile equipped with skiis in front and tractor drive, and is covering the 28 miles from Elk Lake to Moyneurs in two hours, making several trips each day.

Bobjo is reported to have acquired a group of nine claims a short distance south of the Ashley property in Bannockburn. Work is being started at once, equipment to be brought out from the company's original property in the Patricia district. Ten men will be employed, and camps are to be built and surface exploration begun as quickly as possible.

Chibougamau prospectors has arranged for sufficient funds to run operations for the next year, it is learned. Work will begin as soon as definite announcement regarding construction of the railroad plinto the district is made. It is understood that tentative plans for a 500 ton mill are under consideration by Ventures for their Opemiska Lake property and that decision in this regard also awaits the railroad announcement.

Dominion Explorers and Thayer Lindsley have taken over the McDonough claims at Great Bear Lake adjoining the Eldorado Gold Mines 'radium' group the Northern Miner reports. No details of the deal are available as yet, but it is understood the McDonough group have some of the showings of radio active minerals that have caused so much discussion the last few months.

TWO BARRISTERS FORFEIT CALLING

J. C. Hamilton, M. W. McEwen Struck Off Rules by Benchers of Law Society.

PROFESSIONAL MISCONDUCT

TORONTO, Ont., February 19 (C.P.). — John C. Hamilton, of Listowel, Ont., and M. W. McEwen, of Brantford, were struck off the rolls of the barristers and solicitors of Ontario by Benchers of the Upper Canada Law Society sitting in convocation at Osgoode Hall to-day.

"Professional misconduct" to a barrister or solicitor was the reason given in each case.

McEwen was convicted in January at Brantford, Ont., on five charges of theft, and sentenced to two years less one day on each charge, sentences to run concurrently. Hamilton was convicted on charges of fraud and false pretences in connection with land transactions.

Ships Meet, One Sinks Crew Reaches Shore

ST. JUST, Cornwall, England, Feb. 19 (C.P.).—All hands in a crew of 29 were saved from the Greek steamer Theotokos which sank after collision with an unidentified steamer off Land's End last night.

The crew took to the boats and 13 men in the first boat landed on the beach here early this morning. For a while there was some anxiety for the other 16, but the second boat came in and the castaways went on to Penzance by automobile.

ITALY WELCOMES BALBO

GENOA, Feb. 19. (AP)—General Italo Balbo who led a squadron of airplanes from Italy to Brazil, came home in triumph to-day aboard the steamer Conte Rosso. He and his forty-seven companions were greeted by a wildly cheering crowd.

GENERAL LIST IRREGULAR IN QUITE TRADING

Noranda Leads Upturn on Standard With Price Touching $18.

NICKEL GAINS HALF.

Gold Section Holds Dull, Lake Shore Eases 15 to $26.10.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19. (CP)—Another quarter-cent increase in the price of domestic and export copper was reflected in strength among base metals on the mining market in the forenoon to-day. Balance of the list was irregular in relatively quiet turnover.

Noranda was a leader in the upturn, price touching $18 and standing up three-quarters from last night at $17.75 when taken. International Nickel gained a half to $17.25 and Hudson Bay 15 to $5.50. Base metals advanced 5 to $1.10 while Lindsleys were firm. Abana, whose annual meeting is being held in Montreal to-day, is off 3 to 16.

Golds were dull, Lake Shore dividend of 30 cents per share was declared, but the stock eased 15 to $26.10. Bidgood, Ritchie, Dominion Explorers and Sylvanite sold slightly higher, and Premier was up a couple to 74.

Home oil was unuausly soft in the oil section, dropping 7 from last night to $1.43. Balance of the group was steady.

Grain Averages Lower On Weather Reports

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. (CP)—Moist weather benefitting domestic winter crop regions eased grain prices down early to-day. Lower quotations on wheat at Liverpool, acted as an additional bearish influence together with forecasts of enlarged shipments from Argentina. Opening unchanged to ¼-3-8 cents off, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started unchanged to 5-8 lower and subsequently held near to the initial limits.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The local wheat market was very quiet yesterday with prices fluctuating within a range of less than one cent, being half lower to ¼ higher. While the demand appeared to be very limited, there was no selling pressure and everybody appeared to be waiting for further developments. Export sales over night were very limited but there was business working during the day and possibly sales in all positions totalled around 750,000 bushels about 250,000 being worked through Vancouver and the balance from the Atlantic Coast, Greece taking 300,000 bushels this A.M. However this business had little effect on the market, the demand being satisfied without raising prices. Liverpool market was steady throughout, closing unchanged to 1-8 higher, while Buenos Aires opened and remained ½ higher up till 3 p.m.

Broomhall reported Canadian and Argentine C.I.F. offers were higher but the millers demand was not so aggressive, and a cargo of New South Wales wheat for prompt shipment was sold as low as 63¾ cents C.I.F. Liverpool. Some beneficial rains were reported in Northern Indian while the weather is still unsettled in parts of the United States winter wheat belt.

Country marketings in Western Canada Tuesday were 277,000 bushels as against 267,000 a year ago.

Coarse Grains.—These markets held firm but a very small business is passing. There is no pressure on the futures or cash markets but only odd cars oats and barley are being worked for domestic purposes.

Liverpool Cables due unchanged to 1-8 lower based on Winn peg.

Strong Tone Shown On Montreal List

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 19.—The Montreal stock market showed a strong tone at noon to-day, with Smelters leading the upward trend with a gain of 14 points over yesterday's close, selling at 170 at noon.

Montreal power moved up 2½ points to 59½ and Quebec Power was up 2½ at 43½. British Columbia Power, Abitibi, Power Corporation and Viau Biscuit were all up a point. Abitibi, Sugar and Nickel moved up ¾ each. National Breweries Brazilian Traction and Gurd were up ½ each.

Wabasso Cotton appeared on the board at 30, down 5 from the last sale.

LAST THREE MINISTERS TAKE OATH IN SPAIN'S NEW AZNAR CABINET

Sailor Premier Claims He Feels Lost in Political Position.

MADRID REMAINS QUIET.

MADRID, Feb. 19. (A.P.)—Premier Aznar's new cabinet to-day completed the details of taking over the Government with the administration of the oath to three ministers who were not sworn in yesterday. The cabinet will have its first formal meeting at five o'clock this evening.

The city remained calm although reports persisted that the Socialists might attempt a general strike. On the whole the general attitude of the people seemed to be one of watchful waiting.

Jose Antonio Sanchez Guerra, who failed to form a Government, was ill to-day at his home and Francisco Cambo the Catalan political leader who supports the new government, also was ill though not seriously at a hotel here.

Not At Home Yet.

Juan Bautista Aznar has spent his life in serving Spain as a sailor and he is not at home yet in his new capacity as Premier.

'Look here," he told the Associated Press correspondent to-day, "I've said too much already. I'm no practical politician, and I'm not the head of any political party. I'm just a sailor and I always have been."

The Admiral is a man of few words, friendly enough to newspaper men but not accustomed to granting interviews.

"I never have engaged in politics," said he, "and I don't know how to go about it now. I was called by my King for this particular service at this particular time and of course I responded and I'm trying to do everything I can for my King and my country.

"My program is the re-establishment in all Spain of constitutional and legal normalcy by which I hope to restore peace. I can't say anything more in detail because we are a coalition government in which each party chief has his own ideas and we have yet to exchange ideas in formal meetings, to weld them together and to work out for policies.

"I am so far outside the world of politics that when I was called from the Cartagena naval base to see the King I did not know why."

INTERNATIONAL PAPER and POWER COMPANY

Owned, including subsidiaries, by 79,000 shareholders in Canada, Great Britain and the United States. The Company's securities are listed and traded in on the Montreal and New York Stock Exchanges.

PIONEER HYDRO-ELECTRIC ENTERPRISE on the Saint John River, and the largest in the Maritime Provinces, International's development at Grand Falls is a substantial factor in keeping New Brunswick abreast the steady growth of Canadian industry.

For more than thirty years seemingly insurmountable obstacles blocked the development of Grand Falls. Finally, in 1926, the co-operation of five sovereignties—the Dominion of Canada, the United States, the Provinces of New Brunswick and Quebec, and the State of Maine—made it possible for International to harness this long-wasted power. Two years later, the first generator in an 80,000 horsepower plant took up the service of New Brunswick industry; by another year, two additional units were in operation; and the fourth 20,000 horsepower unit now nears completion.

Power from Grand Falls is now utilized, under long-term contracts, by the Fraser Companies Limited, at Edmunston, and New Brunswick International Paper Company, at Dalhousie. In addition, Saint John River Power Company has contracts with the municipalities of Grand Falls and Dalhousie, and serves St. Leonards.

Including its new Dalhousie newsprint mill, International has expended more than $25,000,000 in the development of New Brunswick industry.

What International Paper and Power Company is, who owns it, what are its policies and where and of what nature its undertakings, is being told in a series of advertisements, of which this is the ninth.

BRINTON CARPET COMPANY MAKES FINEST OF RUGS AND CARPETS TRIP THROUGH PLANT REVEALS

Difference in Types of Sarouks Seen in Processes of Manufacture.

WELL-EQUIPPED PLANT.

Large Skeins of Woollen Yarn Are First Thoroughly Washed.

The manufacture of Sarouk carpets and rugs, from the woollen yarn to the finished product, is one of the most fascinating to the onlooker, so thought an Examiner reporter on a recent tour of the Brinton Peterborough Carpet Company with M. L. Sweetman, works manager, and J. W. Jackson, superintendent of the plant.

The difference in the types of Sarouks may easily be seen in the processes of manufacture. The Super Sarouk differs from the Sarouk in that the former has a deeper pile. The Royal Sarouk is made from lustre yarn which has been subjected to a more rigorous process of dyeing and finishing.

Large skeins of woollen yarn are first thoroughly washed in order to take out the oil and grease, and to allow the wool to take the dyes as perfectly as possible. For ordinary dyeing purposes 65 colors are used, and for lustre yarns 15 extra chrome pigments are employed. The proper dyes are selected and mixed according to weight. The mixture is then placed in a vat containing the boiling water, and the yarn is added.

There are three types of vats in the Brinton factory. The first one has a capacity of 150 pounds of yarn, and the dyeing process is accomplished by a revolving arm on which the wool is ranged. Another vat has a capacity of 400 pounds, but the wool is stationary and the boiling water is shot through. The largest vat in the plant is the one which holds 1,200 pounds of yarn which is also dyed by the means of water under pressure. This dyer with its load has a weight of 8,000 pounds, which is lifted by an air hoist.

Continual Dyeing

The woollen yarn in these vats is dyed very gradually, and often necessitates five hours of continual dyeing. The lustre yarn which is used in the making of Royal Sarouks is given far more attention, and when dyeing is complete the colors will not fade either by washing or chemicals.

When the dyeing process is completed, the wool is taken from the vats and placed in a revolving drum to extract the water. The drum is perforated all round the side, and the water is squeezed through the apertures. It revolves at the rate of 2,200 revolutions per minute. Wool which weighs 25 pounds before this wringing process, weighs only 10 pounds after it.

The wool is then placed in a drying chamber whose temperature ranges from 180 to 240 degrees. A fan takes out the moisture, and the dried yarn has an evenly dyed appearance and a harsh texture. Four thousand pounds of wool are dyed in a day.

The various designs and color combinations of the Sarouks are in the hands of experienced designers. The pattern is traced out on squared paper, each square representing a tuft of wool. The designs are then cut into cards, and these are perforated according to the desired colors. The cards are laced together and sent to the looms for weaving.

There are 18 machines for the manufacture of Sarouk carpets and rugs. These looms turn out products of 9/12, 12/12, 18/12, 27/12 and 36/12 yard widths. The 36/12 or 3-yard loom requires 756 tufts to make up the width. These tufts are arranged between slender perpendicular bars. Between each pair of bars are ranged eight colors of wool, one above the other. Every tuft is fed by a spool, and all of the spools, 6,048 in all (or the multiple of 756 tufts and 8 colors), are arranged on a series of long frames behind the loom. The color of each tuft is decided in much the same manner as each note is selected by a player piano roll, only in the case of carpet manufacturing the perforated laced cards are used.

The weaving of the body work of the rug is much the same as that of cloth, except that in the former case the tufts (or pile) is included. Each tuft is hooked around a thread of the warp. The shuttle which carries the wool through the other threads is replaced by a long cylinder arm. The wool is carried through the warp three times, the position of the latter being changed each time. Eight such "rows" are made a minute. It is very interesting to watch the tweezers each take out a tuft, to look along the line of tufts and see the various colors, and finally to notice the design being gradually formed as the weaving continues. The loom is capable of turning out two 9 x 12 foot rugs per day, and requires only one man to operate.

However wonderful the loom may be, there are a few tufts throughout the rug which are missing or are defective. For this reason, the rug passes from the loom to the finishing off tables. The defective threads are put in or replaced by hand, and the rug is passed to the cleaners.

Cleaning Process

The cleaning process consists of a steam treatment whereby the colors are brought out to their proper brilliancy. At the same time the rug generally ranges from 5 to 10 pounds per square inch. The material is then passed from the steam chamber to a large drum which rotates slowly and dries the rug or carpet.

So far the rug has a rather rough surface and the color scheme is somewhat impaired by the slight irregularities of the surface. To remedy this, a pile of a definite depth is produced. The process is done by a machine which resembles a lawn mower. Curved blades are set on a cylinder which revolves at the rate of 400 revolutions per minute. A stationary blade, which howeveris adjustable to obtain the desired depth of pile, is set against the surface of the rug. This "shearing" gives the rug or carpet a much fresher appearance, and does full justice to the color scheme and design.

The Sarouks and Super Sarouks are then sent down to the shipping room to be labelled, rolled and wrapped for shipment.

The Royal Sarouks are sent to an Armenian artisan in Toronto to be given the original Persian treatment, which is a secret to any other than an Oriental. The treatment is accomplished by a mixture of caustic soda, acetic acid, and other chemicals in certain proportions. However, the result of the treatment is a very aesthetic one. It gives the rug a satin sheen and a richness incomparable with any other rug in the world. The chemicals used serve to preserve the freshness and beauty of the rug, and protect the pile from becoming worn or shabby in places.

The original Sarouks were made by hand, but such is the marvel of modern machinery that exactly the same effect has been achieved by the use of this machinery, and the finishing touches to the Royal Sarouks are accomplished by the old Persian methods.

Good Voice Essential For Public Speaking

MONTREAL, Feb. 19 (C.P.)—A good voice, presence of mind, familiarity with the subject and the ability to thrust and parry are essential in public speaking, R. S. White, M.P., told the Central Y.M.C.A. Spoke Club recently.

"The most difficult thing in public speaking is to feel at home on your feet. When you can think on your feet, you will make a success," Mr. White said. "I recall many instances where a speaker was left with an audience of only a few members in the House because his remarks were not well directed."

Mr. White said that in his early days in Parliament the franchise was greatly restricted. He told of an incident where he had heard Sir John A. Macdonald say that he would rather cut off his right ear than grant universal suffrage.

SCREEN CLOWN VISITS LONDON

TREMENDOUS WELCOME.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—A shy little man with eloquent feet was Great Britain's hero to-day. It was Charlie Chaplin, of course, coming home for the second time since he left his London attic to seek his fortune twenty years ago.

Ever since it became known that h. was returning, the newspapers have maintained a barrage about him and to-day they followed him with bulletins from his ship to London. A tremendous welcome began the moment he stepped off the boat at Plymouth and it continued as the boat train sped through the neat countryside on a schedule the movie fans knew by heart.

Chaplin was in holiday mood, parading before the cameras at Plymouth with Captain Campbell, the automobile racer, and Steve Donoghue, the great jockey.

Great Britain had more heroes than she knew what to do with today as Chaplin and Campbell came in together. Captain Campbell went from Plymouth to Southampton where an official welcome had been arranged.

He said he would go after a new speed record if the one he set at Daytona is broken.

Committee Starts Work To Aid Farmers

TORONTO, Feb. 19. — Intimation was had yesterday from Premier George S. Henry, that the Agriculture Committee, which begins its Legislature deliberations this morning—two weeks in advance of the other House committees—will probably function this session as an evidence-taking inquiry body, practically along the lines advocated by Liberal House Leader Sinclair in his "help for the farm and farmer" speech of Tuesday.

"We have had the matter under consideration for some time," said the Prime Minister, "and it is altogether likely that the committee will invoke its present powers to make investigations that will be of real benefit to the agriculturist."

Mr. Henry further intimated that farmers of districts particularly hard hit by the depression period—any one, in fact, who could throw some light on solutions of farm problems—might be asked to appear before the committee and state their cases, in the hope that the committee could make to the House, at an early date, recommendations that could be legislated into operation with the least possible delay.

Maid Takes Hubby; Proves Some Catch

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 19. (C.P.) — Miss Jessie Jones, of Glenolden, a suburb, got married last night.

Without committing bigamy, she wed the Chief of Police, the Fire Chief, the Building Inspector, the Director of Street Cleaning, the Dog Catcher, the head of the Bureau of Licenses and the Highways Engineer of the adjoining borough of Milbourne.

To do this she merely married Sam Taggart, who holds all those jobs with a couple of others.

MARMORA CLUB PUTS ON PROGRAM

President C. H. Buskard of St. Paul's Men's Organization is Made Presentation.

MARMORA, Feb. 19. (Examiner Correspondence.)—Following attendance at the Lenten service at St. Paul's Church on Wednesday, the members of the Men's Club repaired to the White Hall for their regular bi-monthly meeting.

During the business session, the gift of two song books was made by one of the members. President C. H. Buskard then turned the meeting over to the program committee and the following excellent program was rendered with A. V. Yates deputising for the Rev. M. J. C. Levason, as pianist.

Community singing, violin solo, "Berceuse," T. L. Jones reading, "Spoonerisms," W. J. Cottrell, song, "When the organ played at twilight," J. Hart Jr. Talk, "Canada," H. W. Sabine, song "The Trumpeter", L. R. Rundle, Concertina Selections, 'Danny Boy", "The road to the isles" and "The Bonnie banks of Loch Lomond", J. Hart Jr. violin solo, "Intermezzo from Cavalleria" Rusticana," T. L. Jones.

The address of Mr. Sabine in which he viewed Canada's future with great optimism was eagerly followed by the good attendance present, at the next meeting the guest speaker will be Rev. P. C. Howard, rector of Havelock, who, the same evening will be the special preacher at St. Paul's Church.

QUEBEC BEARS PRINT OF MEDIAEVAL DAYS

Principle of Votes for Women Sanctioned by Pope in 13th Century.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—(The Canadian Press).—The Province of Quebec bears the print of mediaeval days more heavily than most places in the world, Prof. W. T. Haugh, chairman of the department of history at McGill University, told the Montreal Women's Club in a recent address on "Our Debt to the Middle Ages". While England, France and Germany shared such legacies of the Middle Ages as the mariner's compass, chimneys and universities, Quebec retained to a unique extent the full flavor of mediaevalism in its many monastic establishments and in the Roman Church, Prof. Waugh declared.

In fact, it would appear that the Province aspires to be even darker than these so-called Dark Ages, for the speaker pointed out that Innocent IV, a Pope of the 13th century who celebrated for his legal knowledge, fully sanctioned the principle of votes for women. Women do not vote in provincial elections in Quebec

MRS. HARRY DOWNS.

FENELLA, Feb. 19. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The funeral service of the late Mrs. Harry Downs, of Burnley, who died on Sunday morning after a short illness, was held on Tuesday afternoon.

The service at the home and at the graveside, was conducted by Rev. R. W. Paton, who read the twenty third psalm, and basing his remarks on this portion of scripture, spoke words of comfort to the bereaved. Mrs. Downs was a lady of fine sterling character, who will be sadly mourned, not only in the home that is now bereft of wife and mother, but by sorrowing friends and neighbors.

Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Hilton, Walter and Elmer. She is also survived by her aged mother, Mrs. John Graham, Fenella, one sister, Mrs. Sylvester Elder, of Fenella and three brothers, Wilbert of Bomanton and Hilton and Victor of Harwood. One brother Edgar, died while serving overseas. The casket was covered with beautiful floral offerings. The following acted as pall bearers: Bert Wilson, Earl Boyle, Charles Fanning, James Noonan, William Masters and Louis Lockhart. Interment was in Bethany (Macklins) cemetery Mrs. Downs was thirty nine years of age.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Graham and two sons, and Mr. and Mrs. George Black, of Precious Corners.

Last year 18,651 tourists visited the Hawaiian islands.

Miss Sarah Smith Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples.

"My trouble began as a rash of small pimples which later formed larger ones that were hard and red. They affected my face and back. The pimples festered and scaled over, and my clothing aggravated the ones on my back. They were very itchy and sometimes the irritation prevented me from sleeping. They caused disfigurement and lasted about two years.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Sarah Smith, Tantallon, Sask., July 13, 1929.

Congregational Socials Planned For Norham

NORHAM, Feb. 19 (Examiner Correspondence)—Plans were made at the recent congregational meeting of Norham United Church for a series of congregational socials to be held in the church hall every two weeks, the ladies and gentlemen to alternate in preparing the programs.

The first of these series was held on Friday evening under the leadership of the ladies in the form of a crockinole party. There were about eighty present and nineteen tables of crockinole were played with Mrs. Isaac and Mrs. David Evans in charge.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Harry Wilson and Austin Huycke, Annie McCubbin and Earl Clare.

U.S. Immigration Men Checking Up At Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., February 19 (C.P.). — Five Immigration Department officials from Washington under A. R. Archibald, are here checking up on Canadian commuters preparatory to denying border crossing privileges to those who are unemployed. The officials were stationed at the international bridges and questioned each person who crossed from Canada.

Usually about 1,200 Canadians commute to this city to work daily, but this number has been reduced to about six hundred by unemployment conditions. The other six hundred face the probability of being barred for one year.

Similar action by the Immigration Department at Detroit recently brought a storm of protest.

COLLEGE YOUTHS END TOUR BROKE

WORK OUT PASSAGE.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 19.— The Royal road to romance, which was to have been the footpath for a walking trip around the world, described something of a shortened circle for two Northwestern University graduates arriving here yesterday as stowaways aboard the British steamer Chinese Prince.

The youths, William Moss of Detroit, and Joseph Bain of Brooklyn, sailed from New York last June after being graduated from Northwestern on an announced circumambulation of the globe. They hitch-hiked through France, Spain and Italy in the approved college boy fashion. But their funds gave out, and appeals to home met with stern refusal so they were obliged to stowaway on an American bound ship in Naples which landed them nc. far from their embarkation point. They worked out their passage.

MEXICAN GENERAL BECOMES FARMER

General Escoban Plans to Return to Soil in Quebec Province.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19 (C.P.)—While aftermaths of the Mexican revolution of 1929 again engage the attention of local lawyers, the leader of that uprising, General Jose Gonzales Escobar, is quietly completing his plans to "go on the land" in this province as a gentleman farmer.

In spite of the unpleasant incident of a few weeks ago, when unsuccessful attempts were made to extradite him to the United States, General Escobar has acquired a great liking for Canada in the past year and is firmly resolved to make it his permanent home. That incident culminated very happily for the general who was reunited with his lovely wife.

Having determined to stay in Canada, General Escobar abandoned his first idea of going into business here and decided to become the type of settler Canada is most eager to secure—the farmer. Of course his plans are still indefinite, but it is understood that he will take up land in the Province of Quebec in the spring and start agricultural operations with the aid of a trained agrarian.

Meanwhile, three actions for amounts totalling over $112,000 are entered against him in the Superior Court, the plaintiffs being three El Paso merchants who supplied goods to the rebel army two years ago. General Escobar is not at all worried over the new legal developments. He is convinced that he has weathered the worst of his storms and looks forward to a peaceful life as a gentleman farmer in Canada, with military glories and dangers forever things of the past.

EUROPE VISITED BY KING WINTER

Gales Buffet North Sea Shipping—Spain Under Snow.

TURKEY FEELS COLD SPELL.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Much of Europe today was in the grip of winter weather with extremely low temperatures and considerable snow. In some of the northern districts highway traffic was greatly impeded by drifts which stalled motorcars.

A northeasterly gale raised dangerous seas in the North Sea and about the eastern and southeastern coasts of England, although the British Isles escaped the extremities of the continental weather.

Half of the steamer Nurtureton, which stranded and was bisected off Dungeness aJnuary 5 broke away from tugs while being towed toward the Thames today and had to anchor off Deal and await cessation of the gale.

Reports here today said that the steamer St. Cyrille was in distress late yesterday off Brest in a gale. There was no word as to how she made out.

Northern Spain is under snow and trains and other transport services have been delayed in Northern Italy with even Southern Italy suffering with the bad weather. Belgium and Turkey are undergoing an excessively cold spell.

AGRICULTURAL INDUSTRY SHOULD BE REPRESENTED ON C.N.R. BOARD

Much of Revenue Derived By Railway is From Farmers of Dominion.

HAVE 2 REPRESENTATIVES.

Resolution Passed at Regular Meeting of Douro Township Council.

DOURO, Feb. 19 (Examiner Correspondence)—Douro Council met on Tuesday, February 17 with Reeve J. J. Leahy and Councillors H. Quinn, R. Bolton, J. Mahoney and W. Hayes present.

The following resolution was drafted and two copies were ordered to be typed and mailed to the Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, and one to the local member of the House of Commons, E. A. Peck, M.P.:

"Be it resolved that the Township Council of Douro hereby go on record in voicing the general opinion of our ratepayers in the following resolution:

"Whereas the Canadian National Railway is a public owned concern depending to a large extent (upon the products of the farm when moved by rail, also upon farm machinery, manufactured food stuffs, building supplies and other articles too numerous to mention when being shipped back to the farms) for supplying revenue to this great national railroad. And whereas the present directorate consists entirely of men in different professions and business interests distinctly separate from agriculture, from which originates such a large percentage of its transportation.

"We therefore suggest and very strongly urge that at the earliest possible opportunity which we believe is not far distant, that at least two capable and direct agricultural representatives be placed on this very important board, and would recommend that they be chosen one from the east and one from the western part of our fair Dominion."

J. J. Leahy, Reeve,
R. Bolton,
H. A. Quinn,
William Hayes,
J. Mahoney,
P. G. Towns, treasurer,
J. J. Coughlin, clerk.

Clerk Appointed

On motion of R. Bolton and H. Quinn, John J. Coughlin was appointed clerk for 1931 at a salary of $150 and the usual extras. Those who voted in favor of this were Messrs. Bolton, Quinn and Leahy with Mahoney and Hayes against.

J. Mahoney and W. Hayes moved that the salary be $200 with usual extras and that Frank D. Leahy be appointed. This was lost, the members voting the same as before.

On motion of J. J. Leahy and R. Bolton, F. D. Leahy was authorized to hand over all books and papers in connection with the office of clerk to John J. Coughlin and that Mr. Coughlin give a receipt for the same.

A by-law was authorized to be drawn up appointing John J. Coughlin as clerk.

At a meeting of the council held the week previous, A. J. Moher was appointed assessor for 1931 at a salary of $80 and postage. It will also be part of the assessor's duties to make bull census as asked for by J. B. Nelson, Agriculutural Representative.

On motion of J. Mahoney and W. Hayes, James Leahy was appointed caretaker of the Town Hall at a salary of $10 per year.

The following accounts were ordered paid: Dan Maloney, 3 sheep injured by dogs, $27; Municipal World, dog tags, statements, sales tax, and postage, $11.72; Declaration of office and sheep valuer forms, 71 cents; F. D. Leahy, registrations of B.M. and D., $8.50; G. G. Connel, rebate of dog tax, $2; Merchant's Press, 1% sales tax on $50, 50 cents; P. G. Towns, telephone, 90 cents; P. G. Towns, provisions, $9.18; and $13.73; M. Condon and O. Douglas salary as auditors, $12.50 each; P. G. Towns, foolscap, 25 cents; C. Bolton, wood for relief $29.

On motion of W. Hayes and J. Mahoney the wage rate for 1931 was set at $4 per day ten hour day for man and team and $2 per ten hour day for man.

P. G. Towns was appointed temporary clerk for the meeting on Tuesday and Howard Quinn for the meeting the previous week.

B. Huycke, $20.25; Bank of Montreal, $9.

NORHAM

The members of the Boys' Junior Class of the Norham Sunday School were entertained at a Valentine party at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Douglas Knight on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Knight has a full program of sports and games and a most enjoyable time was spent.

The pupils of Norham School had to re-arrange their plans on Friday owing to the thaw. The arrangements had been to end the valentine party with a sleighing party on Sand Hill. Instead an impromptu program consisting of school singing, a geography match and an interesting reading by the teacher was given before the distribution of the valentines.

TWEED, Feb. 19 (Examiner Correspondence)—The death on Friday, February 13, of Mrs. D. Larkins removed a highly respected resident of Tweed in her 84th year.

She is survived by her husband, four daughters and two sons.

The funeral was held on Monday from her late residence to St. Carthagh Church where Requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Dean O'Riordan. Burial was made in St. Carthagh Cemetery.

If Ruptured Try This Free

Apply It to Any Rupture, Old or Recent, Large or Small, and You Are on the Road That has Convinced Thousands.

Sent Free To Prove This

Every ruptured man or woman should write at once to W. S. Rice, 1282-S Main Street, Adams, N.Y. for a free trial of his wonderful Method. Just put it on the rupture and the opening closes naturally so the need of a support or truss or appliance is eventually done away with. Don't neglect to send for the free trial of this Stimulating Application. What is the use of wearing supports all your life, if you don't have to? Why run the risk of gangrene and such dangers from a small and innocent little rupture, the kind that has thrown thousands on the operating table? A host of men and women are daily running such risk just because their ruptures do not hurt or prevent them from getting around. Write at once for this free trial as it is certainly a wonderful thing and has aided in healing ruptures that were as big as a man's two fists. Try and write at once to W. S. Rice, Inc., 1282-S, Main Street, Adams, N.Y.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, February 19.—Bearish domestic crop reports, and pressure upon elevators to furnish storage space for wheat tended to bring about lower prices on grains yesterday. A further handicap to upturns was scant export demand for North American wheat. Reassuring advices that Russia would not be a large exporter of wheat led to price rallies only of a transient nature.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼c lower to a shade up; corn, ⅛c to ⅜c down; oats at a shade decline to ⅜c gain; and provisions 2c to 20c off.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19. — Egg prices advanced and potatoes declined, while butter and cheese were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Carlot prices of fresh eggs gained 1c a dozen, extras being quoted at 31c to 32c, firsts and pullet extras at 27c to 28c, and seconds at 21c a dozen. Storage firsts were 18c to 19c and seconds 16c to 17c a dozen. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 680 cases.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots, lost 5c at 70c to 75c per 90 lbs. bulk, while to retailers prices were unchanged at 80c to 85c per 80-lb bag.

On the butter market No. 1 pasteurized was quoted at 32c for Western and 32¼c a lb. for Eastern Townships. To retailers solids were 34c and prints 35c a lb. Receipts were 45 boxes.

There were no receipts of cheese here yesterday and prices were unchanged. Winter white was quoted at 12c, colored at 14¾c to 15c, and summer cheese at 15½c to 16c a lb.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 19. — Price fluctuations in yesterday's wheat pit were carried on within an extremely narrow range in a market devoid of feature. Prices at close of trading were unchanged to ⅛c lower.

The session was a dull affair. Exporters reported a fair inquiry for Canadian wheat, but the business done was not large.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Covered With Boils on Arms, Back and Neck

Miss Margaret Higgins, Dyment, Ont., writes:—"I was covered with boils on my arms, face and neck. I used plasters and other remedies with no results. My attention was drawn to Burdock Blood Bitters, so I decided to get a bottle. The results were marvellous, as in no time the boils had completely disappeared, and my skin was clearer and fresher than ever."

TEACHERS' PROBLEM IS AN ACUTE ONE

Questions of Application For Schools Discussed By Quebec Teacher.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19 (C.P.)—A problem which confronts the teacher in towns and rural communities is set forth by Miss Alice Dresser, of Richmond, Qut., a teacher, who is provincial convenor of the legislation committee of the Quebec Women's Institutes. She writes: "As the season when school boards engage their teachers draws near, an oft-debated question arises: 'Has a teacher the right to apply for more than one position?' Members of school boards in most cases answer, 'No.' From many teachers the answer is, 'Yes.'

"Miss Brown reads a list of advertisements for teachers. She answers three of these, applying for the position each offers. In due time she receives a favorable reply from one school board. Her application is accepted, and she signs her contract. The other two school boards also decide to engage her, but are notified that she already has a position. They miss the opportunity of securing another teacher and feel that they have been treated unfairly.

"Miss Smith is more conscientious. She, too, sees the list of advertisements, but answers only one. After the meeting of this school board, she receives a letter 'regretting that we are unable to accept,' etc. She answers another. After another delay she is informed that the position is already filled. A third application meets a similar fate. A month has passed, and Miss Smith knows that the most desirable position are no longer vacant. She, too, feels that she has been unjustly treated.

"What is to be the solution of this problem?"

LARGE ATTENDANCE VALENTINE SOCIAL

Delightful Program in Charge of Young People's League of Hastings Church.

HASTINGS, Feb. 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—There was a large crowd at the valentine entertainment held in the Sunday school room of Trinity United Church on Monday evening. The program was in charge of the Young People's League.

Those who had the fortune to have a small name were admitted very cheap. Admission was charged by the letters in your name, one cent for each letter.

Miss Flora Metcalfe, convenor of the social committee, took charge of the program after the business had been dispensed. The following is the program:

Community singing; reading, St. Valentine's Day, Miss I. Richardson; instrumental, Mr. George Boilly; reading, Grace Orr; trio, Mrs. G. Faux, Miss Winnie Huycke and Mr. L. T. Huycke; reading, "The Modern Girl", Miss F. Metcalfe; instrumental, Miss Georgina Metcalfe; community singing. An interesting valentine contest brought the program to a close. Lunch consisting of sandwiches, tarts, doughnuts and tea was served.

Successful Social.

A Valentine Social was held on

A Valentine social was held on basement of St. George's church, Hastings. A short program of recitations and readings was followed by the distribution of the valentine mail box, which caused much amusement. Lunch and games brought a pleasant meeting to a close.

The junior auxiliary of St. George's church intend having a pageant, "Mother Goose and her missionary children" and an interesting set of slides on Japan will be given on Tuesday, February 24, in the basement. Admission, 10 and 15 cents. Everybody welcome.

FASHION SERVICE

A stunning day dress with loads of charm. Its smart simplicity is so satisfying and becoming.

A pur le-blue flat crepe made the original. A sparkling enamel matching shade buckle fastened the narrow belt at the natural waistline. And as you no doubt know this new shade promises to be very smart this Spring.

The pretty cowl drape of the slim bodice is very kind for it disguises breadth just beatuifully. The curve seaming of the skirt too has a very narrowing effect.

Style No. 2984 may be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Printed flat crepe silk is also very good for this model.

Crepy woolens in plain or pattern will also make up charmingly.

Our large Fashion Book shows how to dress up to the minute at very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, etc.

Price of book, 15 cents, or 10c when ordered with a pattern.

W. A. GIVES REPORT.

Apsley St. George's Society Shows Receipts For Year of $85.68.

APSLEY, Feb. 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—The W. A. of St. George's Church gave their first annual report at the recent vestry meeting, which showed good work done for so young an organization.

The report showed a membership of twelve, fourteen meetings held, average attendance, nine. The total receipts amounted to $85.68, and expenditures $62.84, leaving a balance on hand of $22.84. A sum of $17 was given for painting the church last Fall. Two suits of pyjamas and a hot water bottle were sent to a patient in a sanitarium, and ten yards of flannelette sent to a woman in need, while several lots of flowers and fruit were sent to sick and bedridden members. A sum of $9.37 was sent to the Diocesan W. A. The report was received with applause.

BASKET SOCIAL.

St. Matthew's Anglican Church Puts on Enjoyable Program at Hall's Bridge.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HALL'S BRIDGE, Feb. 19. — On Friday evening last, a very successful entertainment was given at the True Blue Hall in aid of funds for St. Matthew's Anglican church. Mr. Tollen and party from Selwyn put on a very humorous comedy entitled, "Crazy Bob Parkins". The Rev. E. C. Moore contributed several songs between the acts with Matilda Moore acting as accompanist. After the play a basket social was held and about thirty tastefully decorated and well filled baskets were auctioned by the Rev. Moore.

Refreshments were then served to a crowded house and a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close about midnight.

A number of the pupils from the Academic, Commercial and Vocational classes of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute have made posters descriptive of their annual school play, "Broken Dishes" which will be held to-morrow and Saturday evening in the auditorium of the P.C.I. Prizes have been given to the best specimens, after being submitted to the careful scrutiny of a committee of judges from The Examiner office. The first award went to the snappy futuristic poster drawn by Helen Tewsley; the second award to the ingenious device of blue broken glass outlining the title on the blue and grey poster of M. Hamilton; the third to Harold Dawson's specimen, with its careful lettering in black, red, silver and gold; the fourth to Margaret Scott's flaming design in brilliant orange and blue; and the fifth to Ruth McKee's triangular device in modernistic black and white. Anne Edmondson received honorable mention, with a crowing rooster as a central figure, and Ruth McKee's second entry, in a poster with an attractive Oriental touch to its lettering and coloring, also came in for special mention.

Young Women Meet

The February meeting of the Young Women's Auxiliary of George Street United Church was held in the Board Room with a splendid attendance. The president, Miss Stella Bennett, presided. Mrs. E. E. Harvey gave an interesting talk on the study book, "Fruits of Christian Missions in Japan." Mrs. Bruce Fowler sang a solo which was much appreciated. An excellent report of the meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial was given by Miss Edna Manning. A short business session followed at which plans for the year's work were discussed. It was decided to have the thankoffering meeting in March.

Favorite Recipe

A Supper Dish

Take left-over meat or fish and put through meat-grinder. Add a cupful or more of this meat to three cups mashed potatoes, two eggs, beaten, ¼ cup milk and pepper and salt. Mix, then into patties or small rolls. Then roll in Farina and heat in the oven until browned, or they can be done on top of the stove just as well, in a covered pan.

Make a sauce to put over the croquettes when serving by using a cup of tomato juice, thickened with a teaspoon of flour. Add salt and pepper and when hot a small piece of butter. These croquettes and a salad made of shredded cabbage and finely chopped apple make a delicious supper. Or if one wants more colour, add some grated carrol or some beet pickle to the salad.

Glass dinnerware, including tea and coffee cups, are vogue in London.

St. Patrick's Day will soon be upon us again—and for anyone who wants to entertain it is a delightful opportunity for definite decorative schemes and forms of entertainment. Maybe you're thinking of having your party in the form of a dance, dinner, tea, bridge party or just an old-fashioned party—many suggestions may be on your mind for any of these.

• • • • • •

It's the last mentioned of which I have been thinking—of the plain old-fashioned party—one gets tired of dancing, of card playing at every party and oftentimes we enjoy games for a change.

• • • • • •

Divide your guests into families for your acquaintance games—such as the O'Reillys of Cork, the O'Hares of Belfast, etc., and upon their arrival send them to their home town for a reunion with their relatives!

• • • • • •

The first contest consists of seeing which family can make the most visits in the shortest time. Different colored paper is presented to each family and the members go from town to town getting their neighbors' signatures. A definite time is given for this and prizes donated.

• • • • • •

"Walking the Bogs of Ireland" provides much merriment for a short while among the boys. Two strong paper boxes covered with crushed green paper are given to each contestant—the boxes must be large enough to contain both feet at once and at a given signal each one puts both feet in one box and lays the other box a few feet in front of him.

• • • • • •

He must step into the other box with both feet—one after the other of course—and continue on his way. If he touches the floor with his feet or shuffles along the floor he is disqualified.

• • • • • •

And now for the girls—A Rolling Pin Battle. The head of each group is given a rolling pin and at the other end of the room are heads for each group which are inflated paper bags or balloons fastened with a short length of string to a chair leg or the floor.

• • • • • •

As each girl makes a dash for the other end of the room she strikes the bag hard enough to break it and as soon as it is broken rushes back and hands the rolling pin to the next in line and they tear down to break another head for Ireland. The first group finishing wins the prize.

• • • • • •

A potato roll with each boy pushing a potato on the floor the length of the room with his nose is one of the many favorite stunts.

• • • • • •

"Drop a spoon expect a letter, drop a fork expect a man, drop a knife expect a lady, drop a comb expect a surprise," says the Irish.

• • • • • •

To test one's luck let each guest try walking the length of the room with a comb balanced on the head, a spoon on one shoulder, a fork on the other and a knife balanced across the two forefingers.

SENATOR'S ERROR AROUSES STORM

Sends Sharp Letter to Texas Critic Under Impression He Was a Negro.

OVER DROUGHT POLICY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (C.P.)—The New York World to-day quoted letters indicating that Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway of Arkansas had curtly terminated correspondence with a critic of his drought policy under the mistaken impression that the critic was a Negro.

O. G. Halliburton, Fort Worth, Tex., oil man wrote Senator Caraway censuring him and his colleague, Senator Joe T. Robinson, on the grounds that in past years of severe drought neither Government nor Red Cross aid had been extended to Texas.

The Letter

The Senator's reply, dated Feb. 2 and written on Senate Stationery, was quoted as follows:

"I have your letter in which you complain wanting hungry people fed and talking about have seen hungry people in West Texas.

"Yes, and the first appeal ever made to this Government for relief was made for drought sufferers in Texas, and it was white people that made it. But the rest of you, if they had gotten it, would have been fed also. It is strange that a Negro always finds something to complain about, although his immediate wants are cared for.

"I should be very glad indeed if you would confine your correspondence to people of your own race."

Halliburton's answer, under date of Feb. 16, was quoted as characterizing the Senator's letter as "undignified, contemptible and insulting" and suggesting that he should discharge his public office "without distinction of race, color or previous condition of servitude." The answer suggested Caraway's retirement to private life would gain public gratitude.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

REMOVING TONSILS BY X RAY

You have been advised that your tonsils should be removed, and you are quite willing to undergo the operation, but there is a reason why the removal by the knife would not be wise or safe in your particular case.

What is to be done?

It has been learned that X-ray treatment in these cases, while not as effective as the knife, gives a fair measure of relief, and gets rid of much of the poison held in the tonsils which is given out into the blood.

Dr. G. Schulte, Berlin, enumerates the conditions in which the X-ray treatment can be used.

(1) Where the patient is not in a safe condition to undergo an anaesthetic;

(2) Where the blood-vessels have lost some of their elastic tissue, and bleeding might follow an operation of any kind;

(3) Where the tonsils are so badly infected that trying to remove them by the knife might spread trouble to the lungs or heart;

(4) Where the patient has chronic heart disease, diabetes, sever tyye of goitre, rheumatism, St. Vitus dance (chorea), asthma, tuberculosis, or any disease that greatly lowers the bodily resistance;

(5) If the patient is a singer or public speaker and has frequent attacks of sore throat and catarrh.

Remember, this treatment is not the ideal treatment for removal of tonsils; neither is the treatment by electric-coagulation, that is, coagulating the tonsil tissue and reducing it tocar tissue. Th scar tissue sometimes dams back the poisons in the tonsils, and, should an operation be necessary, the operator has a most difficult job trying to get out the temnants of the tonsils.

The ideal methid of removal is by the knife in the hands of a competent throat specialist who goes right down after the tonsils and removes them cleanly and completely by the use of the knife. This is really a major operation, and should be so considered.

However, it is satisfactory to know that this X-ray treatment can be used in so many csaes which are not suitable for the knife method.

Missionary Society Hears Miss Flavelle

The regular meeting of Trinity W.M.S. was held in Reid Street Hall on Tuesday afternoon, the president, Mrs Carver, conducting the opening exercises, after which Mrs. Horton's group took charge of the meeting The Scripture lesson was given by Mrs M. A. Morrison and an interesting paper on Christian stewardship was read by Mrs. Sharpe. The speaker of the afternoon, Miss Flavelle of Lindsay, gave an interesting and enlightening address on Jerusalem as it was and as it now is. In a vivid word picture she described the conflict between the different religious sects and between the ancient Jews and the modern Jews. She also showed how great is the task which confronts the Christian church to-day. After prayer offered by Mrs. Wren, the meeting was brought to a close by a vote of thanks to the speaker, moved by Mrs. Morrison and seconded by Mrs. Lyle.

The Game At Lakefield

Last night's game in the East Peterborough League tightened the tension in the county competition with the exception that C.G.E. find themselves in a difficult position where they cannot afford any more reverses if they are to qualify for the play-offs. And a glance at the column showing the number of games that remain to be played indicates the possibility of a general tie-up before the finalists are decided.

The League has developed a mighty interesting situation, and the importance of the twin bill here Friday night warrants the attention of a lot of local fans who have been overlooking this series C.G.E. have a tough program ahead of them. They meet Lakefield here Friday night, and they have a return game in the Cement village, with two home games with the Cogs.

Norwood nursed the advantage they recently gained by holding Lakefield to a tie last night, the final score being 2-2, without overtime. Charlie Curtis, president of the League, went up to see the game, and bumped into an argument as to whether the teams should continue according to the O.H.A. rule respecting additional play when the score at the end of the three regular periods is a tie. Curtis contented himself with reminding the representatives of the two teams that the League had adopted the O.H.A. regulations, but the embattled teams went into a huddle and decided to call it a night, Norwood and Lakefield thereby added one point to their respective totals. Alex Kempt's team has two games left in their schedule, one here Friday night with the Cogs and the other on their own ice with Lakefield.

The personnel of the teams last night follows:

Referee—Max Board.

Norwood—Wright, 5 mins.
Lakefield—Blewett, 35 secs.

Ice Was Sticky

The traditional county rivals were at full strength, and although Ira Lennox provided them with a fine sheet of ice considering the recent mild weather it soon blew up a heavy fluff of snow and became heavy enough to spoil a lot of the passes which both teams mixed with the individual rushes and a free swinging golf style when the puck persisted in rolling.

Close checking by both teams was the feature of the play, which in spite of the heavy footing was clean. Penalties were only for tripping and a few heavy bumps which Max Board frowned on; and their total was comparatively small.

Twice in the last period Lakefield had two men in the penalty box but the Sabatino brothers and Tom Wood held off the Norwood attack, with Louis Sabatino filling the front gaps with a lot of effective work. The teams were too evenly matched and the ice just soft enough to let any players grab the limelight. Both goal minders turned in smart performances, especially on close shots. Beavis saved his net three or four times by diving out after rebounds and grabbing the puck. In the final period the referee handed him a penalty for holding, and Stan Stevenson took his place between the posts.

Lakefield started with a rush on Beavis, and Charlie Brennan returned along a wide open wing. Louis Sabatino bounced a hard shot off Beavis' goal pads and Stabler almost got the rebound. Wood broke up a dangerous Wright to Hill combination, and Blewett's back-checking halted Ware and Hill as they closed in on the Lakefield goal. Stuffy Mahood went in behind the Norwood net and passed out to L. Sabatino who batted the rubber at Beavis. The Norwood boy made a great stop on the play, flopped on the puck, and bell rang a split second before it was pushed over the goal line. Shannon was benched for bumping Mahood against the fence. Wood wound up his dash by passing the puck out in front, and again Beavis flung himself out and made an armful of it. Wright and Ware worked a couple of passes across the rink, and Junkin blocked the shot. Johnny Sabatino checked Ware's rush with a hefty body-check that drew a penalty.

Stabler Starts Scoring.

Stabler scored the first goal of the game four minutes after the second period was under way. John Sabatino mixed his methods with a long shot to the Norwood end of the rink. Blewett and Stabler followed up, and Blewett grabbed the puck from Shannon and passed to Stabler who found a hole in Beavis' barrier.

With White off for tripping Ware, Lynn Hill intercepted a pass to his wing, beat it over the blue line and fired a counter past Junkin from the boards. Beavis kicked out a hard shot from L. Sabatino, and Mahood just missed the rebound.

The Third Period.

Blewett and J. Sabatino threatened the Norwood goal at the opening of the third period, and at the other end Shannon went in close on Junkin. J. Sabatino turned back Ware's dash, but a few minutes later Glen Wright broke through along the boards and scored with a bullet shot from the wing.

Lakefield got that one back before the echoes of the norwood cheers were muffled in the rafters. In a scant half minute Blewett shot from Norwood's rear defense area, and batted in the puck as Beavis flung himself forward to grab it. From that stage both outfits threw everything into the fight for the deciding goal that neither got. With Wood and Blewett on the fence, Louis Sabatino had to do the strong man stunt against the Norwood attack, and shortly afterward Shannon and Beavis were keeping the timers company. Then Blewett joined them after Stabler drew a penalty for bumping Ware. When Norwood was again at full strength Ware found acres of open space along the wing, and blazed the rubber at Junkin from a distance of a few feet. It was a great save by the Lakefield boy. Norwood pressed their advantage of two extra men, but J. Sabatino's experience helped by Tom Wood and Junkin in goal kept Norwood off the score sheet. The action shifted back and forth during the remaining minutes, and the game ended a draw, the first time this season Norwood held the league leaders on even terms.

BETTER COMBINATION COUNTS CLUBMEN'S WIN IN E. P. L. TILT

"SPOTTY" IN PARTS.

Cogs managed to hold off a ferocious C.G.E. Toolroom attack in the final period to win out 3 to 2 in an East Peterborough League fixture last night at the Brock Street rink. The game was run off on ice that wasn't so good, but held up better than expected. Only a small number of spectators were on hand, but they made themselves heard.

The game was fairly fast, but a rolling rubber tended to make it ragged in spots. Seven penalties were handed out, the losers drawing five of them. They mixed it up considerably in the middle frame, letting in one goal when their defense forgot the puck to step into the player.

The Cogs combined to better advantage getting their three counters on assists, while the C.G.E. outfit went through mostly on individual efforts. They fed Creighton a bunch of passes in the last frame, but "Red" couldn't get a bead on the net. Foley played a great game in the net for the winners. William and Jarvis travelled fast all the way, while Maudsley and Lebarr flashed some nice hockey at times. For the losers, Hollingsworth stopped a flock of "hot" ones, and Creighton kept on trying from start to finish. Lackey checked hard and effectively but didn't do much rushing till the final period when he scored one and shot plenty. Hatton was the outstanding C.G.E. player going through time and again, only to be robbed by Foley. He back-checked persistently along his side of the rink.

Nip-an-Tuck in First

In the first period, Creighton took a shot from away out, and Lebarr took the puck back but missed the goal. Maudsley grabbed it and sailed up fast, passing to Dallin at the defense and took the return pass in front of the goal to bat in the first one. The play was up and down for a space, then Lebarr took the rubber up but was tripped by Swanger, who drew a penalty. Jarvis tested Hollingsworth, and H. Epps came right back for a shot on Foley. Maudsley went through on a beautiful rush, but hit the goalie. Hatton worked his way in but couldn't fool Foley. He came back twice again and missed. He and Epps were working good together but shooting too far out. Jarvis was burning up the ice, but the C.G.E. defense stopped him. Hatton and Creighton came down but missed the cage again. A few minutes later "Red" shot and a hot argument folowed whether it was in or not, but it was disallowed. At this time, Foley was playing two shots to every one handled by the Toolroom's goalie. Play was slowing up a little at the end of the session.

Starting the middle chapter, Maudsley and Lebarr went down only to be stopped at the defence. Creighton came back in a hurry and topped the net on a wicked shot. Williams took it back and was bodied hard. Then Hatton slipped one to Epps but Foley nabbed it. Jarvis streaked up and shot, and Creighton brought it down, but missed the goal again. Swanger went through on a couple of nice rushes but couldn't get his shot started. Lebarr took it down the boards and was checked by Lackey who went through centre for a try. Maudsley nearly got in again, being stopped close to the enemy citadel. Williams took it down neatly and passed to Jarvis at the blue line, but "Gamey" hurried his shot and was off the goal. The Toolroom outfit were roughing it somewhat in this period, and drew several trips to the "cooler." While they were one man short, the Cogs kept peppering their goal. Williams worked right in and missed. Swanger took it up but lost it at the defense. Then Williams went through again and passed to Jarvis, who didn't miss this time. The C.G.E. defense pair were after Williams and forgot the puck when Jarvis took it and slapped it in for the second goal. Lebarr missed the net and Creighton shot wild in return. The boys had been travelling at a good clip this session and the pace was telling on them. The ice was pretty well cut up too. The play was back and forth toward the end of the frame with the Toolroom squad shooting often. Swanger got in close once, but Lebarr took it away. Williams kept trying but was treated rough at the defense line. H. Epps did some fancy stickhandling although he seldom got in close. He was as effective backchecking as was Hatton. The pace was slow when the bell rang.

Rolling Puck Hinders Play

Epps shot the disc from the faceoff to begin the third. Then Williams took it up only to lose it to Hatton. The latter kept it up at the winners' end of the ice for several minutes. Dallin broke away for a shot. Hatton came back, but Lebarr checked him and went back. Lackey came down the left side but his shot cleared the goal. He came back again and sent Foley to his knees to save a sizzler. The puck kept rolling and play was ragged for a few minutes. Swanger got through only to be robbed. Jones took it back, and then Lackey tried another one but was a little off. He was going nice this period. Eddie Williams went up and tested Hollingsworth and Micky brought it right back again. Jarvis lined one at the goal, and Creighton came back fast but missed the net by yards. It was hammer-and-tongs hockey at this time, the rubber being chased up and down continually. Williams was stopped by Lackey and Swanger shot at the goalie. Lebarr tried one more at the C.G.E. citadel, and Creighton returned the effort. Then Maudsley and Jones went up together in a neat piece of stickhandling and Jones took the pass to bulge the twine for the Cogs' third goal. That woke the Toolroom sextet up. Epps went down and almost scored but Foley managed to save. Maudsley went up again, but Lackey took it and shot hard. Williams snaked his way through but couldn't counter. Mickey came back but was stopped. Hatton took a bead on the cage but missed. The losers were shooting hard and often. Jarvis took it up and Lackey came right back to smoke one at Foley. The C.G.E. team were pressing hard and with five minutes to go, Epps went through on a classy bit of work to slip their first one past the goalie. Just one minute later, Lackey zoomed down the boards a mile a minute and whistled another in, making it 3-2. Play speeded up then. Maudsley rushed and Epps came back. He was checked by Williams. The boys suddenly began swinging at each other and a couple more joined in before the referee could stop it. It looked like a free-for-all for a minute. But they went off for the rest of the game and each side played a man short. Maudsley and Lebarr went up but were stopped. Lackey came back fast only to be robbed again by Foley who was stopping them from all angles. Lebarr went up and Hollingsworth came out of the goal and tripped him. He was penalised, making it the first time a goalie was sent off in a league fixture. Hatton went into the net for him and had to stop a couple before the gong sounded.

The teams:

RACE NARROWS ONTARIO LOOP

Leading Galt Terriers Again Fall Before Oshawa Onslaught 5-4.

FALLS LOSE OUT 1-0.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19.—(CP)—Only five points seperate the six teams in the Ontario Hockey League today. The leading Galt Terriers have met with much difficulty in their contests with the tail-end Oshawa Pats and last night's tilt was no exception. The Pats scored a brace of goals in the first minute of the last frame to win an exciting contest, 5 to 4.

While the Pats were doing their bit toward tightening the championship race, Kitchener Silverwoods accomplished their share by nosing out the second place Niagara Falls Cataracts, 1 to 0.

In the third fixture Guelph Maple Leafs defeated Stratford Nationals, 3 to 1, to climb into third place, two points behind the Cataracts and Silverwoods, who are tied on the second perch one point behind the Terriers.

Yellow Jackets Have Chance For 4th Place

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19.—(CP)—A tedious climb from the cellar may be climaxed tonight by the grasping of a play-off position in the International Hockey League by the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets.

In the only scheduled fixture the Yellow Jackets clash with the Olympics at Detroit and victory will hoist them into fourth place, one point ahead of London Tecumsehs. The latter appear to have struck another slump after giving a two weeks display which caused a sensation in the King loop.

The Smoky city hockeyists nosed the Olympics out by one goal in the previous meeting at Pittsburgh but are certain to find the task even more difficult in the Motor City.

While the Detroiters have only a slight chance of forging their way into a play-off berth they are capable of crashing the championship aspirations of the contenders and the Yellow Jackets may get their first taste tonight.

GOVERNMENT DEFEATED ON EDUCATION BILL

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Labor Government was defeated in the House of oLrds today by rejection of the Education Bill on third reading by a vote of 168 to 22. The defeat has no political consequences.

The education bill would raise the school-leaving age from 14 to 15 and allots maintenance grants to parents of school children between those ages.

BOTH SEXTETS PLAY CLEVER HOCKEY STYLE

King George and King Edward Schools Battling For City Championship.

MANY SUPPORTERS.

Boyler, Mowry, Williamson and Howland Are Successful Markers of Game.

Running true to form last night the evenly-matched King George and King Edward squads fought it out to a 2-2 tie at the Brock in the first play-off game for the Public School League championship. The ice was soft to start with and soon became pretty will cut up. This made puck-carrying difficult. But play was fast enough throughout. A good crowd of fans—mostly school children—were on hand, and how those kids can yell.

Play started off rather slow with King Edward setting the pace. They worked in for shots almost at will, Boyler scoring early on a close-in shot. Williamson and Hill were checking hard but had their hands full trying to stem the King Edward rushes. A few mniutes later, Mowry lifted one from the blue line and it got away from Hunter to make it 2-0. The leaders were still taking the aggressive at the bell.

King George gits Stride

Coming out for the second, King George hit their stride. The period was still young when Williamson took the rubber up and shot hard for their first counter. "Stew" kept his opponents worried, going through on several fast stick-handling efforts, but Dunkley was hard to beat. Halfway through the stanza, Howland drilled the puck from a sharp angle to fool the goalie and knot the count. Both outfits speeded up and kept the play going back and forth for the rest of the frame.

Nip-and-tuck Affair

The last chapter saw the boys tearing up and down for all they were worth and making both netguardians step to keep the disc out. Play was clean with the only penalty of the game handed out for a minor offense. Both forward lines were going great, Williamson's work standing out. "Pinnnegan" Hill never slowed up either. King Edward had the edge the first part of the frame but King George looked slightly better when the gong sounded.

Referee—M. Park.

Chicago Millionaire May Sponsor Fight

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 19.—Sheldon Clark, millionaire sportsman and a vice-president of the Sinclair Oil Company, is willing to serve as promoter of the world's heavyweight championship match between Max Schmeling and "Young" Stribling at Soldier Field, June 19, provided certain conditions are fulfilled.

Clark said to-day that if the profits of the match were divided among Chicago charities, he would be willing to support it, but under no circumstances would he associate himself with the venture if the profits were devoted to the New York Milk Fund.

LEADERS TIED IN MERCANTILE

Grant and Thorpe Wins Hard Fought Battle 2-1 From Silverwoods.

PLAY IS FAIRLY EVEN.

Grant & Thorpe won out in a hard-fought game with Silverwoods 2-1 last night in their Mercantile League fixture at the Sacred Heart rink. The game was even and fairly fast the two periods played. The win puts Grant & Thorpe in a tie with Brintons at the top of the heap.

Leonard took a pass early in the opener and beat the goalie for the winners' first count. A few minutes later, Hele, Silverwoods' net-minder was hurt when two players skated into him. He returned to the game in a few minutes. The last period was very tight with both squads working hard and scoring once. Leonard notched the second for the winners and D. Anderson netted once for Silverwoods. B. Rogers for the latter team went nice, while for Grant & Thorpe, Heal was always dangerous. The play was pretty even at the final bell.

The teams:

Referee—C. Corbitt.

WESTCLOX WIN FROM GRAFTONS

Ending the First Session at 16-all, Clock Makers Forge Ahead for 39-23 Victory.

NICE COMBINATION.

In a hard fought struggle between the Westclox and Grafton's basketball teams, the former won out with a score of 39-23.

Grafton's playing in the first half of the game was excellent and proved a surprise to the onlookers—the score at the end of the period being 16-all. Evidently the salesmen tired during the interval and Westclox forged energetically ahead, piling up a large score.

The winners played their usual good game and managed to keep themselves comparatively free of fouls. Their passing and combination proved deadly to the enemy. On the other hand Grafton's were good at checking shots and intercepted many of their opponents' long passes. The game became more ragged during the second half, although the enthusiasm continued. Westclox ran up their score because their speed carried them past the Grafton defense.

Kingston did the most scoring for Westclox, totalling 22 points for his team. Kitchen played a good game and tallied 9 points. Dundas proved to be the major scorer for Grafton's with his 8 points. Huffman and J. Smith followed with 5 points each.

Referees—J. Greenlaw and C. Routley.

The Chevrolet Motors-Teco Store game was postponed due to the fact that the later did no turn out with a full team.

SEATTLE ESKIMOS WILL NOT BE PERMITTED TO CONTINUE ROUGH TACTICS, SAYS HEAD

Frank Patrick Says Flatly Rough Stuff is "Out" From Now On in the Pacific Coast League — Vancouver Fans Up in Arms Against "Dirty Play" of Washington State Veterans.

DOUGLAS BRENNAN OF HAVELOCK PLAYING WITH LIONS SEVEREY INJURED IN MELEE

(By Andy Lytle.)

VANCOUVER, Feb. 19.—On arrival here to play a scheduled game with the Vancouver Lions recently, Hugh Caldwell, president of the Seattle Eskimos and Lloyd Turner, manager, will be advised to get rid of any idea in their club that the Eskimos will be permitted to carve their way through to league title or to play-off berth.

This advice will be tended them through the medium of Frank A. Patrick, president of the league, whose days of leniency, so far as rough play is concerned, are over.

"I am advising the clubs today," he informed The Sun, "that hereafter a cross check to the face or to the head will mean a major penalty. Three majors to any individual player will automatically draw suspension for at least one full game."

SEATTLE ALWAYS SOUR

Oddly enough, all of the trouble over rough play or referees, since the coast league opened has emanated in Seattle. It was Seattle interests that rode Mickey Ion out of the league.

It was Seattle that declined to accept Roy Rickey and preferred Lindsay and Borland, two Seattle men notoriously supine and of the type known to hockey the country over as "homers."

It was Seattle players that laid McGoldrick low some weeks back. Joe was clipped on the eye and played through an entire period without any recollection of having done so.

When he was hit the score was 2-0 for Portland. When he emerged from the fog the score was tied.

McGoldwick and Doug Brennan have been marked men to the Eskimos. The answer is obvious. They are the stand out defense men of their clubs.

Vancouver and Portland are largely made up of young players. They like hockey and skate fast. They play hard against each other, but not venomously.

OLD BOYS START IT

Seattle has a group of older players notably Stuart, Benson and Connors Also Jack Walker, whose play is always clean.

Stuart and Connors after admitting that coast hockey was faster than they anticipated and after both had failed to live up to advance notices, started the rough stuff and they have been laying the wood on plenty ever since.

Savage and Sutherland are another pair who go beserk on the ice. Sutherland has been banished several times for fighting. Savage is a good player, but uncertain in temper and he is growing worse as the referees ignore his outbursts of viciousness.

Doug Brennan, a Havelock, Ontario, boy, is the player, however, who is marked, it seems, for early slaughter by the Eskimos. Last Friday was not the first time in which the Lions have been roughed in Seattle. A fortnight back the game was even rougher.

Brennan's jaw is not broken but it is so badly swollen that the club doctor has advised him to stay off the ice for a short while.

Connors is Dirty

Connors first clipped him and drew no penalty last Friday and then Dyke backhanded one into his face and drew two minutes for completing the job of putting Brennan out of the game.

Benson clipped Pettinger across the head in Vancouver and Stuart knocked half of two front teeth off in the Seattle tilt.

Bobby Connors has been the rough hombre of the league despite what penalty summaries may indicate. When a player draws the sobriquet "Dirty Connors" from a Vancouver audience there is something radically wrong, for this city's fandom has been proud of the reputation of years as the fairest city in that respect in all Canada.

However, according to Frank Patrick, it's all over now. Players will observe rules or be banished. No club is to be permitted to carve its way to victories.

THIRD PLACE HOSTILITIES CONTINUE AGAIN TO-NIGHT

Maroons and Americans Will Battle it Out for Third Rung at New York.

OTTAWA AT TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19. (By Geo. Maguire, C. P. Sports Writer). Continuation of the dispute for third places in the Canadian and United States sections of the National hockey league dominates interest in tonight's four game program.

Montreal Maroons and New York Americans resume hotilities in Madison Square Garden with the senior divisions' third rung as the prize to the winner. Only one point separates the rival squads who have met on four previous occasions. In these clashes the Amazing Amerks have finished on top three times, twice by single goal margins and by two counters in the most recent tussle. Th Munromen have won only one contest and that by the odd tally in seven.

Both squads lost their last two games and both will be equally handicapped in the fifth engagement. Maroons are minus the services of their budding young defense star, Johnny Gallagher, while the Gothamites will miss the hard checking Vernon Ayres, who teams up with "Red" Dutton to form a fairly strong defensive bulwark. These players are on the shelf for some weeks due to injuries. But whereas the Maroons have a plentiful supply of good material to draw upon the A's have not and will be at a disadvantage.

Ottawa at Toronto

Toronto and Ottawa meet in the Queen city in the all-Canadian feature. The second place holders have shattered the Bytown "jinx" thoroughly this season by defeating the Senators three times and tieing once in four encounters. Previous to this season the Leafs had not won a game in Ottawa for something like seven years, but it is a certainty the tail-enders will extend them again as they have in the four games to date.

The Capital City hockeyists almost stunned the hockey world on Tuesday by nosing out New York Rangers in a hectic clash, and a squad capable of accomplishing this is also equally capable of extending the fast-travelling Duncanites to the limit.

Toronto's major league representatives are four games behind the flying leaders, Montreal Canadiens, but they are only four points in the van of Americans, who can make things uncomfortable by downing the Maroons.

Coach Art Duncan has his man in fine shape for the encounter and as the luckless Senators are also at full strength after considerable hard luck through injuries a rousing match appears on tapis.

The leaders of the two sections, Canadiens and Boston Bruins, test their speed and skill for the fourth time during the current schedule at Boston.

Art Ross' pupils have not yet forgiven the Habitants for spoiling their near perfect season by snatching the Stanley Cup from their very grasp last April, and while they have not been burning themselves out this season, the Bruins are making it plain they will beat the Flying Frenchmen whenever possible.

They have accomplished the trick twice, but had to battle every inch of the way. The Montrealers won the other tilt.

An all-American fixture between the Detroit Falcons and the Blackhawks at Chicago winds up the card. The motor magnates are staging a nip-and-tuck struggle with New York Rangers for third place in the American group and can tie the Blue Shirts for the honor by setting back the Windy City outfit, something they have done twice this season. The Hawks won the other game.

President Frank Calder will attend the match and will likely consider Chicago's protest against a ruling of Referee Mickey Ion, who disallowed a goal scored by Tommy Cook against the Rangers last Sunday. The counter would have knotted the count at 2-all, but Ion declared a player had interfered with the vision of the New York goalkeeper. Bobby Hewitson. Toronto, will be the chief arbiter in to-night's game.

SHEA JOINS HAWKS

Calder Views Wider Goal Mouth System

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19 (C.P.)—En route to Chicago President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League stopped off here last night to size up the much-discussed wider goal cages being used by the Mercantile League at Ravina Rink. In the weekly double-header, 10 goals were scored, but hockey's high commissioner declined to commit himself in any way as to the merits or demerits of this new departure.

Conny Smythe, manager of the Maple Leafs of the N.H.L., accompanied President Calder and Leo Dandurand, of Montreal Canadiens, to the rink. Smythe advocates the adoption of the wider cages by the major league.

City League Games Booked For To-Night

Two Junior City League games are booked for to-night at the Brock street rink. In the opener at 7.15, Choates' Hardware outfit will tackle Star Athletic Club; and at 8.30, Johnson's Seahorses and C.G.E. Office will mix it up.

These battles will be the first between those teams, and as C.G.E. is the only squad that has lost a game yet, the contests to-night should be humdingers. In the four games played so far, all have been close, two ending in draws. The teams have all drawn from other leagues and the hockey should be even faster from now on.

The ice will likely be in good shape to-night and spectators can be sure of seeing a fast double-header, packed full of action from start to finish.

BANTAM TEAMS DEFAULT GAMES

Remains Only One Juvenile Fixture Before S.E.L. Schedule Completed.

FOSTERS WIN EXHIBITION.

Both bantam games in the South End City League were defaulted last night at the Sacred Heart rink. Ravens had not a full team for their go with Fosters, and Canucks failed to show up for their battle with Athletics. Neither game was of much importance, anyway, as both Athletics and Fosters were assured of a place in the playoffs. There remains only one juvenile fixture, the Canucks-Raybestos game, before the schedule is completed. The Ravens, last night, picked up a team and played an exhibition game with Fosters.

It was an even and fast affair, with Fosters nosing out a 1—0 win. The ice was fair and both squads moved up and down at a good clip. Early in the opening stanza, Thornley snaked his way through and picked the corner of the goal for the only counter of the game. He tried several more times, but was stopped by the defense. The middle go was close, each goalie stopping a bunch. Granger, in particular, had some hard ones to handle. Kennedy for the losers gave a fancy exhibition of stick-handling, but couldn't score. The last period found the losers trying hard to tie it up. But the whole Fosters' forward line were going good and back-checked them to a standstill. The play was up and down the ice at the end of the session.

The teams:

Referee—G. Jones.

THEATRES

"BALACLAVA"

This picture, sponsored by the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., is a distinctively British film and has the distinctively British touch. Patriots who are admirers of British products will be enthused with this production.

It tells the story of that famous Charge of the Light Brigade, immortalized in song and story, when the "six hundred," obeying a mistaken order, charged a whole army and lived, a few of them, to tell the tale. It is the story of old-time warfare that seems as antiquated to modern eyes as the picturization of armor-clad knights tilting in the jousting field. Infantry, clad in all the glory of their Scotch outfits, the pipers blaring out the stirring music of "Highland Laddie," advance against men on horseback and the melee that results is a hand to hand encounter, with only the lucky emerging unscathed.

It was in this Crimean warfare that women firs: took a hand in the nursing of the wounded and it is probably one of these amateurs at the game that appears in one of the final scenes. She is very different to the trim, efficient nurses that now wear the Red Cross on their arm bands and function so efficiently after the slaughter.

That little peninsula just south of Russia that juts into the Black Sea forms the setting for the picture, where Jean Macdonald lives with her Scotch father and where Trooper Kent comes to see her and to take part later in the famous Charge, when the "thin red line" stood valiantly and hopelessly against overwhelming numbers and where the order went out: "There is no retreat. We must die where we stand." Six hundred and seventy sabres they were, against a whole army, but they charged, in obedience to an order. It is an illustration of an idea that took its participants to a bloody grave and left their companions to wonder at their hardihood.

Schedules Finished In Eastern Leagues

HALIFAX, Feb. 19. (C.P.)—Last night saw the completion of the eastern hockey league schedule, all four teams playing their last regular tilt. Truoro Bearcats, provincial champions for four times in the last five years, are again this year leading Nova Scotia's major hockey circuit, with New Glasgow in runner-up position. Halifax Wolverines are in third place.

A two game series, total score to count, to decide the 1931 champions, will now be played by Truro and New Glasgow. First game will be at New Glasgow Friday, while Truoro's home game will be played here Monday night.

13 MUSHERS START

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 19 (C.P.)—Thirteen mushers and their "huskies" started the first 40 3-5 mile lap of the Eastern International Dog Derby here to-day for prizes totalling $4,000 and numerous cups. The 131-mile race will be run in three laps; the second to-morrow, and the final stretch Saturday.

OSHAWA HERE ON SATURDAY

Meet P.C.I. in Return Game For Basketball Championship of Central Ontario.

LOCALS IN LEAD.

The Peterborough Collegiate Basketball quintet will swing into action again on their own floor Saturday afternoon, when they meet Oshawa Collegiate in the return game for the championship of Central Ontario.

The local boys, due to their victory in Oshawa last Saturday, will carry a 5 point lead into the game, but they will have to travel at top speed all the way if they hope to dispose of the Motor City team, which will be fighting with their backs to the wall.

The Oshawa team, champions of the Lake Shore District, although defeated on their own floor last week by the speede "Petes," are a determined crowd of ball tossers and are a tough morsel for any team to take on at any time.

Play Nice Combination.

The boys play nice combination and only trailing the Garnet and Grey team by 5 points, will be out with everything they have in an effort to overcome that lead and earn themselves a place in the Ontario playdowns.

The Petes, on the other hand, are just as determined that they will be the team to go into the playdowns and a win Saturday will give them the right to represent Central Ontario in the Basketball tournament to be held in Toronto, later in the month.

Instead of allowing winning teams to travel many miles and expend much money, determining a provincial winner, the Ontario Association has arranged a plan that is similar to the one that proved so successful during the Interscholastic hockey play-offs last spring.

Winning High School teams, entered in the Secondary Schools' Association, and representing Eastern Ontario, Northern Ontario, Central Ontario, Western Ontario and the Niagara District respectively, will be brought to Toronto, probably the week-end of March 7th for an elimination tournament, the winner to be recognized as champions of the Secondary Schools' Association.

This plan enables the teams with less financial backing to participate in the playdowns and also eliminates the necessity of late spring play-off games.

Thus it can be seen that Saturday's contest means much to the local team and Coach Cummings will have his entire squad in tip-top shape for the fray.

The game will get under way at 2.3 p.m. and one of the largest basketball crowds to witness a game at the local gym, will undoubtedly be on hand to lend support to the boys.

Viceroy And Mahatma Will Parley Further

NEW DELHI, India, February 19 (C.P.). — A communique from the Viceregal Palace to-day said that Viceroy Lord Irwin had granted Mahatma Gandhi a further interview.

It was understood that various matters emerging from the past two days' discussions between the man repreeenting Britain's might in India and the Mahatma, "holy" leader of the Indian Nationalists, were under discussion

It was considered possible that several days might elapse before a further stage in the negotiations, by which the Nationalist campaign of civil disobedience may be called off, can be reached.

ASKS RETRACTION FROM ASSOCIATION

W. J. D'Alesandro and Mable Ray Threaten Legal Action as Result of Probe.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19—As a sequel to the report of the committee appointed by the Ontario Athletic Commission to investigate the affairs of the Toronto Women's Softball Association, T. N Phelan, K.C., counsel for Miss Mabel Ray, president of the Association, has communicated with T. A. Murphy, M.L.A. asking for the rectraction of a statement attributed to him and appearing in a morning paper. Mr. Murphy is chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission.

Mr. Murphy denies making the statement which Mr. Phelan states was attributed him. "The only statement I made to any newspaper was that the Commission had made its report and that we were through with the matter," he said

Miss Ray together with W. J. D'Alesandro, business manager of the Softball Association were mentioned in the report of the investigating committee. The continued connection of Miss Ray and D'Alesandro with the sport were declared by the committee to be "highly undesirable."

Richard Fry, president of the Ontario Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, stated that D'Alesandro's case would be considered immediately "to take any action which the case warrants"

Complicated amateur athletic machinery will probably have to be set in motion to deal with the recommendation of the probe committee that Miss Ray have no further connection with the T.W.S.A.

MONTHLY MEETING MILLBROOK CIRCLE

Golden Links Society Meets at Home of President, Miss Marjorie Sayles.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 19.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The monthly meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle was held on Monday evening at the home of the president, Miss Marjorie Sayles, with over twenty in attendance, and an interesting and instructive program provided. Miss Estelle Hetherington presided at the piano, the teacher-training class, under her tuition, having met just previous to the opening of the Circle gathering.

The play which the Circle intends giving in May was brought to the attention of the members, and the parts given out to the several characters. The treasurer, Miss Charlotte Luxon, reported receipts from the Valentine Tea given the previous Saturday, and the leaders of the four groups into which the Circle is divided, Misses Marian O'Brian, Jean Burnham, Dorothy McDowell and the president, were made responsible for the collection of fees from their list of members; the objective is to have all fees paid early in the year.

As a further aid in raising funds the Circle will adopt the "Sunshine Bags" idea, each member being furnished with a small gingham bag, the enclosed verse telling them to place one cent in the bag for each day the sun shines during the month of March. Miss Dorothy McDowell's group will be held responsible for the March meeting.

Miss Marian O'Brian's group had charge of the program for Monday night's meeting, Miss Martha Earle giving a reading on "A Church for Canada," and Miss Gladys Williamson telling an interesting story of work in Honan.

The leader showed a number of informing pictures of the gods worshipped in China, with others illustrating the manner of life among the people, both upper and lower classes, and Miss Phyllis Kidd took up the chapter from the study book, giving further light on the way in which missions were first brought to this great Republic of the East.

A duet, "Must I Go and Empty-Handed?" by Mrs. Percy and Miss Jean Stinson, was enjoyed, and the meeting was closed with the Circle "Watchword," which is the same as that used by the Woman's Auxiliary.

CURSE MINE OF ALBERTA NEAR SCENE OF "WHITE GOLD" STRIKE

Murder and Sudden Death Follow in Wake of Discovery of Mine.

SECRET LIES BURIED.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1931).—With tales of rich strikes of platinum and gold coming out of the hill country west of Nanton, Alta., 100 miles northwest of this city, there is being whispered among old prospectors the story of the Leman or "Lemon Mine" legendary gold mine of the early '70's, a property carrying a curse that has struck a terror into many a miner who has set out to locate the property.

The new "white gold" field—if it proves to be a field—lies on the Livingston river, near the headwaters, where streams flow out of the very heart of the Rockies. The valley is sheltered by mountains and roads are treacherous so treacherous that the crowds who have joined in the rush use pack outfits for 15 or 20 miles. However, there is a good landing field for planes near the strike and several geologists are preparing to "fly in" as these lines are written.

But to come back to the story of the Lemon mine, the mine that carries a curse.

Murders Partner

It was sixty or more years ago that a couple of prospectors, one of them Leman or Lemon, roaming through that picturesque country between the Old Man river and the Highwood found a rich placer property, for which they took a bag of nuggets. The men started out to follow up the property and explore the region. Lemon's partner happened to stumble onto the real thing and the men quarrelled. Late one night Lemon crept into the tent and killed his partner with an axe, according to the story, and made off with the nuggets and the rich quartz. He "beat it" across the line into Montana and at Helena, Mont., sold raw gold in the open market that netted him $27,000.

In Montana he organized a party, outfitted it, and started north for the Alberta bonanza. On the way Lemon went stark mad and in his wild delirium made a clean breast of the murder of his partner but all efforts to induce him to reveal the whereabouts of the gold were futile. He died soon after and the secret of the mine went to the grave with him. Nobody knows how many miners have gone after the gold, but there is an accepted belief among the denizens of the hills that a terrible fate will follow anyone finding the mine.

To support the story they point to the story of Old Man French, whose name is linked with oil discoveries in Alberta as well as with early prospecting. In 1917 some of his friends grub-staked him to go into the hills in search of the property. He was away all summer but in the fall returned to announce that he had located the placer and also the rich quartz.

The Curse Acts

That night the jinx got in its evil work, for the sparks from his pipe ignited the bed clothes of his bed and burst into flames. The cabin fell a prey to the flames and the old fellow fled into the open during the night, with the thermometer registering 20 below zero. French was dressed only in his undershirt but managed to cover three and a half miles to the old Brown-Bedingford ranch homestead—now the Alberta home of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales boss of the "E.P." ranch outfit—and crawled into the haymow. He was found unconscious the next morning, was taken to the High River hospital where he died of pneumonia.

Fearing to question him about the lost mine during his illness, his friends never learned the secret of his summer in the hills. And so Old Man French died without telling the story of the Lemon mine. Later several Indians are said to have started out to find the gold, only to disappear mysteriously.

And now with a feverish rush in progress, many are wondering if the ancient legend will be traced to its source.

Appendicitis Operation Will Not Hold Pigrass

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 19 (C.P.)—A little thing like an appendicitis operation is not going to handicap George Pipgras—that is not for long. The information comes from none other than the New York pitching star himself. His physicians say he is getting along "wonderfully well" after a narrow escape.

Pipgras came here with his wife from their home at St. Petersburg, Fla., to take the baths and limber up his muscles in light workouts. They had been here only three days when he was stricken early one morning and an emergency operation performed. Although he rallied quickly, physicians said he was in a precarious condition before the operation.

LADY GROSVENOR PLEDGES HEART

HAS HUNTED IN INDIA.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent.)— Lady Elizabeth Grosvenor, only daughter of Lord Ebury, whose engagement to Viscount Harcourt has been announced, is one of the finest all-round sportswomen in England. She accompanied her father on a big game expedition in India some time ago.

Lady Elizabeth is 21 years of age and Viscount Harcourt, William Edward second Viscount, is 23.

Francis Egerton Grosvenor, 4th Baron Ebury, went to Canada in 1903 and worked as a metallurgical chemist in the Canadian Pacific Railway smelter at Trail, B.C., for two and a half years. Subsequently he worked in Nelson, B.C., and then reported for a London firm on the Columbia and Western land grant; Nelson, Fort Sheppard land grant and Northern Peace River country.

In 1911 Lord Ebury was assistant managing director of the Norton Griffiths contracting concern in Western Canada and the year following aided the Duke of Sutherland in organizing an immigration scheme in Canada. From then until the outbreak of the Great War, 1914, Lord Ebury acted for Norton Griffiths in British Columbia.

Joining the 29th (Vancouver) Battalion, Lord Ebury served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force and was wounded in France.

He studied law but on leaving Oxford allied himself to the famous financiers, Morgan, Grenfell and Company, being related through his mother to the late Pierpont Morgan.

MELBA'S MALADY PROVES PUZZLE.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Physicians to Dame Nellie Melba, Australian diva who is gravely ill, are greatly puzzled by the nature of her illness.

It is said that the famous soprano last year in Cairo picked up a mysterious germ which caused an infection. She consulted specialists in Germany, Austria, France and England in an effort to effect a cure but without success.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 76 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The beats of Tarzan 8dw.Ida

"Come!" said Kai Shang, motioning the two women to follow him. Jane turned for help toward the Kincaid's mate, only to see him standing with the Chinaman's dirty group, a leering grin upon his face. Then it dawned on her that some foul plot was afoot and resistance was useless. "Explain the meaning of this," she demanded. "Very simple, your ladyship," he replied mockingly. "It means we've found a ship and are leaving Jungle Island.

"Why did you send Mugambi into the jungle?" she inquired "Also very simple, your grace,—he ain't acoming with us. Only you and me, and the Mosula woman is so favored!" And now Kai Shang stepped forward to put an end to the questioning. "Come!" he repeated, and seized Lady Greystoke by the wrist. One of his henchmen grabbed the Mosula woman and when she would have screamed struck her brutally across the mouth.

Mugambi raced through the jungle toward the place the mate had said the apes were approaching. For a mile he continued his way, but saw no signs of the missing man or any of the apes of Akut. At last he halted and called aloud the summons which he and Tarzan had used to hail the great anthropoids. There was no response to his weird call. For another half mile the black searched, calling occasionally.

Finally the truth flashed upon his savage mind, and then, like a frightened deer, he wheeled and dashed back toward camp. Arriving there it was but a moment before full confirmation of his fears was impressed upon him. The camp was deserted—as silent under the tropical twilight as any tomb. Lady Greystoke and the Mosula woman were gone. So, likewise, was the treacherous mate and every last member of the Kincaid's surviving crew.

LABORITES BALK AT LANG'S POLICY

Federal Caucus Decide Theodore's Scheme is True Party Policy.

FIGHT IN EAST SYDNEY.

CANBERRA, Australia, Feb. 19 (C. P. Cable via Reuter's).—The caucus of the Federal Labor Party to-day decisively rejected the instructions of the New South Wales Branch, that the present East Sydney federal by-election should be fought along the debt repudiation, no wage reduction, policies of the extremist Labor Premier of New South Wales, Hon. J. T. Lang.

The Federal caucus instead decided to adhere to the Federal executive's instructions, that the more moderate financial rehabilitation plan of Hon. E. G. Theodore, Commonwealth Treasurer, was the only true Labor Party policy. This policy was approved by the conference of Australian Premiers after Lang's proposals were rejected.

A proposal, however, to nominate a second Labor candidate in East Sydney, opposing the Labor candidate who declares he will stand by Lang's policies, was turned down by the Federal caucus, which agreed not to participate in the by-election, in the hope the "Repudiationists" would be defeated.

'PROSPERITY AL' WANTED IN COURT

HAD SPECTACULAR RISE.

BELVIDERE, Ill., Feb. 19. — The spectacular rise of Albert W. Benham from a shipping clerk to a "financial wizard" had an aftermath today in his indicement by the Grand Jury.

Benham, variously called "the one man mint," "Prosperity Al," and a "Midas" because of his business, extending over a period of two years was reported to have paid investors as high as 50 per cent. interest, was accused of operating a confidence game and obtaining money under false pretenses. Four true bills were returned by the County Grand Jury.

A bench warrant for his arrest was issued by Judge E. D. Shurtleff of the Circuit Court.

Benham, who described his business as that of buying of bankrupt stocks at low prices and selling them quickly at large profits, was missing, but his friends said that he would return to face the charges.

Carling Brewery Wins Privy Council Appeal

LONDON, Feb. 19. (C. P. Cable)—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to-day allowed the appeal of the Carling Export Brewing and Malting Company Limited against the King, or the Canadian Government, as regards 83 percent of the Government's claim for gallonage tax and sales tax on the appellant company's beer.

As regards the other 17 percent of the Government claims, the decision of the Canadian Supreme Court should be varied, and the sales tax computed on the basis of invoice prices at London, Ont. the judgment said.

SPLENDID EFFORT IS BEING MADE IN RELIEF CAUSE SAYS ABRAHAM

Commends Works Being Done by the City Relief Association.

DISINTERESTED LOVE.

"With reference to our needy families in the city, it augurs well, with the newly formed Peterborough Relief Organization, and the splendid efforts they are making to reach their objective, our city seems to be blessed with some very active workers in this connection. Our city officials are straining every effort to co-operate to the fullest extent with the situation, and the Central Charity Board is doing splendid service in this respect, which entails much work in the office of the relief officer, who is facting the music cheerfully," said James Abraham to The Examiner.

"The position is not of the Province's or the city's seeking, but that production has outrun the demand and the financial crisis caused this abnormal amount of unemployment, hence distress and want must follow; and let every person who can really afford, do the needful as 'many can help one where one cannot help many'; and if those who can help, without detriment to their family ties, our city can face the future with confidence. With all the societies and organizations functioning at their best, we trust no person will be wanting for necessaries required in the winter months.

"Charity and Relief is another name for disinterested love—the humane, sympathetic feeling — that which seeks the good of others, that which would pour out from the treasurers of its munificence gifts of good things upon all."

Prisoner Caught After Two Mile Chase By Grimsby Citizens.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., February 19 (C.P.). — Caught last night after a two-mile chase by South Grimsby citizens who had him backed up against a tree with a shotgun when the police arrived, Bruce McIntyre of Grimsby this morning in Police Court admitted breaking into and atttempting to rob the home of Gordon Brown, 3 miles west of that town. The Brown family is at present in Florida. McIntyre served two years in the Penitentiary for arson at Jordon and had been arrested in Hamilton for theft. He blamed his position on lack of work and pleaded that he could not starve.

Magistrate Campbell remanded him a week for sentence.

COLLEGE ACTION BRINGS PROTESTS

"DEMISE OF FREE SPEECH."

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 19 (C.P.) —"We express our regrets on the demise of free speech," reads a message from The Manitoba, college publication of the University of Manitoba, received here by The Ubyssey," University of British Columbia College Journal. Accompanying the message was a funeral bouquet of lilies.

The Ubyssey recently halted publication, temporarily, in protest against the suspension by the University President of its editor, Ronald Grantham, for disobeying the President's order by publication of criticism of the University faculty.

Before suspending publication of The Ubyssey printed a special edition dedicated to the "demise of free speech." An effigy resembling a corpse was built by the students today on a table in the auditorium building, and the wreath from Manitoba placed on it. Lighted candles surrounded the "body."

FREE TWO DAYS YOUTH CAPTURED

HAD $57 IN POCKET.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19.—(C.P.)—With less than two days' liberty John Joliffe of Windsor, who escaped from the Ontario Reformatory near Guelph on Feb. 17, is once again back in the police cells. Joliffe was arrested here early to-day by local police who found him lying on his stomach on the back of a transport truck. When arrested he was still wearing his prison clothes and had $57 on his person. Joliffe who was serving a series of sentences with a combined term of five and six years made his exit from the reformatory building unnoticed Tuesday night and vanished under a cover of darkness. Although a thorough search was made of the surrounding district his whereabout were not known until his arrest to-day. He will be taken back to Guelph.

Farm Found Littered With Dead Animals

HUMANE SOCIETY ACTION PENDING AGAINST OWNER

Fifty Acres in Middlesex Found to Contain Nearly 100 Remains.

SOME NEAR HOUSE DOOR.

Inspector Claims Majority Were Slain, Some Died of Cruelty or Starved.

LONDON, Ont., February 20 (C.P.). — The amazing story of a Middlesex County farm, strewn with the carcasses of dead animals, many of them in deep piles, was told to-day by Inspector George Tustin, of the London Humane Society, after concluding investigations in co-operation with county police and a public health official.

Inspector Tustin stated that on this farm, situated on the 14th concession of Ekfrid Township, three miles from Strathroy, were found the remains of upwards of 100 dead horses, cows and other animals. Some, he claimed, had been butchered, while others he believed had died from cruelty or neglect. The owner of the grisly graveyard may be prosecuted for allowing his farm to remain in an unsanitary condition, Inspector Tustin said, while Dr. Pardy, of Mount Brydes, M.O.H., for the Ekfrid district, stated that he had alreday warned the farmer that prosecution would follow unless conditions are immediately rectified.

Dotted 50 Acres.

Mr. Tustin, who with County Constable Fred Alfred, visited the farm one day this week, said that they found a space, about 50 acres in extent, which was completely dotted with the bodies of the slain beasts. Bits of hide, skeletons and decaying remains lay in piles 10 to 12 feet deep in some places, the Inspector declared.

Carcasses were found less than 57 yards from the back door of the farm house, where the owner and his family were living.

FIRST OFFENDERS TO BE SEPARATED

Prisoners With Record Will Go to Burwash Macaulay States.

ACTS ON ROSS REPORT.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 20. (CP)—The first step in segregating first offenders from the more hardened type of prisoner, which was recommended by the Ross Commission and forecast in the speech from the throne, started yesterday when 30 prisoners, who had been serving sentences for the second time at the Ontario Reformatory, were transferred to Burwash.

Hon. Leopold MacAulay announced to-day that this was a start in implementing that feature of the Ross' report which has been recommended from time to time by many social service organizations. The Minister said it was his intention to make the Ontario Reformatory almost entirely a place where first offenders will be taken while Burwash will be used for prisoners with a record.

BRIGANDS ACTIVE DESPITE TROOPS

Commit Wholesale Banditry Over Three Chinese Provinces.

MILITIA IS STRENGTHENED.

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Three thousand brigands are engaged in whole sale banditry along the Szechwan, Kweichow and Hunan provincial borders despite the efforts of Provincial military. Reports indicated the outlaws are endeavoring to enter Szechwan Province.

Local military authorities have ordered three regiments against the raiders.

Details of the situation in the vicinity of Chengtu, Szechwan Province, which was menaced Feb. 15, by 4,000 bandits, were unknown here as the result of interrupted communications.

$3,000 Is Found In Corpse's Clothing

PICTOU, N.S., Feb. 20 (C.P.).—The sum of $3,000, consisting mostly of $20 bills sewn into his clothing, was discovered on the body of John Macdonald, 69, found dead apparently from natural causes in his home at Loganville, Pictou County, according to news received here yesterday. Macdonald had lived alone, in a frugal manner, for the past 20 years. No inquest will be held.

BRITISH PARTIES' POLITICAL TREND PROVING PUZZLE

Prophets Talk of Mergings Resulting in Complete New Party Alignments.

ALL THREE SPLIT.

Liberals Firm For Alternative Vote Bill—No Sign of Early Election.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 20. (By Geo. Hambilton, C. P. Staff Correspondent) British party politics are moving to new orientations. All three parties have their divisions and dissensions. The rift between the right and left wings of Labor widens in debate although it generally manages to close again in critical divisions. Lloyd George Liberals and Simon Liberals differ sharply over their attitude to the Government. Food taxes have driven a wedge into Conservative ranks. And behind these there has lately been signs of a rather vague community of spirit between younger members on both sides of the House of Commons.

Result a Mystery

Where it will all lead nobody knows and nobody pretends to know. Some prophets talk of splits and mergings which will eventually result in completely new party alignments, back to some nearer approach to the old two-party system. Some look on Government by parties as having passed its limit. They think nothing remains in future but frank recognition of group Government with general elections on a fixed date.

It is a perplexing problem in which the alternative vote bill, or the ballot of the second choice, will play an important part. The aim of the bill is to insure that the candidate elected will have an absolute majority of the votes cast. Where there are more than two candidates the elector has the right to vote both first

DEATH SENTENCE IS PRONOUNCED UPON STEINBERG

Prisoner Will Hang on April 21 For Murder of Nephew in Toronto.

YORK ASSIZES OVER.

'Two-gun Babe' O'Brien, "Sunny" Lass Given 20 Years Each.

TORONTO, Ont., February 20 (C.P.). — Pronouncement of the death sentence upon Abraham Steinberg, convicted murderer of his nephew and business partner, Samuel Goldberg, and imposition of penitentiary sentences aggregating 81 years upon seven convicted prisoners by Mr. Justice Jeffrey, marked the conclusion of York County Winter Criminal Assizes to-day.

The murder for which Steinberg, who is 51 years of age, was sentenced to be hanged on April 21, was committed on March 5, 1930. At the Assizes last fall the jury failed to agree and a new trial was ordered. Mr. Justice Jeffrey presided at the first trial.

O'Brien and Lass Get 20 Years.

Convicted of the hold-up of a messenger of the Durable Waterproof Company, Toronto, on September 17 last, John "Two-Gun Babe" O'Brien and Sidney "Sunny" Lass were sentenced to 20 years each in Portsmouth Penitentiary. Both prisoners have lengthy records and were arrested in New York late last year as they were about to embark on a ship for Europe. Extraordinary precautions were taken by the police during the trial against any attempt by the pair to escape.

PACKARD HEAD SEES GOV'T ACTION AS EMBARGO ON HIGH PRICED CARS

Canadian Auto Importers' Association Chairman Protests 10,000 Will Be Jobless.

WASHINGTON INTERESTED.

TORONTO, Ont., February 20 (C.P.). — The action of the Dominion Government in placing a fixed discount of 20 per cent. from list prices for duty purposes on all United States automobiles entering Canada for sale, is interpreted by R. C. Kilgour, president of the Packard Ontario Motor Company, as practically an embargo on the importation into Canada of higher-priced cars.

Mr. Kilgour said it would not be profitable to establish a factory in Canada turning out high-priced cars, even if one company had a monopoly of all that class of automobile business in Canada, because the market is too small to make it economic.

Reduce Imports.

"As far as the high-priced cars are concerned," he said, "it will raise the prices and reduce the quantity of imports sharply, I expect."

Behind the Government's announcement lies an enormous plan which its advocates declare will in normal times provide $75,000,000 of new employment annually for Canadian workers and Canadian industry, declared H. A. Brown, vice-president and general manager of General Motors of Canada over long-distance telephone from Ottawa.

He said the Order-in-Council is based upon a definite plan having as its objective the exclusion, in normal times, of some $40,000,000 worth of automobile imports annually, mostly from the United States, and the replacement of that volume

Taxi Driver Sets Honesty Record

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (C.P.). — To get the most honest taxi driver prize away from Thomas H. Collins, some has to take a lot of trouble.

A woman passenger overpaid him $13.50 by handing over large bills instead of ones. As soon as he discovered the error he telephoned the house she had entered. No, said she, indignantly, she had not made a mistake, and would not take the money.

So what does Mr. Collins do but drive to a police station and beg the sergeant to put the $13.50 in the owner's hands.

The Weather

The lowest temperature last night was 24 degrees. Yesterday's highest point was 31 degrees; the lowest was 28, or a range of temperature in the 24 hours of only three degrees. This is a most unusual occurrence. It is curious to note that ever since noon on Sunday we have had very equable weather, easterly winds, light snow and cloudy conditions. The highest temperature since Sunday noon has been 37 degrees, and the lowest 24 degrees—this morning. Or in other words there has been a range of temperature of only 13 degrees since Sunday noon, or about 120 hours. This is quite unusual, in fact extraordinary. By way of contrast, on Feb. 3rd, we had a variation of 50 degrees in the 24 hours; and on the 11th, 43 degrees.—W. P.

Detroit Councilman Has Firm Belief In Making Real Event Of Wedding Day

DETROIT, Michigan, February 20. — The marriage of Councilman Fred B. Dibble of Hamtramck, to Miss Violet D. McLeod, is not to be one of those quiet ceremonies.

The Councilman made that plain yesterday when he informed his fellow council members and a packed council chamber, that he had ordered the following accessories for the wedding:

One hall for the ceremony.

One-half mile of sausage.

Two orchestras, and two Justices of the Peace.

Ten barrels of sauerkraut.

Countless cases of ginger ale.

A thousand violets to intertwine with palms on the stage as a pretty compliment on the bride's first name.

A blanket invitation has been extended to "everybody" to attend the ceremony on Saturday night.

Aviatrix Completes Round-World Flight

CROYDON, Eng., Feb. 20 (C.P.). Mrs. Victor Bruce, British woman aviator, came down here in her Blue Bird plane from Lympne Airdrome this afternoon, completing a trip around the world by sea and air. Frederick Montague, Under-Secretary of State for Air, and a group of other notables were here to meet her.

In the flight from Lympne she was escorted by several planes, whose pilots included Amy Johnson, Winifred Spooner and Squadron Leader Ridley.

PASTOR IN SAULT MADE TO RESIGN

HELD AS VAGRANT.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 20. — Rev. W. J. Cowherd, pastor of the local Free Methodist Church, who has taken an active part in unemployment demonstrations here, and who was arrested on a technical vagrancy charge lately following a meeting at which several Communist leaders spoke, has resigned his charge. The vagrancy charge was adjourned sine die. Another arrested at the same time was Frank Bruce of Toronto.

"The opposition in my own church became so great that there was nothing I could do but submit my resignation," said Dr. Cowherd. The resignation has been accepted.

The Rev. Mr. Cowherd came to the Sault in September, 1929, to take over the pastorate of the Free Methodist Church. Prior to his coming here he was pastor of the Free Methodist Church, of Galt, Ont.

THREE CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH AFTER GAS BLAST

Parents and Five Brothers and Sisters Trapped on Second Floor By Flames.

ALL ARE INJURED.

Explosion Blamed to Leak in Combination Gas and Coal Range.

CHICAGO, February 20 (C.P.).—Three children were smothered or burned to death and their parents and five brothers and sisters injured in a fire that trapped them on the second storey of their little frame home early to-day.

The dead are Adeline, 10; Leonard, 8; and Dorothy Havlicek.

Adeline died in a hospital this morning. Her brother and sister were found dead in bed by firemen after the others had been helped through a second storey window to a truck driven up to the rescue.

The father, Robert, is a metal worker. The family was stunned by the blast, thought to have been caused by a leak in a combination gas and coal stove, and flames were sweeping through the house before an alarm was given by employees in a nearby garage.

FIRST SANTIAGO-LONDON PHONE CALL.

LONDON, Feb. 20. (C.P.). — The first telephone call between Santiago, Chile and London, was made to-day, with Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador to Chile, speaking to his sister here.

Sir Henry's voice was transmitted overland from Santiago to Buenos Aires, and by radio to London. Miss Chilton said she heard him clearly.

WILL WAGE CUT BE PUT IN EFFECT ON COUNTY ROADS

Resolution Passed By County Council Was Only a Recommendation.

UP TO COMMISSION.

Smith, Otonabee and Douro Have Already Put Into Effect the Cut.

Will the county's proposed reduction in the wages of some of its employees be put into effect

At the concluding session of the council in January a resolution was adopted cutting the wage of teamsters from $6 to $5 a day, and the scale for mechanics and machine men generally from $5 to $4 a day but the wage for laborers remains at $3. Since then, however, it has been pointed out that the council's motion was nothing more than a recommendation to the Suburban Area Commission, and the special county roads committee. The statement has been made that the council cannot, for instance, bind the Suburban Area Commission by the resolution which emanated from Otonabee.

At the Otonabee nominations meeting ratepayers expressed the opinion that the wages of employees on the roads should be pared down to a level that approximated the diminished revenues of the rural ratepayers themselves. And Deputy-reeve Alex Huston and Reeve Fred McIntyre transmitted this sentiment to the conuty council, advocating the resolution which the council passed.

Now, the question comes up, what will the Suburban Area commission do? And likewise what will be the response of the county roads committee. A glance at the personnel of the Suburban Area Commission suggests the strong possibility that the wishes of the Otonabee farmers are likely to be carried out, for two of the three members are ratepayers of that township. Ex-Warden Morley E. Smithson is chairman of the commission, and Frank Kitney, who was appointed a year ago, is another Otonabee man, with Harry Gainey, the city's representative. Otonabee influence is obviously predominant in the composition of the commission, and if Mr. Smithson and Mr. Kitney are of the same mind as Mr. McIntyre and Mr. Huston there is a colour of probability in the proposed wage reductions being implemented, even if they were only approved as a recommendation by the county council.

Again, if the Suburban Area Com-

BRAMPTON IS BEATEN BY 4 SHOTS IN SEMI-FINALS, PETERBORO RINK WILL MEET PLAXTON OF TORONTO

BEST 13, SPIERS 9.

TORONTO, Ont., February 20 (C.P.). — The fourth annual Toronto Bonspiel is rapidly drawing to a close. Shortly after one o'clock this afternoon there were but eleven games left to play, five of these being finals and the last of these is scheduled for seven o'clock this evening, in the primary competition, the Royal York Trophy.

In the final of the Seiberling Trophy to-day, E. P. Gower of the Toronto Victoria Club defeated Dr. J. A. Wright of London, 14 to 13. The local rink won through an early lead, getting off to a fast start, leading 12 to 2 after 7 ends.

This is the second year for Best of Peterborough, to reach the semi-finals. His lead man is George Cairns with Alex Archibald second and Maurice Cruthers vice. Harry Foote is skipping Walter Oke's rink with S. C. Gruber vice, D. Fitzgerald second and J. T. Braund lead.

Night Club Singer Dies In Spotlight

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 20 (C.P.). —Immediately after singing a tragic song in a fashionable cabaret last night, the popular singer, Knute Bergstrom, flung himself across the table.

The public at first took no notice, supposing the singer to be acting a dramatic end to his song. They were horrified later to discover that he was dead. His heart apparently had given way under the strain.

PENNILESS WIVES TO BE CARED FOR UNDER NEW BILL

Aimed to Bring English Law to Conform With That in Most Other Countries.

GIVEN SECOND READING.

Nothing at Present to Prevent a Father From Disinheriting Both Wife and Children.

LONDON, February 20. (C.P.) — Husbands who leave their wives penniless, and bequeath their estates to charity or to their mistresses, were denounced in the House of Commons this afternoon by a woman member to such good effect that a bill she advocated to prevent such bequests was carried on its second reading by 149 votes to 28.

The proponent of this measure, aimed at bringing English law into conformity with that of most other countries, was Miss Eleanor Rathbone, independent member for the combined English Universities.

Should Death Interfere?

"In his lifetime a man is compelled to make provision for his wife and children," she said, in moving the second reading. "Should death end those obligations.

Miss Rathbone estimated that thousands of women are endangered by the latitude allowed testators by the present law.

"Suppose there are eight million married couples in England and Wales, and one husband in every thousand is a really bad husband, a petty tyrant, a thoroughly careless and indifferent man, or merely a weak victim of a dissolute woman. Then you have no fewer than 5,000 unhappy wives, who with their children are the unhappy victims of the kind of injustice this bill aims at remedying."

The Provisions.

The bill provides that the widow is entitled to one-half of the net estate if there are no surviving children, or one-third of the income therefrom if there is a surviving child or children, the maximum income allowed being £2,500 (about $12,500) in case of a widow, and £300 (about $1500) for each minor child.

At present there is nothing in English law to prevent a father from disinheriting both his wife and children.

KIWANIANS HEAR REV. SUTCLIFFE

Dr. F. C. Neal is Elected to Board of Directors of Local Service Club.

DELEGATES NAMED.

Dr. Frank C. Neal was elected to the vacancy on the Board of Directors of the Kiwanis Club at the noon luncheon in the Empress Hotel today, while President John I. Allen was chosen delegate to the Miami Kiwanis Convention, with Harry J. Boyle as alternative.

Besides a striking address by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe pastor of Murray street Baptist Church, the program was further augmented by Mrs. D. R. Howard at the piano and Deane Miner, violinist whose selections were received very appreciatively. Martin Chenhall accompanied as usual for the club singing.

"Live and Let Live" was the subject of Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe's message. On the now desolate ruins of Capernaum, he said, was built a synagogue by a Roman centurion for the use of his enemies the Jews. His contribution showed him to be a man of noble affection. Dwelling on this fact, the speaker went on to show

FARHAM VOTERS CASTING BALLOTS

Mrs. L. Manning Holds East Islington Seat For Labor Party.

CRITCHLEY DOWN 2,278.

LONDON, Feb 20 (C.P. Cable) — Electors went to the polls in the Fareham, Hampshire, by-election to-day with the news of a Labor victory in East Islington yesterday spread over the newspapers. Mrs. Leah Manning, who is president of the National Union of School Teachers, was successful in retaining East Islington for the Labor Party. The vote was: Mrs. [illegible] 10,591; Brig.-General A. C. Critchley Empire Free Trader, 8,314; Miss Thelma Cazalet, Conservative, 7,182, and Major H. E. Crawfurd, Liberal, 4,450.

The Beaverbrook forces put up a strong battle in support of Brigadier General Critchley, who is a native of Calgary. The Labor majority was higher than the 1,558 majority accorded Ethel Bentham, Labor, in the last general elections, though the Labor vote was considerably smaller than last time. Miss Bentham died recently.

In Fareham to-day the electors had to choose between Sir Thomas Inskip, Solicitor-General, and later Attorney-General in the two former Baldwin Conservative Governments; C. P. Cross, Liberal, and A. J. Pearson, Labor. Sir Thomas lost his seat in Parliament at the last general election.

Fareham's former member was Major-General Sir John Davidson, Conservative, who has retired. He had a majority of 11,126 in a three-cornered fight with Cross and Pearson in 1929.

REVOLT FAILS.

LIMA, Peru, Feb 20.—(A.P.)—An attempt to overthrow the Government of President Sanchez Cerro early to-day failed and the conspirators fled to Callo, where they were surrounded by troops.

BLOOD POISONING FATAL.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 20.—Ezra Latham, aged 48, a Tincap farmer, got a sliver in his hand three weeks ago. The day he had removed it, he killed a pig. Blood poisoning set in and last night he died in a local hospital.

RETURN OF SINCLAIR AS LEADER IS PREDICTED BY EX-MINISTER

Numerous Topics Discussed as Back Benchers Lead Debate in House.

HALF DOZEN PROPHECIES.

To Discuss North

Mr. Lyons will resume the debate on Tuesday next, when, it is expected, the North country, upon which he did not touch yesterday, will be fully discussed by him in respect of development and of prospects for the future.

MILLBROOK SHOW HAS FAIR ENTRY

Annual Winter Horse Show Was Held on King Street Yesterday.

LIST OF WINNERS.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 20. (Examiner Examiner Correspondence) — King street offered fairly good going for the annual Winter Horse Show held here yesterday, under the auspices of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, all classes listed on the prize sheet being filled with the exception of carriage horses and an exceptionally fine lot of animals was exhibited in the various events.

Many of those entering their horses for the show came from outside points, Orona, Port Hope, Peterborough, Campbellford, Burketon, and other places being represented, and in spite of unfavorable roads and stormy weather, the number of spectators was quite large, either side of the business section, which was roped off for the occasion, being lined with onlookers throughout practically the entire afternoon.

19th Annual Winter Fair

Percy Bogue, of Queensville, was the Departmental judge employed for this, the nineteenth annual Winter Fair, which the Agricultural Society, with commendable enterprise has sponsored each season, and that interest has in no way waned was evidenced by the attendance, the number of exhibitors, and the class of horses shown on Thursday.

Prize money in the case of single horses ranged four, three and two dollars; for a team, five, four and three dollars; while the sweepstakes in each instance had three dollars as the award. Expenses in connection with the Fair are met by means of the sale of tags on the street by directors of the Agricultural Society; by cash donations from the mer-

Barney Oldfield May Try Comeback

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 20—Barney Oldfield, pioneer American racing car driver, may make his "comeback" on the Legion Ascot Speedway here soon, track officials said to-day. Ralph De Palma recently drove in a speedway race, and Louis Meyers, national racing champion in 1928 and 1929, will participate in the races scheduled for next Sunday.

EUROPEAN STORM CREATES HAVOC

465 DIE OF FLU IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(A.P.)— High winds, rain, sleet and snow and the first bitter wintry weather of the year discommoded a large part of Europe to-day, with communications from Northern Spain eastward seriously hampered by snow drifts.

A heavy choking fog which spread over England yesterday cleared before dawn to-day and residents of the southern countries were comparatively comfortable, but Spain, France, Belgium, Northern Italy, Germany and Scandinavia were hard hit.

High seas caused a number of shipping incidents. The Mauretania ran aground off Southampton, but was reflated. The 1,486 ton German freighter Annie Hugo Stinnes VI sprung a leak 20 miles west of Borkrum Lightship, near Esbjerg, Denmark, and the crew was believed to have had to take to boats.

The British steamer Cheldale and the Danish ship Fionia collided in a heavy fog which hung over the Elbe estuary and off Jutland. The British vessel was towed to Cuxhaven, badly damaged. The Fionia suffered slightly about the bow.

The British woman aviator Mrs. Victor Bruce, flew through the fog across the English Channel from Havre, France, to Lympne Airdrome, England, completing a world tour by airplane and steamer. She will fly to London to-day, having been absent since Sept. 25.

There were 456 deaths from influenza in the larger cities of England during the week, an increase of 125 over the figure of the week before. There have been 1,585 influenza deaths in the larger cities since the first of January, compared with 434 in the same period last year.

SIZE OF BEE COLONY

An interesting experiment has been under way for the past five years to determine the approximate field force of a normal colony of bees. During this period, thirteen calculations have been made by officers of the Department of Agriculture, the figure varying from 22,187 to 39,687, but only on two occasions did the number fall below 31,000. It is reckoned that approximately 5,000 bees weigh a pound.

Class Of '96 Intelligent But Unlucky

W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., M.P.P., former Liberal leader in the Ontario legislature, recently referred to his old class of '96 of University of Toronto as having intellectual attributes, perhaps, but no favored sons of the Godess Luck. He spoke in a plea to the supporters of Hon. G. S. Henry, the premier, pointing out that Meighen was out; so was he—and all of the class of '96. Henry now faces the Conservative convention to formally confirm his appointment as the successor to former Premier Hon. G. H. Ferguson. (Above) are shown these three. SEVEN ARRESTED, FIFTY ROBBERIES ARE CLEARED UP

Negro Chauffeur Kidnapped—Three Youths Use Car for Hold-up.

CAPTURE MADE IN DETROIT.

Prisoner Threatens Vengeance of His Uncle, Al Capone, for Arrest.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 20. — Over 50 robberies in and about Detroit were cleared up, according to the police, with the arrest here early this morning of seven men, including Joseph Salvo, who claims to be a nephew of Al Capone.

Three of the men are said to have admitted kidnapping a negro chauffeur yesterday, and using his machine for robberies in Ann Arbor. An attempt to repeat that act, police say, was frustrated by their arrest. They are Edward Bellant, 25, Jerry Tulepant, 24, and Jack Benson, 20, all giving Detroit addresses.

As a result of alleged confessions, police subsequently arrested Samuel Bon, 19, Eli Fisher, 18, Joseph Salvo, 20, and William Lescoe, 19, Detroit youths.

According to the police, Bellant, Tulepant and Benson commandeered a taxicab, and forced the driver into a rear seat, while Bellant took the wheel. Shortly after midnight they were wedged to the curb by a police cruiser and captured. Four guns were found in their possession, the police say.

"My uncle, Al. Capone, will get me out of this," Salvo is said to have told the police, after having confessed, police say, to a part in a $6,000 payroll hold up in Chicago last summer.

and second choice. If one candidate gets an absolute majority he is declared elected and that is the end of it. But if no candidate gets an absolute majority the candidate with the least number of votes is dropped out and the second choices marked on his ballot papers are transferred till somebody gets an absolute majority.

Liberals See Better Chance.

The Government introduced the bill under Liberal pressure for in the last general elections Liberals were the chief sufferers from the return of minority candidates. It took on an average 90,000 votes to elect a Liberal but only 33,000 to elect a Conservative, and only 29,000 to elect a Labor man. In the terse phrase of Mr. Lloyd George: "Liberals tripped on the triangle" with the alternative vote they think they have a better chance next time.

And the bill has its influence on the life of the Government. Lloyd George has plainly intimated that he wants the bill and that he does not intend to turn Labor out to put Conservatives in. But if the House of Commons runs true to expectation, and rejects the bill, it will take two years before the bill can reach the statute over the Lords' vote.

In the whirligig of British politics, where crises seem suddenly to arise out of nowhere, two years is a long time to give to a minority government.

But prophets of an early general election have begun to revise their estimates.

Record Seeker Quits After Plane Crashes

PALAPYE ROADS, Bechuanaland, British East Africa, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The British aviator, Tommy Rose, who left Lympne Airdrome, England, Feb. 11, in an attempt to lower the flight record from England to Capetown, crashed here today but was not hurt. The under carriage of his machine collapsed in the fall.

Upon his arrival at Bulawayo yesterday Rose announced that he had decided to abandon the attempt to make a record since he was behind schedule because of the bad weather.

PROPOSED UNION MEETS APPROVAL

Move By Ex-service Men's Organizations More Necessary Now Than Ever Says Col. La Fleche.

McDONAGH AGREES.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20 (C.P.).—Approval of the proposition advanced by the directors of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada for an amalgamation of the various ex-service men's organizations of this country into one all-embracing association, while at the same time each unit entering the merger would retain its autonomy, is voiced by the heads of five of those groups in statements issued here. For the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, Col. L. R. La Fleche, D.S.O., Dominion President, declares his pleasure at the proposal.

"It is perhaps more necessary now than it has ever been since the Great War that steps be taken to bring all together, eliminating any possibility of confusion, friction, or working at cross purposes.

"The Legion is the living proof of the value of unity and concerted effort in the interests of King and country," says Col. La Fleche, "and individual veteran and his dependents. Since its inception the Legion has made great strides towards the goal of complete unification, and I am immensely gratified with the directors of the A. and N. Veterans' Association."

Rain Falls In Spain 63 Consecutive Days

SANTANDER, Spain, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Rain fell today in Santander, Biscayan, port of Spain, for the sixty third consecutive day. It was mixed today with snow and hail and provided thoroughly miserable weather for inhabitants of this district, who would like very much to see the sun shine again.

A terrific storm has raged for many hours at sea and the movement of ships in an out of port has been greatly impeded. Trains have been delayed and some are not arriving at their destination at all.

Leon dispatches say that intense cold prevails there, with snow five feet in thickness in nearby localities. Heavy snow has blocked highways about Bilbao. Considerable rain and snow have fallen about Logrono.

MURDERER PAYS WITH LIFE.

RAY BEST RINK IN SEMI-FINALS OF WRIGLEY CUP

Local Curlers Win From A. Grant of Wexford 13 to 14 in Semi-finals.

OKE DEFEATS McCULLOUGH.

Three Rinks Tied for Lead in Struggle for Toronto 'Spiel Aggregate Honors.

TORONTO, February 20. — With the exception of the special competition, the semi-finals have been reached in all the other events of the Toronto bonspiel, as a result of yesterday's play. Toronto clubs are represented in all but one, the Ryrie-Birks Trophy competition, which finds four out-of-town rinks in the prize money.

An out-of-town rink, that of H. Meredith of Barrie, is also in the lead for the grand aggregate honors with 9 wins and 3 games remaining to be played. The nearest rivals to the Barrie quartet are R. G. Hall's Kitchener rink, last year's grand aggregate winners, and the Toronto rink, skipped by H. H. Chisholm, both of which have seven wins and only two more games to play. If the Barrie four loses its there remaining games, and the Toronto and Kitchener rinks win their remaining two, a three-cornered tie will ensue. However, Barrie last night was practically considered the winner as far as theis prize is concerned.

The semi-finals and finals will be played at the various clubs to-day. One finalist has already been declared, Dr. J. A. Wright's London Club rink having arrived at that point in the Seiberling event. The other finalist will be either Gower's Toronto rink or the Oakwood rink skipped by Dr. Sellery.

In the Wrigley competition, the semi-finalists were known early yesterday afternoon. Dr. Plaxton's Toronto Club four will meet A. S.Thompson's Agincourt rink in the semi-finals while the Peterborough rink of Ray Best and R. M. Spiers' Brampton four will engage in the other semi-final match.

In the North American Life event the finals have been reached, Graham of New Liskeard and Campbell of High Park being the competing rinks. In the Royal York event the semi-fnals will be played with Brower's Granites and D. M. Walker's Fort William entry competing in one-half and Skitch of Lindsay opposing the Chisholm Toronto Club four in the other.

The following are the results of local and district rinks played in various competitions yesterday.

Eddie Shea Favored To Beat Kid Francis

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(C.P.)—Two leading contenders for the featherweight championship, Eddie Shea of Chicago and Kid Francis of Italy clash in the ten round feature bout in Madison Square Garden to-night.

Shea, a rugged warrior with a powerful punch in either hand, rules an 8 to 5 favorite over Francis. Chicago Eddie has not fought here since he was knocked out by Charlie (Phil) Rosenberg, then bantamweight champion, in a spectacular battle at the old New York velodrome six years ago. That bout aroused a few snickers among close followers of the game and Shea never has fought here since.

Francis, who has abandoned his chase for the bantam weight title in favor of mingling with the bigger fellows, has won five straighrt bouts since he returned from abroad to open his third United States' campaign.

MAJOR-DOMO DIES OF GRIEF.

POTSDAM, Germany, February 20. —Grief over the sale of the family effects of Glienicke Castle, was believed to have killed Conrad Mfdel, 84, Prince Friedrich Leopold Hohenzollerns faithful major-domo for 56 years.

The ansient servitor was heard recently to say that he could not survive the "plebeian treatment" of the princely furnishings, to each peice of which he was deeply attached. Heartbroken at the sale he took to his bed and to-day he died.

"please, Mummy, make the cough stop!"

CHANGES IN THE GAME LAWS.

There was a great deal in the criticism voiced in the Legislature by Hon. H. C. Nixon, the Progressive leader, in regard to game law legislating that the public will endorse.

Mr. Nixon's complaint against the practice of having a lot of recommendations made by the fish and game committee and they brought down in the House in the last hours of the session and hurried through, is well founded.

A much more satisfactory system would be to have amendments to the game laws introduced to the House like any other legislation and then referred to the committee for consideration.

Matters affecting Ontario's supply of fish and game are important both from a commercial and from a sporting viewpoint, and it would be well when changes of moment are being made in the regulations that the whole House should have more opportunity to discuss the purport of these amendments than is possible when the discussion of the bill is left until the last day of the session.

Many of the changes in existing regulations are of a more or less controversial nature, which is another argument for the House as a whole being given a fair chance to consider the merits or otherwise of the new legislation being introduced—something that is practically impossible under the method that has been followed for some time.

THE POPULARITY OF RADIO.

The growth in the popularity of radio in Canada is effectively illustrated by the latest report of the Dominion Radio Department, which shows that the number of licensed receiving sets in this country has increased almost to the half million mark.

To be accurate, the licenses issued up to the end of January totalled 493,176, and the 500,000 stage may be reached before the end of the fiscal year.

It is interesting to note that Ontario people own more than half the receiving sets in the Dominion, the total for this Province up to the end of January being 247,442, of which 77,194 licenses were issued in Toronto alone.

The Queen City, on its own account, in other words, contains more radios than do most of the Provinces, the total of Manitoba being only 31,782, Saskatchewan 31,420 and British Columbia with 40,633.

Quebec stands second to Ontario, but is far behind the total of this Province with 90,571 receiving sets.

When it is realized that there are undoubtedly in every Province a number of sets for which no license has been paid and that these unlicensed radios would materially increase the total for Canada, the important place occupied by radio broadcasting can be appreciated.

At the same time the necessity of earnest consideration of the whole radio field before any radical change in policy is undertaken is readily indicated.

A NEW KIND OF POLITICS.

Judging by developments in the Legislature, a new era has arrived in Ontario politics.

In his contribution to the debate the other day, W. E. N. Sinclair, the Liberal House leader, in a thoughtful speech pointed out the difficulties under which the Ontario farmers were laboring, and urged that the session be given over to a consideration of agricultural problems.

Ordinarily, no matter how much a proposal of this kind might appeal to a Government, it would be rejected as coming from the opposition, or at least shelved until the administration could later on bring it in on its own account.

But, strange to say, Mr. Sinclair's suggestion was immediately acted upon.

The very next day it was announced that the committee on agriculture was being called together immediately, two weeks before any other committee, and that it would at once proceed with an investigation into the whole question of agricultural conditions.

Well-known farmers from all parts of the Province will be called in to give the committee the benefit of their knowledge and experience, and from the evidence heard a program will be drafted for presentation to the Legislature.

Mr. Sinclair's proposal, in fact, has been adopted, and he himself has been added to the agricultural committee, so that he can assist in bringing about the reforms he believes necessary.

This would seem to be playing politics in a new way.

BACK TO THE OLD RATES.

The restoration of relief payments to war veteran pensioners to the old rate is much more satisfactory than the explanation given by Premier Bennett as to why they were cut in the first place.

The exhaustion of the sum appropriated by Parliament for this purpose as well as of a substantial sum secured through Governor-General's warrants, had left the Pensions Department without enough funds to carry on the work, and accordingly a cut had been announced, the Prime Minister states.

"There was no desire, much less intention, to cause hardship to those who had been receiving relief," the explanation concludes.

How the administration could arrive at the conclusion that there would be no hardship occasioned by a sudden slashing of relief allowances that were none too big to start with is a mystery.

It is said that Governor-General's warrants can only be issued in cases of urgent necessity; it is strange, however, in this case that the urgency was not recognized until the unanimous condemnation of Canadian veterans and of the newspapers convinced the administration that the first order was a grievous mistake.

The incident should not be without its value, however.

It has shown the Government that no matter how anxious the people of Canada may be to be relieved of some of the burden of taxation, they are utterly opposed to saving money at the expense of ex-service men and their families.

EDUCATION IN TEMPERANCE.

When prohibition was overthrown in Ontario, as in other Provinces of the Dominion, many of those conscientiously believing in and practising temperance were among the people supporting the change. They did so because they had reached the conclusion that prohibition was unenforceable and that its administration was accompanied by such flagrant abuse that the country would be better off, in their opinion, under a system of Government sale of liquor. They also believed, and said, that the temperance agencies, considering themselves secure in their position, had failed to continue that emphasis upon education in temperance matters which had marked their activities before prohibition set in with the result that ground had been lost in that connection. The cry that what was needed was education in regard to the evils of over-indulgence in intoxicants, rather than a continuance of prohibition, was a familiar one heard while battles over the "wet" and "dry" issues were being waged.

The different temperance organizations have now taken these advocates of a return to educational effort at their word, and it is noticeable that in practically every Province of the Dominion there is now on their part a recognition of the fact that people cannot be legislated into abstaining from liquor but must be taught the wisdom of refraining from indulgence in it. They have ceased clamoring for a return to prohibition, knowing full well that neither Governments nor a majority of the people would sanction it, and are concentrating their attention upon educational programs calculated to impress upon individuals, and particularly the young, the harmful effects of over-indulgence in strong drink. And they are appealing for support to those individuals who voted against prohibition, or supported the change to Government control when no vote was taken, with the argument that the temperance organizations had failed to carry on educational work and had thus been responsible for some of the abuses accompanying the "dry" era.

This newspaper recently quoted the Ontario Temperance Association, which takes the ground that temperance is not a matter for political action, but one for individual study, and which is carrying on an educational program to that end. Now comes forward W. D. Bayley, a former member of the Manitoba Legislature and director of temperance education of the Manitoba Department of Education, with much the same contestion. He believes that Canada, having "messed up" the prohibition experiment by neglecting education, may repeat her former mistake if she fails to make education "a vital factor" during the Government control regime. "Canada," he says, "needs a new temperance policy, to be formulated not by emphasizing our differences but by discovering our agreements. At this time peace on the liquor front is essential to fcrther progress. For 25 years we fought each other, and some substantial and permanent gains were made. But 'compulsory' total abstinence in this generation' is, evidently, not an attainable objective. 'Total abstinepce—or at least strict moderation—for the next generation through education and example' may be a practical program." Mr. Bayley calls upon Canadians to accept as a temperance policy for the next decade the education of youth, and he believes that differences of legislative issues should not be allowed to deprive children of their undoubted right to be adequately informed regarding alcohol and its action upon the human organism.

Mr. Bayley points out that many Manitobans made use of the slogans "Example" and "Education" in their fight against prohibition in that Province. The same cries were heard elsewhere. They must now be prepared to support such slogans or plead guilty to inconsistency, and the Governments which support a policy of control will not be doing their duty if, in harmony with such an attitude, they fail to make adequate provision for the spread of temperance education. It is Mr. Bayley's contention that the grants which are made in this direction by the different provincial administrations are far below those made in other countries, and that Governments deriving revenues from their liquor stores should set aside a certain definite sum each year to be expended upon temperance education in the schools, with improved texts and members of the teaching profession more adequately seized of the importance of that subject.

There is much to be said in support of Mr. Bayley's contention. Most of those administrations which have supplanted prohibition with Government sale avowedly have the cause of temperance at heart. They declare that they are doing their utmost to bring about temperance where a certain amount of license formerly prevailed. If they mean this, they cannot decline to participate in a larger measure in the educational work that is being carried on in a feeble, half-hearted sort of way in the schools and elsewhere.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CHAPTER IV.

In Spite of Science.

Mr. Kent sat alone at breakfast. Alone, that is, except for the respectful and watchful Hawkins, who, silent as a shadow, smoothly supplied every want of the Senator's before it was half realized by himself. When Kent's hand reached out for the newspaper, it was put into his grasp. When he drained his first cup of coffee, and was in the act of looking inquiringly around, it was filled before the gesture was finished. When he fumbled frowningly in his vest pocket for a pencil, a pad and pencil were softly shoved under his elbow. And to all of this most perfect service, he gave scarcely the slightest recognition, so absorbed was he in his thoughts.

His mind was on the memory of the meeting in his home the night before, of the members of the committee who, with him, were to investigate conditions in the desert reservations, especially in that district under the supervision of Joseph Smith, whence were coming vague but insistent mutterings of trouble. There had been present only one man, beside himself, who regarded the disturbance as having any possible serious consequences. This was a blunt Arizonian, familiar with the primitive people and their ways, and familiar, too, with the difficulties that beset the way of Smith, new to his position, new to the land, new to the Indians, and new to a situation which had been brewing for years. Adam Potter, the Arizonian, with Kent, had tried most of the night to stir the other members of the committee out of the lethargy in which their ignorance permitted them to lie, and had only been dubbed alarmists for their pains. Finally it had been agreed that twoof the members, excluding Kent, who was familiar with the matter, were to return with Potter to Arizona and make, with him, a trip to Smith's agency, in order to convince themselves that the talk of rebellion was mere rumor, that Smith was a silly, scared fool, and that Washington was right, as always, to play conservatively safe at a distance of twenty-five hundred miles. The third man, who was unable to go, agreed to accept the recommendations of the other two, if they were persuaded to Potter's and Kent's opinion. With that much accomplished, after sevreal hours of wrangling, the meeting had adjourned.

Potter and the two men who were to return with him to Arizona had remained at Senator Kent's for the night, but had left so early in the morning, in order to cross the desert in Potter's automobile before the heat of the day, that Kent, by prearrangement, had not risen for their departure. It was, therefore, nearly noon when he got up from the luxury, rarely allowed himself, of a late breakfast, and, with a nod of thanks to the efficient Hawkins, was about to leave the room. At the doorway, however, he paused and turned.

"Miss Kent is not up yet, I presume?"

"She has not rung, sir," came the answer.

Kent smiled indulgently.

"I suppose I can scarcely scold her for turning night into day when I have done the same thing. Well, I'll be in my study, Hawkins, when she is ready. We are to lunch together."

"Very good, sir."

But once in his study he became so engrossed in work that he was oblivious to the passage of time until a knock at his door aroused him. Lifting his head, he leaned back in his chair, an expectant smile on his face as he waited for Lorraine's impetuous rush, following her announced presence. But when there came another knock, instead of the girl, the smile faded, and he looked inquiringly at the apologetic maid who halted on the threshold, palpably in great distress.

"What is it, Mary?"

"Oh—Mr. Kent—Senator—I don't know how to tell you, sir—but I think you ought to know——"

"Don't be afraid, Mary. What is it about?"

"It's about Miss Lorraine, sir."

"Miss Lorraine? Is she——"

"Oh, it's the first time, sir—really." But the girl could not make herself go on.

Mr. Kent thought quickly, and there came to mind Lorraine's careless words of the night before.

"Oh, of course, it's the usual wild kind of party." Could she be——?

"Mary, is Miss Lorraine—ill?"

"Oh, no, sir—not that."

Then Kent grew alarmed and rose to face the servant.

"Tell me quickly, Mary."

Mary wrung her hands, hesitated, but finally blurted it out.

"She—she—Oh, Mr. Kent! She never came home at all! I've been waiting and waiting for her to ring, and it got to be two o'clock, and I thought she must be sick, so I went in on tiptoe, and she's never been in her bed at all!"

Kent thought quickly.

"Perhaps she got up early and is out somewhere."

"No, sir." said the girl positively. "Her car is in the garage. And none of us has seen her and some of us would be sure to."

There fell upon the room one of those brief little silences that are as terrifying as an eathquake. At the end of it Mary was dismissed kindly with the quiet assurance that Mr. Kent would look into the matter, but there was no need to be alarmed yet. And would she please keep the matter quiet until she heard from him? As she closed the door, Kent took up the telephone, near to his hand, and spoke in a quick, sharp voice, utterly unlike the one he had used toMary

His first call was to Edith Phillips, Lorraine's hostess of the night before; and to his careful questions she gave, from her silken bed, the silliest, most twittering of replies.

"Oh, good morning, Mr. Kent! Senator, I should say, shouldn't I? But it's so hard to keep all the celebrities I know straight in my mind! Especially the day after the night before! You certainly had courage to call me so early. Oh, is it as late as that, really? Well, then it's sweet of you to call me at all, because I know you're an awfully busy man. Oh, yes! We had a wonderful time, than you, simply wonderful! I don't think anybody knew what they were doing by midnight, except Lorraine, of course. What? No, Lorraine always keeps her head. She's one of the few sensible friends I have. I don't know whether she keeps Dirk sober or her, but anyway, they both left before midnight. They were perfectly disgusted with my party. Didn't she tell you? How sweet of her to be so polite! What's that? Oh, than you again! I do so appreciate your calling me. I'm sure we'll be happy, too. For a while anyway! My love to Lorraine Good-by."

Kent put down the telephone thoughtfully.

She and Dirk had left before midnight but where had they gone? A casual inquiry at Dirk's home brought the reply from his servants that he had not been seen since his departure for the Club house the night before. No, he had not returned. No, his car was not there either. Mr. Kent might inquire at the airplane Club, to which Mr. Dirk belonged. He was usually to be found there.

But Dirk was not there either, and Kent paused, receiver in hand, trying to think of a member who knew Dirk well. Then he remembered Stephen Moore, Dirk's college roommate and chum, so, asking for Moore, Kent waited with rapidly growing consternation until Stephen stepped to the wire.

"Hello, Moore. Senator Kent speaking. I want to locate Dirk. He's not at home. Will you see if his plane is there and, if not, find out all you can about when it left? Get whatever information you are able to. It's rather important."

"Certainly, Mr. Kent, I'll be glad to. I haven't seen him around here to-day, so I imagine he's gone up. I'll let you know."

"Eh—come to the house with your information, will you please?" Kent asked. "As soon as possible. It's a private matter. I'll explain."

"Right, sir. In a short while."

Stephen Moore appeared in a half hour and was admitted at once to Mr. Kent's study. He was a slender, wiry chap, looking more like a poet than a flier, with his pale face, intense dark eyes, and long lock of hair hanging on his forehead. This he shook impatiently back as he talked, plunging at once to the heart of the matter with the nervous directness that was his chief characteristic.

"Dirk took his plane out about midnight. There was a girl with him. I suppose it's Lorraine?"

Kent nodded.

"Sit down, Stephen. This thing needs cool thought. I'm all at sea. Tell me all you know."

So Moore perched on the broad arm of a chair, himself greatly troubled at Dirk's absence, and unable to understand the composure of the older man. To the aviator, disappearance could mean but one thing—a tragic crash somewhere. Wasn't Lorraine's father entertaining such a possibility? Puzzled, with his straight dark gaze fixed on Kent, he told all he knew.

Dirk and a girl—presumably Lorraine—had driven to the flying field about midnight. The two had seemed in high spirits, to the few sleepy observers at the place at that hour, and it had been supposed they were engaged in a lark, a dare, a venture of some kind. In the light of Steve's questions, however, this presumption seemed ridiculous, for they had been led to recollect that Dirk had fueled to the machine's capacity, and it seemed absurd to believe that they would have taken time to do this for a brief ride of an hour or two. Other details cropped out, too, which only added to the mystery of their sudden departure, since they contradicted its apparent impromtu effect. Dirk had bought food at the lunch wagon, and had insisted, rather against the girl's protest, on her wearing a parachute. Both of these facts appeared to indicate a plan, on Dirk's part at least, for a protracted flight.

"What do you think it means, Mr. Kent? Where do you think they were going?"

"I'm at a loss to understand," he relied slowly. "I know that Dirk was in love with Lorraine——"

"Yes. He has been for a long time."

"—but I wasn't under the impression that she cared for him. In fact——"

He lapsed into silence while Steve tried to hold himself quiet. At last, however, his self-control snapped. He bent forward and spoke sharply.

"Of course you are going to send out a searching party, Mr. Kent? You won't delay?"

Kent met the intense, bright look of the boy, in some surprise.

"I am sure your anxiety is not well enough founded yet, Steve. It is possible that Dirk and Lorraine have eloped, in some resentment at what I said last night—" He broke off abruptly. "I want to think this thing over, my boy. I want to be sure."

A Thought

YOU CAN'T FOOL GOD!

You can fool the general public,
You can be a subtle fraud,
You can hide your little meanness
But you can't fool God!

You can advertise your virtues,
You can self-achievement laud,
You can load yourself with riches
But you can't fool God!

You can criticize the Bible,
You can be a selfish clod,
You can lie, swear, drink and gamble,
But you can't fool God!

You can magnify your talent,
You can hear the world applaud,
You can boast yourself somebody
But can't fool God!

What To-day Means To You

"PICES"

If February 20th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 10:20 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10:45 p.m. The danger period is from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

February 20th holds out nothing very promising, from an astrological viewpoint. It promises to be unexciting and humdrum and the signs indicate that the greatest success will be attained by simply "carrying on" without any excursions into the realms of the unknown and untried.

Children born on this February 20th will have more than their share of infantile ailments. Long before the adolescent stage is reached, they will be physically normal. In disposition, they will be sensitive, reserved, and capable of deep thought, followed by energetic action.

Those who celebrate their birthday on February 20th, are generally congenial companions, loyal friends, and affectionate husbands or wives. They have no great aspirations, and, although conscientous workers, will not slip out of their usual routine to do anything out of the ordinary. The signs show that they will be frugal, and, from their early youth, will be always endeavoring to make suitable provision for "the rainy day." They are, more or less, assured of a moderate degree of material success, and this will satisfy them. Not addisted to any special form of outdoor recreation — although evincing a superficial interest in all forms of sport—they will find their chief pleasure in reading light literature, and in social contacts, but never in excesses. They will have a strong religious streak in their "make-up" but never be rigid observers of the ceremonial indicative of the belief to which they belong.

They will radiate wherever they may be, a goodly measure of contentment. They will mind their own business, and never act the part of "buttinskys." Nothing great can be expected from them nor nothing startling. They will pursue "the even tenor of their way," regardless of circumstances and environment. They will possess a reserve force of character, and a moral sense, that will save them from disaster and misfortune.

Havelock Public School Has a Full Attendance

HAVELOCK, Feb 20. Examiner Correspondence.—At a recent School Board meeting, T. P. Lancaster, advocated having the principal of the Public School send in a monthly attendance report to Mr. Copp, I.P.S of Peterborough. As a result, the Havelock School shows a perfect 100% lawful attendance for January. This is the first time for the local school to be on the list and they made a good showing. Some of the Belmont township schools made the 100% mark also, but it is not their first time.

MEXICO'S CUSTOMS RECEIPTS DROP

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20 (A.P.)—A slump of 40 per cent in Mexico's customs receipts in January, as compared with December, was announced to-day.

The reduction of imports is viewed in some financial circles as a hopeful sign in the Government's efforts to improve its trade balance.

NEWS IN THE FIELDS

"Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy." —Luke 2:10. (Read Luke 2:1-20.)

Meditation

The good news came first to humble men, not to the proud and the learned. And it came to them in the solitude of their vigil in the fields. Lonely souls, they were where the heavens dip and touch the earth. How unimaginable that this scene should have been cast in the close streets of Jerusalem! There is something for us, in this city-dwelling age, to think about. Where people are thickest, there life is apt to be thinnest. Where the noise of the world is loud, the "still small voice" is not easily heard. Where the eye is distracted with things, the heavenly vision does not break through.

"Peace on the earth and goodwill,
Souls that are gentle and still Hear the first music of the far-off, infinite bliss."

Prayer

O God who dwellest not in temples made with hands and who hast stretched out the heavens as a tent to dwell in, we lift our eyes unto the hills from whence cometh our help. Deliver us from the confusions of men that we may find the peace of God. Amen.

BUILD NEW THEATRE

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 20 (C.P.) —G. L. Filman of the firm of Moorehead & Filman, owners of the Patricia Theatre here, announced to-day plans for building a $2,225,000 theatre in Ottawa. It will open in the Fall.

SPREADING OF SCANDAL

Peterborough Examiner,

Dear Mr. Editor,—I wonder if you would allow me a small space in your valuable paper. I would like to say a few words in regard to a certain class of people who seem to take a great delight in scandal and gossip. So many times remarks are carelessly dropped or even stories told which have no foundation at all, but after being told several times and a little added each time really turn out to be quite serious.

Now days if a man steals a dollar he is probably sentenced to a year in jail, most people will say "serves him right, he got just what he deserved." But what about the man or woman who will try to steal your good name or character? It seems to me all one can hear these days is, "Did you hear about Miss 'J' or Mrs. So and So was out car riding with So and So. What a world! God said "He that is without sin let him cast the first stone."

It seems to me in the present day, people should be more considerate of others and at least tell the truth but then I suppose it takes all classes to make a world, and the words of the tenth chapter of Proverbs, twenty-third verse might well apply to a lot of people.

It is as sport to a fool to do mischief, but a man of understanding hath wisdom, also in the eighth verse.

The wise in heart will receive commandments but a prating fool shall fall.

Thanking you,

Yours For A Better World.

LILY EDMONDS IS EXONERATED

No Blame Attached to Girl For Death of Young Boy on Lindsay Street.

STRUCK BY CAR.

LINDSAY, Ont., Feb. 20 (Special to Examiner).—The coroner's inquest held last night to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Buddy Miles, the five-year-old son of P. Miles, of Lindsay, exonerated Miss Lily Edmonds from all blame.

The little lad was killed when his sleigh collided with a car driven by Miss Edmonds on Elgin Street on February 9th. A section of the rib entered the child's heart, killing him instantly.

LABOR RETAINS SEAT IN EAST ISLINGTON

United Empire Crusader is Second in Four-sided By-election Race.

LONDON, Feb. 20. — Labor retained the constituency of East Islington in a by-election vote yesterday. Mrs. Leah Manning, the Labor candidate, secured 10,591 votes; Brig. Gen. A. C. Critchley, United Empire Crusader, 8,314; Miss Thelma Cazalet, Conservative, 7,182, and Major H. E. Crauford, Liberal, 4,450.

The seat was rendered vacant by the death of Dr. Ethel Benthan, Labor, who carrie dthe seat in 1929. Dentham's vote then was 15,199,while Major R. I. Tasker, Conservative, obtained 13,641 votes, and E. C. Middleton, Liberal, 11,136.

LIST STRONGER QUIET SESSION

Coppers Again Lead Advance With Nickel, Noranda and Smelters Setting Records.

TELEPHONE IS FIRMER.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 20 (CP) The market opened strongly this morning and rising prices were the rule during the first half of the session advances were not so pronounced as yesterday, nor was the early turnover heavy, still a number of the leaders made new highs on the move.

Coppers again were the leaders with Nickel, Noranda and Consolidated Smelters breaking through to new high levels for the year. Smelters soared to 173 at one time, subsequently dropping back to around 170. Nickel rose above 18½ and Noranda to almost 185, both easing slightly around midday.

Bell Telephone was firmer, C.P.R., up a fraction while Brazilian failed to hold all of yesterday's gain. Dominion Stores rose to a new 1931 high above 19.

Ford of Canada, weak before the close yesterday, came back strongly this morning, touching a new record 1931 price of 28 and holding well above 27 where it was up nearly two points.

There was no change in the outlook for the oils and prices of these shares were mostly unchanged.

KIWANIANS HEAR

how, that by coming into contact with people of all races and creeds is but to have one's mind broadened, and he thought there is nothing the world needs more badly to-day than to have partisanship dulled.

There are people in the world he stated, who claim to live and let live, and yet he went on to point out their tolerance is of the negative kind. It is not the genuine tolerance that there should be, but the kind of tolerance that is hardly tolerable. The tolerance synonomous with neutrality in life, means the absence of conviction. There is nothing so badly needed to-day as conviction—downright conviction of the good things of life.

Giving a definition of tolerance, Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe said it had been aptly described as "the unconquerable ascendancy of good will over all personal differences." It was the ability to retain good will for every man and woman of every faith and profession. "We all have our contribution to make towards the building of society to help God to complete the making of the earth. It is certainly not complete now, the speaker commented.

The speaker believed the Kiwanis Club to be a great institution for the eradication of intolerance throughout the world. Everywhere it is counted a good club. In its membership are gathered together men of all creeds and professions, a fact which makes it impossible to think but only in the broadest terms. When men and women throughout the world have some of the good things in common then can we say that we have captured something of the spirit of the tolerance of positiveness.

Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe and the musicians were tendered a hearty vote of thanks on the motion of Percy Blackmore.

Jack Nelson was booster for James Doran, Canadian National Railway agent here.

SOCIALISTS WAIT CHANCE IN SPAIN

Hold Up Strike to See Governmental Program in Full Swing.

POLICE DISPERSES MOB.

MADRID, Spain, Feb. 20. (A.P.)—Taken by surprise at the Monarchist union which has permitted formation of a government under Premier Admiral Juan Aznar Y. Cabanas, Socialists, Republicans and other radical elements were believed to-day to be marking time before renewing active opposition to the throne.

Although Spain continues tranquil, there were reports that the Socialist and Labor leaders were planning a general strike, withholding action temporarily in order to witness the Governmental program in full swing. A meeting of the Socialists and General Workers' Union has been called for Saturday to formulate a program.

Two linotype operators who broke a strike called by that group yesterday were beaten badly by a group of strikers last night.

Demonstration occurred in the Calle Almirante with 300 strikers gathering in front of the residence of Dr. Jose Maria Albinana, Nationalist Party leader, and threatening him. Police reserves were called and the crowd fled.

Brockenshire Will Be Taken To Jail Hospital

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 20.—(By the Canadian Press.)—Seventy days ago Jack Brockenshire of Windsor, alleged slayer of a local police constable was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from bullet wounds inflicted when he tried to evade capture. Now it is understood that he will be taken from the local institution on Tuesday of next week and will be confined to the jail farm hospital.

Winnipeg Review

Wheat prices were about unchanged at the start yesterday morning when there was very little going on, but the market held tight with very little for sale, and gradually firmed up, finally running into some stop loss buying which carried prices to almost two cents above the close Wednesday through the daily offers for fully a cent. It is very difficult to say just what the buying really was, and while export business continues on the light side, there being very little worked overnight, there appears to be a decided change in sentiment and most of the trade appear to be leaning toward the bull side, while for months everybody has been bearish.

The stock market continued strong and all other commodities have made advances during the last week or so. It is known that there are some good-sized buying orders in this market somewhat under present levels, and sea-board houses were endeavoring to buy May wheat at the start this morning at 63 cents, but there was nothing for sale at yesterday's price, in fact there was very little for sale until top levels were reached, when they were more liberal but not heavy by any means.

The cash wheat situation is more or less dormant. Demand is light but offers are extremely light and spreads were unchanged.

Feel friendly towards wheat but this market cannot advance very far unless other surplus markets follow, as our export trade will largely disappear, which is the chief feature that must be avoided. The strength in Buenos Aires reported as due to heavy rains in Argentine. Country marketings on Wednesday were 318,000 bushels as against 246,000 a year ago.

Coarse Grains.—These markets were all strong especially rye. Trade was not large but there was a much better speculative demand while offerings continued very light. The same change in sentiment towards the Coarse Grains as to wheat was in evidence.

NEW YORK PUSHES INTO HIGH GROUND

Some Issues Advance Nearly Ten Points in Morning Trading.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (CP)—Bulls prodded the stock market further into new high ground for 1931 to-day, but progress was somewhat labored.

Trading was in huge volume for a time during the morning, and some of the more responsive issues were pushed up 3 to nearly 10 points. As the market will be closed for Washington's birthday on Monday, however, many traders were inclined to trim down their holdings in preparation for the extended week-end, and pools were forced to take a large volume of offerings. Few of the so-called pivotal shares gained more than a point or so, and pressure against U.S. Steel was a little discouraging.

Allied Chemical was rushed up nearly 10 points, evidently in a drive against shorts, and National Distillers was rushed up 6. Utilities assumed market leadership, and Pacific Lighting, International Telephone and Standard Gas were bid up 3 or more, while substantial progress was made by American Telephone, American Power and Light, and American and Foreign Power.

NICKEL SUFFERS LIGHT SETBACK

Issue Eases Off Towards Noon After Setting New High in Opening Trade.

LOWER-PRICED STOCK UP.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 20. (CP)—Base metal issues held the floor in a relatively quiet session on the mining market to-day, higher priced issues holding yesterday's gains in a fairly strong manner while lower-priced members of the group strengthened.

International Nickel sold up to a new high for the year on the opening but eased off towards noon, price dropping a quarter from last night's close. Noranda was practically unchanged, but Sherritt Gordon advanced above $1 for a gain of 6 and base metals made a like gain at $1.20. Abana, whose affairs are now in the hands of a new board, eased a fraction. Amulet was up a point.

Golds were irregular to lower, Dome registering the only gain prior to noon. Lake Shore was soft, price easing below $26 under selling pressure. Wright-Hargreaves lost 3 to $2.25. Kirkland Lake gold, Howey and Sylvanite a cent or so apiece. Penny issues showed little change.

Reduction in price paid for oil in the Turner valley was reflected in weakness in Home oil which dropped 18 to $1.25. Calmont lost a couple, Mayland was off several cents and tone of the whole lower-priced oil group somewhat easier.

LINDSAY VICTORIAS HERE MONDAY NIGHT

Intermediate Clubs Staging Exhibition Series For Benefit of Injured Players.

The final game of the home and home series between Lindsay and Peterborough Intermediates will be staged at the Brock Street Rink on Monday night. The first game is being played to-night in Lindsay and goals are to count. H. J. Boyle Company have put up a cup to be played for annually by these teams, and fans are sure to be interested in a Lindsay-Peterborough battle.

After the rink and travelling expenses are deducted, the remainder of the gate will go toward the "casualty debt," which has been heavy this year. Hardly a game went by this season that there was not at least one player injured. And the amount required for dental and doctors' bills for the team is surprisingly high.

Test Sub-Polar Atmosphere

In preparation for another exploration of the Arctic wastes, Captain Sloan Danehower, who will command Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine Nautilus on a trop under the North Pole this summer, is pictured at Camboden about to submerge in a test of the new "Synthetic Air" his crew will breathe when submerged.

OFFICER, BANDIT DIE IN GUN DUEL

Second Robber Wounded in Battle Escapes After Cafe Hold-up is Interrupted.

IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 20.— A wounded robber who fled leaving his pal dead, was sought today for the killing of a detective in a gun fight that frustrated a cafe holdup.

Strolling up Lexington Avenue last night, detectives Christopher W. Schueing and Dominick Pape followed two men into a cafe at the corner of 24th Street. They were in the act of holding up a group of customers, including two women.

A glove on his right hand, Schueing did not have a chance to draw his gun. The holdup men drilled him with three bullets and he died instantly. Pape returned the fire and one of the robbers dropped with a bullet in his heart. The other fled with two wounds in the shoulder.

The dead gunman later was identified as Albert Checchia, 32, an exconvict with a criminal record dating to 1914.

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Feb. 20. (Special to Examiner.)— Though leaders in the base metal group still have a good account of themselves with strength extending over into a few of the lower priced members of the section, balance of the mining list was dull to-day. A few soft spots appeared among the golds and oils were definitely easier in tone. Weakness in Home oil, an outstanding feature of early trade, attributed in some quarters to a reduction in the price paid for oil output in the Turner valley.

New York advices state copper demand is good there and abroad with demand in the domestic market more than equal to the supply available at 10.25 cents delivered. Indications, it is stated is that a further advance in price is likely later in the current week or early next week. Foreign sales Wednesday came to 750,000 pounds, the same as on Tuesday. Foreign sales Thursday morning were 2,250,000 pounds. Standard copper eased slightly in London to-day but electrolytic showed another five shilling advance.

Washington reports that sharp declines in the price of silver have reduced the intrinsic value of the silver dollar to a new low record. The silver dollar of the United States contains less than an ounce of real silver, which at present prices is worth around 26 cents. Although worth less than a third of its face value, the silver dollar passes everywhere for par because it has the full credit of the country behind it.

Efforts are being made to raise money for the development of the Rouyn properties of Stadacona Rouyn company. These are situated between the Noranda and Granada groups. Surface work disclosed moderate gold values, ranging from $2 to $6 to the ton. A plant was installed and work carried to a depth of 300 feet. The average gold content at that depth was somewhat higher than on surface, but still too low to be classed as profitable ore.

Stadacona then carried out diamond drilling to 1,000 feet in depth and the improvement in mineralization continued. About ten feet in true width at that depth showed values of around $10 to the ton. The vein system is said to have remarkable continuity and the rock formation is favorable, porphyry intrusions being associated with the veins.

Late Trade Picks Up On Montreal Exchange

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 20. (CP)—Following a weak first hour's trading prices began to firm slightly on the Montreal Stock Exchange to-day and in the early afternoon gains were outnumbering losses. Several of the active leaders were showing fractional losses due to profit-taking. Included in this group were Brazilian Traction off ¼; International Nickel off 1-8 and Montreal Power off ¾. Dominion Bridge dropped to 48 but later regained 5-8 of its 2 point loss.

Small gains were shown by Canadian Pacifix, Gurd, Hamilton Bridge, B.C. Power, Canada Power and Paper and Steel of Canada. Viau Biscuit shot up 5½ points, and Smelters ¾. Cockshutt Atlantic Sugar, McColl Frontenac, National Steel Car and Shawnigan were fractionally lighter.

Importers Protest.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20.—(C.P.)—A protest form the Canadian Automobile Importers' Association against the action of the Government in fixing a discount of 20 per cent. from list prices on automobiles entering Canada from the United States, featured to-day's brief hearing of the Cabinet sub-committee on tariffs.

At the opening of the sitting, F. A. Nancekivell, chairman of the Association, inquired as to the accuracy of press reports announcing the discount. Premier R. B. Bennett, who was presiding, informed Mr. Nancekivell that the action as indicated had been taken.

"When does the new regulation apply?" asked Mr. Nancekivell.

"The opening of the custom houses this morning," responded Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Nancekivell then said that this news had made him alter his intention of saying something at the sitting. "I think I will join the ranks of the 10,000 unemployed which will result," he remarked.

"They are not yet unemployed," retorted Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Nancekivell replied that they were "technically" unemployed.

Mr. Bennett responded that the people were either actually employed or unemployed.

Mr. Nancekivell then said that he might have some further submission to make in writing. He already had submitted a brief for the consideration of the government.

WASHINGTON WAITS OUTCOME.

WASHINGTON, D.C., February 20 (By Ken. Clark, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — Keen interest was aroused in Washington to-day when the report of what was taken as amounting to a considerable increase in the Canadian duty on automobiles was received. However, pending consideration of what the effect would be, comment was reserved.

Automobile manufacturers of the United States have been having a lot of tariff troubles lately. In April last year, France increased its 45 per cent. ad valorem duties on the lighter cars.

In July Italy sharply increased the duties, in some cases doubling the tariff.

In July the Spanish Government raised its tariff.

The British Government still continues to impose the McKenna duty of 33 1-3 per cent. placed upon foreign cars in 1920.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (CP)—Prime mercantile paper 2½-2¾ per cent.

Foreign exchange steady; demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents)—Great Britain 4.85½; France 3.91 7-8; Italy 5.23; Germany 23.75. Canadian dollar 1-64 of one per cent discount.

SHERBROOKE MAN PAYS WITH LIFE FOR KILLING WIFE

Two Officers Aid Prisoner to Scaffold as Steps Falter.

WIELDED RAZOR IN QUARREL

Crowd Gathers in Vain Effort to See First Hanging in City Since 1890.

SHERBROOKE, Que. Feb. 20 (C.P.)—Paying the penalty for the murder of his young wife, Antonio Poliquin, 24, of Sherbrooke, died on the gallows here this morning in the first execution to be carried out in Sherbrooke since 1890. Pale and with a shaky step, aided by two officers, the condemned man walked to the scaffold escorted by the jail chaplain, Rev. Father Ira Bourassa.

The victim of the murder which took place on the last day of December, 1929, was Mario Carmella Ceminaro, 21. According to evidence at the trial, the couple had not lived together for a year. On New Year's Eve Poliquin asked his wife to call on him. A quarrel developed, during which the woman's throat was cut with a razor. Poliquin was tried here and sentenced in November last year by Mr. Justice C. D. White.

As the execution was the first in the memory of most of the present inhabitants, a large crowd gathered outside the jail seeking vantage points to peer over the walls. Several scaled the roof of the nearby Armory. Their efforts were thwarted, however, and outside of the customary legal witnesses, the execution was secluded. In accordance with the established custom of the Province, newspaper representatives were barred.

In The Legislatures

MANITOBA

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 20—(CP)—Without even the formality of a division, the Manitoba legislature yesterday approved of the reply to the throne speech after 18 days of debate. Conservatives audibly declared disapproval but did not vote.

The House then decided on a half holiday today and to meet tonight to hear Premier John Bracken's budget speech. Second reading was given the Government's bill to validate all unemployment relief undertaking of the Province in co-operation with the Dominion.

NEW BRUNSWICK

FREDERICTON, N. B., Feb. 20 — (CP) — The opening of the New Brunswick legislature a week earlier than usual has resulted indirectly in a decision to adjourn for the whole of next week.

Twice amended, the motion to adopt the address was passed yesterday without division.

The adjournment of the legislature for a whole week, believed unique in its annals, will coincide with the premiers departure on Sunday for Augusta, Georgia, where he will take his young son to convalesce from illness.

SASKATCHEWAN

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 20. —(CP)— The greatest grain-growing province of Canada, Saskatchewan is to vote on the much-debated 100-per cent Pooling plan. By a vote of 48 to 5, the Legislature approved a resolution providing for a referendum on the so-called "compulsory pool" under which all grain grown in Saskatchewan would be handled by a single grower-controlled market agency.

It is not expected that the ballot will eventualize before early summer.

DEMAND REPEAL.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 20.— The Farmers Elevator Association of Minnesota, yesterday went on record as demanding repeal of the Agricultural Marketing Act, in a resolution which declared that the Act and the Federal Farm Board have failed to extend practical relief to the grain farmers. This action was taken at the annual convention.

COUNCIL CUTS OWN SALARIES

Township Workmen to Receive More Money Per Hour in Summer Months.

OTONABEE MEETINGS

The regular meeting of the Otonabee Council was held on Monday with all members present.

Messrs. Burn, Huston and the Township Overseer were appointed with power to act as a commission to interview Steven Lancashire in regard to cutting trees on the road allowance without permission from the council.

Mr. Walker from the Adams Leaning Wheel Grader Co., addressed the council with regard to buying a new grader and Mr. Dickie from the Brantford Roofing Co., interviewed the council in regard to shingling of the Town Hall.

The Municipal Auditor's report was received and adopted and M. Kennaley, the tax collector, was granted an extension of time until March 15, for the balance of 1929 taxes.

The Clerk was instructed to send $3 for the membership fee to the Township Roads Association and the Road Overseer was instructed to turn in his time at the end of every month at which time he will be paid for same.

The councillors decided to reduce their pay from $3 per meeting to $2.50, and the motion of January 12 reducing the wages of men working on the roads was rescinded and the following substituted: "That from the 1st day of December in each year to 1st day of May the wages for man and team be 40 cents per hour and 20 cents per hour for laborers and from 1st of May to 1st of December for man and team be 50 cents and laborers 25 cents and the two permanent men to receive 27½ cents per hour throughout the year."

The members of the council were granted $10 towards expenses for any member who desired to attend the meeting of the Good Roads Association in Toronto.

By-laws Passed

Two by-laws, one appointing Michael Walsh, Indian River as weed inspector for 1931 and one for road expenditures, received their several readings and were passed.

The following accounts were passed: work on roads, John Torpey, $55; Peter Mather, $2; T. M. O'Brien, $5; Robert Richardson, $3.20; Stewart Richardson, $1; William Crowley, $1.20; James Shearer, $25.50; David Kempt, $25.50; Harry Fitzgerald, $23.20; Emmett Fitzgerald, $22.40; Michael Walsh, $20.40; Harry Wood, $24.40; Stanley Cavanagh, $22.40; Gus Torpey, $22.40; William Delvin, $18.40; Alex Wood, $11.20; gravel: Percy Davidson, $36.95; William Anderson, $10.69; Municipal World supplies, $3.53; Amos Edwards, sawing wood, $3; Dennis Roach, sawing, 50 cents; William Wood, 50 cents, Stewart Richardson, 50 cents; Peter Gillespie, auditing accounts, $15; John Drummond, auditing accounts, $15.

The council adjourned to meet March 16.

Post-Nuptial Reception Is Delightful Affair

MILLBROOK, Feb. 20 (Examiner Correspondence). — The post-nuptial reception of Mrs. Clifford Hall, at her cosy new home, Fourth Line, Cavan, was a delightful social event, over seventy callers motoring from Peterborough, Millbrook and other points, and enjoyed the opportunity of renewing friendship with the bride, or of making her acquaintance for the initial time.

The bride, who was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Reid Wilson, of Perrytown, and by her husband's mother, Mrs. Stewart Hall, looked charming in her wedding dress of egg-shell crepe, with trimmings of mahogany velvet, long mittens of the velvet meeting the short, puffed sleeves, her shoes being of a matching shade, and her corsage bouquet shading in with the velvet most beautifully. Mrs. Wilson was in silver grey crepe, and Mrs. Hall wore blue georgette, velvet-trimmed.

Marian McGill, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McGill, opened the door for the incoming guests and Miss Olga Johnston, of Peterborough, invited them to the tea room, where the color scheme was carried out in a lovely combination of blue and gold. Miss Johnston was becomingly gowned in rich black lace.

Mrs. H. A. Earle poured tea, and Mrs. Harry Dawson cut the ices, while serving the guests were Mrs. Harry Campbell, Miss Gladys Wilson, of Peterborough, and Miss Dorothy Hall, the bride's sister-in-law.

The reception was from three o'clock until seven, and others who were assisting included the bride's aunt, Miss Wilson, of Port Hope, and her sister, Mrs. Lindsay, of Perrytown.

CATHEDRAL FALLS—SOLDIER KILLED

TLAXIACO, Oaxaca, Mexico, Feb. 19 (A.P.)—One soldier was killed and two seriously injured yesterday when the town cathedral collapsed.

The soldiers were on guard in the doorway of the church, which had been weakened by the Jan. 14 earthquake.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 20. — Unexpected strenth developed in the wheat market yesterday to boost prices from the outset and wheat advanced steadily to hit top levels for the session in the last hour of trading. Values at the close were 1¾c to 1⅞c higher than Wednesday's close.

Scarcity of offerings in the pit and attempts of shorts to cover by boosting prices gave strength to the movement.

Expert trading was moderate and commission house buying did not justify a bull market.

Cash wheat trading was very indifferent, with spreads unchanged from Wednesday.

Coarse grain activity was confined to various grades of domestic oats, for which there was a good demand. Prices following the trend of the wheat futures market.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—There were no fresh receipts in cattle at the stock yards yesterday and not enough on hand to make a market. Wednesday's trade closed 25 cents lower for the week on butcher cattle and steady on other classes of killers. Supply for the week was around 4,400 head about even with that of the week previous.

There were no calves or lambs off the railroad and very few trucks arrived up to 11 o'clock. There were 63 hogs for sale when the market opened, and a few arrived later by truck.

Hog prices are a quarter lower than yesterday or $1 off for the week at $7 f.o.b. and $8 a cwt., w.o.c., for bacon, with trucked in bacon selling at $7.25 to $7.50 a cwt.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 20. — Substantial upturns in grain prices yesterday accompanied statements by Chairman Legge of the Farm Board that he regarded recent news on wheat as rather favorable. Special significance was attached to Mr. Legge's declaration owing to the fact that he coupled what he said with an estimate that Government sponsored agencies might have as much as 200,000,000 bushels of wheat on their hands at the season's end, July 1. Some purchasing of May delivery of wheat here believed to be for Farm Board allies tended also to lift prices.

Wheat closed firm, unchanged to 1¼c-1⅜c higher, corn ⅝c-1¼c up, oats ¼c-¾c advance, and provisions varying from 7c decline to 5c gain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 21—An increase in the price of eggs was the only feature of the produce and dairy market here yesterday. Butter, cheese and potato prices were all unchanged.

Carlot prices of fresh eggs and quotations to retailers were from 1c to 2c higher. Ontario extras gained 1c at 32c and firsts advanced 1c to 2c at 29c a dozen. British Columbia fresh eggs, which arrived recently, were quoted at 32c for extras and 28c for firsts. Western Prairie extras were 31c and firsts 27c a dozen. Fresh seconds were unchanged at 21c to 22c a dozen. Storage firsts were unchanged, firsts being quoted at 18c to 19c and seconds at 16c to 17c a dozen. Quotations of fresh specials, extras and firsts to retailers gained 1c at 37c, 35c and 31c a dozen, respectively. Fresh pullet extras advanced 1c to 2c at 30c and fresh seconds were unchanged at 25c a dozen. Storage extras, firsts and seconds were up 2c at 25c, 22c and 20c a dozen, respectively. Receipts were 1,466 cases.

On the utter market Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized, regraded was quoted at 32¼c a pound and Western was 32c a pound. To retailers solids were 34c and prints 35c a pound. Receipts were 556 boxes.

Winter white cheese was 12 cents and colored 14¾c to 15c, while summer cheese was 15½c to 16c a pound. Receipts were 135 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots, were quoted at 70c to 75c per 90 pounds bulk and to retailers 80c to 85c per 80-pound bag.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, February 20.—There was a little stronger feeling on the local egg market yesterday, and brokers' prices were increased in some respects, while quotations to country shippers were steady, with some purchases at the higher level of the spread. Receipts were fairly heavy but the damand was sufficient to take care of all the supplies received.

Brokers quoted 30c for extras, 27c for first, 23c to 24c for pullet extras, and 20c to 21c for seconds, graded and in free cases, the differential in the top grades being somewhat shortened. Country shippers were offered 26c to 27c for extras, 23c to 24c for firsts, and 18c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, and as mentioned previously, most shipments were receiving the higher prices. Retailers were quoted 34c for extras in cartons, 32c for extras loose, 29c for firsts loose, 25c for pullet extras loose, and 22c for seconds loose.

Butter.

The butter market was a dull affair. Little trading was done in any kind of offerings, but the prices quoted by brokers were steady at 31½c to 32c for No. 1, creamery solids, and 30½c to 31c for No. 2. Much Western butter has been rolling this way, but the price obtained was the same as for the finest Ontario.

Cheese.

The demand for cheese was good, and prices for new makes were steady at 15c for large, 15¼c for twins and 15½c for triplets. Wholesalers quoted the retail trade 16c for new large, 16¼c for twins, and 16½c for triplets.

GOLD OUTPUT IN U. S. DROPS

Production in Arizona, Utah, Nevada and Montana Falls Off, Mint Director Reports.

CANADA INCREASES

Gold production of the world is increasing, but American production is falling off in proportion to other countries, it was revealed yesterday.

Robert J. Grant, director of the mint at Washington, asserted in a paper read before the Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers:

"Final figures for 1930 may place Canada second among the gold producers of the world. The United States, up to the end of 1905, held first place for forty years. We also held first place during the five years following the discovery of gold in California, having contributed in that period 44½ per cent of the world's supply the highest percentage ever reached by this country.

Africa Takes Lead

"In the first five years of the present century, the United States produced twenty-four and seven-tenths of the world's supply, but before 1910, Africa took first place and has held it.

"Figures for the United States for 1929 and 1930 are 2,056, 629 and 2,232,593 ounces respectively, but are subject to some revision upward when all sources have been heard from.

Silver Production Drops

"Out from Arizona, Utah, Nebraska and Montana was in the aggregate about 150,000 ounces less in 1930 than in 1929 due to curtailment at the large copper properties, and at lead-silver mines in Utah to a less extent."

50 NEW INDUSTRIES

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—The Dominion Government expects fifty new industries will come into Canada before the Bennett regime is one year old. This estimate is based upon the number of branches of United States and other firms already established in Canada, and others that soon will be established as a result of tariff changes.

CANADA'S HIGHWAYS

The total highway milage of all classes of road open for traffic in the Dominion of Canada at the end of 1929 (latest official figures) amounted to 390,060, which was an increase of 8,083 miles during the year.

Setting New Standards of Dependability through built-in strength and durability

THE longer you drive the new Chevrolet Six the more you will appreciate its ruggedness and reliability. Its increased wheelbase gives added stability and freedom from vibration. The frame and axles have been strengthened. There is a stiffer crankshaft and reinforced cylinder block. The moulded brake linings give as much as 25,000 miles of service without relining.

The new Fisher Bodies are not only smarter and roomier, but are also of hardwood-and-steel construction . . . the strongest known. The fine upholstery fabrics are specially selected for unusual durability. The non-tarnishing chrome-plated metal parts, and gleaming colors will retain their beauty indefinitely. The new Chevrolet Six is built to give you years of faithful service. And it sells at new low prices!

Chevrolet's policy has always been one of service to the public . . . The GMAC plan of deferred payments offers the lowest financing charges available . . . and the General Motors Owner Service Policy pledges lasting satisfaction.

BETHANY SOCIETY SPONSORS PLAY

Shrove Tuesday Observed by W.A. Ladies of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

PLEASING PROGRAM

BETHANY, Feb. 20 (Examiner Correspondence)—The W.A. ladies of St. Paul's Anglican Church sponsored a very successful supper party on Shrove Tuesday. Tea tables were laid at five o'clock and deliciously cooked pan cakes and maple syrup and all kinds of pie were served.

Following the supper a geographical contest was held with Miss Mae Magill and Mrs. Dick Vance receiving the prizes. Mrs. Campbell, the school music instructress played for a half hour community singing and Mr. Stien, of Lindsay, provided some very fine solo numbers. A play entitled "The Quiet Family," was presented by a number of the young people of the church providing a very pleasing finish to an enjoyable evening.

Stanley Whiteside Honored

Stanley Whiteside, of the Bank of Toronto staff received word on Monday of his transfer to the London Branch. Prior to his departure he was presented with a fitting gift by his friends here.

SOCIAL CLIMAXES CHORISTERS CONTEST

Successful Event Held in Norham United Church—Pleasing Program.

NORHAM, Feb. 20 (Examiner Correspondence)—As an ending to the choir contest, which has lasted the past three months, the choir of the United Church, Norham, held a social in the church hall on Tuesday night.

There were thirty-two present. It would seem as if those present had expressed the wish "Make me a child again just for to-night," as the games of their childhood days were played again. "Drop the handkerchief," "Bring back what you borrowed," spin the pan, pass the button, post-office, were some of the games played and were enjoyed by old and young alike.

Two good contests were put on,—the winners being Mrs. D. Turney and Mr. Harry Wilson.

The losing side, under the leadership of Miss Orietta Gummer, served a sumptuous repast.

Mrs. Harry Wilson was then called to a seat of honor. Mrs. Wilson is the capable and energetic choir-leader and organist and for the past two winters, she has opened her home for choir practice every week.

Mr. Fred Huycke read an address thanking Mrs. Wilosn for her goodness and patience as choir-leader and thanking her for the use of her home and begging her to accept the accompanying gift as a little token of appreciation.

Miss Edna Evans then presented Mrs. Wilson with a small-sized axminster rug.

Mrs. Wilson replied in a few well-chosen words. Then all joined in a sing-song of favorite songs.

In 5 Weeks One Thin Woman Gained 15 Pounds

Dear Madam: If you need more good solid flesh to fill out unsightly hollows in neck, cheeks and chest why not start to-day to get it?

Further delay may be dangerous so why not go to McDermid & Jury, McDermid's, Bond's, Lynch and Payne's, or any live druggist and get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets—they are sugar coated, small and rich in the weight building substance extracted from codfish livers.

And while you are putting on weight with McCoy's you'll also gain in energy and physical attractiveness—eyes will brighten—skin blemishes vanish.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents—take them for 28 days faithfully—then if you are not satisfied with gain in weight and improved health get your money back—just ask for McCoy's.

May Build Warehouse At Victoria Harbor

LINDSAY, Feb. 20 (Special to Examiner)—According to rumors in local C.N.R. circles, plans are under way for the erection of a large package warehouse at Victoria Harbor on the Lindsay-Midland line. It is understood that the Chief Engineer of the C.N.R. was at Victoria Harbor on Wednesday and looked over the proposed location of the warehouse.

The erection of the warehouse at this point will result in increased package business through Lindsay and Peterborough to eastern points. At present the package business is handled at Depot Harbor.

CITIZENS JOIN IN ROUND-UP AT COBOURG—RECOVER $2,000 IN STOLEN MONEY—TRICK VAULT DOOR DOWNFALL

A trick vault door and the fast work of the staff were the two factors that landed three youthful thugs in the Cobourg lock-up just twenty minutes after they had held up the staff of the Dominion Bank at Cobourg, herded the members of the bank into the vault and scooped up the loose money. The subsequent chase, after the bank staff had made a speedy escape from the vault, and in which citizens joined, ran the three hoodlums to ground in the vicinity and recovered all the bank money. ABOVE shows: (1) Chief of Police C. Ruse of Cobourg; (2) Stanley Newton, driver for Denton's, who took part in the chase; (3) Barn at Denton's greenhouse, in which 20-year-old Leonard Forrest, alleged leader of the armed thugs hid; (4) Dominion Bank, Cobourg, scene of hold-up; (5) Basement of public school where the other two hoodlums were captured after a hand-to-hand struggle; (6) Provincial Officer Kidd, who took part in rounding up; (7) George A Rorabeck, who joined in battle in school basement which ended in capture of two thugs, and who was mistaken for one of the bandits by the bank teller and hit over the head with the butt end of a revolver; (8) Gun picked up and allegedly thrown away by young Forrest in flight; (9) T. A. Smith, bank accountant, one of staff herded into vault and played prominent part in capture; (10) C. W. Wilson, garage man, who drove car in pursuit of thugs; (11) C. Thrcop, caretaker, who saw thugs enter school basement and gave chase; (12) James Forbes, teller of bank, who took part in chase.

Insurance Employee Given Four Months

LINDSAY, Feb. 20 (Special to Examiner)—Four months in the county jail on the charge of theft, was the sentence handed out yesterday to Kenneth Walker, a former local employee of the London Life Insurance Co. The accused had unlawfully taken collections belonging to the Company amounting to the sum of $265. The accused came to Canada from the old country about five years ago after having served a short time in the British army. He worked on a farm in Canada and later in a factory in Orillia. He admitted to the court that he spent his earnings so freely that he became pressed for cash at times. He then started in to spend the company's collections and to manipulate his accounts, hoping against hope that he would eventually make up the shortages.

Madoc School Girl Is Awarded Prizes

MADOC, Feb. 20,—(Examiner Correspondence)—Miss Laura Ross of Madoc High School, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Walter Ross of Madoc, was the fortunate winner of two events in the Belleville Kiwanis Karnival on Monday last: Secondary School Speed Race, and Ladies' Open Speed Event, carrying home the Silver Cups given for these races. Miss Ross was also a winner in last year's Karnival.

While fishing in the Thames recently a boy hooked the body of a man whose hands and feet were tied.

THAT POOR, SICK STOMACH OF YOURS

TANLAC Will Make It Well

Just think of being able to eat anything you like, and not having a sign of indigestion, gas, bloating. Just think of forgetting you have a stomach: never having those griping pains or a sick headache, or nervous spells, or be bothered with sleeplessness.

That's what Tanlac means to Mr. Urbain Bard, 138 Garry Ave., Winnipeg, as he says, "Anything that disagreed to me caused endless pain and misery. This stomach trouble got on my nerves—and between the lack of proper nourishment and lack of sleep, I was in a wretched condition.

Tanlac was so highly recommended by several friends that I got a bottle, and the relief got urged me to keep on taking it. Now, my digestion is fine — I eat and sleep well—and Tanlac also helped me to get rid of constipation."

Over 55 million bottles of Tanlac have been used and over 100,000 endorsements have been received.

Get a bottle at your druggist's today—Your money back if it doesn't help you.

JUDGE BARROW DIES

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Feb. 19. (CP) Associate Justice Chester W. Barrows of the Rhode Island Supreme Court died at his home here early this morning after a heart illness of nearly a year. Judge Barrows was appointed to the Superior Court bench here in 1913.

BURN FORD COKE

HAVE a clean house, a clean furnace, a clean chimney—and more clean heat for your money. In Ford Coke the elements that make dust, smoke and soot have been removed. Use it for a while and you'll notice the difference in your curtains and carpets. And the absence of soot gives you protection against chimney fires.

It's a truly economical domestic fuel. Practically all heat—burns to very few ashes. Controls easily, banks well, and gives quick heat for early morning. No need to alter your present furnace. The lighter weight of a shovelful of coke makes it especially desirable where women must tend the furnace. These are all reasons why you ought to call us today for a trial order of Ford Coke.

(Ford Charcoal Briquets are an ideal fuel for starting furnace and for grate fires)

OFFICER DARRACH LOSES POSITION

Dismissal Follows Probe Into Conditions in Hamilton District.

TRANSFERS TO BE MADE.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19.—Major General Victor Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police, announced to-day that Provincial Special Constable J. A. Darrach, of the Hamilton district, has been dismissed, following an investigation of alleged irregularities existing in the Hamilton detachment.

Gen. Williams recently held an investigation which arose from anonymous complaints, the evidence being taken under oath from all officers in that district.

"It has been decided in the interests of law enforcement that transfers should be made," said Gen. Williams, "and with that end in view, transfer of certain constables now stationed at Hamilton and who have been there for some time has been ordered.

The anonymous complaints were made that certain officers had been seen either in company with alleged bootleggers or entering their residences.

REV. LEIGH SPEAKER AT Y.P.S. MEETING

Describes Pageant Play as Presented in Cobourg Winter School at Bailieboro Meeting.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 20 (Examiner Correspondence)—Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., of Hilton circuit, was the guest speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Y.P.S. in the United Church on Tuesday evening, when he spoke to the young people on the Pageant Play as presented to the Winter School in Cobourg during the month of January by Rev. E. C. Hunter of Toronto, who led the delegation to Germany to witness the play.

The visiting minister gave a clear and interesting account of the story of the play. Rev. Mr. Leigh was a former pastor of the local church and organized the first Y.P.S. at Bailieboro. The Y.P.S. has been functioning ever since Mr. Leigh left the circuit ten years ago.

The president, F. Barnard presided and led the devotional excercises. The scripture was taken by Karl Lang, while the topic, "How much money we should give," was ably dealt with by Miss Clara Seense.

Lawrence Dawson editor of this month's Society paper, "The Home Town, Thistledown News," read in a clear distinct manner, the paper as presented by his staff. Miss C. Seense society editor; Miss Esther Lang, social editor and Mr. Joe Barnard, sport editor.

The paper staff for the month of March is, K. Lang, editor; S. Johnston, society editor; Miss M. Barnard, social editor and A. Watt, sport editor.

SCOUT BANQUET

Edgar Jones of Toronto Will Be Guest Speaker at Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 20 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Sponsored by the First Campbellford Troop of Boy Scouts a banquet is being arranged to be held on Wednesday, February 25, at which the guest speaker will be Edgar Jones, of Toronto, field secretary of the Boy Scout movement.

This function is being aranged for by Scoutmaster M. Sergeant, with the idea of educating the public to the advantages of the movement and the true aim of the association. With this in view invitations will be extended to all the leading civic and social dignities, including the mayor and members of the clergy.

It is expected that the gathering will be a large one and that much important detail will be discussed.

OBITUARY

MRS. KATHERINE McKAY

LINDSAY, Feb. 20 (Special to Examiner)—Mrs. Katherine McKay, an aged resident of Cannington, and sister of Dr. Carmichael, of Peterborough passed away a few days ago in that village in her eighty-seventh year. The deceased was born in Victoria County and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Carmichael, pioneer residents. She was a resident of the village of Cannington for fifty-four years. Her husband predeceased her twenty years ago.

MRS. HENRY BEAVIS.

Mrs. Henry Beavis passed away early this morning at her residence in Lakefield after a long illness. The late Mrs. Beavis was 64 years of age, and was born in Dummer Township, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Webster. The passing of Mrs. Beavis is mourned by a large circle of friends and acquaintances to whom she had endeared herself. She is survived by her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Allan Clark of Lakefield, a son, Howard of Smith Township, two sisters, Mrs. William Clysdale of Lakefield and Miss Nellie Webster of Peterborough, and six brothers, Robert, Lorne and David of Lakefield, Albert of Dummer township, James of Peterborough and William of Washington, D.C.

The funeral will be held from the family residence at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and interment will be made in Lakefield cemetery.

"HELLO, MOTHER, I'm O.K."

"Hello mother — yes, I'm feeling fine — yes, we won . . . I scored two goals."

It has come to be a habit with Fred to call his mother by Long Distance after every game. For mother is all alone . . . and she worries about him . . . ever since Fred's chum had his leg broken in a game early in the season.

The cost is a mere trifle, for the low night rates are always in effect after the game — they begin at 8.30 p.m. And it makes a pleasant break in mother's quiet life . . . and gives her some news to tell her friends.

Long Distance is now quick and dependable. In most cases the connection is established while you hold the line. Evening and night rates are particularly inexpensive. In fact night rates are little more than half of the day rates.

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8.30 p.m. Just give "Long Distance" the number you want — it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

DOCTOR EXPLAINS W. BULL'S HURRY

Claims Barrister Was Making Trip to Toronto to Meet Friend From England.

HAD SECOND CLOSE CALL.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 20. (CP)—W. Perkins Bull, Toronto lawyer was making a flying trip to Toronto to meet a friend who had come from England on important business, when he was seriously injured in the automobile accident at Coldwater, Mich., according to his physician Dr. Wootton, of Hot Springs, Arkansas, in an interview with the Toronto Star.

The Star also has a despatch from London, Ont., stating Mr. Bull barely escaped a second crash near that city this morning, on the way from Windsor, Ont., to the Toronto General Hospital. The despatch says the ambulance came to a sudden stop and the car in which Mrs. Bull was following avoided a collision with the ambulance by a sudden swerve to the north side of the road. The car's fender lamp was torn off and the fender railing damaged.

Dr. Wootton declared there was nothing in the situation in Chicago to induce Mr. Bull to leave the United States. The return to Canada was undertaken purely for the business conference in Toronto, he said.

Harold Payne Reads Interesting Paper

Warsaw Young People Hold Meeting in Presbyterian Church.

WARSAW, Feb. 20 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Warsaw Young People held their meeting in the Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening when the topic was of a literary nature and Fred Crowe was in the chair.

Following the devotional exercises Harold Payne gave a paper on literature in general speaking of the uplifting, educational and pleasurable benefits to be derived from good literature. The Bible aside from its being God's revealed world is the best example of literature.

He spoke of the different forms of literature and urged the reading of our own Canadian authors naming several of them.

Mrs. Fred Crow conducted two contests, one on biblical characters and the other on things our grandmothers did not have which we have. Refreshments were served and a happy social hour spent.

Industrial Survey Of Montreal Is Arranged

MONTREAL, Feb 20—After several months of negotiations Dr. L. C. Marsh, director of research for the Social Research Council, McGill University, announced recently that the university would accept the work of conducting an industrial survey of the city. The request was made by the Montreal Board of Trade and J. B. Baillargeon head of the Civic Industrial Commission.

The survey will be carried on under the supervision of Dr. Meredith F. Burrill of the Oklahoma Agricultural College, Stillwater Okla., who is an expert in this work.

As part of the work of the council, the survey will be financed out of funds provided by the Rockefeller Trustees of a sum of $110,000 to be expended in five years in social research development and unemployment research in the City of Montreal and district.

The plan, it is hoped, will bring out many of the problems in this city and will present an examination a record of industry population and social problems on the island, allowing a clear view of Montreal as an industrial centre the character of its peoples and their habits.

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

DEPRESSION FELT IN LATIN AMERICA

Sir Eric Drummond States That Fear of European War in Near Future Felt.

No Confidence in Commerce.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 20. — (C.P.)—With one or two exceptions, the Latin-American states are suffering from economic depression as severe as that in Europe, Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, said to-day on his return from a tour of Latin-America.

His visits to several countries in Central and South America, he said, made it clear to him that the economic crisis is a world problem which cannot be settled by one continent alone. He stated there is a feeling that European war is a probability in the comparatively near future.

"I cannot say what caused this feeling," he said, "but I hope I was able to do something to dissipate a fear which certainly is one of the causes of a lack of confidence in commerce."

South Africa Looks For Canadian Trade

Removal of Bureau From New York to Montreal is Mooted in Cape Town.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Feb. 20.—South Africa looks for a considerable expansion in trade with Canada in the near future especially in fruits and wines. The Cape Argus publishes a report from the trade commissioner in New York and stresses that officials belief that the most serious obstacle is the fact that Canada and South Africa do not know each other well enough. The establishment of a Canadian trade office, or the removal of the New York office to Montreal, urged by the newspaper, especially in view of United States tariff changes.

"Speaking generally of trade relations with the northern Dominion," says the Argus, "the commissioner appears to feel that the most serious obstacle may be found not in transport difficulties or price or quality, but simply in the fact that the two countries do not as yet know each other. "There is," he says, "a lack of knowledge and confidence on the part of both the Canadian and South African merchant in the business methods and principles of the other country." He does not suggest how this obstacle can be removed and a measure of greater understanding brought about. But surely one useful step in the right direction would be the establishment in Montreal of a branch of his New York office, or else the removal of that office altogether to Montreal.

"There is much to be said in favor of the latter step. As his previous reports have shown the outlook for an export trade to the United States is the reverse of promising. Some South African commodities, such as fruit, are shut out altogether and most of the others are hit by America's ever-rising tariff walls. Obviously the best interests of South Africa lie in cultivating closer touch with the Canadian markets and this can best be done through direct commercial representation in that country.

CHICAGO SEEING "BIG BILL" WAGE HARDEST FIGHT

Republican Candidate Makes Eight and Ten Speeches Daily in Mayoralty Battle.

STAGES MANY NEW STUNTS.

Fourth Term Would Give Him Longer Tenure in Office Than Any Other Man.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 20. — William Hale Thompson—"Big Bill Thompson" to Chicago—flailing his way through the campaign for the nomination as the Republican candidate for Mayor, is fighting one of the most bitter and virulent battles of his long and colorful career.

Rounding out his 62nd year, an even dozen of them as mayor of Chicago, stricken more than once by prophets from the political lists because of illness and party defections, Thompson has set his cowboy hat at a warlike angle and emerged again with the bludgeons of battle.

Municipal Judge J. H. Lyle and Alderman Arthur F. Albert, are opposing the Mayor in next Tuesday's primary, and the poison darts they have aimed at "Thompsonism," have brought him full tilt into the fray with all the vigor, vituperation and showmanship of his past campaigns.

Speaks Eight to Ten Times Daily.

Making eight and ten speeches a day, sending out thousands of workers and bales of literature, engineering all sorts of stunts, including jackass parades and airplane advertising, Thompson is gunning for a fourth term, which would give him a longer tenure in the office than any other man. What is more important, it would give him the opportunity of welcoming visitor to the 1933 world's fair.

Welcoming the backslapping have been strong points with "Big Bill, the builder."

Strangely enough, the 'big moments' in Thompson's life was an international news figure when he pulled in the "welcome" mat.

'Tis fame was only regional until he refused to invite Marshal Joffre to Chicago during the Great War. This brought down charges of "traitor" and showers of press clippings on his head.

A mule and a burro now take the place once occupied by two white rats to present Thompson's opponents, and the old fife and drum corps of 1915 has been replaced by mobile talking movie machines, but to-day's campaign is as much a product of history as of modernism. To understand the background as well as the methods, the observer need only to watch a Thompson campaign "rally."

Always Large Crowd.

There is always a large crowd (his opponents say City Hall employees are forced to attend and cheer) and when Thompson appears in his cowboy hat and raccoon coat, he invariably gets an ovation that he acknowledges with a smile and a wave.

The spellbinder who has been holding the crowd stops immediately and Thompson starts. He speaks easily, in an informal, almost conversational manner, but his voice is loud and throaty. He refers to himself as "your mayor," and tells of the bridges he has built and the streets he has widened.

The preliminaries over, Thompson seems to brighten up. He takes a firmer grip on the halter he has been holding, and with a boyish grin starts out on what the people have come to hear.

"Now about this halter," he says. "The nutty judge wears one, and it leads to the Chicago Tribune. Little Arthur wears one, and it leads to the Daily News. But Bill Thompson wears no man's halter," and it goes crashing into the footlights.

"They say Bill Thompson is a circus man," he confided to an audience recently. "Well, I believe in giving 'em a few laughs with the serious stuff."

MILLIONS PREFER KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

MILLIONS of satisfied users have made this famous Kellogg product the largest-selling all-bran cereal in the world. It guarantees relief from both temporary and recurring constipation.

How much better than pills and drugs. For most laxatives have to be taken in constantly increasing doses. Otherwise, they lose their power.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides the natural, safe way to protect health. It supplies roughage to sweep poisonous wastes from the system. And it brings iron, which builds up the blood.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In severe cases, with each meal. Try ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Investitures Held On February 24 and 26

LONDON, February 20. (C.P.) — The King will hold investitures at Buckingham Palace, February 24 and February 26, when recipients of New Year's honors will receive their insignia and decorations.

In accordance with custom the first investiture will be a full dress "official" function, and the second a "private" investiture. At the second investiture morning clothes or ordinary lounge suits may be worn, and it is at this function that the recipients of police medals and similar awards will be decorated.

AN AMAZING WAY OF CUTTING CLOTHES

90 Cutters Kept in Constant Action at World's Largest Made-to-Measure Clothiers.

Who says this is a mechanical age? At Tip Top Tailors Limited the old-fashioned shears still hold sway, and yet this is the most up-to-date tailoring plant on the continent.

Here is the answer to the riddle. A man orders a suit at any one of the 52 Tip Top stores, or for that matter from any one of the many hundreds of Tip Top dealers and agents. He chooses the fabric, the color, and the pattern. The salesman then takes his measurements, not ten to twelve measurements, but twenty-one.

Think of it — twenty-one measurements! Is there any machine invented that could accurately cut cloths to twenty-one specified measurements? There is not!

That is why at Tip Top Tailors Limited the old-fashioned shears, guided by expert cutters, hold sway. And that is why a suit or topcoat from Tip Top Tailors assures comfortable, correct fit.

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR JOINT EXHIBIT

Department of Highways and Local Chamber of Commerce Entering Philadelphia Show.

COST AROUND $1,500.

Booth to be Fitted Out in Sumptuous Style—Draped With Velvet.

Preparations are complete for the joint exhibit of the Ontario Department of Highways and the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and Trent Waterway-Iroquois Trail Association at the Philadelphia Sportsmen's and Motor Boat Show to be held from February 23 to 28.

The exhibit is being financed by the Department, the cost being in the neighborhood of $1,500. The two local organizations have been asked to send a representative to be in attendance at the booth, and for this purpose the manager, Frank G. Stinson, is leaving for Philadelphia Friday afternoon. Last year both the manager and Fred Roy went to New York, while the latter attended the Cleveland show, and the former the Pittsburg exhibit. Owing to business pressure this year Fred Roy cannot attend, and for the same reason Orillia and Midland officials are unable to go. It is expected, however, that Frank Stinson will be relieved at the forthcoming show in Chicago or Detroit.

Naturally the Trent Waterway has much printed matter on display in the booth. There will be 20 hand colored, 8 x 10 in illuminated transparencies depicting Peterborough, Kawartha Lakes, and the Trent system. The usual films of this district will also be in continuous showing. The plentiful supply of descriptive literature includes pamphlets of the Chamber of Commerce, the Trent Waterway-Iroquois Trail Association, the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. The Department of Highways will distribute about 10,000 Ontario booklets in which two pages are given over to the local organizations. In addition, 50,000 fifty-cent road maps will be given away free of charge.

Draped With Velvet.

As a result of recommendations made in the past by the manager of the Chamber and the Association, the Department of Highways is fitting out the booth in sumptuous style. The background, 13 feet in height and 50 feet long, is comprised of royal blue plush draped on adjustable nickel-plated tubular supports so as to provide for the suitable hanging up of pictures, and fish and game mountings. The floor, 500 square feet in area, will be mostly covered by three Royal Sarouk rugs manufactured by the Brinton Peterborough Carpet Company.

The furniture in the booth is also in keeping with the richness and beauty of the background and floor. The stands on which the transparencies and motion picture projector are mounted will also be covered with blue plush. Six or more folding armchairs with brightly colored upholstery have been supplied by J. J. Turner and Sons. The collapsible stand for the projector was made by the Peterborough Pattern Works, and the transparency boxes and stands were made by the Peterborough Canoe Company. Genuine Canadian evergreens will also be used in the decoration of the booth.

The whole will be surrounded by two-inch blue plush covered rope stretched between nickel-plated posts. The exhibit will therefore present a strikingly beautiful and high class appearance, and should be very effective in interesting the visitors, thereby gaining much for Peterborough and district in the tourist industry.

95-Year-Old Groom To Marry Bride Of 65

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 20. — A six weeks' courtship will reach a happy conclusion on Monday next, when Samuel Yarrow, aged 95 years, will wed Mrs. Elida Brown, aged 65 years, of Campbellford. Mr. Yarrow, for some years has resided in Trenton, and on Monday will be married for the fifth time, while Mrs. Brown will be celebrating her third wedding. They had not met each other until Mrs. Brown arrived from Campbellford yesterday, at the Trenton station, although they have corresponded for some time. After the formalities of meeting yesterday the happy pair went to the Town Clerk in Trenton, where they obtained a marriage license, after which they arranged with Rev. A. E. Jones of King Street United Church to tie the knot.

LITERARY WOMEN OF CHINA NOTED

Dr. Chaing Corrects Impression Chinese Women Have Only Recently Received Education.

MONTREAL, Feb. 20 (C.P.)—The popular impression that Chinese women have received an education only within recent times is a mistaken one; Chinese women have always been educated, especially among the Mandarin and clan classes, Dr. Kiang Hang-Hu told members of the Montreal Branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club a short time ago. The subject of Dr. Kiang's lecture was "Some Literary Women of China," of whom he said there were many, mentioning a few who lived at different periods and under different dynasties from 200 B.C.

Fu Hsi-O, the daughter of a college professor, performed notable service for her country by preserving the ancient classics. Possessed of a remarkable memory, she was able to reproduce books of history that had been destoryed by Chu Shih Huang-Ti, who had wished to leave his impress on the country by doing away with the old and building anew. She wrote down from memory some 150,000 words.

A century and a half later, Pan Chao, sister of an official historian, after her brother's death, completed the work he had begun and thus was co-author of a history of the Eastern Han dynasty.

The hin dynasty numbered two famous women, Su-Hu-Ei, who employed her itme while her husband was away at war by embroidering 800 Chinese characters in five different colored silks on a piece of canvas. In this 400 poems have already been discovered from four lines to 40 or 50 lines in length. A reproduction of this may be seen in the Gest Chinese Research Library at McGill, said Dr. Kiang. The other celebrated woman of this period was Lady Wei, lady-in-waiting at the court, who is regarded as the inventor of modern script, by which 4,000 characters may written in an hour.

China in the sixth century had a very ambitious woman ruler, who not only ruled the Chinese Empire for 50 years, but had literary as well as military achievements to her credit. Shang Kuan-Wan-Er, one of the court ladies, was given the position of chief examiner of poetry.

Towards the end of the Sung dynasty, in the ninth century, there lived an ambitious young lady named Huang Chou Chun. Official examinations were open only to men, so she disguised herself in masculine garb, after studying the examinations, passing in three series. She then became automatically an official and was appointed a magistrate by the Emperor. She found herself in a dilemma when the governor of the province where she was magistrate proposed to marry his daughter to her, and had to confess she was a woman. Four volumes of her works were published.

Chiu Chin was described by Dr. Kiang as the foremost woman of the Manchu dynasty, taking an active part in the revolution. She was the first woman to publish a magazine and wrote many poems. Her daughter now at Columbia University, has published her mothers poems in four volumes. Wu Chu-ah Ying was described as the greatest calligrapher since Lady Wei. Her textbooks are the standard for public schools.

Noted for having made copies of 96 portraits of Chinese emperors and empresses is Yang Lingo Fo, who was paid the equivalent of $10,000 in Chinese money.

Beautiful But Not Dumb

CALLED "IDEAL TYPE" FOR TELEVISION

Natalie Towers of New York holds the distinction of being the first girl chosen by a broadcasting chain especially for the looming field of television. While the problems to be encountered can be likened to those of the first days of the talkies and therefore no certainty exists as to the exact requirements that may be needed offici,als feel that Miss Towrs is the ideal type. She was selected from a field of several hundred after tests of her photographic value, of her speaking and singing voice before the microphone under a variety of conditions. She will appear in the experimental television tests within the next few months.

Newspapers Recall Days Of Yesteryear

Old Publications Reclaimed From Backs of Pictures By Readers.

Two very interesting portions from newspapers of the past century have been reclaimed from the back of old pictures and brought into The Examiner office for inspection. One is a double sheet (4 pages) from an issue of the Toronto Mailfi dated Saturday, October 16, 1880 The other is the top half of the front page of the "Daily Evening Review, Peterborough, Monday, February 6, 1888."

The portion of the Toronto Mail was obtained by the late James Goselin, and is now the property of Isadore Goselin, 513 Romaine street. The paper is in a wonderful state of preservation, and the printing is remarkably clear. The first page of the section is devoted to the usual advertising of the period, and many names of former merchants of Toronto are recalled. Stock lists and an English market review in British currency are also included. The most valuable write up in the sheet is the report of the formal opening of Queen's University, which covers four and a half columns, with the familiar headings, sub headings, and "caps".

The brittle and discolored fragment of the Daily Evening Review is owned by William Devlin, R.R. 7, Peterborough. The paper is "Vol. XIX No. 30", and cost "ten cents a week." The most interesting item in this fragment is an article entitled "The Eve of Hostilities" in which is mentioning the Austro-German alliance which was formulated at that time. The beginning of enmity is noted, and the Great World War forecast in no uncertain terms. The following is the first part of the article.

"Berlin, Feb. 5—While the semi-official press affects to regard the publication of the Austro-German treaty as having a pacific intent, official and diplomatic circles know that its real aim is to force the Czar to an immediate war or compel him to submit to terms for a permanent peace dictated by the allies...."

The top part of an advertisement reads "R. Fair, Sign of the Golden Lion, George Street, Peterborough." Other advertisers recall former times and people of the city.

Make No Mistake
when you buy sanitary pads
— specify Kotex

YOU can't be too careful in choosing sanitary pads. Your health, your comfort are at stake. Specify Kotex. It costs so little that women in every walk of life are using it.

It is designed to fit perfectly. Corners are rounded and tapered to fit inconspicuously. It deodorizes. It is unbelievably soft and yielding. Indeed, Kotex is guaranteed to stay soft longer, to last longer than any other sanitary pad.

Next time you buy sanitary pads, specify Kotex. Kotex Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Kotex is Soft . . .
1. Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2. The Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
3. In hospitals. The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in Canada's leading hospitals.
4. Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.
5. Disposable, instantly, completely.

Conducted by
ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne: I surely thought my last effusion had been consigned to the waste paper basket and was surprised last night to see it.

Was so glad to see Ad Infinitum's letter and happier she has changed her name. Operations are terrible, do I not know? I was on one of these tables for four hours once, and again had to have one, and when I thought I could go home, a secondary one. I have been in a hospital far, far away from home with diphtheria years ago and again with typhoid when no one expected I would recover, three months all but a few days. Financial and other considerations at home not such that they could come to me, so weak I could not even read the home letters and again weak enough to cry when the nurses, who were dears, could not read those letters for me for a time. Oh, yes, I have every sympathy with those who are ill, or suffering in any other way from poverty, from loss of loved ones, from having had practically every dream crushed, as so many have had.

There is so much sorrow and suffering, but why, oh why, must we impose our sufferings on others? Why must we make ourselves worse by repining? Some people always waken with a frown, some with a smile. Some people die because they give up or murmur too much. Some people live because they make up their minds to.

A Swedish woman I knew was in a terrible condition. The doctors frankly said they could do nothing. She heard them use the word operation, and called them to ask if an operation would help. They told them there might be one chance in ten thousand, and she told them she would take it, and get well. They did not wish to operate, but she insisted, and she got well.

Another dear elderly lady had come through a good deal, but was well on the mend. One night nothing suited her; she could not lie comfortably. When both she and her nurse, who was patience in the extreme, were completely exhausted, the nurse who had done everything that possibly could be done for her in every way, spoke very sharply to her. It was so unexpected that she burst out crying. The nurse sat beside her bed, and took her hand; inside of five minutes her hand relaxed like a baby's, and she was sound asleep and had a restful sleep.

I fancy we all get into that state sometimes when we need to be brought up sharply—I have needed it more than once. A sharp criticism one of the letter writers gave me did not alter my mind in regard to what I had written, but i did jerk me up quite wholesomely in something else.

Perhaps in this busy world there is not visiting enough. People so often look for invitations. If one especially invites, then once must perforce especially prepare, but if a visitor comes we can generally have something nice, or if that is an impossibility, without leaving the guest alone, the simplest meal, be it only bread and butter and tea may be daintily served.

Well do I remember, when teaching in my first school, a dear little widow with one son and one daughter who lived in a pretty little cottage, asked me to come when I could make it convenient. I did so. The door opened into their main room. they had just sat down to supper, porridge, bread and butter and apple sauce, and tea. Another cover was laid for me. I was most heartily welcome, and I never spent a happier evening, no one ever received truer hospitality. That little widow is long since in her grave, and I believe the little boy is a minister of the Gospel.

Thanks for all your helps, Anne, and best wishes to you and all the neighbors. Sincerely yours,
QUID EST.

I am sorry, Quid Est, that your last letter was mislaid for a short while; no wonder you thought that I had destroyed it since it was so long in appearing. But such was not the case,and I will try not to have any mail delayed so long again.

• • •

Dear Anne: Was it not nice of Ad Infinitum to write that long letter? So pleased to hear she is better than ever she was. How thankful for her letters.

"Kind words can never die,
Cherished and blest,
God knows how deep they lie,
Stored in the breast.
Like child loved simple rhymes
Said o'er a thousand times,
Go through all years and climes
The heart to cheer."

SISTER.

Indeed we were glad to hear that the beloved member of our page was enjoying good health again, and more than delighted that she has changed her name. Thank you for your letter and little greeting.

Anne Wilcox

Why should you let housework spoil your hands?

YOU ask any beauty editor. Look in the magazine and newspaper articles. You'll find "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly recommended to keep the hands soft.

Follow the advice of those people who know. Apply "Vaseline" Jelly to your hands at night and wear old cotton or silk gloves. When you manicure your nails, wrap a little cotton around a dull orange stick, dip it in the Jelly and work back the cuticle.

These two easy things will make a world of difference in the looks of your hands. We all have to wash dishes, and dust furniture, or pound typewriters or work in gardens. But our hands need not advertise the necessary toil to the world. Lay in a store of "Vaseline" Jelly and use it freely. Get a jar today just for your own personal use. Don't delay. PROTECT YOUR SKIN from CHAPPING

YOUR SKIN will grow coarse and thick in self-defense if you allow it to be chapped and dried by the cold. Always, before you go out, protect your skin with a film of cream under your powder. Elizabeth Arden suggests one of these:

Venetian Amoretta Cream: A delicate vanishing cream, fine and fragrant. Keeps the skin soft and smooth, prevents roughness and chapping. $1, $2.

Venetian Ultra-Amoretta Cream: The same cream, slightly oilier, for a dry flaky skin. Softens and smooths the skin, a flattering powder foundation. $1, $2.

Venetian Crème de France: An exquisite finishing and protective cream. A becoming and protective base for powder. $1.25.

A very enjoyable anniversary tea was given yesterday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. James' United Church, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fry at 634 Weller street, on the occasion of the celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The guests were received by Mrs. Fry, assisted by Mrs. W. D. Sargent, Mrs. Stokes and Miss Pue. The tea table was lovely with cut-work lace doylies, a silver basket of American Beauty roses and tall green candles in silver holders. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. Fell and Mrs. A. E. Saunders and the tea-room assistants were the Social Committee of the Ladies' Aid, with Mrs. Frank Pratt as convenor. A pleasing feature of the gathering was the presentation to Mrs. Fry of a silver entree dish from the Society. During the afternoon and evening a delightful and informal program arranged by Mrs. H. Turner, was enjoyed in the spacious living-room, the selections consisting of vocal solos and duetts, piano numbers, whistling and banjo solos, and readings as follows: Piano solos: "Il Trovatore" and "Rondo", Mrs. Percy Dallin; "Sweet Bye and Bye" with variations, Miss Freda Kilcher; "First Waltz" and "Song Without Words", Miss Muriel Wilson; "A Coquettish Smile" and "In the Arena", piano duets by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade and Miss Kilcher; vocal solos, "In Nod-away Land" and "Mighty Lak a Rose", Mrs. E. Kitney; "The Holy City", "An Old Violin" and "Be Strong" was the group by Clifford Cruikshank; "Oh Sweet Mystery of Life", "In the Garden of to-morrow" by Mrs. Todd; vocal duetts "That Old-fashioned Mother of Mine" and "Sweet and Low" by Mrs. E. Rowe and Mrs. Percy Dallin; whistling solos: "A basket of old-fashioned Roses" and "Then You'll remember me" by Miss Mignon Mayneord. Mr. Frank Clark provided a pleasing innovation with his delightful banjo solos. The musical program was interspersed with very entertaining readings by Misses Frances Clarke, Isabel Young and Edith Smith. The accompanists for the musical numbers were: Mrs Kitney, Mrs. Rowe, Miss Wilson, Miss Kilcher and Mrs. Greenslade. The Rev. A. E. FASHION SERVICE

Paris advocates colour contrast. And there isn't anything smarter than the black and white theme carried out in this chic model of flat crepe.

It's adorably simple. You'll like the slimness created by the cross-over peplum bodice, accented with black buttons and shoulder flowers.

Style No. 2996 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

It's perfectly stunning too in black and yellow tweed mixture with plain yellow contrast. It may be worn now and is an advanced idea for Spring.

Another splendid combination is printed crepe silk used for the entire dress with plain blending shade crepe cuffs and buttons.

Our large Fashion Book shows how to dress up to the minute at very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, etc.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The expression keeping in tune with good things is more than mere words. The radio has taught us that given the instrument we can tune into whatever kind of things we like which is being broadcast.

• • • • • • •

An authority on the radio has made the statement that every person is a radio transmission and reception station. According to him everyone sends out messages and receives them.

• • • • • • •

No person who has thought at all deeply can have failed to wonder where ideas come from. They certainly are received. It may be that we can trace certain ones to the germ of an idea received from a remark made recently or far back.

• • • • • • •

It has matured and taken on new aspects, consciously or unconsciously in our brain.

• • • • • • •

There are many ideas however, that come to us with no known cause or reason. In some marvelous way our minds are 'tuned in' to them. We know that when we wish to get certain radio stations we turn the hand on the radio dial to well defined wave lengths. When so 'tuned in' we receive the broadcast.

• • • • • • •

It is in a similar way that 'we tune in' to the good things, the happy ideas, the pleasant memories, the inspiration thoughts and the joyous outlook!

• • • • • • •

We cannot expect to get messages without setting our mental dial hand correctly. We must deliberately seek the correct wave length, and the only known way to do this at present is by turning our thoughts to these stations!

• • • • • • •

Is it happy ideas that we would receive? Think happy thoughts. Shut off the static of disagreeable contemplations which tap more or less insistently on the mind and whistle through our memories.

• • • • • • •

Disregard them and they will cease. Hold the mind as steadfastly as the radio dial needle to the correct wave length—the happiness station

• • • • • • •

You will be rewarded, you will be in tune with happy ideas throughout all thought stations and you cannot fail to get happy brain waves.

• • • • • • •

Centuries ago, a man by the name of Paul made this discovery for himself, and, to help others, he wrote down a way to get in tune with peace and happiness as follows: "Whatsoever things are true, honest, just, pure, lovely and of good report—think on these things."

TEA INDUSTRY IN BAD SHAPE

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 20. (A.P.)—(By Mail).—The tea industry is nearer ruin than at any time in its history, John J. Bunting declared at the tea buying brokers' annual meeting here, at which he presided.

He blamed over-production, "antediluvian marketing" and "lack of vision in dealing with Russia eighteen months back when some 40 to 50 million pounds of tea might have been taken off the London market.

Dean Of Canterbury Giving Up Deanery

LONDON, Feb. 20 (By The Canadian Press)—Rev. Dr. H. R. L. (Dick) Sheppard, Dean of Canterbury, is resigning the deanery owing to ill health. For 13 years "Dick" Sheppard was one of the best known clergymen in London, his church, St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Trafalgar Square, being crowded Sun days as no other place of worship in the Metroplis was. He was the first in England to broadcast religious services. He was then vicar of St. Martin's. Because of ill health in 1927 he gave up his post in St. Martin's, which he had held since 1914. He was made Dean of Canterbury in 1929.

Dr. Sheppard is suffering from heart trouble, and though his health of late has shown some improvement and the heart affection is yielding to treatment he has been warned by doctors that he must not continue his present work. He hopes to be able to take up other work at a later date.

When in St. Martin's church Dr. Sheppard was known to millions through his broadcasting activities and he was "Dick" Sheppard to a host of admirers who never saw him. It is said that on one occasion after a broadcast service he found awaiting him the next morning a pile of letters higher than himself. Dr. Sheppard was bequeathed $100,000 in 1927 by William Prescott Bonbright, an American millionaire banker who died that year and described the clergyman as his "dear friend."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

RHEUMATISM OR ARTHRITIS IS THE END OF THE PROCESS

You would naturally think that when an ailment is as old as history, that not only would the cause and treatment be known, but that the number of cases would grow less.

What do we find?

That rheumatism, often called arthritis, has been known since anything has been known about man, that physicians know that it is caused by some infection in the body and are able to cure or relieve the majority of cases, yet the number of cases is really increasing.

Why do the cases continue to increase?

Because rheumatism in its early stages is really a "silent" ailment. It may be months, and often is years, before there is any symptom that will enable the patient to know that he has it. Then when he gets severe pain in joints and muscles he seeks his doctor to obtain relief.

What has been happening during the months or years before the pain came into the joint?

Infection—poison—from some part of the body has been gradually fighting the body forces. The individual has been feeling tired, no inclination to work or play, often quite ready to sleep during the day. He has no particular pain anywhere, perhaps an occasional sore throat or even a little jumpiness about his teeth, but no real severe pain.

This is the fore-runner of rheumatism because the majority of cases are due to poisons from tonsils or teeth. Often these poisons lie for a considerable time in the intestine from whence they are absorbed into the blood.

You can thus understand why some people feel considerably brighter after using a purgative—epsom salts—as this takes the surplus poison away for the time being.

However, the time comes whne the system particularly the liver, cannot filter out the poisons, or kill off the harmful organisms and they start up trouble in the joints either by depositing substances in the joint or attacking the surfaces of the joint itself.

Now, although epsom salts, heat or baking the joint, the application of wintergreen oil in liquid or ointment form, all give some relief, the only reasonable treatment for rheumatism is the removal of the cause—bad teeth, tonsils, and so forth.

Remember, rheumatism is the end of a process that has been going on for a long time.

To mark the position of the Governor-General of the Union of South Africa as the King's personal representative, the new official in that office will fly a special flag consisting of a blue ground on which is the royal crest in gold, with the words "Union of South Africa" in English and African.

Tropical Fish Hobby Of Invalid Veteran

Also Cultivates Many Species of Insects Required for Their Food.

By FRANK CHAMBERLAIN

(Special to The Examiner—Copyright 1931)

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and Bruce Carruthers of Toronto is one of the kind who breeds daphne, mosquito larva and white worms to feed all kinds of funny little tropical fish, one species of which gave birth recently to fifty perfectly formed little sword-tail fish.

Bruce Carruthers is a tropical fish fancier, and from his invalid-bed he superintends the breeding of many species of fish and also in a big way goes in for the cultivation of worms and queer little water insects that are just like caviar to the rainbow darters, the zebra fish, the black banded sunfish and the paradise fish.

"This is the daphne," Carruthers said, holding up a jar of what looked like dirty water. Finally the reporter saw what the daphne was, a small water bug, related to the family of crustacean (or shrimp). "It is found in still water," Carruthers went on. "It is about one-sixteenth of an inch long, lives with swarms of his brother daphne. We caught him in a cotton net." "We" was his wife whom he met at No. 14 General Hospital, London, where he lay for eleven months after wounds at the battle of St. Julien when he was shot through the spine.

The daphne has a tail, two things that look like arms feelers on the ends of them, and two eyes. The daphne syphons water through its mouth, and extracts what food exists in the water.

And now, we came to the mosquito larva, another dainty morsel for tropical fish. This species is something like a worm and lays her eggs on a raft-like affair on the top of the water. The sun brings the eggs to life. The mosquito larva has a little tube on the top of her head, and when she wants to breathe she comes to the top of the water and takes in a tubeful of fresh air, and submerges again to become a good-sized meal for some tiny little fish. This little fellow is about a quarter of an inch long.

Then Mr. Carruthers brought from under his bed a box full of little white worms, having a lovely time in moist earth. "These are enchytrae," he said. "We feed them porridge or brown bread, and they multiply very rapidly." "But how did you start breeding them?"

"I sent away for a portion of worms in a clump of earth. Then we buried it with a piece of old lettuce in this moist earth. Soon we had a thousand worms where they were only a dozen before. It takes them about three weeks to breed plentifully. They are half an inch in length. Six or seven of them are a nice meal for the larger tropical fish, and three or four will satisfy a smaller fish."

Mr. Carruthers said that dried ground-up shrimps and dried daphne make great eating for tropical fish.

WHEN JOINTS

Are Stiff Or Inflamed Creaky Or Swollen

Rub In Joint-Ease And Rub It In Good

Here's a wonder working substance that soaks right in thru skin and flesh right straight down to the ligaments and joints and swiftly drives out pain and agony and reduces the swelling.

Joint-Ease has often been called the magic emollient because of its uncanny power to bring quick comfort to the most obstinate cases of rheumatism, neuritis and sciatica.

Without waste of time it knocks out lumbago and ends stubborn backache that nothing else seems to help.

You'll like Joint-Ease because it's good for so many ailments—stiff neck for one thing and sore muscles and also feet that are so sore that to walk means agony.

Joint-Ease is made in Canada and sold by all stores that sell good medicines—A generous tube for 60 cents—and rigidly guaranteed.

RETURN OF SINCLAIR PREDICTED IN HOUSE

cies registered before the House, with the Sault "iron man" leading the van. Coupled with his prediction of the restoration of Mr. Sinclair to fully party leadership was an equally emphatic prediction that Right Hon. Arthur Meighen soon would be back in public life.

Further criticism Mr. Taylor brought to bear on the E. W. Beatty Western loan scheme, claiming that it would not only throw the West in an unfair direct competition with this part of the country, but would add, further, a load to the West, already overburdened by debt.

Reiteration of an old plea for the absorption by the Government of the whole cost of Provincial highways, and the mention in this connection of the road between Meaford and Owen Sound, brought the North Grey member, for a few minutes, into a spirited clash with Premier Henry.

That stretch—at least six miles of its paving—had, he had heard, cost about $52,000 a mile. Mr. Henry pointed out that the road in question did not represent a true picture of road-building in Ontario, inasmuch as it had required rock ballasting. Further criticism from Mr. Taylor brought the Premier to his feet again with the remark that several sessions ago he (Mr. Taylor) had complained that because he did not sit on the Conservative side of the House his constituency wasn't getting very much from the Government. "Now," added the Prime Minister, "he is saying we are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars there."

Only on Eve of Election.

Mr. Taylor countered with the statement that his former argument had been that his riding would get nothing done until the eve of an election. "And that was what happened," said he. "And there was some arrangement, too, about laborers, whom it took myself and a Judge and several others considerable time to keep off the lists."

Mr. Henry: I trust my honorable friend is not trying to suggest that we built that 18 miles of pavement at a cost of $50,000 a mile. He knows that there was not $900,000 spent on that stretch.

The North Grey member told the House that his criticism of rural Hydro was not applied to the bonus scheme, but to the borrowing arrangement instituted last session to provide for installation. What sum, said he, turning to Hon. J. R. Cooke, acting Hydro chairman, had been borrowed to date? How many farmers had taken advantage of the arrangement?

Mr. Cooke—If, of the 10,000 customers we had last year, only a small proportion took advantage of the borrowing, will my honorable friend accept it as an indication that the tale of woe he has been unfolding regarding the farmer is a bit exaggerated?

Mr. Taylor—If the borrowings were small, it would show, I say, that our average farmer's intelligence is pretty high.

Hon. H. C. Nixon—That will hold him for a while.

Congratulates Sinclair.

Hon. James Lyons congratulated Mr. Sinclair on his speech, and on his loyalty to his party as shown by his continuing to lead the Liberal members in this House after the selection of another Provincial Leader by the convention. "While Mr. Sinclair has always been a real fighter in this House," he said, "he has always fought fair.

Not Real Liberal Feeling.

"I don't believe for a moment," declared Mr. Lyons, "that the Liberal convention represented real Liberal feeling when it selected a new leader to succeed Mr. Sinclair. That is demonstrated by the fact that the present Liberal members of the House are following Mr. Sinclair's leadership. The present 'proxy' leader will never have an opportunity to sit in the House as leader. If he ever does contest a seat, he will be left outside. I have no quarrel with the method of the Liberal convention in choosing its leader, but I expect that before the next election the present House leader will be the recognized leader of his party both within and without the House. Evidently there has been a change of heart already among Liberals since the convention. Few of the prominent Liberals at that convention took part in the two recent by-elections."

DECLINE IN PRICE OF SILVER IMPROVES HABITS OF ORIENT

Paper Money Being Used More Extensively—Banking Made Popular.

CANADA'S OUTPUT DOWN.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—While Canada and the rest of the world are searching within the Sphere for fresh markets, four countries whose total population represents approximately one half of the world's are suffering from the aftermath of a demonetization scheme which has reduced their spending power by about 50 per cent in 12 months. India, China, Abyssinnia and Indo-China—four countries who were large holders of silver have within the last 18 months had to contend, not only with the distressing factors of an international depression, but also with a revaluation of their basic standards which rudely awakened them to the fact that the equivalent of their dollar was worth about 56 cents. Just about a year ago, silver was selling at 50 cents per ounce against is current quotation from 25 cents to 30 cents an ounce; when compared with 2 years ago, however, silver has depreciated by over 66 per cent.

Canada's Output Down.

The production of silver in Canada has been downgrade during the decade 1931-1921 but since then the production in ounces has increased from 14 millions to 26 millions, which is taken as an estimate for 1930. The average price of silver during the past decade has been principally downwards and although insufficient encouragement is visible for the development of silver mines in this country, it might be noted to advantage that the increase in production is due more to the fact that silver at present is produced largely as a by-product.

Canada ranks third among the world silver producing countries, being outdistanced by Mexico and United States. The production of silver in Mexico has been downgrade for the past 8 months, descending from 10 million ounces in the month of April to slightly over 5 million ounces, according to latest reports. Similarly production in United States has contracted by an almost equal percentage. The United States was responsible for pegging silver during the war. Her interests at present are now blaming the United Kingdom for not prohibiting the accelerated dumping of silver which had been taking place for the past year in London, much to the financial embarrassment of the American producer.

Heavy Selling By China.

The immediate cause of the fall in silver prices is due to the heavy selling by China and a marked absence of a report from other quarters, such as India, Abyssinnia and Indo-China. While China's trade, in the past 12 months has improved owing to the very low stocks of raw materials held her adverse trade balance had thus been accentuated with the resultant sharp depreciation in the Tael. In 1924, China absorbed about 42 million ounces of silver, increasing to 136 million ounces in 1929; but since, the advocacy of the Kemmerar Commission for a gold standard has influenced the Celestial Empire's fiscal policy, a decline in Shanghai's silver stock by 15 per cent is reported for 1930, thus bringing the total to about 210 million ounces.

India's trade on the other hand contracted by 20 per cent last year, attributable to a certain extent to the boycott of foreign goods (particularly British) by the Swarajists. In the meantime, absorption of silver by India has been consistently downwards since 1924, when no less than 108 million ounces was purchased by India. In 1929, it declined to approximately 80 million ounces. For 1930, the figures should be even lower. Visible stocks are held high at present than in 1929—standing at over 400 million ounces. In the case of Indo-China, it is reported that a considerable quantity—estimated to 50 million ounces—has been released during the past 2 years. Abyssinnia has also released silves in London.

Juggling the price of silver has been a rather easy matter for certain governments. At any time they could add to or decrease the demand. It is much easier to control the price of silver than the value of wheat for the people must have flour but they and their governments can dispense with silver upon occasions.

During the war all went well, for the British Government paid a dollar an ounce for silver to the United States government which in turn paid same to the American producers under the enactment of the Pittman Act, which it will be recalled had its genesis in the war-time need of this metal by Great Britain in order to maintain a stability in its price, avoid hoarding and avert the disastrous fall of the rupee exchange. With the annulment of the Pittman Act, silver was once again thrown into competition thus bringing about lower prices and a changing status of this metal.

Improving Habits.

A great deal has recently been written contemporaneously on the silver question with the idea of attaining a specific use for the white metal—such as would be attained in the re-introduction of bi-metallism. Re-monetization is not generally favored by the more advanced economic thoughts, but a greater use should, however, be made for silver as a commodity. For instance, considerable scope exists in its more general adoption for domestic purposes, and it will be found that this metal could also be more extensively utilized for decorative purposes than hitherto.

From the phoenix of the price debacle there have arisen improved habits in the four silver using countries which will utimately result in the betterment of international relationships. During the past year, reports from India and Abyssinnia indicate a definite trend among the natives towards the wide spread banking habits for no further attraction is held for hoarding the white metal Moreover, there has been a substantial contraction in the silver currencies of silver standard countries in favor of paper money. In the case of China, it has been proven that the silver standard has caused much harm commercially, because of the considerably divergent "Mexican Dollar"—a value currency in circulation; besides, silver has not served readily as a medium for financial settlements between silver standard nations and others, who base their currencies on gold.

WILL WAGE CUT BE PUT INTO EFFECT

mission is free to exercise its discretion in setting the 1931 scale of wages, what will the special county roads committee of the county council do in regard to the wage question? Must they abide by the resolution of the council? The recollection of several reeves in the county roads area disagrees on the import of the council's motion. One stated recently that it was merely a recommendation, but another contention that it was a direct instruction to the committee fixing the $5 and $4 scale.

It is understood that some of the townships have already cut the wages that are to apply this year on township road work. Three of them, Smith, Otonabee and Douro, are said to have decided already on reductions. It is also stated that the townships had previously increased their wages to equality with the scale paid by the Suburban Area Commission and the county roads committee when wages were on the increase. It was then manifestly unfair and invidious that township employees should receive a smaller wage for practically the same work that was being done nearby by employees of the commission. Will the townships' lead now be followed by the other agencies?

Recent information was to the effect that Smith and Otonabee will pay this year $5 a day to teamsters and and $2.50 to laborers, and Douro's scale is down to $4 for teamsters and $2 for laborers. Some criticism of this latter wage has been expressed because, it is argued, the Department of Highways assuming half the cost of the work would also share half the expected saving of 50 cents a day. Thus, the difference in a laborer's pay as affecting the township treasury would be only 25c and it is argued that this small sum would be lost as a result of the probable disinclination of workmen to put forth their best efforts for the wage of $2 a day.

THE NEW FORD

BEAUTY COMFORT SAFETY

SPEED POWER ECONOMY

LONG LIFE *RELIABILITY

Of all the features of the new Ford there is none more important than reliability. It is a reflection of the substantial worth of the car.

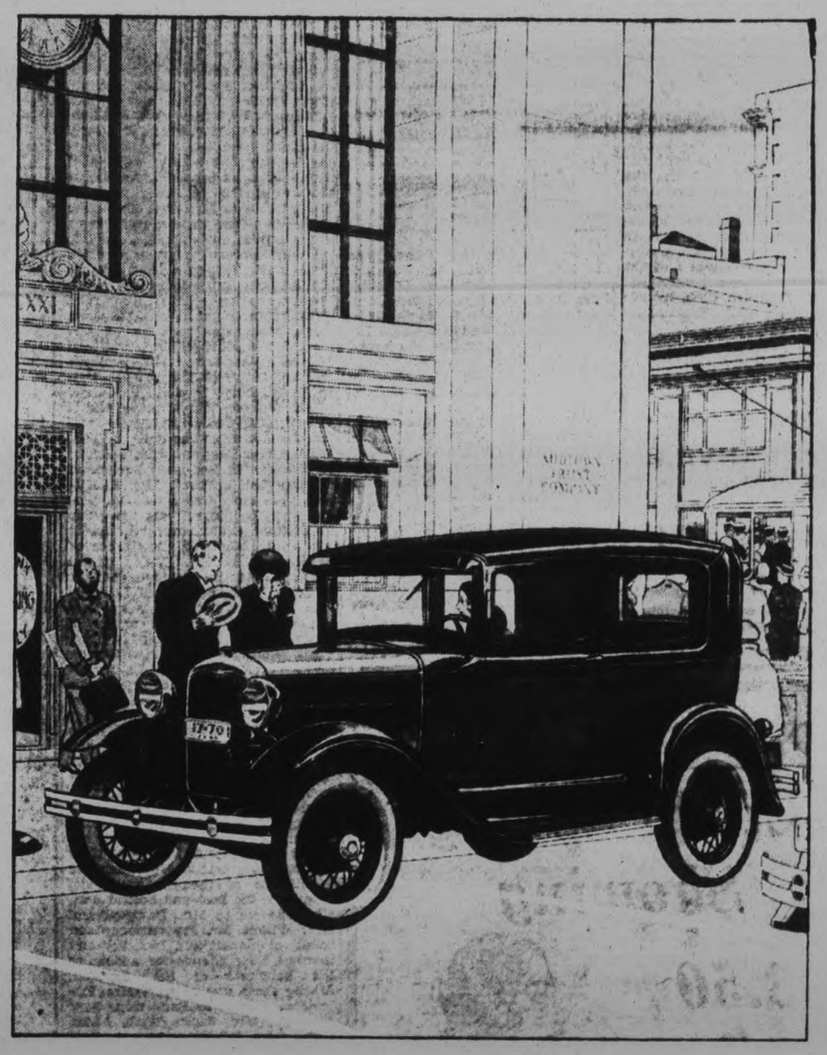
Evidence of the high quality built into the Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all — an unusually large number. From the engine to the road, the entire drive of the new Ford on all forward speeds is wholly on ball and roller bearings. In addition to smoother operation, this saves gasoline, gives the car more speed and power, decreases noise and increases the durability and efficiency of every moving part.

Another important factor in good performance is the care with which the car is made. The aluminum pistons are an interesting example of precision manufacture.

Though weighing more than a pound each, they are made so accurately that they do not vary more than one gram in weight. In size they are held true to within one one-thousandth of an inch. The wrist-pin holes in the pistons are diamond bored to within a limit of two ten-thousandths of an inch. In each motor, complete piston and connecting-rod assemblies are not permitted to vary by more than 3 grams.

Throughout the Ford you find many other instances of this same accuracy in the manufacture and assembly of vital mechanical parts. Combined with simplicity of design and high quality of materials, it is the reason for the economy and long life of the car and the satisfactory service it is giving millions of owners.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. You will know then that it brings you everything you want or need in an automobile at a low price.



REDUCED FORD PRICES

There is a Ford car for every need at an unusually low price. Appointments and upholstery are in keeping with its mechanical excellence. You may choose from a variety of body colors.

NINE NEW NEAR-MILLIONAIRES FORCED TO LIVE ON $900 WEEKLY

Old Man Gloom is Chased Away by Well-Paid Toronto Citizens.

LEADS ALL CANADA

By G. A. SINCLAIR
(Special to The Examiner—Copyright 1931)

TORONTO Feb. 20—Who said business was all battered up? Who said old man Gloom was still in the saddle? Oh, you did, er? Well then, laugh this off: Toronto has more millionaires to-day than any other three Canadian cities combined. There is more money in Toronto banks to-day than the banks know what to do with. More people booked cruises, tours and ocean passages during the past three weeks than for any full month since march, 1930. More than 21,000 Toronto people earn more than $60 a week.

Experts place 1928 high among boom years for Toronto's business. Stocks were zooming, collections were good, salaries were going up, theatres were doing a fine trade, people could afford holidays and luxuries and all sorts of things. And in 1928 Toronto had 118 millionaires.

Last year was supposed to be terrible. People were geting fired. Spenders were sulkin at home. Bailiffs were supposed to be putting people out on the street. Bread lines were forming. Dividends were being passd up. But Toronto had 145 millionaires.

For the years between 1926 and 1929 Toronto showed more millionaires every year in spite of the fact that some citizens with important money moved to the suburbs and took the important money with them.

Lost Five Millionaires

In 1930, according to the report of Assessment-Commissioner George Farley, Toronto had 145 millionaires which was a decrease of five over the previous year. A glance at these five incomes showed two of the big shots had gone broke, the other three had suffered an income reduction which put them below the millionaire class although they may still have their million tucked away in a man-size deposit box.

A millionaire, you see, is not what he sounds like. He is not a man with a million nice crisp dollar bills. He is a man who earns more than $50,000 a year. For instance Sir Henry Thornton is millionaire number 53 on the Montreal list which totals 87. He may have only a few thousand dollars in the bank but his salary alone is $65,000 a year so that makes him a millionaire in the eyes of the assessment chiefs. It's based on a capitalization of five per cent. Fifty thousand capitalized at five per cent is a million dollars or a milion dollars invested at five per cent brings $50,000 a year.

So Toronto lost five millionaires in 1930 which is probably very sad. The more enjoyable part comes in the announcement that Toronto gained nine near-millionaires during the same period.

A near-millionaire is a pretty rich gentleman, too. He is a man who makes about $900 a week. He has to make $1,000 a week to be a real honest to goodness as all-wool-but-the-buttons millionaire. There are 30 near-millionaires in Toronto as against 21 of these fellows the year before. Three of the near-millionaires were really and truly millionaires the year before which shows that six have come up from below to claim a spot in the big money spotlight.

Income Drop Slight

The whole income of Toronto only dropped $2,436,288 last year and most of this decrease came as the result of unemployment rather than reduced earning power. For instance 466 citizens who earned $60 a week or better in 1929 were jobless or on a low salary in 1930. In a general way the man of $50 a week or more has held his job. The millionaire has held his money and the middle rich class has made a gain.

Experts in Washgington have figured that less than five per cent of people in the United States earn more than $100 a week. But with a Toronto population of 621,596 of whom 21,752 pay income tax. Toronto only has 3½ per cent of her citizens earning better than $60 a week.

$60 Betters Average

There is a catch in this, however. A nasty catch. About 70 per cent of the 621,596 don't work at all, therefore, they earn no salary. Wives for instance. But if you get $60 a week you are entitled to figure yourself out as a pretty smart hombre. There are less than three others like you in a hundred.

But to come back to millionaires. Toronto has more millionaires to-day than there was in the whole of Canada three years ago. Laugh that off gloom. Just laugh it off.

And by the way, Chicago has ten millionaire women who are single and younger than 35. Perhaps something can be done about that.

BARGAIN HUNTERS IN OLD LONDON

Streets, Busses and Trains Are Crowded These Days.

AMUSING CONVERSATION.

By BETTY TWIST
(Special to The Examiner—Copyright 1931)

LONDON Feb. 19—The porters and conductors on London's traffic sercis are usually the best-tempered men. But at this time of the year one has only to breathe in their presence the one word "Sales," to witness a display of violence out of all proportion to the monosyllable. For February is the month of sales in the metropolis, and the most confirmed suburban shopper is determined to brave the intricacies of London's shopping routes in the hunt for bargains.

Women, by some unfortunate dispensation of nature, show a marvellous capacity of misunderstanding the simplest instructions. The story is yet to be told of the man who boarded the wrong bus. But watch a woman arrive at her destination on time after a self-conducted journey carried through without a hitch and her smile of conscious triumph will reveal to you that this is no ordinary achievement. The average woman refuses to read the traffic notices, but there is no limit to the questions she will ask. She has a hazy idea about location numbers, but she recognizes no difference between a 13 and a 13A. She insists on holding up a long queue of impatient business men while she says, "Does this bus go to Harrods, or Gamages?" And if she waives this ceremony the odds are she gets into a vehicle going in the opposite direction. Chooses to discover her mistake when the bus in speeding along a one-way traffic street, and grows quite indignant when the conductor refuses to allow her to dimount in the death trap.

Amusing Conversation

To the spectator it is equally diverting to take a stand in some underground platform and await developments. Take Victoria as an experiment. The conversation is illuminating. Here one may learn the methods by which clever wives have tapped the pockets of unsuspecting husbands for some dream of a frock, a real bargain at seven guineas, but totally unnecessary in the present overstocked state of the wardrobe, or how another, on the plea of new drawing room curtains, has worked in also a new spring costume, and how one, wiser than all the rest, has avoided all undue mental strain by keeping her spouse entirely in the dark about her impulsive purchases.

It is surprising thing that with all the clatter of passing trains, one woman can conduct a conversation with another with perfect ease, but as soon as she addresses a remark to the porter she assumes a low, sweet, intonation, very charming and very feminine, but quite inaudible even to his practiced ear. But for real studies in expression one must watch the porter's face.

BLAME MACHINE FOR SOCIAL ILLS

Industrialization Has Blasted Solidarity of Many Families Says Speaker.

DISCOUNT HUMAN ELEMENT.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—(The Canadian Press).—Industrialization has brought in its wake many of the social ills of today, has blasted the solidarity of many families, left them floundering amid social and economic disorder, and all through low wages, unemployment and a tendency in this machine age to discount the human element. Such, in brief, was the indictment laid at the door of the machine age of today by one of the Dominion's most able sociologists, Miss Charlotte Whitton, of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Council on Child and Family Welfare, in an address before members of the agencies of Financial Federation of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies.

Straight from the shoulder, Miss Whitton laid many of the problems confronting social workers at the door of rapid post-war industrialization and mass production, stressed that industry on a large scale was discounting the human element in favor of mechanization, and pleaded that modern civilization realize the great necessity of maintaining the permanency of the family.

Owl Spends 21 Days In Old Smoke Stack

WINNIPEG, Man., February 20.—Twenty-one days of icy, solitary confinement, with neither food nor water to sustain him, had little effect upon Mr. Jimmy Owl, a majestic creature with a wing spread of more than four feet who was found in the bottom of a smoke stack at a local brick-yard here recently.

The owl is now being cared for by W. A. Massey, foreman at the plant, and is rapidly recovering from its long, frigid days of captivity. It is becoming quite tame, too.

On January 17, Mr. Massey noticed two owls flying past the yards and saw that as they passed the giant 100-foot smokestack one suddenly vanished from sight. The next day, wondering if, by chance, the big bird had dived down the chimney, which, fortunately, was not in use at the time, Mr. Massey opened the clean-out door at the bottom and peered within. He failed to see anything, however, and after a casual glance again closed the door.

St. John's Eliminated in O.H.A. Junior Race

SAINTS ARE SWEPT UNDER BARRAGE OF COUNTERS FALL EASY VICTIMS TO MOTOR CITY FOR 11-1 COUNT

LOSE ON ROUND 16-1.

Unable to Ice Full Team Through Sickness, Saints Put Up Game Battle.

(Special to The Examiner)

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 20.—By virtue of their 11 to 1 win over the Peterborough St. John's here last night the Oshawa Juniors qualified to meet Kingston in the next round of the O.H.A. playoffs. Having won the first game of the series with St. John's in their home town on Monday night by the score of 5 to 0, Oshawa wins the round 16 to 1. On the night's play the better team won, Oshawa having much the better of the play all the way, leading at the end of the first period by 4 to 0, at the end of the second by 8 to 1.

The visiting team was greatly handicapped through sickness and were not able to ice three of their best players but nevertheless put up a fine game and went down fighting to the last minute of play. St. John's seemed to tire badly towards the end of the first period and it was in the last half of each period that the Oshawa team were able to run in the majority of their goals.

Wesley played a fine game in the nets for the losers and had no chance to save on the shots that beat him as the player from whose stick they come was in close.

He undoubtedly saved his team from a far worse beating as he made a number of sensational saves that brought the fans to their feet time and time again.

For Oshawa, Peterson, the first left winger, was the high scorer with four goals to his credit, while Bradd, Drinkle and Graboski had two each. Calladine scored the only goal for St. John's after three minutes had been played in the second period.

Thirteen penalties were handed out by referee Armstrong, who kept a close check on the play. Six of the enforced rests falling to the St. John's and seven to the home team. Flareups threatened several times but penalties cooled the players. The worst flareup was between White and D. Maundrell in the last period. Maundrell was bodied into the boards and the bell rang to put off White but Maundrell took several swings at White and had to be pulled away.

Lead From First.

Oshawa came out on the ice with the Oshawa "Pats" sweaters and opened the play with a rush. Failure to take passes cost both teams chances in the first five minutes and play was ragged. Wesley was given some anxious moments, but saved all that came his way. Hurst in his end of the rink did not have much to do. White was penalized for chopping Graboski, but returned before any damage was done. Calladine had the first real chance for his team on a pass from Gardiner, but hit the side of the net. With twelve minutes played Bradd took a pass from Drinkle and coasted in on Wesley and gave him no chance to save. Less than a minute later Drinkle took a pass from Lortie and pulled Wesley out to score. Peterson made it three a minute later when he shot between Howe's legs from the blue line and Wesley didn't see it till too late.

Maundrell, the big defence man, went off for charging, but Howe followed him to make the teams even. Graboski was right in, but Wesley saved and fell. Graboski recovered right in front of the citadel, and tried three times to lift the puck over the goalie, but failed each time. Peterson went in all alon with two minutes left and gave Wesley no chance. It was a fast shot to the corner.

Calladine Scores.

Gardener and Howe opened the period with nice rushes, but Hurst was always in the way. Calladine scored the first goal of the round for his team. After passing the defence, the puck struck Hurst's pads and dribbled into the net. Peterson went off for holding and was followed by Howe, who tripped Graboski. With seven minutes of play gone Lartie carried the puck the length of the rink and passed to Bradd, who made no mistake from close in. Wesley saved from Drinkle, Bradd and Authors, who were clustered around the nets, but the goalie was forced to hold the puck and a face-off to the side was called. Drinkle secured position at the cross off and scored on a fast shot. Howe went off for charging Graboski. Peterson scored on a lone rush and shot one that Wesley had no chance on. Lortie went off for roughing Merritt, and the teams were even. Wesley made a sensational save of Maundrell's shot which Howe deflected. Lortie rushed and went in close to make the score eight to one.

Peterborough were trying hard to get in close and the hard checking of Maundrell and Lortie nullified their attempts. Their shooting from long range was erratic for the most part and combination play was not a success due to the close backchecking of the Oshawa forwards.

The Oshawa substitutes started the period and Graboski who had been playing a marvelous game all evening went in and batted one by Wesley who fell flat. Then came the fare-up between Maundrell and White and they both went off, Maundrell's action was uncalled for to say the least. Graboski was playing rings around the visitors and made them look like school boys, with his stick handling and back checking, and at one time played the four St. Johns' men and held them in their end of the rink. His work was again rewarded after four minutes of play with another unassisted goal, Wesley guessed wrong and moved the wrong way to stop the puck. St. Johns' were trying hard to get another goal but the few chances they had were taken care of by Hurst in sensational style. The visitors were visibly tired out but never gave up trying—a game bunch if their ever was one. Oshawa tried to take advantage of their weariness, but Wesley was unbeatable for a time, although he had many hard shots to handle. Young broke away and was right through the defence, passed to Calladine but Hurst was right there and saved a sure goal. Merritt also had a hard shot but he too was robbed. Peterson, not content with the three goals he had already scored rushed and was forced to round the back of the St. Johns' net but managed to work his way round to the side and his shot went into the net off Wesley's skate. In the dying moments Calladine and Merritt both had close in shots from the side but Hurst was unbeatable. The game ended with play in the Oshawa end of the rink with St. Johns' pressing for a goal.

Lineups:

Oshawa: Goal, Hurst; defence, D. Maundrell and Lortie; centre, Drinkle; wings, Bradd and Peterson; subs, C. Maundrell, Authors and Graboski.

Former Local Resident Stars Among Curlers

"Dr. Anderson's brilliant curling has the fans talking to themselves and the final series against the Johnson rink should be a classic", such are the comments in the Edmonton Bulletin concerning Dr. A. F. Anderson member of the Royal Curling Club and former resident of this city.

The Johnson rink of the Edmonton Club and the "Dr." of the Royal entered the final of the MacDonald Brier Competition in the Alberta Bonspiel on Thursday morning last, in two exciting games. The Brier winner in this bonspiel (which by this time is probably decided) will meet the winning rink in Calgary for the Alberta title and honor of representing the Province in Toronto in the Canadian championships. Wonder if Dr. Anderson will be coming east?

BEWDLEY SCORES 1 TO 0 DECISION

Defeats Gore's Landing in Brilliant Hockey Fixture.

NICE COMBINATION

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A snappy game of hockey took place on the Bewdley rink on Wednesday evening, when the Bewdley boys met the Gore's Landing hockey team in a fast workout. Some excellent playing was exhibited by both teams, although both lines left too many loop holes for their opponents to skate through.

The team from the landing were much younger and a lighter team than their opponents from the opposite end of the lake but the, Bewdley boys only scored one goal, which was the only goal of the game.

The teams lined up as follows:

Bewdley—Goal, H. Goss; forwards, E. Goss, P. Sidey and A. Goss; defence, H. Smith and K. Smith.

Gore's Landing—Goal, G. Harris; forwards, P. Harris, McDonald and McDonald; defence, H. Harris and L. Wallace.

Referee—Keith Barnard.

Elimination and Consolation Events Held at Norwood Curling Club.

NORWOOD, Feb. 20. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual big Bonspiel of the Norwood Curling Club took place Wednesday, starting at 8.30 a.m. and continuing all day until the elimination and consolatiln finals were reached.

At 6.30 to-night a series of Single Player Competitions will be run off with over twenty members entering and at 8 p.m. the Grand Finals will start between the two winning rinks of Wednesday's games.

The curlers are looking forward to a real event and lots of fun, while in the conclusion of this game, a banquet is to be held in the rink gallery and the Royal Bank cup will be presented to the winners

Madoc School Falls Before Quinte High

MADOC, Feb. 20. (Examiner Correspondence.)—Madoc High School Hockey Team met defeat at the hands of the Belleville Collegiate Team at Belleville Arena on Tuesday evening, to a score of 7-1. As none of the Madoc squad had played on artificial ice before, this was not unexpected, but the speed of the opposing team, and the larger ice surface were large factors in their defeat. They put up an excellent game, and better results are hoped for in future, as this team has played a splendid game from the beginning of this season.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

Vince Anthony's Bowlrites, the "maple breakers" in the ten-pin league finished the first half in first place and last night set up a new total pinnage record by spilling 2868 pins. Tommy Holyman moved the high single record in this league up to 230, breaking his own previous high score of 227.

Some spectacular pin bouncing was produced this week when the Martin-Hewett trundlers clashed with the Brintons to take a 6-2 decision. L. Melrose for the Carpet Makers broke both the high single and triple records to date when he smoked the alleys for totals of 355 and 815. His three scores were 255, 355, 205 for 815. The Boxmakers were hitting a rather fast stride however and with two men over the 300 mark in singles swung the verdict.

Martin Hewett, high scores: Hamblin, 232, 258; Voke, 226; Gordon, 238, 304; tanbury, 222, 305. Brinton Carpet: Dodson, 263; Millburn, 213, and Chamberlain, 214, 207.

FIGHT RESULTS

Philadelphia—Billy Jones, Philadelphia, outpointed Joe Sekyra, Dayton, O. (8); Willard Dix, California, knocked out Riccardo Romano, Philadelphia (2).

Iowa City—Harvey Carothers, Moline, Ill., stopped Orley Torrington Cedar Rapids, Ia., (6).

Davenport, Ia.—Kid Leonard, East Milline, Ill., outpointed Jock Malone, St. Paul, (10); Bud Dempsey, Moline, and Johnnie Allison, Kewanee, Ill., drew (6).

LONDON CLUB IN 4TH PLACE

Fall in Standings as Result of Yellow Jacket's Win From Olympics 3-0.

PENALTIES COSTLY.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 20. (CP)—Pushed down to fourth place in the International Hockey League standing last night as a result of Pittsburgh's 3 to 2 victory over the Olympics in a bumping duel at Detroit, London Tecumsehs will make a determined bid to regain third place to-night when they entertain the tail-end Syracuse Stars. Victory will hoist the Manager Roy Brothers' team back to third place, one point ahead of the surprising Yellow Jackets and the Cleveland Indians, who are tied for that position with 39 points each.

The second place Windsor Bulldogs and the league leading Buffalo Bisons clash in the other scheduled fixture at the western Ontario city.

Led by Earl Robinson, league leading point scorer, the Bulldogs hope to avenge last Saturday's defeat in Fort Erie and at the same time cut down the Bisons' six point lead.

The game will provide the fans with sharp contracts in playing styles. The Bulldogs are the highest scoring aggregation in the league while their opponents are noted for their splendid defensive system which has kept opposing marksmen to a minimum number of goals.

Pittsburgh's hard earned win over the Olympics placed them in a favorable position to earn a playoff berth. While they have a tough game with Buffalo scheduled on Saturday they travel to Syracuse for what appears an easier contest on Sunday.

Two goals by Proudlock late in the final period enabled the Smoky City puck chasers to tie the Indians in the standing. The Olympics appeared well on their way to victory with the score 2 to 1 in their favor when penalties depleted their manpower and Proudlock promptly hammered in his brace of goals to turn the tide.

Alex Smith's Tally in Third Period Breaks One-all Deadlock.

CANUCKS AND BRUINS TIE.

TORONTO, Ont., February 20 (By George Maguire, C.P. Sports Writer).—Surprises popped up along the National Hockey League front last night. Four games were played and the results proved anything but formful.

Ottawa's tail-end Senators sprang the biggest upset by handing the second place Toronto Maple Leafs the short end of a 2 to 1 score in the Queen City. New York Americans abetted the Senators in the surprise act by the decisive manner in which they triumphed over Montreal Maroons to secure a firm hold on the third rung in the Canadian section. The final count favored the Amazing Amerks, 4 to 2.

Montreal Canadiens, Canadian division leaders, victims of the burly Bruins in the Canadian Metropolis last week, fought the Bostonians on equal terms through 70 minutes of thrilling hockey at the Hub, the final score reading one-all.

Another upset occurred in the Far West when Detroit Falcons, with Ebbie Goodfellow, league leading point scorer, as the spearhead of their attacks, nosed out the Chicago Blackhawks 5 to 4, after 10 minutes' overtime.

The victory pulled the Detroiters up into a tie for third place in the United States group with New York Rangers and four point behind the Chicagoans, who are not accustomed to accepting defeat on their home ice.

Toronto's defeat may cost them second place within a week. The Leafs face a hard schedule in their next three games, and are now only two points in the van of Eddie Gerard's star-spangled hockeyists.

Supported by the splendid goal-keeping of Alex. Connell, the Senators notched the winning goal in the last two minutes of the game when their surprise attack caught the Leafs unprepared.

More than 16,000 fans braved the elements to watch the spectacular Stanley Cup holders match strides with the League champions. The Bruins started out by scoring an easy goal in the first two minutes when the usual reliable George Hainsworth dropped Art Chapman's soft shot into the net.

Maroons are Easy Victims.

While their fellow townsmen were playing brilliantly in Boston, the Maroons were showing hockey of the very opposite kind. The Americans piled up a three goal lead in the first two periods before the Montrealers entered the picture at all.

The Falcons overcame a two goal deficit in the middle frame to knot the count at Chicago, only to see the Hawks again take the lead before the period closed. "Two quick goals, however, in the third session enabled the Motor magnates to take the lead for the first time, but it was short lived, as the Windy City representatives scored the equalizer within 25 seconds. Goodfellow passed to Johnny Sorrell for the winning marker halfway through the overtime.

CITY LEAGUE TILT.

Choates Hardware Scores 5 Goals in Final Frame of Stars Contest.

Top heavy scores marked a pair of Junior City League games played at the Brock Street rink last night. Both affairs were close enough for two periods, the winners in each case having one big period. The ice was only fair and not many fans turned out for the contests. Both games were fairly fast and clean and considerable combination was seen as well as smart stickhandling.

In the curtain-raiser, Choates' Hardware put the screws on the Star Athletic Club 7-1, hammering the rubber in five times in the last frame. Beginning the first, both squads were slow, with several lone rushes and long shots made. Five minutes after the start, McIlwain went down along the boards and whistled an angle shot into the net for the first. The go was fairly even for the rest. In the middle chapter, the boys played a little ragged the first half, back-checking keeping the puck around the centre. Stars threatneed numerous times late in the frame, coming through individually and in pairs, but Anthony was stopping them all. With less than a minute to go, Francis went the length of the rink to drill one past Sanderson and put Choates up 2-0. The winners had it their own way most of the final stanza, going in and shooting often. Stars defense couldn't seem to stem the tide at all. Twice in a row, Dinesen and Watman comened to score, the latter taking the shot both times. Then Hickson and then McCarroll stepped in on lone efforts and notched another each. Toward the end Bath went down the ice on a pretty stickhandling sortie to fool Anthony and net the only one the Stars got. Just before the bell, Vinette tallied the final one for the winners. Their whole outfit went great from the goalie out. Francis checked and rushed nice and the fast forward line played bang-up hockey Bath, Beatty and the Jay brothers worked hard for the Stars and Sanderson saved plenty of hard shots throughout.

Referee, "Gamey" Jarvis.

Cop 9-3 Victory.

In the second game, Johnson's Seahorses took the C.G.E. Office boys for a fast ride and let them out with a 9-3 licking. The winners had their opponents outspeeded and outplayed till late in the third session when C.G.E. came to and ran in three counters. Woods was the fastest man on the ice and bagged five of his teammates' goals. Archambault helped himself to three. In the first period Woods scored one on a classy bit of work, taking the puck around the net and slipping it in. The second canto found the winners scoring at will, Woods running in three on lone thrusts and one on a pass from Payne. Archambault and Kirkwood each went through to make the score 7-0. They began again in the last frame, Archambault finding the cage twice, once on a pass from Scollard. The boys were going good and combining effectively. C.G.E. threatened at times, but their shots were generally from the blue line. With five minutes to go, they suddenly started to travel and ran in three in a row, Thirnbeck notching two and assisting Craig for the other one. But the Sea-horses checked them hard and the play was back and forth at the final bell. For the winners, the whole gang played great hockey, Clark in goal and Woods, Archambault, Scollard and Payne looking particularly good. Thirnbeck was the best for C.G.E., and Craig and Gray also worked hard.

Referee, "Scotty" Maudsley.

DOUBLE TILTS HERE TO-NIGHT

C.G.E. Toolroom and Norwood Face Elimination if They Lose Out.

FIRST GAME STARTS 7.30.

Two games in which C. G. E. Tool room and Norwood face elimination from the East Peterborough League finals, will be played at the Brock street rink to-night. The Toolmakers will have but one small chance if they fail to beat Lakefield in the first contest at 7.30, and Norwood Combines must stop the Cogs. There have been many fine games in the series but to-night's fixtures should cap them all. The ice will be in fine shape for puck carrying, and two red-hot contests should greet the big crowd of fans who will be on hand, including contingents from Lakefield and Norwood.

Following to-night's double header C. G. E. have a game in Lakefield, and two more with the Cogs. Lakefield has another game with Norwood.

Should the result of the game have a bearing on first and second place positions, the League executive may order a replay of the Norwood-Lakefield tie game in Lakefield on Wednesday night. The teams were at fault in not playing overtime, but much of the failure to play the extra time was due to the entrance of outsiders into the argument, and, as is usually the case, none of them knew whist they were talking about.

MOTOR CITY FACES 5-POINT HANDICAP

When They Meet P. C. I. For Basketball Honors Here on Saturday Afternoon.

Saturday afternoon, our the local collegiate floor, basketball fans will have an opportunity of glimpsing the clever Oshawa Collegiate team, when they play their return game with the P.C.I. squad for the Central Ontario Championship.

The visitors have a 5 point handicap that they will endeavor to overcome, as a result of the "Petes" win in Oshawa a week ago, but they have high hopes of coming through with a comfortable lead to take the round from the homesters.

The Garnet and Grey team, fully realizing that a victory to-morrow will let them continue in the Ontario playdowns, will give everything they have and Coach Cummings will floor his strongest quintet in an effort to stem the determined visitors.

Vern Armstrong, Howie Macdonald and Art Ward will most likely be starters on the front line after their fine exhibition last week and the Oshawa squad will have to be at their best to stop these clever performers.

This line will be ably re-enforced by "Wib" Ward, Louie Chesler, Jack Wolstenholme and Max Swartz.

The defence duties will be left to "Rags" Reynolds, Nels Stanger and Doug Kelly, all capable rearguard players.

In all, it should be a tiny cage struggle and will undoubtedly attract a large crowd of fans. The game is called for 2.30 p.m. with Charlie McLeish in charge.

The opposing line-ups and player's numbers for the game are as follows:

Oshawa C.I.—Forwards, Andison 8; Shelenkoff 4, Engel 13, McIntosh 6; centre, Young 3; defence, Hicks 1; Henley 5, Kashul 18.

P.C.I.—Forwards—Armstrong 1; A. Ward 4; Wolstenholme 5, W. Ward 7, Chesler 10, Swartz 9; centre, Macdonald 2, defence, Stanger ., Reynolds 8, Kelly 6.

Winnipeg's Win From Millionaires 4 To 2

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 20. (CP)—Winnipegs, who came up from nowhere in particular to create a three-cornered deadlock for first place in the Winnipeg Senior Hockey League as the schedule neared its end, last night defeated Elmwood Millionaires in the first play-off game, 4 to 2. Winnipegs carry a two-goal margin into the second game of the series Monday night and are strong favorites to meet Native Sons, who drew a bye for the title.

SENIOR FINALS START TO-NIGHT

Tigers Meet Nationals at Toronto While Marlboros Travel to Port Colborne.

IN RETURN GAMES.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 20.—(By the Canadian Press.) — Ontario to-day stands on the threshold of what promises to be one of the greatest Senior amateur hockey play-off series in years.

Spurred on by visions of the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Canadian championship and of the probable trip to Lake Placid in quest of world honors at the 1932 winter Olympiad, four splendid teams have come through the long schedule grind of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series to finish deadlocked at the top.

At Toronto and Port Colborne to-night the play-offs commence. Hamilton Tigers, holders of the O.H.A. title and Eastern Canada Allan Cup finalists last season with Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, play the first of home and home games with Toronto Nationals.

The other Queen City hope for hockey glory, the Marlboros, travel to Port Colborne where they meet the doughty "Sailors" of that town in the first game of their private feud.

By a peculiar twist of hockey fortunes both Nationals and Marlboros lost their home games to Tigers and the Ports, respectively, and then turned around and whipped their opponents in the return tilts abroad.

The Port Colborne squad led the parade from the start, with Hamilton always second and it was only in the final scheduled games that Nationals and Marlboros managed to gain a tie.

Next week the return games will be played and the winners will then meet in the final, the survivor qualifying to continue in the Ontario playdowns.

While the Senior "A" series teams are fighting it out to night, Windsor Micmacs and University of Toronto, meet in the return game of the Senior "B" semi-final at the Varsity rink. The first match at Windsor ended in a two-all tie.

FIRST AERIAL GEODETIC OPERATION

So far as is known, the first application of aerial methods to geodetic operations in any country was carried out in Canada by an officer of the Geodetic Survey of Canada, Department of the Interior, in 1921, in which year the reconnaissance for a net of triagulation some 200 miles long was made by aeroplane in the mountainous district eastward from Vancouver, British Columbia, the results being checked by ground visits to all stations. It was not until 1929, however, that this method was applied to less rugged country.

TEN TEAMS ENTERED IN TEN-PIN LEAGUE

Second Half of Schedule Will Open on Saturday Afternoon at 2 P.M.

The second half of the City Ten Pin League, under handicap rules, will start at two o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Duffus Bowling Alleys. There are eight teams entered for the championship and the cash prizes. The schedule runs seven weeks and the winners of the first half play off with the winners of the second half for first money. The teams finished second in each half play off for second place, and the loser of the first and second play-off battle it out for third prize. In addition, there will be the usual weekly cash prize given by the Alleys. The handicap of this section is based upon the team averages of the first half of the schedule. This is the first time in Peterborough there has been handicap bowling in ten pins.

In the first half, Bowlrites finished at the top but were followed closely by De Laval. Following are the teams and their averages:

First Half

Teams	Captains	Points
Bowlrites	Vince Anthony	54
De Laval	Ross Williamson	46
Lucky Strikes	Leo Martyn	28
Brintons	Gord Anderson	16
Greenhorns	Bert Lester	4
Jokes	Fred Scates	14
Rubes	Fred Martin	24
Hasbeens	George Gimblett	30

"NEW MOON"

"New Moon" is one of those delightful productions that carry out absolutely the impression gained from the trailers in advance. Some pictures have a wonderful flare and whizz bang in the trailer and expire like a dead firecracker, in the presentation. "New Moon" is just as tuneful, just as colorful and just as daring as one would expect from the brief glimpses already vouchsafed. It is slightly risque, in that charming fashion that musical pictures achieve so easily. The Princess Tania follows her desires.

"New Moon" is symbolical as a title. It is supposed to be the name of the ship that cleaves a leisurely way through the Caspian Sea toward the port of Krasnov, capital of the frontier province where Russia's empire ended in the days when the white Tsars ruled the land. But the new moon is really the symbol for the action, with its daring romance, its adventurous action and its passion that translates itself into song.

Neither of the stars is handsome. Grace Moore is built on heavy lines but her voice is exquisite and voice of Lawrence Tibbett, with his ridiculous little dark moustache, is as gorgeous as ever. They thrill their hearers when they sing together, especially in that fine theme song, "Lover, Come Back to Me!" And both are very fine actors.

One of the outstanding parts is that of Roland Young that very likeable person with the habit of saying funny things under his breath. He acts as a sort of "god in the machine" in this picture, and foils the plans of his very ugly and dominating wife, who wishes to mate Tania with the Governor Boris. Adolphe Menjou has this role, and has in it the same part that he had in "Morocco" that of the baffled lover whose quality of fidelity and finesse is powerless against the stronger passion of a younger man. Menjou is not well cast in this role. Just as in "Morocco" his fine and delicate suavity has the effect of making his companions' passions appear just a little bit gross.

"New Moon" is splendid entertainment.

KELLER UNUSED TO BOARDS

Paul Keller, France's premier 800 metre champion, made his American debut but finished far back of the flying feet of Phil Edwards, fleet colored athlete from Hamilton, Ont., in the 1,000 yard special event at the Seton Hall indoor games. Showing utter unfamiliarity with the board tracks, Keller trailed from the crack of the pistol and finished in fourth place, 100 yards back of Edwards and behind Frank Nordell, New York University freshmen, and Charlie Thompson of the New York Central Athletic Association of New York.

The slim, black headed Frenchman, in his suit of yellow and white, kept within striking distance only to the first turn. There he was jostled about as the field of six battled for the advantage and quickly dropped behind, trailing first in fifth place and finally moving up to fourth, but still yards back of Edwards.

Even in his defeat by Edwards, Keller showed the mettle of champion, finishing despite an injury early in the race that tore the nail off the big toe of his right foot. The French champion apparently is suffering from the injury gritted his teeth and endeavored to hang on the pace but failed, crossing the line limping.

In winning, Edwards set a burning pace for the flat boards, covering the 1,000 yards in 2,17 9-10. He wore down Harold Cutbill of the Boston A.A. indoor record holder at the distance, and then outlasted Nordell in a great bell lap finish. As the New York University freshman and his veteran rival, who once wore the same colors, swung into the final lap, Nordell challenged, but the speedy colored runner gave one glance backwards, let loose with another burst of his oldtime speed and finished eight yards in front of Nordell.

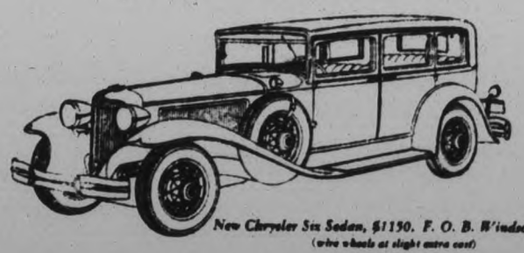
AN ENTIRELY NEW CHRYSLER SIX

STYLED LIKE THE SMART CHRYSLER EIGHTS

A BIG CAR—WITH BIG POWER

$1140

And up, f. o. b. Windsor, Ontario, including standard factory equipment (freight and taxes extra)



New Chrysler Six Sedan, $1150. F. O. B. Windsor, Ont. (wire wheels at slight extra cost)

CHRYSLER has news for you about a new sensation in the automobile industry.

In our showrooms, there is being shown for the first time a new Chrysler Six styled in that fine distinctive manner of the Chrysler Straight Eights.

A big new Chrysler Six expressly designed to stand forth as the smartest six-cylinder car ever available at a low price—and not only the smartest, but a new Six powered to make a clean sweep of its price field in every conceivable test of performance.

With its 116-inch wheelbase it is an extremely graceful car in size, length, lowness and in all its fine characteristics of design. Like its magnificent companion cars, the Chrysler Straight Eights, the new Chrysler Six has a double-drop frame permitting a very low center of gravity—which is an essential source of more attractive appearance, better balance, finer riding qualities and greater safety.

Chrysler has made this new Six as outstanding in performance as it is in appearance. Your first ride will quickly confirm this.

We proudly invite the entire industry as well as the public to inspect this new Chrysler Six.

ICE CARNIVAL HELD AT MARMORA RINK

Colorful Scene as Variety of Costumes Seen in Winter Sports Event.

PRIZES AWARDED.

MARMORA, Feb. 20. (Examiner Correspondence.)—One of the largest crowds to turn out to a local winter sports event in recent years visited the Deloro rink on Tuesday evening to the joy of Manager Bill Simmons and his rink committee.

The varied program of the annual carnival lasted over two hours and the costumes worn furnished a very gay effect. The prize for the most novel costume was jointly won by Barbara Wright and Grace Hemphill for their excellent impersonation of Grandpa and Grandma. David Crawford dressed as Napoleon carried off the prize for boys under 10 years, while in the corresponding girls' class Lorraine Gaffney in pierlot costume was the winner.

The skating races were keenly contested and resulted as follows Boys under 10 years, Clare O'Neill, Jim Loveless; girls under 10, Loise Briskard, Hilda Mumby; boys 16 and under, John O'Neill, Dick Smith, girls 16 and under, John O'Neill, Dick Smith, girls 16 and under, Jean O'Neill, Mary Paquet, men's half mile race, John O'Neill Eugene Phillips.

The puck shooting event also proved very interesting twenty-five contestants in all, entering. Dick Smith was the winner he being the only one to register a bull's eye.

The moccasin dance was very attractive, five sets dancing to popular airs played by Dan Alexander's one man, two piece orchestra. While this was in progress, bags of delicious candy were distributed among the smaller folk. The majority of those present completed their enjoyable winning by dancing in Deloro Hall until the arrival of midnight.

FENELLA.

At the social evening held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Waldie on Friday evening under the auspices of the Women's Institute prizes for progressive euchre were won by Miss Jessie Waldie and Mr. Frank George. The lucky chair prize went to Harrison George. A Valentine contest resulted in a tie between two groups and a water race contest was won by the group captained by Jack Crank.

A delicious lunch was served and Eldridge Sherwin, in a brief speech thanked the hostess and the ladies responsible for the evening's program.

Mrs. James Knox and small daughter Margaret, spent a few days in Cobourg recently, with Mrs. Knox's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Ralls.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S KIND DEED

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily went out in the kitchen of his hollow stump bungalow in the evening to see if there would be any carrot shortcake left over for his lunch tomorrow, the rabbit gentleman heard Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy talking on the telephone.

"No," said the muskrat lady housekeeper as Uncle Wiggily listened, though not doing it impolitely. "No, Aunt Lettie, I'm sorry but I can't go with you. What's that? Later in the evening? No, I can't go then, either. I have to help Mrs. Longears put the rabbit children to bed after they do their school home work. Oh, no, I couldn't think of leaving my supper dishes to go to the movies with you! Thanks just the same!"

"Oh, I didn't know you were out here in my kitchen," squeaked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. She was quite surprised.

"Oh, yes, I'm here," said Uncle Wiggily. "Not meaning to listen, which I would not be impolite enough to do, I couldn't help hearing what you said over the telephone, Nurse Jane."

"Oh, that's all right. I was only talking to Aunt Lettie, the goat lady."

He began to clean them.

spoke Nurse Jane. "There was nothing I wouldn't want you to hear. You were kind enough to have a telephone put in my kithcen for me, and why shouldn't you hear what is said over it."

"I'm not that kind of a rabbit," Uncle Wiggily answered. "But if I heard alright, Janie, you said you couldn't go to the movies with Aunt Lettie; is that it?"

"Why, yes," admitted the muskrat lady housekeeper, trying not to let her whiskers tickle her ear. "I said I couldn't go." Uncle Wiggily asked why.

"Oh, you know why!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "I must stay in and wash the supper dishes as I always do. And there are many dishes tonight on account of having carrot shortcake."

"Now look here, Janie!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman, "you get your coat and hat on and go to the movies!"

"Oh, but who will do the dishes?"

"I will!" promised Uncle Wiggily boldly.

"Nonsense! I mean, thank you very much, but you can't wash dishes, Uncle Wiggily!" objected Nurse Jane.

"Certainly I can," declared Uncle Wiggily. "It is very easy. You just put the dishes in warm, soapy water and get off all the dirt and grease. Then you put the dishes in clean, hot water to rinse off the soapy suds and after that you dry the plates, cups, saucers and everything else, don't you?"

"Well, you seem to know about washing dishes," admitted Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "But I couldn't think of letting you do my work."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed the rabbit again. "Leave the dishes to me. I'll wash them. I used to help my wife dry them when we were first married, but since you are now the dishwasher I'll help you. Now I want you to get ready and go to the movies with Aunt Lettie."

"Well, it certainly is very kind of you!" squeaked the muskrat lady

"Thanks a lot! I did so much want to go to the movies."

"Hop along!" cried jolly Uncle Wiggily. So Nurse Jane and Aunt Lettie went to the movies, leaving Uncle Wiggily in the kitchen. Mrs. Longears was hearing some of the rabbit children recite their home school work and all was peace and happiness.

Uncle Wiggily drew some hot water in the pan, put in some soap and then, slipping one of Nurse Jane's aprons over his head, he began to sozzle the dishes around to clean them.

"Tootie tootie toot!" whistled Uncle Wiggily, feeling happy, like a Boy Scout, because he was doing a kind deed, his last for the day. He had to do three a day, you know. "Tootie tootie toot!" he whistled.

Uncle Wiggily was just going to throw the dirty dishwater away and get some clean, hot, rinsing water in the pan when, all of a sudden he heard a laugh. "Huck! Gluck! Muck!"

"That's the Bob Cat again!" whispered Mr. Longears. A second later the kitchen door was pushed open, for Nurse Jane forgot to lock it when she went to the movies. In jumped the Bob Cat.

"Sissy! Sissy!" mocked the Bob Cat, making fun of Uncle Wiggily. "You are a regular old woman, washing dishes! Huck! Gluck! Muck!"

"I am not washing dishes!" said the rabbit.

"What are you doing then?" snickered the Bad Chap.

"I am doing a kind deed," said Mr. Longears. "And here is another kind deed! I will wash you!" With that he threw the soapy dishwater all over the Bob Cat, standing in the door. Oh, how surprised that Bob Cat was!

Away he ran, dripping dishwater all over the back steps but the Bad Chap didn't get the rabbit. Mr. Longears then finished washing and drying Nurse Jane's dishes and all was peace and quiet.

TIDY BALANCE IS SHOWN IN REPORT

Canadian Pacific Recreation Club at Havelock Holds Annual Meeting.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 20.—Examiner Correspondence.—The annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Recreation Club was held in the station on Thursday, when a large number of the members were present. The secretary treasurer, J. H. Moore, presented the financial statement for the year, showing receipts of $1141.50 and expenditures of $815.35, leaving a balance on hand of $226.15. A number of communications were received and filed for future reference.

The annual Veteran's Vanquet came up for discussion, and it was decided that it should be postponed for the present and held later in the year.

Lou. Hagerman made a suggestion that met with popular approval, when he advocated making arrangements towards securing a club room, and the Executive committee will take the matter up for consideration.

Frank Hooper was of the opinion that a club carrying on community work of such varied nature as this one is doing, should have a far larger membership, and suggested that a committee be appointed toward that end. Mr. Hooper's suggestion concerning a membership Committee was adapted and the committee will comprise Messers Hagerman, Hooper, Jamieson, Veale, Howe and Moore.

1931 Officers.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, L. G. Hagerman, Vice-presidents, Messrs Wm. Hitchins, J. Howe, F. J. Hooper, J. Simons, J. Harvey, M. B. Veale, W. McLaren, D. A. Forde, A. T. Armstrong, J. Evans, W. J. Anderson, Dr. A. S. Thompson, Secretary, J. H. Moore (re-elected).

Robert Crawford, the retiring president, heartily thanked the members for their splendid support throughout the year and was of the opinion that the Club had continued to make progress.

The new president, Mr. Hagerman, on assuming his new duties thanked the members for his election to the president's chair, and while he felt some diffidence in accepting the office, said that he would gladly accept the heavy responsibility evolved, and endeavor to guide the affairs of the Club to a successful issue, and asked for the continued support of the officers and members in that laudable ambition.

The secretary treasurer, J. H. Moore, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for his arduous duties so capably carried out

REGISTRATION OF ALL SUGAR BUSHES

Necessary to Obtain License Where Product of Bush or Orchard is Sold.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20 (C.P.)—Under provision of the Maple Sugar Industry Act, 1930, which became effective this month, all manufacturing or packing-plants dealing in maple products require to be registered with the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa and all such plants selling their product outside the province in which they are located must obtain a License, the fee for which is $20 annually.

Owners of sugar-bush or orchards are required to register with the Dominion Fruit Commissioner and obtain a license where the product of the sugar-bush or orchard is sold. There is no fee for this license. Under the Act registration and licensing with respect to both plants and bush must be effected by March 1 of this year. Application forms for the purpose will be supplied by the Dominion Fruit Branch.

Probably the outstanding feature of the Act is the rigid restriction in the use of the word maple to absolutely pure maple products. The word maple may no longer be used in connection with imitation or substitute products, and where such are used in foods supplied at public eating places the menu or bill-of-fare must clearly indicate the use of imitation maple flavoring.

Official grading for maple syrup includes a range of our grades: Canada Fancy, Canada Light, Canada Medium and Canada Dark; and for maple sugar three grades are provided. Color and flavor are the characteristics by which grades are distinguished.

Each manufacturing or packing plant and each sugar orchard or bush on registration and obtaining a license receives an identifying number. All products of the plant or bush must be clearly marked with this number together with the net weight of the contents of the package and the name and address of the owner of the manufacturing or packing plant, sugar-bush or orchard.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S KIND DEED

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily went out in the kitchen of his hollow stump bungalow in the evening to see if there would be any carrot shortcake left over for his lunch tomorrow, the rabbit gentleman heard Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy talking on the telephone.

"No," said the muskrat lady housekeeper as Uncle Wiggily listened, though not doing it impolitely. "No, Aunt Lettie, I'm sorry but I can't go with you. What's that? Later in the evening? No, I can't go then, either. I have to help Mrs. Longears put the rabbit children to bed after they do their school work. Oh, no, I couldn't think of leaving my supper dishes to go to the movies with you! Thanks just the same!"

Nurse Jane hung up the telephone and saw Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, I didn't know you were out here in my kitchen," squeaked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. She was quite surprised.

"Oh, yes, I'm here," said Uncle Wiggily. "Not meaning to listen, which I would not be impolite enough to do, I couldn't help hearing what you said over the telephone, Nurse Jane."

"Oh, that's all right. I was only talking to Aunt Lettie, the goat lady."

He began to clean them.

spoke Nurse Jane. "There was nothing I wouldn't want you to hear. You were kind enough to have a telephone put in my kitchen for me, and why shouldn't you hear what is said over it."

"I'm not that kind of a rabbit," Uncle Wiggily answered. "But if I heard alright, Janie, you said you couldn't go to the movies with Aunt Lettie; is that it?"

"Why, yes," admitted the muskrat lady housekeeper, trying not to let her whiskers tickle her ear. "I said I couldn't go." Uncle Wiggily asked why.

"Oh, you know why!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "I must stay in and wash the supper dishes as I always do. And there are many dishes tonight on account of having carrot shortcake."

"Now look here, Janie!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman, "you get your coat and hat on and go to the movies!"

"Oh, but who will do the dishes?"

"I will!" promised Uncle Wiggily boldly.

"Nonsense! I mean, thank you very much, but you can't wash dishes, Uncle Wiggily!" objected Nurse Jane.

"Certainly I can," declared Uncle Wiggily. "It is very easy. You just put the dishes in warm, soapy water and get off all the dirt and grease. Then you put the dishes in clean, hot water to rinse off the soapy suds and after that you dry the plates, cups, saucers and everything else, don't you?"

"Well, you seem to know about washing dishes," admitted Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "But I couldn't think of letting you do my work."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed the rabbit again. "Leave the dishes to me. I'll wash them. I used to help my wife dry them when we were first married, but since you are now the dishwasher I'll help you. Now I want you to get ready and go to the movies with Aunt Lettie."

"Well, it certainly is very kind of you!" squeaked the muskrat lady

"Thanks a lot! I did so much want to go to the movies."

"Hop along!" cried jolly Uncle Wiggily. So Nurse Jane and Aunt Lettie went to the movies, leaving Uncle Wiggily in the kitchen. Mrs. Longears was hearing some of the rabbit children recite their home school work and all was peace and happiness.

Uncle Wiggily drew some hot water in the pan, put in some soap and then, slipping one of Nurse Jane's aprons over his head, he began to sozzle the dishes around to clean them.

"Tootie tootie toot!" whistled Uncle Wiggily, feeling happy, like a Boy Scout, because he was doing a kind deed, his last for the day. He had to do three a day, you know. "Tootie tootie toot!" he whistled.

Uncle Wiggily was just going to throw the dirty dishwater away and get some clean, hot, rinsing water in the pan when, all of a sudden he heard a laugh. "Huck! Gluck! Muck!"

"That's the Bob Cat again!" whispered Mr. Longears. A second later the kitchen door was pushed open, for Nurse Jane forgot to lock it when she went to the movies. In jumped the Bob Cat.

"Sissy! Sissy!" mocked the Bob Cat, making fun of Uncle Wiggily. "You are a regular old woman, washing dishes! Huck! Gluck! Muck!"

"I am not washing dishes!" said the rabbit.

"What are you doing then?" snickered the Bad Chap.

"I am doing a kind deed," said Mr. Longears. "And here is another kind deed! I will wash you!" With that he threw the soapy dishwater all over the Bob Cat, standing in the door. Oh, how surprised that Bob Cat was!

Away he ran, dripping dishwater all over the back steps but the Bad Chap didn't get the rabbit. Mr. Longears then finished washing and drying Nurse Jane's dishes and all was peace and quiet.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Her Two Children Coughed Day And Night

Mrs. Fred. T. Kilnappel, R.R. No. 1, St. Agatha, Ont., writes:—"My two children were coughing, day and night, from a very severe, whoopy cough. I tried every kind of medicine I could think of, but they got no relief. A friend told me I should try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got two bottles of it, and before they were used the children were rid of their coughs. It is a very good medicine, and I would not be without a bottle in the house."

Canadian Pacific Recreation Club at Havelock Holds Annual Meeting.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 20.—Examiner Correspondence.—The annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Recreation Club was held in the station on Thursday, when a large number of the members were present. The secretary treasurer, J. H. Moore, presented the financial statement for the year, showing receipts of $1141.50 and expenditures of $815.35, leaving a balance on hand of $226.15. A number of communications were received and filed for future reference.

The annual Veteran's Vanquet came up for discussion, and it was decided that it should be postponed for the present and held later in the year.

Lou. Hagerman made a suggestion that met with popular approval, when he advocated making arrangements towards securing a club room, and the Executive committee will take the matter up for consideration.

Frank Hooper was of the opinion that a club carrying on community work of such varied nature as this one is doing, should have a far larger membership, and suggested that a committee be appointed toward that end. Mr. Hooper's suggestion concerning a membership Committee was adapted and the committee will comprise Messers Hagerman, Hooper, Jamieson, Veale, Howe and Moore.

1931 Officers.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, L. G. Hagerman, Vice-presidents, Messrs Wm. Hitchins, J. Howe, F. J. Hooper, J Simons, J. Harvey, M. B. Veale, W. McLaren, D. A. Forde, A. T. Armstrong, J. Evans, W. J. Anderson, Dr. A. S. Thompson, Secretary, J. H. Moore (re-elected).

Robert Crawford, the retiring president, heartily thanked the members for their splendid support throughout the year and was of the opinion that the Club had continued to make progress.

The new president, Mr. Hagerman, on assuming his new duties thanked the members for his election to the president's chair and while he felt some diffidence in accepting the office, said that he would gladly accept the heavy responsibility evolved, and endeavor to guide the affairs of the Club to a successful issue, and asked for the continued support of the officers and members in that laudable ambition.

The secretary treasurer, J. H. Moore, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for his arduous duties so capably carried out

REGISTRATION OF ALL SUGAR BUSHES

Necessary to Obtain License Where Product of Bush or Orchard is Sold.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20 (C.P.)—Under provision of the Maple Sugar Industry Act, 1930, which became effective this month, all manufacturing or packing-plants dealing in maple products require to be registered with the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa and all such plants selling their product outside the province in which they are located must obtain a license, the fee for which is $20 annually.

Owners of sugar-bush or orchards are required to register with the Dominion Fruit Commissioner and obtain a license where the product of the sugar-bush or orchard is sold. There is no fee for this license. Under the Act registration and licensing with respect to both plants and bush must be effected by March 1 of this year. Application forms for the purpose will be supplied by the Dominion Fruit Branch.

Probably the outstanding feature of the Act is the rigid restriction in the use of the word maple to absolutely pure maple products. The word maple may no longer be used in connection with imitation or substitute products, and where such are used in foods supplied at public eating places the menu or bill-of-fare must clearly indicate the use of imitation maple flavoring.

Official grading for maple syrup includes a range of our grades: Canada Fancy, Canada Light, Canada Medium and Canada Dark; and for maple sugar three grades are provided. Color and flavor are the characteristics by which grades are distinguished.

Each manufacturing or packing plant and each sugar orchard or bush on registration and obtaining a license receives an identifying number. All products of the plant or bush must be clearly marked with this number together with the net weight of the contents of the package and the name and address of the owner of the manufacturing or packing plant, sugar-bush or orchard.

SKIRTS INDICATE ECONOMIC TREND

Western University Professor Says When They Are Long Depression is at Hand.

GIVE EXAMPLES.

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 20. (C.P.)—As the skirts go, so goes the market. If you want to know the economic trend of the times take a look at the clothes the women are wearing.

Prof. Baker Brownell, head of the Department of Contemporary Thought at Northwestern University presented thoughts along this line to his classes yesterday and asked the students to do some thinking on the subject.

"It has been observed" the Professor said, "that fashions in women's clothes are closely related to economic trends.

'Specifically, when skirts grow longer an economic depression is approaching. And conversely, when skirts grow shorter, better times are coming.

"You will all remember that in the early part of 1929 when the boom was at its height, skirts were extremely short. You may also remember that in the fall of that year the long skirt vogue was started and that the crash in the stock market came immediately afterward."

Prof. Brownell said he could explain just how this was if he wanted to, but he didn't because he wanted the students "to do a little brain work themselves."

DIVA'S CONDITION GROWING WORSE

Treatment Being Partly Directed by Cables From German Physician.

CONSTANTLY DELIRIOUS.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Condition of Dame Nellie Melba, Australian diva who is seriously ill here, has grown steadily graver and she now is almost constantly delirious.

It was understood today that treatment is being partly directed by cables from a German physician in whom the prima donna reposed great confidence and who gave her some relief before she made her pre-Christmas trip back to Australia from Europe.

Friends here believe that her desire to come back to Australia before Christmas may have been the means of bringing on what many fear is a final illness. Under treatment of Continental physicians she had fought off a strange malady she believed she contracted in Cairo, Egypt, and was getting well.

During the voyage back to Australia the malady recurred and it was necessary to take her from the ship at Sydney. There she grew better and decided to continue to Melbourne but enroute came down again with the disease, which is marked by a considerable number of boils and apparently is caused by some toxic condition in the blood.

NEW DEVELOPMENT IN TRADE TRENDS

Business for Certain Basic Industries Offsets Declines in Other Branches.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. [illegible] (By The Canadian Press.)—The monthly letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce points out two welcome developments in the general economic situation. First, comparative firmness in wholesale prices, and second, new business for certain basic industries sufficient to offset the seasonal decline in other branches that invariably follows holiday trade. The agricultural situation shows little, if any improvement.

A general realization that there is no short cut out of the present depression that the world is engulfed in, is a new psychological factor to be observed. In other words, there is less expectation that a "chance" event or some extraneous factor will immediately lift business out of the depression, while there is growing confidence on the part of individuals of their own ability to solve their problems.

The next three or four months, it is predicted, will be the most interesting periods of the current business cycle. If, during that time there is no serious labor trouble, and it is shown that Western Europe is assured of strong government, if civil war does not again rage throughout South America and Asia and there are signs of a renewal of international comity, it is reasonable to think that the foundation of stable business throughout the world has been laid, which would eventually lead to prosperity.

FIXED DISCOUNT OF 20 PER CENT. PUT ON ALL CARS

Ryckman Announces Step For Protection of Trade and Labor.

TO REVISE TARIFF.

Positive Assurance Given By Manufacturers That There Will Be No Increase.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20. —(CP)—Automobiles of all prices coming into Canada from the United States for sale will have a fixed discount of 20 per cent from list prices for duty purposes.

Behind this announcement, made by Hon. E. B. Ryckman, minister of National Revenue, last night, lies a controversy between Canadian manufacturers and certain retailers which has been engaging the most studious attention of cabinet council. The action taken was for the protection of the automobile industry in this country and to afford employment for Canadian automobile workers.

Make New Employment

Dominion manufacturers had contended all along that this action would guarantee millions of dollars in new employment for workers and the industry in this country. Certain automobile retailers in Canada of high priced motor cars had opposed the request, but the Government considered that a "spread" of 20 per cent all round was sufficient to be allowed retailers in this country from the list price of United States manufacturers.

Automobile tariff schedules, which number many, will, it is understood, come before parliament for revision at the next session of Parliament.

Automobiles coming into Canada from the American Republic for sale have been entering on a list price, less a discount, and duty has been assessed on the reduced value. The range in this discount has varied all the way from ten to thirty per cent, and Canadian manufacturers have protested that in order plants of the industry might continue and Canadian workmen be protected it was essential to place a maximum of this discount.

Coupled with this request Canadian automobile manufacturers gave definite and positive assurances to the Government that in no event would the price of cars to purchasers be increased following the taking of action to protect the industry and give employment to workmen in Canada.

Extra Precaution

In making his announcement last night, Mr. Ryckman said that in the case of any automobiles being imported for sale with a discount exceeding 20 per cent, now fixed, the dumping provisions would be put into operation.

Decision of the Government was made at yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet and had been preceded by a series of discussions at Cabinet meetings during the past few weeks. The order in council placing a fixed discount of 20 per cent from list prices was passed just before Cabinet session concluded in the evening, and the order was immediately sent to the administration for official approval. Following the signature of the administrator last night, the Government promptly announced the action taken.

Lecture Night Rush Strong In Winnipeg

University Lectures in February —Going on for Twenty-Five Years Now.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 16 (By The Canadian Press.)—Describing a popular series of lectures at the University of Manitoba the Manitoba Free Press editorially says:

"Twenty-five years ago the University of Manitoba inaugurated a series of popular lectures on Friday evenings in February. It is a university contact which has reached out far and wide across the city until the police have had to be called in to regulate the traffic—all bound for 'Theatre A' on lecture night.qq

"This year's series opened when Prof. R. A. Wardle discussed 'Some Aspects of Human Heredity.' Dr. Savage of the faculty of Agriculture will lecture on 'The Veterinarian, the Farmer and the Public.' Next, the audience will be taken far off down the years by Prof. S. P. Kirk when he will tell the story the fossils have told to him. The department of Classics will have the last word with Prof. Hugill's talk on 'Greece Yesterday and Today.' The university gives the party, and the public is invited."

How to End RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Rheumatic Poisons from Joints and Muscles.

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY.

Poisons in the blood settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till every trace of these dangerous poisons is driven out of your system. That's why external remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine that acts directly on the liver, stomach and blood, and expels through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatic misery.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is the one rheumatism remedy guaranteed to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness, swelling and lameness.

McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store has so much confidence in RU-MA that they want every rheumatic in town to try it and guarantee money-back if it does not end rheumatism.

THE OUNCE OF PREVENTION

The old saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure has no truer application than in the case of fire.

Carefulness costs nothing, yet thousands of dollars are saved every day, for instance, by the matches that are not thrown away while burning.

Every child should be taught to recognize and appreciate the dangers that lie in all exposed flames.

Of the ten thousand annual deaths by fire in the United States one-third are children under ten years of age.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 77 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The unfamiliar scent which had attracted Tarzan's keen nose came from Kai Shang's party as it marched cautiously along the beach toward the ape-man's camp. A short distance from it they had halted to await the appointed signal from the Kincaid's mate. There were many miles now between them and Tarzan, and, before the agile ape-man could cover that distance, Jane was a prisoner and being borne rapidly to the pearl ship.

Midway in his quest, Tarzan halted, an instinctive sense that all was not right, causing him to double on his tracks and return to camp. As Mugambi stood, uncertain what to do and dumbly puzzled at the situation he had found, Tarzan of the Apes swung from the branches and crossed the clearing toward him. Tarzan's keen eyes detected at once that something was radically wrong, even before he heard Mugambi's story.

When the black, with many gestures of anguish, had told him the facts, Tarzan's jaws clicked angrily together and he knitted his brows in thought. What could the mate hope to accomplish by taking Jane Clayton from a camp upon a small island from which there was no escape from the vengeance of Tarzan? The ape-man could not believe the fellow such a fool. And then a slight realization of the truth dawned upon him.

The mate, he reasoned, would not have committed such an act unless he had been sure that there was a way by which he could quit Jungle Island with his prisoner. But why had he taken the Mosula woman as well? There must have been others. "There is but one thing to do now," he said grimly. "Come, Mugambi, follow me!" And Tarzan, eyes agleam with hate and blood thirsting for vengeance, sprang into the forest.

HIGH ALTITUDES OPPRESS PRINCES

Royal Brothers Hurry Call to La Paz and Return to Antofagasta.

DECORATIONS EXCHANGED.

LA PAZ Bolivia, Feb. 20. (A.P.)—The Prince of Wales, oppressed by the high altitude of this mountain capital, hurried back across the Andes to Antofagasta, Chile, after spending just seven and one half hours in La Paz.

In that time he crowded an official reception at the executive Palace where he and General Blanco Galindo, President of the Military Junta, exchanged decorations, another reception at the town hall, a final reception at the British legation, and dinner with the President at the Palace.

Both he and Prince George, although commenting that the trip from Cuzco, with its delightful mountain scenery and across Lake Titicaca had greatly impressed them were obviously tired and oppressed by the rarified atmosphere here. They did not play golf at the La Paz links the highest 18 hole course in the world.

The ceremony at the executive Palace lasted only five minutes, the Prince of Wales bestowing on General Blanco the Order of the British Empire and the President pinning upon both the Grand Cross of the Condor of the Andes. At the municipal hall, the Prince of Wales was presented with a plaque of native wood carrying a silver carving of Bolivian mountain scenery. He answered all the presentations in Spanish.

Bolivian papers printed special editions in English in honor of the Royal visit.

APPEAL LIKELY MARCH 4

The appeal against His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor's nine months' sentence of ex-Constable Leonard Matthews on eleven counts of burglary, will not come for hearing for at least another two weeks it is thought. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry stated yesterday that there are numerous other criminal appeals which have priority on a very heavy list. He suggested that the appeal may be heard on March 4th, although the date has not been definitely fixed.

SUIT OF CLOTHES NEEDED

We are anxious to get, if possible, a suit for a tall man, size 42.

We would also like to get a couch, a camp cot or folding bed for use in a small room, and a baby carriage.

Anyone having these articles or other things that would be useful in the home, such as small furnishings, mats, blinds, or curtains, is asked to telephone The Examiner, 1600, and they will be called for.

LAUNDRYMAN SUFFERS.

A Chinese laundryman of this city met with a moderate loss this morning when his delivery sled, full of spotlessly clean linen which he was delivering, was smashed into by an automobile. The owner of the sled was delivering a parcel at the time when his load was parked at the corner of George and Hunter Streets. The washing was not injured, though the sled was badly broken up. The driver of the car offered to make any damages good.

OBITUARY

JAMES HARVEY CONNAL.

The funeral of the late James Harvey Connal, which took place at two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, was attended by a large number of relatives, business friends, and acquaintances representative of many walks in life. The large drawing-room of the residence of the deceased was filled to capacity with friends from the Curling Club, the Y.M.C.A., I.O.O.F., the Foresters, and St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Church, conducted the service which was particularly suited to the funeral of one who had played such an important part in the business activities of the city. In his address, Mr. Allan said that Mr. Connal would be greatly missed from the church and the community, and that the deceased was a fine example of manhood.

The remains of Mr. Connal were taken to Little Lake Cemetery, where interment took place.

Wreaths and flowers were received from many of the relatives and friends of the deceased, including the Curling Club, the Y.M.C.A., and the Board of Managers of St. Paul's Church.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral included his cousin, H. N. Green of St. Catharines, his niece, Miss Ruby Paterson of Toronto, a brother, W. F. Connal of Montreal, and a sister, Mrs. W. G. Cameron, of New York City. Telegrams were received from many relatives and friends who were unable to attend the funeral, either owing to sickness or residence at a distance.

IN POLICE COURT

"Guilty I guess—guilty old timer", wearily answered George Nash of no fixed abode in pleading to a charge of having morphine in his possession, without the authority of the Minister of the Department of Health, before Magistrate O. A. Langley in Police Court this morning.

On the application of Police the accused was remanded until February 27th.

Openly bored with the short proceedings, Nash stood in the dock in a nonchalent attitude, his right arm on the ledge and his hand propped under his chin. He finally sat down, with a muttered exclamation about his head, seemingly feeling the effects of the alleged dose of dope he is stated to have taken. He was taken into custody last evening, by Detective Sergeant W. Meagher, after a complaint had been received from the man's place of lodging that, "he has a gun on him". The "gun" proved to be his morphine syringe, which was recovered complete with needles, etc.

"Arrangements are being made to pay Mrs. Wood immediately", declared Huron Hunter after pleading guilty in Police Court this morning to a charge of fraudulently obtaining food and lodging from the boarding house of Mrs. E. Wood, 300 Pearl street. On his own application prisoner was remanded until tomorrow morning and was granted bail. "I can fix it up by tomorrow morning", he answered in reply to a question by Magistrate Langley.

Haultain Hunter Bags 7-foot Wolf

A wolf measuring just one inch less than seven feet, was brought to Peterborough on Wednesday for the bounty. Herb. Long of Haultain shot the beast the morning before in Whistle's Marsh where he has a trap-line. Mr. Long says there are plenty of them around that district.

He says he bagged the marauder by following the instructions of Garrett Spencer, himself something of a hunter. He scattered several chunks of fresh meat around the marsh and then carefully patrolled the place in the early morning. When the animal appeared, he kept to windward and worked close enough in for a shot. One bullet through the head finished the wolf. This method has accounted for the last four wolves bagged around that neighborhood this winter.

TWO TEAMS TIED FOR 2ND POSITION IN ENGLISH GROUP

Arsenal Wins Handily From Manchester Untied and Retain Their Lead.

WEDNESDAYS BEATEN.

Everton Increase Their Lead in the Second Division of English League.

LONDON, February 21 (C. P. Cable). — Football matches to-day in the British Isles left the leaders in the various divisions in England and Scotland in the same positions. Arsenal won handily from Manchester United, and held their lead in the First Division of the English League. When Sheffield Wednesday lost to Manchester City and Aston Villa won from Birmingham, the two teams became tied in second place in the championship table, though the Villa have the better goal average.

Increases Lead.

Everton increased their lead in the Second Division. They beat Notts Forest, while Tottenham Hotspurs, second club, were turned back at Bury. West Bromwich Albion, a competitor for second place, lost a chance to improve the position when they could not get a win against Southampton.

In Scotland Motherwell, Celtic and Rangers all won, and retained positions at the top of the championship table in the order named.

TORY CANDIDATE WINS IN FAREHAM

Sir Thomas Inskip Increases Majority Over 1,000 Votes Above 1929 Total.

LIBERALS DROP DOWN.

FAREHAM, Hampshire, Feb. 21. — (C.P. Cable). — The Conservative Party was successful in retaining the constituency of Fareham in yesterday's by-election, it was announced to-day. Sir Thomas Inskip, Attorney-General in the last Baldwin Conservative Government, was elected.

Sir Thomas Inskip, Conservative, 18,749.
A. J. Pearsons, Labor, 6,312.
C. P. Cross, Liberal, 3,517.

The total vote was considerably smaller than in the general elections of 1929, but the Conservative majority was increased by more than a thousand votes.

The result in 1929 was:
Major-General Sir John Davidson Conservative ,19,756.
C. P. Cross, Liberal, 8,630.
A. J. Pearson, Labor, 8,034.

Major-General Davidson retired from the House of Commons a few weeks ago.

Sir Thomas Inskip entered the House of Commons as member for Central Bristol on 1918. He was Solicitor-General in the first Baldwin Government, and Solicitor-General in the second, until March 1928, when he succeeded Lord Hailsham as Attorney-General. In 1929 he lost his seat in Central Bristol to J. A. Alpass, Laborite who had a majority of 4,225 in a straight party fight.

Fareham has been regarded as a safe Conservative seat and the increased Conservative vote today fully justified the party expectations. The Labor candidate, has been active in the local Labor movement for 35 years, while Mr. Cross is an auctioneer and active worker for the Liberal party.

KING OF RACERS VISITS MONARCH IS MADE KNIGHT

Captain Malcolm Campbell Spends Forty Minutes With King George.

DISCUSS BLUEBIRD.

His Majesty Shows Interest in U. S. Attitude on Race and Harvey-Dundee Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 21. (A.P.)—Captain Malcolm Campbell walked into Buckingham Palace this morning, spent forty minutes with the King, and came out Sir Malcolm Campbell, His Majesty having bestowed upon him the accolade of Knighthood.

The honor was in recognition of his feat of driving an automobile 246 miles an hour on the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., on Feb. 5.

Discuss Race Features

The King, said Sir Malcolm afterward, was very gracious.

"He had a lot of photographs of the Bluebird, my car, and as we talked about them he kept asking me question which showed he knew more about technical matters than I had any idea he knew" said Campbell.

"I was delighted to find he had followed my progress so closely.

"He was very anxious to learn whether the people at Daytona took much interest in the record run and he was obviously very pleased when I told him how splendidly they treated us and how enthusiastic they all had been."

Among other things they discussed, Sir Malcolm said, was the Harvey-Dundee prizefight at New York which the Captain saw when he came north from Florida. His Majesty seemed to know a lot about boxing too, the racer said and was eager to know how the Britisher had shown up.

HELP IS SOUGHT BY V.C. HOLDER

Nelson Veteran Tells Cobourg Branch of Canadian Legion He is Going Blind.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN.

COBOURG, Ont., Feb. 21 (C.P.).—Learning the Cobourg branch of the Canadian Legion was taking special interest in the cases of Victoria Cross holders in Canada requiring information and help, Lieut.-Commander Roland Bourke, V.C., D.S.O., of Nelson, B.C., has written the Cobourg Branch, intimating he is going blind, and circumstances "force me to make this enquiry." He asks whether in view of his long residence in Canada prior to the war, he might be considered a "Canadian V.C." Lieut.-Commander Bourke, though born in England, came to Canada in 1902. He joined the Royal Navy volunteer reserve during the war and was gazetted for the Victoria Cross for service at Ostend in submarine blocking operations. The Cobourg Legion officials have replied they are honored to act on his behalf.

Goderich Jury Probably Be Closetted Over Sunday—Seek to Establish Alibi

Goderich, Ont., February 21. — As lengthy defence evidence is still being given in the trial here of Gilford and Harvey McNeil, alleged bank bandits, it appears quite possible the jury would be closetted over Sunday, unless the jury reaches a speedy verdict shortly before noon. Another defence witness was still to be heard.

Four addresses, each one of them likely to be lengthy, are scheduled when, and if, any rebuttal evidence is offered by the Crown. It seemed highly improbable that the jurors would retire until late this afternoon or this evening.

The youthful McNeil Brothers are charged with engineering the sensational robbery of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Brussels, while armed, on October 29 last. The bank was looted of $6000 in cash, after two bandits had held up the staff and locked them in the vault. The McNeils are trying to establish an alibi, it became apparent as the defence began weaving its case.

NEW FEDERAL BUILDING FOR CITY TO BE PLACED IN THE ESTIMATES, COMBINE THE PRESENT BUILDINGS

Appropriation For New Federal Building in City Will Be Submitted to Parliament.

URGENTLY NEEDED.

Customs Receipts in Ten Years Have Amounted to $12,706,416.

Although Peterborough has not been definitely promised a new and combined post office and customs house for this year, the appropriation for this building will be included in the estimates which the federal government will submit to Parliament during the session that opens next month.

Even the passing of this item in the estimates does not signify that the work will be undertaken this year, but there are potent reasons which encourage the hope that this long deferred improvement will be one of the constructional prospects to be translated into bricks and mortar during the coming season.

Original Plan

Originally the Dominion government had planned a combined customs and post office building, but two local stalwarts of the party then in power at Ottawa asserted so forcibly their respective claims to share in the property transaction that the government compromised by purchasing two lots. So it came about that the customs house was located at the corner of George and Charlotte streets and the post office was built at Hunter and Water streets. The economy and efficiency of these twin federal departments in Peterborough were conveniently subordinated to the claims of two prominent political lance-corporals to a cut in the country's cash, peace was maintained in the ranks and everybody was happy.

Property Purchased Years Ago

Anyone who knows the extent of the interlocking of the postal and customs branches must be aware of the advantage of locating them under the one roof. That is a fundamental reason for the proposed new building, the need of which was recognized by the Borden government when J. H. Burnham was the member from West Peterborough. At that time a lot was purchased at the northeast corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets, but Mr. Burnham's ambitious project was shelved after Canada joined the Motherland in the war against Germany.

Since then the Post Office and Customs Office have outgrown their accommodation to such an extent that the need of extensions has be-

A number of women were included in a group of forty gypsies, arrested after the battle and sent to jail at Budapest.

The battle was fought with knives, hatchets, shovels and iron staves.

COUNCIL TO QUIT IN BELMONT TWP.

Members of Council Will Resign and Offer Themselves For Re-election.

IRREGULARITIES ALLEGED.

Members of the Township Council of Belmont and Methuen have decided to resign and thus avoid the unnecessary expense of a protracted court trial. The five members have decided to offer themselves for re-election, and through their solicitor, F. D. Kerr, K.C., the following letter was received by The Examiner this morning:

"To The Editor,
"Dear Sir:

"The undersigned have considered with our Solicitor, F. D. Kerr, K.C., the affidavits filed in support of F F. Fry's application to set aside and declare invalid the recent municipal election in the Township of Belmont and Methuen.

"As the charges constitute no reflection on any of us, but indicate that some of the election officials misunderstood or failed to perform their duties, we have decided to resign and avoid the unnecessary expense of a protracted court trial.

"We propose to be candidates at the new election, which must necessarily be held, and rely upon the voters to stand by us and re-elect us by even larger majorities.

FIRE ESTIMATES SHOW INCREASE PARKS ARE DOWN

Two Committees of City Council Strike Estimates For Year 1931.

NO MORE MEN ADDED.

Increase at Fire Hall Accounted for in Sliding Scale of Wages Paid.

Two committees of the City Council, the Fire, Water and Light and the Railways and Parks, got down to business last night and commenced to strike their estimates for the year 1931. In both instances a watchful eye was turned on every item and numerous cuts were made.

The estimates struck for the Fire Department totalled $38,400 or an increase of $2,200 over last year's appropriation, and a decrease of $1,000 over the year 1929. The increase this year is explained by the fact that there is a slight increase in firemen's salaries on account of the sliding scale—they get paid according to the number of years' service —and also by repairs to the fire pumper damaged in the recent collision and by the purchase of hose; there having been no hose purchase in the past year.

No Bungalow Fire Station

Without exception there appeared to be a genuine desire to cut expenditures to the minimum, and the bungalow fire station with all its equipment and men, which has been put in the estimates for the past few years, met the same fate as its predecessors when the paring knife was used, as also did the recommendation for the new car for the Fire Chief.

The recommendation for a foam generator for fighting oil and gasoline fires, at a cost of $600 was reluctantly turned down.

Alderman W. Stocker stated he had seen a demonstration of the equipment in use at Buffalo. It's effectiveness was remarkable. Alderman Tuggey and Turner while in favor of the equipment, opposed the expenditure at the present time.

Alderman Macdonald—It is a wonderful thing, but I also think we should cut it this year. It was unanimously agreed.

During a discussion on fire equipment insurance, Chairman Alderman R. S. Cotton said it would cost $440 a year extra for collision insurance. In answer to a question, he stated the cost of the recent smash would be from $800-$1 000. The pumper is expected back either on Saturday or Sunday.

To Retain Old Pumper

Alderman Tuggey, in view of the recent accident to the pumper moved, "that the motion made last year authorizing the chairman of the committee to dispose of the old steam fire engine be rescinded." It was seconded by Alderman Stocker.

Opening the question of traffic signals, Alderman Nagle Phelan explained that some were to have been installed this year at Park and Charlotte streets. It was however, decided to cut these out also.

When the item for the 6 extra men

EAST NEW YORK GANGLAND WAR TAKES 2 LIVES

One Slain in Hotel Room Battle —Brother and Another Wounded.

CASES OF VENGEANCE.

Small Time Racketeer Mowed Down While Hunting For His Enemies.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (C.P.).—Two men were killed and four wounded in the renewal of an East Side gang war last night and to-day.

A battle took place to-day in the Hotel Hatfield House in East Thirty-Ninth Street. Albert Wagner was slain. His brother, Abe, and Harry Brown, a Brooklyn youth with Manhattan "business interests," were wounded.

Dies Shooting.

Last night John (Aces) Mazza, another Brooklynite, was killed by gunmen in front of a cafeteria on the Lower East Side. He died shooting at his adversaries.

Mazza, small-time racketeer, went hunting for his enemies, but they found him first. Cautiously entering a cafeteria on the East Side, Mazza peered around intently and went out the door—backward. A dozen shots rang out from across the street, and Mazza went down, firing as he died. Two others, Joseph Koski, 20, and Peter Rufello, 21, were caught in the hail of bullets and wounded.

Police theorized it was another case of vengeance, resulting from the attempts of "lone wolfs" to secede from a bootlegging confederacy established on the East Side last fall.

The hotel shooting became known when Brown got out of a taxicab at Bellevue Hospital at 4.30 a.m. and asked the interne in the receiving ward to fix him up. Examination revealed five bullet wounds.

Little Hope Of Life.

Police were called, but Brown wouldn't tell them what had happened. "If I get better, I may talk," he said. "If I die there ain't no sense in it." His chances of dying were reported excellent.

Police traced his movements and found the body of Albert Wagner in a top floor room in the hotel. He was on his back on the floor. Chairs were overturned. On a table were empty liquor and ale bottles. Wagner had been shot once in the head and three times in the chest.

STEAMER IS RESCUED.

DOCTOR TESTIFIES THAT GIRL BADLY BRUISED, FOUR RIBS BROKEN AT TRIAL OF ST. THOMAS TEACHER

Thirteen Year Old Girl Gives Evidence and Tells About Being Whipped.

LOST CONSCIOUSNESS.

Told Teacher He Was No Gentleman and Replied She Was No Lady.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., February 21 (C.P.). — Bessie Lamont, 13½-year-old school girl in the box to-day before Judge Coughlin, of Windsor, told her story of alleged brutal whipping administered to her by her teacher, Harvey Gillies, aged 21, at Oak Grove School, Aldborough, on November 13 last.

Gillies' trial opened before a packed court room. Bessie told of being ordered to remain in after four with two other girls, because she had leaned out into the aisle during class hours.

Refused to Hold Out Hand.

When ordered to hold out her hand for the strap she had refused until given a reason for punishment.

Gillies, she testified, said he knew no reason and he endeavored to force her to hold out her hand, and in the scuffle she fell backward over the desk, partially losing consciousness in the scuffle she fell backward over Gillies, she said, was strapping her on the back of her right hand and he then administered 18 blows on the back of her left hand.

After the punishment she told Gillies, she said, that he was no gentleman, and he replied that she was no lady.

Dr. John H. McPherson, of Duart, who attended the girl's injuries at her home, testified Bessie suffered from badly swollen hands, her collar bone was bruised, her arm bruised, and four ribs fractured. The girl's mother and her brother testified, bearing out her story and also declaring there had been previous trouble between Bessie and Gillies and that Gillies had punished her severely on previous occasions. The Crown's case is proceeding.

Hen In Seymour Surprises Owner

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 21.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondence).— Peter MacMillian, a Campbellford egg grader, received a surprise this week when William Blake of Seymour brought into the station one of the largest eggs that he has seen for some time. It was from a flock of White Leghorns, and when weighed was a fraction off the four ounce mark. The measurement was 6¾ by 7¼ inches. Two other outsized eggs have come in recently, these however being in the 3½ ounce class.

TWO CANDIDATES GIVING THOMPSON SPIRITED BATTLE

Both Hurl Charges of Criminal Political Alliances at Chicago Mayor.

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY.

Jurist Demonstrates Machine Guns in Campaign—Alderman Takes Quieter Way.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—A comparative youngster with a reputation as a fighter and a crusading jurist who leaped into fame as a foe of gangland are challenging the reign of Chicago's veteran mayor.

Arthur F. Albert, only 33 years old, but an alderman for 10 years, is one of those trying to oust Mayor William Hale Thompson in Tuesday's Republican primary. He is backed by the faction headed by Senator Charles S. Deneen.

Gangland Nemesis

John H. Lyle, the municipal judge whose campaign against the underderworld won him the title "the nemesis of gangland," is the other major candidate.

In vastly different ways these two candidates are saying much the same thing. They are urging voters to turn the present administration out of the City Hall, and have hurled charges of "criminal political alliances" and of corruption. Each claims to be the leading anti-Thompson candidate and asserts that a vote for the other means a vote for Thompson. Both have been at one time affiliated with Thompson's organization but both have been outspoken opponents in recent years.

Lyle is a spectacular campaigner as

TEACHERS GIVE $459 TO RELIEF

Public School Teachers Report 100 Per Cent. for Relief Work.

UTILITIES 100 PER CENT.

Another evidence of the widespread interest in the fund and the enthusiastic support that is being given to the campaign of the Peterborough Relief Association, is evidenced today in the response made by the teachers of the public schools of the city. They have given one hundred per cent. strong, in a total of $459 00.

This contribution comes from the teachers of the seven public schools: the Central, Queen Mary, King George, Queen Alexandra, King Edward, Prince of Wales and South Central, also from the inspector, the supply teacher, the school nurses and the teachers of the Manual Training and Household Science classes.

Another hundred per cent. contribution to the fund has been made by the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

OFFICIAL DENIAL GIVEN REPORTS OF SOLUTION IN NAVAL BUILDING

Little Enthusiasm Shown in France or Italy Over British Expert's Scheme.

PARLEY CONTINUES.

PARIS, February 21. — An official denial was issued to-day of reports published by two Paris newspapers that Robert L. Craigie, British naval expert, and Count Rene Massigli, the French representative, had formulated a plan for the solution of Franco-Italo-British differences.

A spokesman for the Foreign Office said the puzzle had not been solved but that progress had been made and was continuing.

Press Reports.

The newspaper reports said the conference had made an arrangement by which France, to adjust her programme to that of Great Britain, would consent to reduce her building plans to 1942 by about 40,000 tons, accepting in return the transfer of some submarine tonnage to the destroyer category.

This, Mr. Craigie, who has been discussing the matter with M. Massigli, for the last ten days, is said to believe or hope will permit France and Italy to adjust their programs until 1936 in a way that France at the date will retain superiority over Italy of about 167,000 tons of modern ships. The arrangement is now being considered by the three governments.

Pertinax in Echo De Paris denies that the compromise would be to the advantage of France. He says that

25 Persons Killed In Mine Explosion

NOTHBERG, Germany, Feb. 21. (A.P.)—Twenty-five persons were killed and four seriously injured when a fire damp explosion occurred at a depth of 1,850 feet to-day in the Eschweiler coal pit near Aachen. Two or three others of a crew of eighty in the pit are missing.

Since the mine is a so-called wet pit the explosion fortunately was localized and affected none of the nearby pits. There was not much material admage.

Matthews' Appeal Is Filed In Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., Feb 21. (CP)— Notice that the Attorney General will appeal against the sentence imposed upon Leonard Matthews by Judge L. V. O'Connor of Peterborough County on January 27 has been filed in the appellate division of the Supreme Court of Ontario at Osgoode Hall.

Matthews who is a former police constable, on eleven charges of shopbreaking and theft, and was sentenced to nine months' determinate and one year indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory in Guelph.

The crown is appealing against this sentence on the ground that "the same is inadequate and should have provided for a penitentiary term of imprisonment."

Chinese Town Falls Prey To Brigands

FOOCHOW, China, February 21 (C.P.). — Several hundred outlaws were reported in Ningteh despatches to-day to be operating in Northern Fukien Province killing, looting, and terrifying the populace.

The reports said Ningteh, a town 50 miles north of here, had been ransacked by brigands who had staged an all-night orgy of killing and looting.

MANITOBA'S PREMIER PRESENTS UNEXPECTED BALANCED BUDGET CONFOUNDING DEFICIT FORECASTS

Estimates Prairie Gov'ts Liabiilty on Pool Guarantees at $22,455,983.

PLANS RIGID ECONOMY.

Power Scheme Involves Diversion of Saskatchewan River Into Lake Winnipegosis.

WINNIPEG, Man., February 21 (C.P.). — Manitobans talked to-day of the Budget-speech of Premier John Bracken, one of the most striking addresses ever made in the Province's Legislaative Building. Besides presenting an unexpected balanced Budget, estimate of the Prairie Government's liability on pool-guarantees and envisioned a monster 400,000 horse-power project for Manitoba's desolate interlake country.

Figures announced by Mr. Bracken coupled with those given out at Edmonton yesterday in the budget address of Hon. R. G. Reid Alberta's Provincial Secretary, show the liabilities of Prairie Governments backing bank-loans to the pools on the wheat crop as follows:

Saskatchewan	$12,679,814
Alberta	6,284,558
Manitoba	3,491,611
Total	$22,455,983

The figures are based on sales of 1929 crop grain made up to February 16 last, assuming that unsold portions of the crop will be disposed of at the prices holding on that day. No. 1 northern wheat closed 3¼ cents better than the final figure February 16, which was 58 7-8 cents per bushel.

Plans Economy.

The balanced budget confounded forecasts that the Premier was to budget for a deficit of $1,100,000. In order to equalize revenues and expenditures at approximately $14,400,000 for the coming fiscal year, Mr. Bracken transferred $700,000 reserve from the deferred subsidy account, planned rigid economy, and announced two tax increases. The railways will yield new revenue placed at $72,000, the budget said, and new taxes on high incomes, $150,000; married people will be given wider income tax exemptions.

Unemployed will be given productive winter work over a period of years, Mr. Bracken believes, if a power project he outlined, should eventualize. Teh proposal into which the Legislature will be asked to sanction an investigation, would divert the flow of the Saskatchewan River by constructing a dam where the river water flows into Lake Winnipeg at the outlet of Cedar Lake, in Northern Manitoba.

Diverted the river flow would be routed down through Lake Winnipegosis, through Lake Manitoba, and along the Dauphin River into Lake Winnipeg, the greatest body of water in the province. A plant on the Dauphin River about 140 miles from Winnipeg would take power from a total drop of some 116 feet from the surface of Lake Winnipegosis to that of Lake Winnipeg.

MARX BROS. THIRD.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 21—Four Marx Bros. will make their third for Par on this coast instead of in the east. Frank Tuttle is slated to direct the comedians, following completion of "Dude Ranch," on which he started this week.

Par is planning on an original for the Marxes and has assigned S. J. Perelman and Will Johnstone to work something out. It's the first for these writers, who were recently brought from New York.

Horses Forbidden On London Street

LONDON, Feb. 21 (C.P.).—For the first time in the history of London, horse traffic is to be forbidden to one of the city's principal streets.

The time-honored equine traction has been constantly dwindling of late years with the ever-increasing adoption of motor cars, but enough horses are still used for heavy commercial traffic to cause serious congestion.

The Ministry of Transport today announced an experimental scheme, operative during the coming spring, by which Oxford Street, one of the great east and west thoroughfares, will be closed daily to all slow-moving traffic, including horse-drawn vehicles, between noon and 7 p.m.

GOOD WILL PARTY OF CANADIANS SEE WASHINGTON

Group From Hamilton, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines is Headed by Mayor Peebles.

VISIT WHITE HOUSE.

Schedule Calls For Visits to Miami, St. Petersburg, Tampa, Columbus.

WASHINGTON, D.C. February 21 (By Ken Cark, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — One hundred and twenty-five Canadian business men from Hamilton, St. Catharines, and Niagara Falls, headed by Mayor John Peebles, and accompanied by a detachment of "Ladies from Hell"—to wit, the 91st Highlanders' Pipe Band—detrained at Union Station at eight o'clock this morning. The party, under the conduct of David McLean assistant secretary of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce, is on the second annual Canadian good will tour of the United States.

With a couple of skirls from the pipes, to the amazement of the Washingtonians, the party formed a motorcade behind a flying wedge of motorcycle policemen, and started off to have a look at the Capitol, the Washington Monument, and various other points of interest. At 11.30 the Canadians, together with the Legation unofficially visited the White House. At luncheon they entertained a number of members of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The afternoon was spent in absorbing the rest of Washington and at six o'clock the party entrained again southward bound for Savannah, Georgia. Their schedule called for visits to Jacksonville, Miami, West Palm Beach, St. Petersburg, Tampa and Columbus.

The party will arrive home on March 1.

His Majesty's Grenadier Guards' Band

The band of the Grenadier Guards can be seen above marching across Westminster Bridge, London, England, on its way to Waterloo Station en route to South Africa. In that distant part of the British Empire, His Majesty's Grenadier Guards Band will give concerts under the auspices of the African Theatres.

WESTERN MAIL PLANE CRASHES TWO PASSENGERS ARE VICTIMS

Pilot Only Slightly Hurt as Fog Forces Craft Down 75 Miles From Winnipeg.

Death Toll Now 5 For Line.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 21 (C.P.) —Fog to-day has listed a toll of five deaths in air-mail crashes since the western service was inaugurated last spring. Two passengers were killed last night when a Winnipeg-Moose Jaw machine in a fog nosed into the ground 75 miles west of this city, the pilot escaping with slight injuries.

Three were killed in a mail-plane crack-up at Southesk, Alta., last September 25.

The dead in last night's crash were Dr. E. E. Alleyn, 32, Winnipeg's 'flying doctor,' and medical officer for Western Canada Airways, George S. Lewis, 28, branch manager at Regina, Sask., for Canadian General Insurance Company. Both were unmarried.

Pilot N. G. Forrester of Western Canada Airways, suffered cuts about the head.

Jems Cover Street As Jeweler Foils Bandits' Get-away

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—It was raining diamonds on the East Side last night but it was only a lull in the drought of poverty.

Poking a crowbar through a jewelry store window filled with $30,000 in gems, three hold-up men seized a tray holding $5,900 worth and made a break for their car. The manager, Charles Kraemer, came out shooting, winged one of them and put their car out of commission.

As they took to their heels, they returned his fire, shooting him in the leg, and scattered the gems all over the corner of Grand and Forsyth streets. Guarded by a heavy police detail, Kraemer and his employees crawled on their hands and knees until they found most of the loot. Many an urchin stood by in unbelief.

QUARRY WORKER HURT IN BLAST

Frank Dayton, Marmora, Struck in Head by Delayed Dynamite Charge.

IS RUSHED HOME.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, February 21. — A serious accident befell Frank Dayton, a laborer employed at Bonter's rock quarry on Friday morning.

Dayton had set two charges of dynamite, and when one failed to explode, he went to investigate. At the same moment the charge exploded, dissecting the upper portion of Dayton's left ear, and causing injuries to the back of his head.

The injured man was attended by Drs. H. Crawford and D. Thomson, and on account of the roads being too heavy to permit his removal to Belleville, was conveyed to his home at the northern end of the village.

He is in a weak condition, owing to the heavy loss of blood. As soon as his recovery is sufficient to permit it, he will be admitted in all probability into Belleville hospital for further examination and treatment.

HAS NEW THEORY ON HUMAN RACE

Originated in at Least Four Different Places on Earth Says Prof. Haldane.

STUDIES BLOOD GROUPS.

LONDON, Feb. 21 (C.P.).—Professor J. B. S. Haldane, famous British biologist, has given the weight of his great authority to support the theory that the human race did not originate in any one place on earth. It is his belief that at least four different places cradled the human race.

He bases his conclusions on a study of blood transfusions which has shown that people of the world are divided into four blood groups, each type being quite distinct and unaffected by environment.

A study of these blood groups, he says, have enabled modern peoples to be divided on broad lines according to their origin. It has shed a new light on the migration of peoples and has tended to discount accepted theories of anthropology.

AUTO IMPORTERS ARE ASTOUNDED

Claim Gov't Action Means Penalization of From 8 to 15 Per Cent. on U.S. List Price.

HAD PREPARED ARGUMENTS.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 21.—Following an executive meeting of the Canadian Automobile Importer's Association held here last night the chairman of the executive committee, F. A. Nancekivell, made a statement which follows in part:

"Our members were astounded to read in the morning papers of the order in council passed by the Government fixing a limit of discount from United States list prices of 20 per cent both for duty purposes and for factory settlements. Regular trade discounts as used in the home market have, in the past, governed these importations but under the present Government action not only must the importer pay duty on a higher fixed price but under the dumping clause of the tariff, he may not accept from his factory the same price which a like distributor receives in the United States.

"This will penalize the Canadian importers amounts ranging from 8 per cent to 15 per cent of the United States list price and in the opinion of prominent importers may make it impossible to continue in business unless the Canadian consumer is willing to pay increased price for these quality products.

"The Government caused announcement to be issued through the press that public hearings on tariff matters would be held prior to change being made and representatives of our Association went to Ottawa Thursday night prepared to submit at the Friday hearing supplementary arguments to the brief which had been handed to the Government regarding this matter some weeks ago. One can then well imagine our surprise in ascertaining that judgment had already been issued on the matter before we had a chance of being heard."

LANDMARK REMOVED

The removal, of the old Spencer homestead at Hilton, East Northumberland has done away with one of the old landmarks of Northumberland County. Thomas Spencer and his wife, Ailetta Compton, were married on May 3, 1820, and settled on the Spencer homestead the same year. The family were of United Empire Loyalist origin and among the early settlers of the Quinte district.

Pair Charged With Stealing Of Car

PORT HOPE, Feb. 21.— Charged with theft of a car owned by Harry Lucas Cobourg, Thomas Quinn, Lovat Place, appeared before Magistarte Feyd in Cobourg court and was remanded until Feb. 25. Quinn with James Sullivan, who is in a Toronto hospital, are alleged to have taken Lucas' car on Sunday morning, later crashing into a T.T.C. pole at Toronto Sunday afternoon. Quinn was brought to Cobourg in custody of Chief of Police J. C. Ruse.

While unemployment is increasing in Frace the figures are still insignificant compared to those of other countries.

TORONTO VICS DEFEAT BEST BY TWO SHOTS

O. G. Plaxton is Winner 7-5 in Final for Wrigley Trophy.

BIG BONSPIEL OVER.

Barrie, Fort Wiliam and New Liskeard Capture Other Cups.

TORONTO, February 21. — When the last stone came to rest in the Special Competition final at the Toronto Victoria Club rink shortly before eleven o'clock last night, the curtain was rung down on the Toronto bonspiel, in which over 500 curlers started on Monday morning last.

To S. Meredith's Barrie Curling Club rink goes the chief honor of the week, the Grand Aggregate Prize for the most wins. By capturing this prize the Barrie curlers qualify for the Macdonald's Brier Tankard Dominion championship event, which will be held at the Granite Club during the first week of March.

In addition, the Meredith rink upheld the record of the Barrie Club by capturing two of the bonspiel prizes. In the four years of the event, Barrie has maintained this performance. With the Grand Aggregate Prize, the Meredith rink carried off the Ryrie-Birks Trophy, which, together with the Wrigley Trophy, is the only one of the bonspiel prizes that has not previously found its way to the Lake Simcoe town.

Two Trophies in Toronto.

Out-of-town rinks predominated in the finals, but two of the trophies will remain in Toronto. The Toronto Victoria Club captured them both. Dr. O. G. Plaxton's rink winning the Wrigley Trophy by defeating Ray Best's Peterborough curlers in the final by 7 to 5, the smallest of any of the final scores. E. P. Gower's Toronto Club rink carried off the Sieberling Trophy, scoring a hard-fought 14 to 13 victory over Dr. J. A. Wright's London Club curlers.

Another Toronto rink also captured a final match, but no trophy goes with it. H. G. Clarke's Granite "Colts" won the Special Competition, which was open only to rinks who did not win two games in any of the other events. The Clarke rink defeated Judge L. V. O'Connor's Cobourg quartette, 11 to 8, in the concluding game.

The Royal York Trophy will again go to Fort William.

It was the only trophy successfully defended by the rink that won it last year. D. Walker's Fort William four-handed Hubert Chisholm's Toronto Club rink a 10 to 4 beating in the final, and thus prevented a for the grand aggregate. Had the Chisholm rink won this game it would have tied with the Barrie rink for the most wins and a play-off would have been necessary. The Barrie curlers won eleven games during the week, but the Chisholm rink stopped at ten.

New Liskeard Wins.

Another Northern Ontario rink also carried off a trophy. The North American Life event was won by P. T. Graham's New Liskeard four in a high-scoring final game against the High Park rink skipped by W. G. Campbell, the result being 17 to 16.

The Ryrie-Birks final game found the Meredith rink opposed by D. B. Carlyle's Oshawa four. The Barrie

PRINCES MISS REVOLT BY DAY

Royal Brothers Pass Through Negritos While Troops Gather.

NEW YORK, February 21. — The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, a letter received here disclosed, missed a revolution in Negritos, Peru, February 10, by a single day.

The letter, from Robert Shippee, of Red Bank, N. J., who is photographing Inca ruins from the air, said the Princes motored through Negritos on their way to Lima.

"The day after they left trouble broke out," Shippe wrote. "There were more than 200 troops in the vicinity when we left, and although the Government had the situation completely in hand, no one was quite sure what was going to happen."

PLOT ON ZOG PROVES FAILURE

King's Adjutant Receives One of 12 Bullets Meant For Monarch and is Killed.

TWO ASSASSINS CAUGHT.

VIENNA, Feb 21 (C.P.)—Precautions for the safety of King Zog I, 36-year-old self-made Monarch of Albania, were redoubled to-day as police investigated an unsuccessful attempt against his life as he left the opera last night.

The King's adjutant, Major Topolai, received one of the twelve bullets intended for the Monarch and was killed instantly. Another bullet wounded an Albanian court official, M. Lipozova, in the hip, but the others went wild.

The two assassins, who gave their names as Asiz Cami and Nadk Tielezzi, were captured by chauffeurs of other cars standing behind the royal vehicle and were badly manhandled before police took them. Questioning brought no other explanation from them than they had acted through political motives.

The attempt against Zog's life, while shocking to Government officials, was not a surprise. A blood feud exists among the Albanian mountaineers against the King and there have been frequent attempts to kill him.

PROTECT DUTCH WHEAT GROWERS.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 20. — The Chamber of Deputies to-day by a vote of 23 to 20 adopted a measure authorizing the government to assist the Dutch wheat growers by ordering that during the next three years 25 per cent. of Dutch wheat for four must be ground or mixed with each batch of wheat or flour imported for use in the Netherlands.

THE CANADIAN-BUILT DODGE FOR CANADA

FROM John Plane I have received permission to use a story which he has had from his friend, Allan Neilson. For the moment it does not matter who Allan Neilson is — the important thing, in my judgment, is the story!

John could not help seeing the pleasure I had in listening to it as it fell from his lips—but he suggested that there might be those who would not think it "spiritual" enough for the Church Page! To this I replied, "I am quite willing to run the risk of disappointing a few in giving to the many what I know they will enjoy as much as I have done."

To those who are not content to confine themselves to the lines, but who will read between the lines, I think the story will convey its own moral! To all others I present my plea for their patient indulgence until such times as we can get back to more orthodox ways.

PALMISTRY AND MATRIMONY.

If palmistry had been a man instead of an art of divination, William Papper would have punched his head, bruised his ribs, and kicked his shins every day for three weeks. His hatred of it sprang from the fact that it barred his progress towards the golden gates of matrimony. Two ladies heard what he said concerning it, and they never wished to think of it afterwards. But one hot afternoon, while seated in the Commercial Hotel, he swept the crockery aside, and laid his right hand, palm upwards, on the table. This is the authentic story of his conversion.

PICKPOCKET OR MUSICIAN.

When he was little more than an infant William's grandmother extracted his chubby fingers from his toothless mouth, examined them critically, then solemnly declared that he would either be a pickpocket or a musician. Subsequent events falsified the former and justified the latter portion of her prediction. He proved himself a genius with the mouth-organ before entering his teens; and his proud mother, with great soundness of judgment, resolved that he should be a music teacher.

And such he became. He taught the piano, the concertina, the violincello, the violin, and acted as organist in the Church of St. Cyprian. He had the misfortune to be a highly-strung, sensitive, head-strong, impatient, quick-tempered, red-haired young man. By some strange mischance he thought himself possessed of a keen sense of humour. If led, he was a lamb, if driven—well, it wasn't possible.

HIS MUSICAL SOUL.

Mary Gainsborough was one of his many pupils. She aspired to the solution of the mysteries of the violin, and believed herself capable of doing so. Her teacher, exercising immense restraint, refrained from disillusioning her by explaining, in emphatic manner, that to a born musician the instrument in question was not mysterious. He knew in his musical soul that the violin is a divine instrument; and after a few weeks' acquaintance he knew that Mary was a divine girl.

But nothing could hide from him the truth that those two divinities didn't pull well together.

His small-featured neighbour complained that her baby wept "all the while that Gainsborough girl tortered her fiddle." He considered it undignified to accept fees from Mary for such performances; so he bought her gifts with the money: which begat within her the idea that he was in good circumstances.

HE LOVED HIS PUPIL.

It has already been guessed that William loved his ambitious pupil. He knew that she wasn't strikingly pretty or even ordinarily accomplished. But he loved her complexion, dark hair, brown eyes, and perfect dimple.

She had certain little weaknesses which endeared her to him.

She was rather proud of her surname—Gainsborough; and William himself was not displeased with it. When introducing her to any of his friends he rolled the word off his tongue with infinite relish. He considered that a sort of artistic, aristocratic flavor clung to it. And as there is something in a name, that was probably why she carried herself so well. She had a good figure, and generally wore a wide-brimmed hat with a drooping feather.

OUT OF LUCK.

Though William was unaware of it for some time, Mary was keenly interested in palmistry. The subject entranced her. Often would she sit staring intently at the lines of her hand.

She had a weakness for poking fun at William's surname.

"Your luck was right out, Bill," she said on one occasion, "when names were being distributed."

"So?"

"You must have been at the tail-end of the queue," she continued, drawing on her gloves.

"Sure thing," said he, smiling.

"How do you feel about it, Bill?"

He put his arm around her waist. "You'll get to like it, sweetheart," said he. "It's going to be yours one day."

"Are you sure?" She stood away from him.

"I am. How about fixing the day now? What about the end of next month? It's my slack time then; and I'll get McFadyan's car for the honeymoon trip; he's just had it done up."

MIGHT CHANGE HER MIND.

She picked up her violin and moved towards the door. He suspected what her answer would be, but hoped that for once she would leave it unsaid. She turned and looked at him, and he sensed that her playful spirit was suppressed. He almost wished he hadn't spoken.

"We've discussed all that before, Bill," she said sternly. "You know my mind about it."

"But, Mary—"

She raised her hand and threw back her head. "Stop!" she said. "I can guess what you are going to say, but it won't do any good. I'll not get married till Barbara's off my hands. It wouldn't be fair . . . after all she has done for me and the others."

William kissed her tenderly before opening the front door. "I'll come round and see you to-night," said he, pressing her hand. "I think we ought to go into the matter thoroughly with Barbara. You may change your mind then."

MAKING A MAN MAD.

One of the ancients has remarked that when the gods wish to destroy a man they first make him mad. The gods must have got busy with William Papper that night, for he went mad with rage, and proceeded to destroy himself by speaking scornfully and sceptically of palmistry.

Eight o'clock found him seated opposite Barbara near an open window. Mary was absent when he arrived, and her sister explained that she had gone out to change a book at the library.

"Is she studying the lives of the great masters?" he asked, lighting a cigarette.

"She is studying palmistry."

"Palmistry!" William grinned. "Is she interested in that subject?"

Barbara nodded.

"First I ever knew of it," said he. "But it's all tosh, isn't it?"

"Don't let Mary hear you say so. She is deeply interested in it."

A slight pause followed, then William told her of his conversation with Mary that afternoon. "She won't get married while you remain single," he concluded.

"I know."

"Then why don't you get married?" he asked bravely.

Barbara shook her head. "Not while Mary remains single," she answered. "I've got to keep my promise."

"Promise?" He leaned towards her. "What promise?"

"I promised mother before she died that I wouldn't marry till the others were settled in homes of their own. Mary's the last."

BACK TO PALMISTRY.

William's eyes moistened. "That was noble of you," he said huskily. "And Mary," he added, "does she know of it?"

Barbara nodded.

"She does! Then why doesn't she get married and let you do the same? What's the trouble?"

Barbara smiled sadly. "That brings us back to palmistry."

He stared, wondering what she meant. "But what the devil has palmistry got to do with it?" he asked.

"Mary believes in it."

"Well?"

"She has studied the lines of her hand carefully."

"Well?"

"And she declares that these indicate that her marriage is fated to follow mine."

His jaw fell. "Good heavens!" He sprang to his feet and paced the floor. "If that's palmistry," he cried savagely, "then I say it's the rottenest rubbish that ever was, and nobody will ever get me to believe in it!"

"Bill!"

He spun on his heel—and found Mary's eyes flashing angrily upon him. She had entered the room unobserved.

"How dare you!" she cried, stamping her foot. "I forbid you ever to speak to me again—till you've withdrawn those words."

Then William Papper, being highly-strung, sensitive, head-strong, quick-tempered, red-haired, and in the grip of the gods, fulfilled his destiny by going mad. His voice cracked like a stock-whip, and the words poured from his lips with the rapidity of a torrent. Barbara was reduced to tears, and Mary eyed him witheringly. Five minutes the outburst lasted—it seemed an eternity to the girls—then he hurried from the house without saying good-bye or taking his hat with him. Weird, restless and miserable was the night he spent, and morning found him still in the coils of his frenzy. He sprang to the floor, dressed in haste, seized his concertina, locked up, set forth on a walking-tour without any definite goal, and was soon several miles from the scene of his discomforture. Three weeks later, in a little township out west, he made the acquaintance of Christopher Moon.

PLAYS HIS CONCERTINA.

William was standing a few paces from the Commercial Hotel. The street was almost deserted, and a hot wind was blowing. The loungers at the bar drifted on to the verandah and listened to the concertina and the song he was singing. A pale-faced man arranging crockery in a shop window paused in the act of balancing a plate against a shelf, cocked his eye, and contemplated him as a boy would a dancing bear or a monkey with a red coat. An elderly lady who had been dozing in the rear seat of a stationary car was considerably startled by the opening notes of the concertina. A tall, sharp-featured man, with a drooping grey moustache, a pair of dreamy eyes, and a slight stoop, descended the hotel steps slowly and thoughtfully. He paused opposite the musician and waited the conclusion of the song.

"I congratulate you," said he.

"Thanks."

"My name is Moon — Christopher Moon."

"Mine's Papper—William, or Bill. I draw the line at Willie."

I'M A MUSIC TEACHER.

Christopher smiled. "I'd appreciate some conversation with you," said he. "Will you lunch with me?" he asked. "We can talk there."

They ascended the steps and entered the dining-room. Christopher led the way to a small table in a recess near an open window.

"Are you doing this for a living, may I ask?"

William ran his fingers through his hair before replying. "Yes and no," said he. "I've been on this stunt for about three weeks, but I'm a music teacher."

Christopher fingered his moustache thoughtfully. "Had some trouble—er—with the police?" he asked.

William laughed. "No," said he, "not with them. I fell out with my girl about palmistry."

Yours, till we can conclude this in next Saturday's issue.

The Hour Of Prayer

LORD, Thou art my life and my salvation, Thou art my sun and shield, and I rejoice in Thee; but there are those who sit in darkness and the shadow of death to whom the faintest shining might bring hope, and a Christian serve as a harbinger of God. I fain would lead some weary soul out of the gloomy, tangled trail and far from the beasts of prey; but, if that may not be, suffer me at least to give him pause till the sun shall rise on the unexplored, suffer my little light to shine unfailing and undimmed till the day break and the shadows flee away. Amen.

One Thing Or Another

HOW little would the great world seem to us if the great Good were not so little n us. Either men have no thoughts of a future state, or else they have low thoughts of a future state. If we had souls without any bodies, then there would be no need of the earth to keep us; if we had bodies without any souls, there would be no need of heaven to crown us.

PREVENTING A BLUNDER.

A former Peterborough clergyman, Rev. Harold Young, was chiefly instrumental the other day in preventing the Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church from putting itself on record in favor of a resolution calling upon the Government of Ontario to discontinue the sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

"I cannot conceive of any more futile thing for this Presbytery to do at this time than to ask the Government to discontinue sale," Rev. Mr. Young declared in opposing the motion, and advising instead that the committee on evangelism and social service be urged to take steps to influence public opinion.

The general view will be that Mr. Young was correct in that stand.

The Ontario Government has most certainly nothing the way of a request from the people to abandon the Government control system; as a matter of fact, the last provincial election results formed a most positive mandate to continue with the present policy, and, in addition, since that election there has been a provincial convention of the Liberal party at which the prohibition plank was officially abandoned.

To pass a resolution calling upon the Government to do away with a system that was endorsed by the electors and has been tacitly accepted by the Opposition that formerly opposed it, would certainly be futile, as the ex-Peterborough clergyman pointed out.

The sure way to temperance is to educate public opinion in favor of it.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.

There is much cheering from Windsor, Oshawa and other automobile centres at the announcement from Ottawa that a fixed discount of 20 per cent. from list prices has been placed for duty purposes on all United States-made automobiles entering Canada for sale.

For some time this matter has been a vexed question, especially in the Windsor district, where the Essex members, all supporters of the Government, have been virtually kicking over the traces to secure action from Ottawa that would give the Canadian automobile industry a chance to get going.

The pressure has resulted in the statement of Hon. Edmond Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue, that a fixed discount of 20 per cent. has been decided upon, and the change is accepted by the motor car industry as a substantial measure of assistance.

At the same time it is announced that positive assurances have been given by the Canadian manufacturers that in no event will the price of cars to purchasers be increased as a result of the action taken by the Government.

The result of the new arrangement will be watched with considerable interest, not only in the towns where the automobile companies have their plants, but throughout the country generally, for if it means greater prosperity for the motor industry that prosperity should to some extent at least affect other industries, many of whom are allied with the manufacture of motor cars.

THE MUNICIPAL DEMONSTRATION.

It is said that the provincial deputation, headed by Mayor Robsson of Guelph, which is to wait upon the Ontario Government next Tuesday to protest against what they believe to be unfair taxation placed on municipalities with respect to suburban and provincial roads, will be one of the largest to invade Toronto in some time.

To make the desired impression it should be the biggest of all time, for every Ontario municipality is directly concerned in this matter and should be anxious to add its quota of pressure to the strength of the deputation.

A new Premier is in the saddle in Ontario, and it is possible that he may turn a more sympathetic ear to the request of next week's deputation than his predecessor was wont to do.

On the other hand, the situation is complicated by the fact that for the first time in a number of years Ontario has a deficit to report, a condition not likely to make the Government any too anxious to assume new obligations or give up fruitful sources of revenue.

Under the circumstances the municipal demonstration, to offer any hope of success, must be representative of the whole Province to a degree that will convince the administration at Queen's Park that the municipalities of Ontario are unanimous in their stand, and that their delegates are not making the pilgrimage to Toronto to look at some of the new buildings, but in an earnest determined effort to secure justice.

SUCCESSFUL REFORESTATION.

No finer example of the value of intelligent reforestation can be found anywhere than the successful experiment in tree-planting began by the United States Government in Nebraska half a century ago.

This State, at one time known as the largest body of treeless land in the whole United States, to-day contains 2,500,000,000 trees grown in fifty years.

But that isn't all.

The "hand-made" forest has increased the annual rainfall to more than thirty inches, and is given credit for the fact that while adjoining States were burning up with drought last summer Nebraska was raising a $600,000,000 crop.

A despatch from Omaha describes the Nebraska situation as follows:

These "hand-made" forests are scattered all over the State. Settlers were permitted to homestead 160 acres of land and then were permitted to take up a "timber claim," amounting to an additional 160 acres provided they would plant one-fourth to trees. These trees have been a long time in coming, but they now cover the State with a great green blanket.

In 1903, 70,000 jack pines and 30,000 western seedlings were set out; to-day there are 15,000,000 trees in this region, many of them 45 feet tall.

In the nursery are 12,000,000 young trees awaiting the time to be planted in the sand hills or to be shipped to ranchers and farmers who have agreed to set out a quota. In the 1930 season the nursery shipped about 1,000,000 young trees for planting on ranches and farms and several million to the sand hills forest.

Now even the sand hills have enough rainfall to produce the best potatoes in the State and the western part of the State, which formerly cultivated nothing at all, is now one of the heaviest producers of sugar beets in the country. Last summer, when surrounding States were parching, Nebraska was having enough rain to produce large crops of corn, wheat, sugar beets, alfalfa and potatoes.

BRITISH POLITICAL SITUATION.

Although there is no immediate prospect of a general election in Great Britain, the Westminster sector has been a lively one for some time, and a battle may flare up at any moment. It will not come, of course, until after Mr. Snowden has at any rate submitted his budget, but the speech which the Chancellor made a few days ago heralded financial propositions that may cause serious controversy, even within the ranks of the Labor party itself. Mr. Snowden insisted on economy, indicating that the salaries of all Government employees might be cut, beginning with the Cabinet ministers themselves.

While that might look to be a popular move, it has its dangers to the Labor movement, because, if the Government approves cuts in salaries of civil servants, it sets an example to other employers, and could not, if trade unionists resisted, oppose reductions in wages of men engaged in other branches of industry, still further lowering the standard of living. Thus would the Socialist millennium, which was so hopefully expected by the Left wing of the party, be thrust aside. No sensible man, however, expects that Britain will become a Socialist paradise, or even an experimental ground for Socialism on any large scale. But this Left wing, plus a group of independent Liberals led by Sir John Smon, who have no axe to grind, may join hands and turn the Government out.

Ex-Premier Baldwin is sometimes criticized for his settlement of the war debt with the United States. There is a growing feeling that Britain is being crippled by the payment of about $150,000,000 a year. That payment is pointed to as a cause of the crushing burden of taxation and its consequent effect on British trade. But that has only an infinitesimal result. Most, but not all of that amount—although in theory all—is first collected from the European countries owing war debts to Britain, and is simply transferred to the United States. A far greater burden is the money paid under the Unemployment Insurance Act, commonly called "the dole," the cost of which amounts now to $500,000,000 a year. All of this comes out of the pockets of the people, either directly out of the pockets of the insured and employers or from the Treasury—but in the final analysis it all comes out of the pockets of the people. Undoubtedly the "dole" was a necessity after the war, but outsiders cannot help thinking, as the number of unemployed continues to grow, and the cost with it, that the expenditure of one hundred million pounds a year in modernizing factories and in public works would do a very great deal toward reducing the number of unemployed to reasonable proportions.

The Labor Government took a peculiar step a few days ago. It addressed a communication to seven of the large European countries asking them to ease their tariffs so that British trade with them might be increased. Surely that was a humiliating thing for a mighty power like Britain to do, besides being childish in conception. There never was the least likelihood that these countries would do anything of the sort. They need to protect their own industries and put up these tariff barriers for that purpose, and to think that they would lower these protective tariffs to oblige another country that does not believe in doing business the way the rest of the world does, would be laughable were it not tragic. It is the sort of fantastic idea that could only emanate from the mind of a free-trade fanatic like Mr. Snowden.

Britain has, of course, enormous investments in non-British countries, having far more in the Argentine than in Canada and it is perfectly true that in any arrangements with the overseas Empire care must be taken not to injure the countries which are good customers of Britain. These matters can be adjusted by means of favored nation agreements. If Great Britain were to fall into line with the universal method of trading and protect its own market by means of tariffs, it would have a powerful lever to negotiate with other countries and cause them to reduce their tariffs without going cap in hand and begging them to do so. Employment would also be found for hundreds of thousands more workers, and the crushing effect of the insurance scheme would be lifted.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

The Red-Headed Goddess

By

ALICE ROSS COLVER

So Moore swung over to a window, from which he stared with increasing impatience, while Kent moved painfully and deliberately along paths of reasoning not pleasant to follow. An elopement! An elopement? But Lorraine had no real reason for this—or had she? Their conversation of the night before kept recurring to his mind. He had been harsh in his judgment of the boy; yet it was unintentional, and he was sure he had not been unfriendly. Lorraine could not possibly have gathered from his remarks that he would oppose any wish on her part concerning him—yet could she? His doubt was troubling. She had seemed so careless as she spoke of him, so laughing and light and untouched, wasn't she? And they were both such children still. But it is children who take these matters with terrible seriousness, he told himself now; and there were her last words, having, in the light of to-day's happenings, a deliberate meaning: "I won't be home until morning'" He turned to Steve troubled.

"I don't know what to do. I don't know what to think."

"I think you ought to start a search at once, sir."

"But——" Kent paused, then, because Moore knew Dirk and Lorraine so well, he gave him his confidence. "Don't you see, Stephen," he said in conclusion, "if she has eloped, if I did make a mistake last night, I don't want to make another now."

"You mean——"

"I mean that whatever Lorraine did with Dirk was done impetuously. If I do not pursue her, she will come back with a rush of explanations and an apology. I know her. She doesn't nurse grievances."

"No. On the other hand—stop and think, Mr. Kent—they've been gone since midnight. This is the next afternoon. She could have landed somewhere long before this, would have had to——"

"I know."

"She isn't inconsiderate. Even if she was piqued last night, she would to-day think of your anxiety."

"Yes. Still——"

"I can't help but feel uneasy, Mr. Kent. Dirk, too. Why, you know I don't believe he would countenance the idea of running off with Lorraine. He isn't that type. And he's my best friend. We've been pals for years. If I don't start looking for him, no one will. He has no family, you know. I've got to go! I've got to get into action, whether you want me to or not!"

Kent put a hand on the other's shoulder.

"I understand your feeling and respect you for it. Why don't you go? By all means! Just keep the thing quiet, that's all. I don't want the public to get hold of it."

"Yes. Of course." Moore grasped the older man's hand. "I'll take along Jack Ashton and Vincent Minor. You don't mind that, do you?"

"No, certainly not." Kent held on to Moore an extra moment, his eyes showing a hint of strain, clinging to Stephen face. "Come back and make a report to-night, will you? I may be ready to do something, by then. By the way, do you know which direction to take?"

"Only generally. They circled the city and then headed east."

"Thank heaven they didn't go over the water, anyway."

"Yes. Well, good-by, Senator. I'll do the best I can. It's better—for me, anyway—than doing nothing."

And by the time the afternoon had crept by, Kent found that he, too, would rather do something than nothing. Stephen was right. Lorraine was not cruel. She did not bear grudges. She was tender and loyal, and she would not have kept him in such suspense as this if she could have helped it. Long before Moore returned, he had come to share with the young aviator, and the rest of the whispering household, the conviction that some dreadful mishap had occurred, and, by three o'clock of that day, he had begun to wind up the machinery that was to work for Lorraine's and Dirk's salvation.

He used every possible modern means to this end. The radio station began giving announcements. Detectives were called and were set to work on the few slight clues Moore had provided. The anxious father consulted the doctor who had seen Lorraine grow up, for any psychological light on the situation. Private airplanes were commandeered to aid in searching the land near and far. Dirk's and Lorraine's pictures were thrown on the screen of every moving picture house in the country, and the newspapers were making front-page columns of the sensational disappearance so that the whole warp and woof of society, east and west, north and south, knew of it by dinner time.

"I will hear something authentic soon, as a result of all this," Kent thought to himself. "It isn't possible for people to disappear off the face of the earth and leave no trace—absolutely none. It isn't possible in this day and age."

At eight o'clock Stephen Moore came in, accompanied by the other friends of Dirk's, Ashton and Minor, whom Ken knew slightly. They all three wore their aviation suits and showed the strain they had been under, and, scanning their faces quickly, the older man needed no words to tell him that they had brought no news. Putting his hands on the arms of Moore and Ashton, he spoke with his customary kindness:

"You look tired, boys. You must have dinner with me. Please" he urged quickly, to their gestures of denial, as they glanced down at their clothes. "It would be a favor. I don't want to be alone."

"Of course," Moore's intense dark eyes were bright with compassion as they met Kent's. "I've done everything—and heard nothing." Then he gathered himself together determinedly. "But it's early yet, of course. We'll get some definite news from outside, if I don't hear from Lorraine herself soon. But when she realizes how worried I am, she'll get in touch with me."

But another twenty-four hours crept by, and Lorraine had still not been heard from. There were messages, inquiries, rumors, false alarms. The telephone rang constantly. Telegrams and letters flooded the Senator's desk. People—policemen, detectives, airmen, friends—passed in a constant stream up and down the broad veranda steps of the big white house, but they brought nothing authentic to the man waiting with steady fortitude in his study. And slowly, in spite of all that science had done to reveal the secrets of space, the crushing belief was forced upon him that Lorraine had vanished into the void.

CHAPTER V.

"SOMETHING TERRIBLE—"

For a blood-freezing moment Lorraine thought her parachute had failed her. Then there was a terrific jerk at her harness, and she found herself right side up once more and floating gently to earth. It war the most wonderful experience she had ever known.

In a split second, as she glanced up at the enormous umbrella above her, her mind began to function rapidly, recalling Dirk's other directions to insure her safe landing, so that, when she struck the ground, she let her knees bend and her legs double under her, as though she had completed a jump, at the same time that she pulled on the lines nearest the ground to keep herself from being dragged. In a breath her trembling fingers had found the three hooks that bound the whole harnesss to her body and, as she unfastened them, the umbrella was caught in the wind and whirled swiftly, in an odd dancing manner, away across the desert. Sitting on the sand, she dazedly watched it until it disappeared over a great promontory of high uneven rocks.

Then a sharp, clear consciousness returned, and with it her strength. Staggering to her feet she stared about her. Dirk! Where wax he?

Before her gaze could steady, she heard a shout and, turning, she beheld a collarless, disheveled Dirk runnin in a lurching way toward her. The next moment she was in his arms, both of them too shaken by horror of what they had escaped to do more than murmur each other's names over and over.

"Lorraine!"

"Dirk!"

"If you had been killed!"

"If you had—"

They clun gfor a long moment, forgetful of everything save each otehrand the surging emotion that was thundering through them, then, at last, as if aware what a long stretch of time lay ahead of them before they could yield to the sweet expression of what their disaster had shocked from them, they drew apart. But he still held her hands, a desperate anxiety in his voice as he repeated the unbelievable news.

"You aren't hurt—at all!"

She shook her head.

"Nor you!" she returned. "Dirk, it's marvelous! A miracle, really!" She closed her eyes a moment, unable longer to meet his burning look. "Don't—please—" she murmured. Slowly pulling her hands from his clasp, she turned away, then, drawing a sharp breath, she pointed across the desert. "Oh, Dirk! Look—!"

His eyes followed the direction of her finger. Over by the stretch of rocks where her parachute had disappeared, their plane was rushing to its doom. They watched it in silence, as it flew headlong onto the promontory, crashed to the ground and burst immediately into flames. The sight, bringing as it did, the sharp realization of their dilemma, appalled them into speechlessness, and in a kind of daze they looked about them.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

PREPARED BY THE REV. CLARENCE H. WILSON, D.D. FOR THE COMMISSION ON EVANGELISM OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

THE BOY IN THE TEMPLE

"Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business?" (Or, "in my Father's house?")—Luke 2 49. (Read Luke 2 41-52.)

Meditation

Luke gives us our one glimpse into the silent years of Jesus' boyhood and the scene is lovely. Hofmann's familiar picture is beautiful but probably misleading. It does not give us the ruddy health of the hills and of the carpenter's shop. There is nothing pale or anemic about piety. Great and holy thoughts are indigenous to healthy childhood. 'The thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts." Get behind the mask of his shyness and your boy is thinking about high things. The parents of Jesus did not understand him till strangers showed the way into the boy's eager mind.

Prayer

Our Father to whom we all are as little children, we thank Thee for the holy light that shines in the heart of childhood, and we pray that the hardening years may not shut us out from understanding and sympathy. In Jesus' name. Amen

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in this column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them inserted

To The Editor of The Examiner,
Dear Sir:

On the editorial page of Feb. 18, there appeared an item under the headline, "Wants Meighen Back" taken from the Border Cities Star, and which gives the impression that it would be well if Mr. Bennett would place the finances of our country in the hands of Mr. Meighen as the best possible man for the job.

We think otherwise. We may be wrong or we may be right in our thoughts, but in weighing up the matter we see it only one way. In one of our bygone elections, Mr. Meighen's policy was thoroughly defeated. Mr. Meighen met defeat in his own riding by a large majority and in several of our provinces, five I think, a most unusual condition prevailed when not a single candidate or representative of Mr. Meighen was elected.

This happened not very long ago, as a great many will remember and in the face of all this, the Border Cities Star advocates Mr. Meighen as the best possible man as Minister of Finance, he not even a member of Parliament. Is it wise? Surely Mr. Bennett can find one man among the present members who would be quite capable of filling this important position and whose election would would not be opposed, whereas if one outside the ranks were chosen, he might be strongly opposed, thus causing extra expense, etc.

There is no doubt but that Mr. Meighen's staunch Conservative followers would be very pleased to have Mr. Meighen back, though they were very much in the minority. On the other hand, the staunch Liberals, in one sense, need look for no consideration, but what about the other fellows—the swingers straddle the fence, or some would say turncoats—the people who really do the electing?

As we see it, Premier Bennett would do this class of voters a great injustice and many would consider it a slap in the face, should Mr. Meighen be given this most important position as Minister of Finance.

We think Premier Bennett will take great care as to how and where he treads.

Thanking you for space.

Yours very truly,

Swinger.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

Dear Sir: It is with a great deal of interest that I read your editorial re the proposed unemployment insurance in to-day's Examiner.

Obviously you know a little more of this subject than some people who are in favor of it.

Having seen this insurance in operation in the Old Country, I am confident that if the amount that has been spent in Great Britain on unemployment insurance had been spent in making work, instead of keeping people out of work, that country would be infinitely better of.

Personally, I consider it a curse to that country, and I don't think I hold that opinion alone.

When one pauses to consider the amount of work that could be undertaken, and the number of men that could be employed by that five million dollars that is "doled" out every week, surely that in itself is sufficient argument against it.

There are in Peterborough and district some men who have come from the Old Country, and know more about this subject than I, and I should be very pleased to see their letters in the paper on this matter.

This subject is one that the taxpayer would do well to consider, for I suppose the taxpayers will have to bear the brunt of the expense.

However, that wouldn't affect me, as I am just a farm laborer, but the people of Canada have a lot to learn about unemployment insurance, and if it is ever put into operation they will soon learn to their sorrow.

Trusting that I may see more letters from Britishers on the matter, and thanking you for your valuable space, Mr. Editor, I am, yours sincerely,

MAURICE J. McCARTHY.

LIST LEADERS ACTIVE STOCKS

Noranda Suffers Setback Following Report of Copper Hold-up.

LINDSLEYS STEADY.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 21.—(C.P.)—Although trading was fairly brisk on the mining market in the shortened session to-day, action was largely confined to a comparatively few individuals, with changes on end of a mixed character.

Noranda was a soft spot, price dropping over a point on reports that revenue from copper would be tied up for some time while tanks of the new refinery are being filled. Base metals firmed but Ventures eased a couple. Nickel, Hudson Bay and balance of the Lindsleys were steady.

Mining Corp. which reported the Ashley vein in Bannockburn still further extended by diamond drill, was up 14 in brisk demand, and Dome firmed a few cents. Lake Shore continued easy in tone and Granada lost 5. In the Penny group Ritchie was active and up a cent or so.

Western Oils were still under pressure, Home Oil selling below $1 to close on 20 on the day. Chemical Research recovered 40 to $3.90 and Acme Gas and Ajax Oil were each a couple higher.

NEW YORK STOCKS IN HIGHER GROUND

Utilities and Specialties Are Strong Spots in Early Upturns.

NEW YORK, February 21. (C.P.)—The bulls splashed through a wave of week-end profit taking without hesitating in to-day's stock market and gave the list a final upturn, sending many issues into new high ground for the year.

Stocks were rushed up 1 to 10 points in the early trading only to fall back in the middle of the morning, when a few shares showed temporary loss losses of 1 to 3 points, but list was pushed back to the top in the late trading.

Utilities and specialties were strong in the early upturn but American Can was picked as leader in the late trading and sent up 3 points to a new high .Chemicals also were pushed up, Air Reduction rising 2 to a new peak. Allied Chemical was off 3 points for a time but recovered.

Auburn was whirled up 10 points to a new high at 209, four points above its previous peak. It then slipped off but was quickly supported.

U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Bethlehem, Radio and United Corp. were up a point or so.

Cardinal Maffi Ill At His Home In Pisa

PISA, Italy, Feb. 21 (C.P.).—Cardinal Pietro Maffi, one of the most eminent scholars of the Church and twice in the past quarter of a century mentioned for the Papacy, is gravely ill here. Pope Pius has sent his benediction.

Cardinal Maffi was made a Prince of the Church in 1907. When Pope Pius X. died he was spoken of as the probable successor, but Pope Benedict became the Pontiff. When Benedict died ,Cardinal Maffi and Cardinal Gasparri, the former Papal Secretary of State, were mentioned as probable successors, but Pius XI. was chosen.

He officiated at the marriage of Princess Yolanda and Count Calvi in 1923, and performed the religious rites at the marriage of Prince Humbert and Marie Jose last year.

Betty Compton Visits Cuba On Honeymoon

HAVANA, Feb. 21. (AP)—The former Betty Compton, Toronto, Ont., actress and her husband, Edward D. Dowling, arrived here to-day for a three weeks' honeymoon, avoiding newspaper men by waiving the customs regulations.

They were married in New York last Monday after having known each other for four years. Mr. Dowling said he met Miss Compton at a motion picture studio and that he would direct her in a new picture after their wedding trip.

IN SCORELESS DRAW

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 21—(C.P. Cable)—Ireland and Scotland played to a scoreless draw in their forty-third international soccer match here today. Scotland has won thirty-six of the series. The game today attracted 20,000 spectators.

NEW YORK LIST ST AGES ADVANCE AS OPTIMISM FLOODS MARKET

Nevertheless Conservative Banking Opinion Believes Industrial Activity is Seasonal.

PLENTY LIST SUPPORT.

(By John L. Cooley, Associated Press Financial Writer.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Optimism made some progress out of the experimental stage on the stock market this week.

Finding its backlog of strength sufficient to rebuff selling for both accounts, the market went confidently ahead along rather conservative lines. Some specialties succumbed to bullish temptation, but there was evidence restraint was being exercised. Bonds also rose despite passage of the bonds legislation and prospects that the presidential veto would be overbidden.

The advance carried the standard statistics average for 90 stocks slightly above the 1929 low of 140.2 and about 26 points beyond the 1930 minimum, recorded last December. A year ago, however, it was approximately 40 points higher than at present.

Conservative banking opinion was represented as believing the improvement in industrial activity has been no more than seasonal at best.

There seems a strong undercurrent of sentiment against overstepping the bounds of good judgment in stock prices. Bankers and brokers pointed out that the effect of too much stimulation, while the balance of business still hangs so delicately on the side of improvement, would be most harmful and that a severe reaction would break the thread of confidence.

Substantial selling went forward under cover of the week's rise. This came from important interests which apparently wanted to keep enthusiasm below the boiling point and also from unconverted bears and from traders who took profits.

Plenty of Support.

Sponsors of the advance, however, were well fortified with reserves and brought out new support each time the market showed signs of slipping Only the rails and oils failed to move appreciably.

Industrial statistics were more encouraging than in the previous week. A significant development was the gain in building contracts during the first half of February, reviving hopes that important tide of economic health had begun to convalesce.

Operations in the steel and automobile plants maintained the recent upward trend and some of the motor car makers decided to expand previously determined schedules. Copper prices gained a little ground and are expected to do still better. Silver was helped by a belief that something might be done internationally to assist so depreciated a commodity.

Railroad earnings and traffic are unsatisfactory, but neither can improve extensively until business recovery has progressed beyond initial stages. Difficulty and uncertainty still besets the oil industry.

Short term money was temporarily firm early in the week. Withdrawals are being made for the use of the interior where extensive preparations are made annually for March first, when credit demands, especially in the middle west, are large.

Fire Cuts Off Escape Woman Drops 15 Feet

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 21.—Driven back by a wall of flame which cut off her escape from the second storey of the house, Mrs. William Lee made her way to the front window and dropped 15 feet to the ground when fire broke out today in the home of her son, Clinton Lee.

Clinton Lee suffered burns and was taken to hospital with his mother, who suffered only a fractured rib and cuts on the hands.

Mrs. Clinton Lee and an eight-year-old daughter suffered burns.

FREEMAN WARNED.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 21 (C.P.). — Tommy Freeman, world's welterweight champion, must sign before March 5 for a contest involving his title or risk the danger of having his championship vacated.

This warning was served on Freeman to-day by General John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing Association.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

HARDWOOD BRINGS $7.00 PER CORD

Low Prices For Dairy Produce on Local Market—Large Quantity of Beef.

Mild weather to-day brought out a market for size and variety of produce, the largest in some weeks. There was an unusually large offering of meat; beef retailing at 10, 12 and 13 cents with pork from 14-16 cents. Apples were finding a ready sale at from 25-55 cents a peck according to variety and grade.

In the covered market the dairy produce was maintaining the low prices which have prevailed lately, eggs selling from 25 cents a dozen up, and butter at 33 cents a pound.

Several cords of wood were on hand this morning for which $7.00 was being asked.

Kitchener Engineer Rapped By Council

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 21. (CP) A recommendation that the resignation of Road Foreman Schultz be sought by Council and severe criticism of City Engineer S. Shupe featured the report of a City Council committee which probed the cost of local improvements made on Chestnut street, which was drafted late yesterday.

A faulty purchase system was revealed and the report stated that the City Engineer must accept responsibility for errors which occurred as a result. It was shown that trucks were hired at $33.50 when they could have been secured for $2.50, while other irregularities were also uncovered'

BRADSTREET'S TRADE REVIEW

ST. JOHN, N.B.—Reports to Bradstreet's say that retail trade here is fairly good with wholesale picking up slightly. Collections are fairly good. Grain shipments from the elevators at West Saint John up to February 1st show an increase of 150 per cent over the corresponding period of the 1929-30 season. Up to February 1st this season 4,576,804 bushels have been loaded into ships from the elevators, as compared with 1,813,162 bushels for the same period of last season.

QUEBEC.—Reports to Bradstreet's say that no change of moment is reported in wholesale or retail circles, in the latter business about equals a year ago, helped by "bargain" sales. In the industrial district manufacturing in some quarters show a slight improvement. Building operations are quiet, which is usual at the season.

MONTREAL—Reports to Bradstreet's show that, under the stimulus of low-priced sales, volume has been fairly well maintained, particularly in staple lines Jobbers report country orders fully up to anticipations. Export trade in wheat has been light; it is reported that the surplus Argentine crop will not aggregate more than 150,000,000 bushels, this being some 20 per cent lower than the original estimate. Although car loadings are below the equivalent week of 1930, Montreal bank clearings at last show an increase, a gain of $33,646,000 representing 27.46 per cent. The general downward movement has affected the Montreal cattle market and arrivals have fallen off to some extent. Butter and cheese have, however, been active, and eggs have remained steady. Renewed activity has been noted on the local realty market, city sales showing an increase of over $315,000. According to the Bureau of Statistics, total production of boots and shoes in 1930 amounted to 17,087,382 pairs, as compared with 19,847,830 pairs in 1929. Footwear imports during the year totalled 1,430,896 pairs, compared with 1,452,521 pairs in 1929 Collections are slow to fair.

OTTAWA—Reports to Bradstreet's say that demand for goods at retail stores is fair with wholesale trade rather quiet The Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association reports that during the period from January 1st to 26th it received 76 reports of cows and heifers that had qualified in the R.O.P.—37 in the 365 day division and 39 in the honor roll or 305 day division. In the first classification 11 qualified in the mature class; 4 in the four year old; 7 in the three year old and 15 in the two year old class. Thirty of these records were made on two milkings a day.

TORONTO—Reports to Bradstreet's say that retail trade continues to show improvement here with demand at wholesale however just fair. There has been no great change in general business except as noted above. Manufacturing is rather spotty. Boot and shoe factories, woollen and knit goods and fine gloves factories are fairly well employed. There is considerable building proposed here although some of it has not been definitely decided on as yet. It is felt however, by some that building costs at the moment are about as low as they are likely to be. An active building program would go far to restore business to normal. Collections are fair.

HAMILTON—Reports to Bradstreet's say that there have been few developments during the past week in business. The Steel Company of Canada and the Burlington Steel Company have recently received orders for material from the Beauharnois Power Corporation. These companies will share in the contract for the supply of a large quantity of reinforced steel.

LONDON—Reports to Bradstreet's say that retail sales here are well maintained for the time of year and in view of the general conditions. Demand at wholesale is fair. Canadian apple shipments for the present season to January 30th amounted to 1,005,318 barrels, 27,727 half barrels and 1,240,302 boxes, as compared with 1,071,909 barrels, 15,350 half barrels and 649,123 boxes for the corresponding period of last year.

WINDSOR—Reports to Bradstreet's say that trade here at both retail and wholesale establishments is fair. Announcement is made of the establishing in Walkerville of a new industry, the Lodge Motor Company Limited, a subsidiary of the Detroit firm of the same name. It will manufacture marine engines. Factory space is being secured and machinery is being placed. The plant will shortly be in operation, employing about a hundred men as a start.

WINNIPEG—Reports to Bradstreet's say that there has been little change here in retail trade as compared with a week ago. Demand at wholesale is fair with collections rather slow. A special sub-committee of the agricultural committee of the Winnipeg Board of Trade is arranging for the sowing of 20 acres of land with the soy bean, as an experiment. The oils and fats derived from the soy bean are used extensively in industry, while the residue makes a valuable feed for cattle. Hence the effort to produce the bean locally.

CALGARY—Reports to Bradstreet's say that trade at wholesale and retail here remains slow. Collections also are slow. Alberta fliers, fewer in number than those of the majority of the provinces in Canada are among the most active, to judge from the latest figures from the Department of Civil Aviation which show that during the year 14,950 flights, during which about 500,000 miles were covered, were undertaken. Alberta fliers during the year spent 6,415 hours in the air, the average flights lasting for 25 minutes. The planes carried 12,169 passengers.

VANCOUVER—Reports to Bradstreet's say that business here remains fairly quiet with collections fair to slow. Construction and industry are below normal. The coastal waters of British Columbia yielded $11,885,561 to the fishermen of the province during the first eleven months of 1930, the commercial catch of all kinds amounting to 492, 963,400 pounds. In the 1 months of 1929 the catch amounted to 497,752,000 pounds valued at $13,890,499.

PROBE STARTED IN BULL ACCIDENT

U. S. Detective Claims Victim Conferred With Men at Capone Night Club.

COMPANIONS SOUGHT.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21. (CP)—A police investigation, designed to clear up the mystery as to why W. Perkins Bull, K.C., barrister of Toronto, left Chicago hurriedly, was under way today.

The investigators sought to throw some light on the automobile accident in which Bull was injured a few days ago near Coldwater, Mich.

"I don't know whether Bull's car was forced off the road deliberately, whether Bull was racing to elude pursuers or whether it was an accident without any significance" said John Norton, Chief of Detectives.

Norton asked Michigan authorities to co-operate by finding Bernard Magruder of Racine, Wis. an official of the Horlick Malted Milk Company who was with Bull at the time of the accident. The police hope he can supply more details of the wreck.

The car Bull was riding in collided with a stalled truck. He was taken to a hospital at Windsor, Canada and later to Toronto with a fractured leg. Chief Norton said he had learned that Bull had conferred with two men at a night club said to be operated by henchmen of Alphonse Capone, just prior to leaving Chicago. This however, was emphatically denied by Mrs. Bull at her home in Toronto. She said her husband left Chicago to keep business appointment in Toronto.

Doings in Legislature

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 21. (CP)—The Government's programme of Legislation is steadily being laid before the Ontario Legislature. Yesterday Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General introduced his bill to provide for compensation of blind workers. In order to encourage the employment of blind persons the Government will reimburse the Workmen's Compensation Board or the employer for any compensation in excess of $50 paid a blind worker under the Workmen's Compensation Act. The House adjourned till Monday.

First reading given bill to amend the Lightening Rod Act.

Second reading of bills to amend the Summary Convictions Act and the Justices of the Peace Act.

Rising living costs in Paris have caused a public demand for investigation of the retail distribution machinery.

TORONTO MARKET CLOSES STRONGER

Number of Issues Advance to New Highs—Dominion Stores in Good Demand.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 21. (CP)—Toronto stock exchange market closed the week with rising prices and a number of stocks selling at their best of the year and longer. Volume of trade was very heavy.

Dominion Stores was again in good demand and rose above 20 the first time this year.

Noranda eased a point in the second hour. Service Stations De Forest Crosley, C.P.R. were other individual stocks equalling or bettering their 1931 tops.

Oils were still heavy, although B. A oil made a gain of approximately ½ point.

OFFICIAL DENIAL GIVEN REPORTS

the truth is M. Briand, French Foreign Minister, feels himself entangled in the general disarmament conference and is obliged to seek the favors from Great Britain, and thus finds himself at the mercy of "the weakest of English ministries."

ROME, Feb. 4.—(A.P.)— Reported concessions by France to Italian naval views during conversations between Rene Massigli and R. L. Craigie, British expert, have failed to arouse much enthusiasm in official circles here.

Italian commentators have asserted that the reported slight reduction in French naval tonnage does not meet Italy's steadfast demand for parity which, though it might never be achieved in fact, is regarded in Rome as a principle which must be accorded both for Italy's defensive needs and the national prestige.

May Not Visit on Equality.

Italy's disposition to make a long naval truce with France is offered as an indication that actual equality of tonnage is not to be insisted upon, since France already has superiority in this regard though much of her tonnage is almost obsolete.

Observers close to the government have said the attitude of the French people and government, interpreted here as opposed to Italy's terms, is a major difficulty in the way of immediate settlement.

Meantime, the Italian government while officially uninformed regarding the Franco-British negotiations, is said to maintain willingness to renew the naval building holiday.

There are at least 60 stars to every man, woman and child in the world, says a European scientist.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

Wheat prices continued their upturn trend again yesterday, and on the extreme bulge were about two cents above Thursday night's close. However, this full bulge was not held, the market selling off near the close when profit-taking by longs became more general with selling against the daily offers.

The main strength appeared to be derived from the strength in Liverpool and Buenos Aires, while local sentiment continued bullish with some anxiety being expressed over the dry conditions existing in Western Canada. At the start was some buying by exporters and seaboard houses and overnight sales were finally estimated at close to 600,000 bushels. However, the bulk of the buying was coming through commission and wire houses and was not considered of the best variety. The setback near the close was only natural, as the advance of the past two days has been a little too rapid to be healthy.

Liverpool closed 1½ to 1¾ higher, and Buenos Aires was 2 5-8 higher yesterday afternoon, with the weather reported unfavorable in Argentine. The weather is cloudy and cool over much of the winter wheat belt, with rains and snow forecasted and probably frost in some areas.

There was a slight improvement in the demand for cash wheat yesterday with offerings very light. Top grades of springs were trading at 1-8 better. Durums were one cent off owing more to the advance in futures than to any pressure of offerings. There was nothing new in the flour situation, which remains more or less quiet.

Bradstreets North American shipments were 5,325,041 bushels, wheat, which indicates that worlds shipments this week will likely be slightly over 15,000,000 bushels. Country marketings in Western Canada Wednesday were 339,000 bushels, as against 258,000 a year ago. Winnipeg futures closed 3-8 to ½ higher.

Coarse Grains—These markets were all firm most of the day, barley showing the most strength. However, these markets all sold off in the late trade. The buying is practically all speculative in character, but there was some oats and barley being worked to-day for eastern Canadian account Oats closed ½ to 3-8 lower. Barley 1 3-8 to 5-8 higher, and rye unchanged to ¼ lower. Flax continued dull and featureless. Closing prices 3-8 to ½ lower Liverpool cables due 3-8 lower based on Winnipeg.

NEW FEDERAL

come acute. And this factor is supported by the large amount of customs duties which the Dominion government collects annually in Peterborough. This was one of the considerations which E. A. Peck, M.P., and Mayor Denne emphasized in their recent visit to Ottawa.

The total of the customs receipts at the port of Peterborough for the ten years from April 1st, 1920, to March 31st, 1930, was $12,706,416.27, and of that amount $7,851,254.70, was collected during the last five years. The annual receipts during the latter period were as follows:

April 1, 1925, to March 31, 1926 $997,937.67.

April, 1926, to March, 1927, $1,-451,193.20.

April, 1927, to March, 1928, $1,-754,862.27.

April, 1928, to March, 1929, $1,-803,176.96.

April, 1929, to March, 1930, $1,-844,074.60.

Because the customs revenue from Peterborough reaches these large annual totals, this city is amply justified in pressing its request that part of this money be expended here in the erection of a new federal building to which the government committed itself nearly twenty years ago.

The government promised this building, the government needs it as a larger and modern business plant, Peterborough has earned it by the customs revenues, this community contributes to the national treasury, and, finally, Peterborough needs the work it would provide for building tradesmen and laborers.

Recommended Site.

A year ago it was generally understood that J. J. Duffus had recommended for the site of the proposed federal building the purchase of property immediately west of the post office for its enlargement. Mr. Peck favors a site along Water street, preferring it to the George and Sherbrooke location because of its proximity to Ashburnham.

Recently it was rumored that a government inspector had looked over the property on the south side of Charlotte street, east of Louis street. This is owned by the Bradburn Estate. If this site were finally chosen it would be a welcome improvement to that main street which in a few years will be a link in the new Provincial Highway from Sarnia to Ottawa. Naturally the government will be largely influenced by Mr. Peck's recommendations, and he presents a convincing case for the retention of the site near the corner of George and Water streets.

With Premier Bennett's commanding majority in the House there is every likelihood that the Peterborough estimate will be passed. Following that preliminary the government will no doubt be favorably influenced by the fact that Peterborough's customs house is a producer of large annual revenues to the federal treasury. And because of this fact, which has been impressed on the government, there are good reasons for kindling the hope that the federal work will be started here this year

Sixty thousand plates, 40,000 cups and 20,000 tumblers will be used by a new transatlantic liner.

23,340 MORE PHONES IN USE

According to 51st Annual Report of Bell Telephone Company.

MOST HOME PHONES

The 51st annual report of the Bell Telephone Company will be in the hands of shareholders Thursday. It contained interesting material on telephone material on telephone development in Ontario and Quebec as well as some sidelights on general business conditions in 1930.

There was a net gain in telephones for the year of 23,340, as compared with 47,211 in 1929. Over 67 per cent of telephones in service are home telephones.

There are now 839 other telephone systems in Ontario and Quebec whose lines connect with the Bell System, and these companies serve 141,835 telephones Bell and connecting telephones total 926,631.

While gross revenue for 1930 exceeded 1929 by $1,753,890, net earnings fell short of dividend requirements by $264,744, which latter sum was drawn from surplus of other years.

Gross additions to telephone plant involved an outlay of $2,230,000.

Trans-Atlantic telephone service was extended during 1930 to include far-distant regions in Europe, South America and the antipodes. The telephones of 31 countries, with over 90 per cent of the world's stations can now be connected with any telephone in the Bell System. Many of the larger ocean liners are now accessible, by telephone, while at sea.

Eighty-five per cent of long distance connections are now established while the calling party remains at the telephone—as compared with 79 per cent in 1929.

Over 94 per cent of troubles reported by telephone users were cleared on the same day as reported.

Over 240 Bell employees passed their examinations in First Aid, making 4125 qualified First Aiders now in the service. A Bell first aid team from Montreal won the Wallace Nesbitt General Trophy in 1930—representing the industrial championship of Canada

During the year benefits and pensions were paid in 2986 cases, to the amount of $364,141. Sickness benefits were $41,180 less than in 1929, and accident benefits less by $10,500.

Under the Empolyees' Stock Plan, 11,659 telelphone workers are purchasing stock in the Company to a total of 48,708 shares, and 2878 employees have taken out insurance under the Life Insurance Plan.

At December 31st last there were 981,704 miles of wire on poles, and 2,127,201 miles of underground and submarine wire.

The total Bell pay roll last year was $21,688,004.

Average daily exchange connections in Ontario and Quebec totalled 5,301,947; daily long distance connections 70,637.

SACKVILLE NAMED BRANCH MANAGER

E. L. Sackville is Branch Manager of Manufacturers' Life For Central Ontario.

Word has been received from the head office of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company that E. L. Sackville, Peterborough, has been appointed Branch Manager for Central Ontario.

On January 1st, 1924, Mr. Sackville entered the Company's service as a personal producer, and on Feb-1st, 1925, was appointed District Manager. Under his able supervision the Agency Organization has developed and his work, particularly that of the past two years, has won him his well merited promotion. He is President of the Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association for the year 1931, and is playing an important part in the business life of this city.

OBITUARY

MRS. SUSANNAH DICKSON.

Mrs. Susannah Dickson passed away yesterday evening in Nicholl's Hospital after a long illness. The deceased has lived in Peterborough for the past forty years. Her husband, Alexander C. Dickson, a well-known drygoods merchant of this city, predeceased her on July 5, 1914. Mrs. Dickson leaves to mourn her loss one niece, Mrs. J. S. Brown of Ottawa.

A funeral service will be held at Comstock's funeral home Sunday evening at 8.30, with Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of the George street United Church, officiating. The remains will then be taken to Necropolis Cemetery, Toronto, for interment, at 11.30 a.m. Monday.

AFRICAN SCENES IN 'TRADER HORN'

Harry Carey Tells of Lions, Zebras and Hyenas.

FILM A SUCCESS.

You might wonder how we were able to photograph so many lions, even apart from the hard and fast action shots," Harry Carey remarked to an interviewer in a recollection of scenes in Africa where he made the recently shown film "Trader Horn." "Well, there were five or six lions around camp all the time howling for meat. They were attracted by the skinning that was going on. By the way, lions won't touch skinned meat. They get suspicious of flesh without skin. But hyenas will eat anything.

"One time a herd of 300 zebras were grazing peacefully. A hungry lion nosed quietly around the fringes of the herd and suddenly grabbed a zebra and broke his back with an awful swipe of his paw. The herd trotted about a hundred yards away and went right on grazing in full sight of the lion, who was devouring his kill. They knew the lion was a sport and wouldn't slaughter indiscriminately. The lions follow the herd, and the jackals and hyenas follows the lions. The jackals are a cross between a coyote and a fox. The lions don't mind them at all, and will let them sneak in and grab themselves a tidbit right under the lions' jaws. But the big fellow will bat a hyena silly if he gets too close. The hyenas make a death circle and edge in cautiously, waiting for the lion to finish. Hyenas, by the way, smell nearly as bad as the pygmies, and I have never seen anything so hard to stand as a pigmy. They smear themselves with an awful mixture of blood and other stuff to destroy the human odor, so as not to frighten animals away."

HUSK O'HARA SELLS NAMES OF HIS FANS

Addresses For One Cent Each Make Profit.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Costing him an average of one cent a letter to handle, Husk O'Hare, orchestra leader at the LaSalle hotel, converts the burden of radio fan mail into a neat profit for himself.

After assorting and classifying O'Hare disposes of his addresses at two cents a head. As each address is, by proof, a radio owner and listener-in, addresses are easy to sell to commercial companies.

While orchestra leaders in general welcome radio fan mail as an index to their popularity, all of them do not solicit mail, as this calls for the employment of stenographers and other costs of handling a large volume of correspondence. O'Hare, having discovered how to develop a profitable by-product, openly goes after fan mail and constantly invites listeners-in to write.

O'Hare has been around Chicago and Detroit for seven years and has a big following. He is said to receive several thousand letters a week.

KAY FRANCIS STALLED

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 21.—At Paramount last week Kay Francis was assigned to a maid's role in a feature.

Miss Francis suddenly became ill and later produced a doctor's certificate that she was unable to appear.

Miss Francis has entered into an agreement with Warners, following her Par terms, shortly expiring.

FIFI DORSAY ROLE-SHY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—Fifi Dorsay, scheduled to play the female lead in "Cure for the Blues," has been dropped from the cast of Will Rogers' next. At present she is unassigned.

According to Fox, this action is not further punishment for Fifi's hoax when she sent out fake messages of having been shanghaied on a freighter bound for South America.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

Charlie Chaplin's hair has become practically snow white. It took four policemen to escort him, together with Constance Collier, to the opening of his picture last Friday night. Ina Claire was in the audience, looking lovely in a midnight blue velvet evening wrap.

"The Man Who Came Back" (Farrell-Gaynor) again held off for another week in Regent theatre bookings, Ottawa, while censors argued. Fourth postponement.

They say it won't be long now for Gloria Swanson and Gene Markey, writer.

Anna May Wong brought suit for $50,000 damages against Joseph Rodini for the death of her mother, Toy Wong. The mother was killed in an automobile accident

Richard Dix has been adopted by the Klaw Indian tribe.

Norma Shearer will become a United States citizen May 8. She was born in Canada.

Pauline Starke has been a patient at the Glendale, Cal., sanitarium, since Jan. 25. Nervous breakdown.

Mrs. Duncan Renaldo, suing Edwina Booth for $50,000 heart balm, charges that Miss Booth is living with Duncan Renaldo, who is facing deportation under charges of illegal entry. The wife also declares the pair are guilty of misconduct. Mrs. Renaldo is also suing for divorce. Renaldo and Miss Booth appeared in "Trader Horn," a jungle picture that kept the company nine months in Africa.

Dorothy Mackaill goes into "The Reckless Hour" as her next for FN. John Francis Dillon will direct.

Tommy Clifford, boy actor brought here with Maureen O'Sullivan by Fox, returned to Ireland Feb. 14, on the "Coronia." Tommy had no prospects for employment in Hollywood.

Janet Gaynor has been allowed to go to Palm Springs for a rest, because of weakness following her appendicitis operation. "Merely Mary Ann," on which she was to start, may have to be assigned to someone else.

Mrs. Anne Rusling Young, mother of Kathryn Crawford, was arraigned on 27 counts of forging narcotic prescriptions. Unable to hire an attorney.

Wallace Beery and Marjorie Rambeau will be co-featured by Metro in "Sea Eagles," a naval aviation story. George Hill will direct.

Mary Carr, mother part player, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. She owes almost $13,000, including $1,000 debt to John Ford, director. Assets are about $300; counting a $5 wedding ring.

Syd Chaplin took the bankruptcy route for $60,000 on application of British International.

Par's return to music will be through specially created musical sequences, with Jack Oakie's football picture to follow "Dude Ranch" having 100 per cent underscore and dovetailed musical scenes.

"Nikki and Her Ward Birds," John Monk Saunders' Liberty serial, will be the third Saunders story out of four for Richard Barthelmess.

Clara Bow will go underworld in her next picture for Paramount, in a remake of "Kick In."

Charlie Chaplin has sailed for Europe Friday to attend the London premiere of "City Lights" as the Dominion Theatre March 2. It will be the comedian's first visit to his native heath in ten years and his second since 1913, when he came to America with "A Night in a London Music Hall" and stayed to go into motion pictures.

The cameras have started grinding on James Cruze's fourth Tiffany picture, "Salvation Nell," which numbers in its cast Ralph Graves, Sally O'Neill, Helen Chandler, Jason Robards, Charlotte Walker, De Witt Jennings and Matthew Betz.

"The Millionaire," the picture featuring George Arliss, was completed recently at the Warner Brothers' studios. Mr. Arliss's next film will be "Alexander Hamilton," from the play by himself and Mary P. Hamlin. In "The Millionaire," which has dialogue by Booth Tarkington, the distinguished actor is supported by Florence Arliss, David Manners, Evalyn Knapp, Noah Beery and Ivan Simpson.

Walter Huston will be seen next in "Upper Underworld," a story of the milk graft racket, which goes into production at the end of this month. Such experienced players as H. B. Warner, Doris Kenyon, Dudley Diges and John Halliday have been engaged for supporting roles.

"Stolen Heaven," featuring Nancy Carroll and Philip Holmes is the story of two outcasts, a dancer out of work and a young hold-up man, who make a bargain with life. With the $20,000 realized from his last "job" the two have their fling at Palm Beach, the understanding being that they will die together when the money is gone. This, of course, does not happen.

An all star cast, headed by Clive Brook, Richard Arlen, Jean Arthur and Regis Toomey, is being assembled by Paramount to play a new untitled drama by James Hilary Finn. It is a story of legal ethics and a lawyer's romance.

Raoul Walsh's new co-starring comedy for Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe will be called "Women of All Nations." And the women certainly will be of diversified types. The German-Norwegian Greta Nissen has the leading role. Fifi Dorsey, the oo-la-la French-Canadian, will provide sure complications. And Marjorie White and Ruth Warren also are in the cast. El Brendel, who assisted the co-starring team in previous broad comedies, again is working with them.

BANNED "MIKEY MOUSE"

Following their success in inducing the Austrian Government to suppress "All Quiet on the Western Front," says a Vienna correspondent, the near-Fascisti (anti-Semites) by a press campaign and a rowdy demonstration have succeeded in banning "Mickey Mouse" from Klagenfurt, Carinthia. The film, which was only introductory to a longer picture, was shown under the title of 'The Witching Hour.' It was attacked as "disgraceful" because of a comic dance of dead men's bones. Angry crowds of peaasnts and tradesmen howled it down as blasphemous, and the management was compelled to delete it from the program.

RYERSON RITCHIE READS ADDRESS

Principal Speaker at February Meeting of Local Women's Council.

REPORTS READ.

The February meeting of the Women's Council held in the Green Room of the Y.M.C.A. Thursday afternoon, was largely attended. The President, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, presided and after the reports of the secretary, Mrs. K. Wightman and the financial statementby Mrs. E. Wand, the corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. Law read the Provincial Annual Report. This was followed by short reports by convenors of committees, Mrs. G. Helson giving a paper on government grading of meat.

The speaker of the afternoon was Ryerson Ritchie who gave a splendid address on organization. The speaker said he considered it a great privilege to be able to speak to such a representative organization. He had watched the progress of the National body and Local Council with ever increasing interest. You have taken cognizance of many things that help or hinder and have achieved some very notable results. Organization will facilitate your progress and help simplify and systematize much of the work that involves policy, technique and continuity of attention you will evolve standards in defining ways and means, motives and methods, aptitudes and abilities, all harmonizing with an integrity of character befitting your organization and its high purposes.

Your main concern is the development of collective character and conduct.—Nothing is comparable with that concern because the material pursuits of life are reflective or secondary. If our people passing from one generation to another, cultivate the arts and moralities, the principles and manners of a higher standard than that of yesterday, they will have good soil. Good seed and rich harvests.

Thirty six societies in the city are allied with and compose your Council. No group is more able to perceive and influence the tendencies or trends of to-day and to-morrow; none is more fit to help or restrain them. Nor is any better qualified to sustain public sentiment in support of principles, policies and reforms that affect the body politic and particularly the minds, manners and culture of the generation that will follow yours.

Looking over this populous nearby district, you will find many institutions engaged in social, religious or benevolent work that would benefit through relationship such as you have among the societies now allied with the Council. The Peterborough Council is the only branch of the National Council within these five counties. It is not an exaggeration to say that hundreds, perhaps thousands, of women within that area, are as keenly interested as you are in the work you have in hand. The city is to country people, a centre of interest and attraction, hence their attitude is one of friendliness. It is the centre of commerce, industry and education. The phenomenal rise of the city during the last two or three decades, emphasized its value as a social as well as a business centre.

Organization has played the major part in the rapid unprecedented expansion of the city. Those cities that have organized for growth, for culture of the arts, that contribute to the comfort, happiness and elevation of humanity, have so multiplied and progressed that now they include the greater part of the population Those cities, that have been the best organized, have made the best progress. This principle is applicable, in the broad field of human endeavor especially in a co-operative work, such as that of the National Council of Women, of which your own Council is a branch.

In conclusion, he said the mission and the Women's Council was to cultivate a high moral standard. In so far as you succeed to that extent, you are contributing to the welfare of this city and it contigious territory. The problem before you is your own organization and your fitness to meet the duties, that must fall to you.

A hearty vote of thanks was voiced to the speaker by Miss Lancaster, seconded by Mrs. Helson, and extended to Mr. Ritchie by Mrs. Edwards. The meeting was closed with the National Anthem.

ANYTHING FOR PUBLICITY

That Helen Tweltrees fables in a Sunday paper, for instance....Helen is quoted as chirping that every movie producer wanted her to change her name from Twelvetrees to "Trees" or something shorter...."But I'm superstitious," the paper quotes her, "and I refused to be known by any other name." The sheet then proceeds to report that Twelvetrees is her family tag...Well, Twelvetrees isn't... Her real tag is Helen Jurgen, as her Brooklyn schoolmates knew her.

BOARD OF EDUCATION PLAN APPROVED BY CONGREGATION

Committee Will Consider Programs to be Given by Any of Church Organizations.

FAVORABLE REPORTS READ.

The annual congregation meeting of Saint Andrew' United Church, Millbrook, was held in the Sunday School hall on Wednesday evening, with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., in the chair.

In his opening address, following prayer by the superintendent, W. Fred Fallis, the pastor spoke of the activities of the year in appreciative terms urging the privilege of serving God, and "being in some way instrumental in the hands of the Divine Spirit for promoting His cause and His Kingdom."

Sessions Report.

Dr. A. Jemison, clerk of the Session, gave the first report, stressing the fact that "this congregation has reason to be deeply grateful for the interest which has been so well maintained in the church services."

Mention was also made of the fine work done by the choir, the re-decoration of the basement paid for entirely by the Sunday School, the improved attendance at the quarterly communion services, and the induction of two new elders, Jas. Might and J. H. George, in recent months.

A suggestion passed on from the Session, and unanimously endorsed by the congregation, after being brought before the meeting by Rev. Mr. Jones, was the election of a Board of Education, which will have as its chief duty, the consideration of all programs to be given by any organization of the church, either on a Sunday, or a week night.

The personnell of the committee is Messrs. M. McDowell, Dr. A. Jemison, W. Fred Fallis, Rev. Mr. Jones, Mrs. H W. Hohnston and Miss Pearl Burnham.

Treasurers Report.

G. E. Burnham, treasurer of the church funds, reported a total raised during 1930 of $3959.33, this including a balance on hand at the beginning of 1930 of $513.82; total expenditures were $3800.52, and the balance now on hand is $158.80. The only liability is a note for $450 which does not mature until December, of the present year.

Mrs. I. M. Nattress, secretary of the Ladies' Association, read an encouraging report, showing 11 regular meetings held with an average of 18 members present; one death, one removal, and four new members, and recommending that every woman connected with the congregation should join the ladies' organization. The roll now has 63 names listed; a total of $740.50 was raised, and a fair balance is still on hand,

The choir was reported on by the leader, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, who spoke of it as "being before the congregation more than any oter orgination of the church."

Miss Estelle Hetherington told of the Teacher-Training activities for the past year, mentioning that three sections of the study unit had been covered during 1930, and all candidates had passed their examinations. Classes are under way for the current year, and new members will be cordially welcomed, two of the local Sunday School pupils are writing this week in connection with their study course at the Normal School, Peterborough.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary was reported by the secretary, Mrs. J. H. George. The supply bale had been valued at fifty dollars, and a total of $375.00 had been sent to the Branch Terasurer. There are ninety-five members including twenty life members, and the average attendance had been forty Miss Jean L. Burnham gave the account of the Mission Circle activities, in the absence of the secretary, Miss C Luxon, the total amount sent to the Presbyterial treasurer being $100. There were ten meetings, one as a tea in November: one as a picnic with the W.M.S. Two pageants.

Sunshine Mission Band.

The Sunshine Mission Band was reported by one of its leaders, Miss Phyllis Kidd, who gave a total of thirty-two annual members, and six life members, the average attendance last year was nineteen. Practical activities had marked the year's work, and one hundred dollars was the amount remitted to the Presbyterial Secretary in December.

The superintendent, W. Fred Fallis, gave an encouraging account of the work of the Sunday School for the year 1930, mentioning a total of 306 on the roll, with 26 teachers and officers. The average attendance in 1930 was 154; average verses 84; and average collection $6.29. So far in 1931, the lowest attendance has been 202, with as high as 233 one Sunday, and an offering of $9.44; the lowest collection this year was $7.25. Temperance and missionary instruction has been given systematically, and for the current year literature to the amount of approximately $260 has been ordered from the Book Room; the increased attendance has made it necessary to order more papers for the boys and girls, and the primary supplies are still another extra as graded lessons are used in this department.

The Young Worshippers' League in 1930 had an enrollment of 48, twenty of whom received awards for attendance at morning worship for twenty-six Sundays and over. Rev. Joseph Wilks' legacy provided generously for the purchase of books of good quality, and this will continue for at least five years before the amount stipulated is exhausted. Miss Marian O'Brian is the secretary.

The Primary Department had 54 children last year, fifteen being promoted to the larger school after the new year. Forty-two names are now on the roll, and new children are coming in almost every Sunday; twenty-two babies are on the Cradle Roll, Mrs. G. E. Burnham being the capable superintendent. Mrs. J. H. Might has charge of the Beginners' class, and Miss Marjorie Skitch is the organist.

The Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group reported twenty-six members, ten dollars given the M. and M. fund of the church, $3 to the Star Santa Clause fund, and a fair balance on hand. Two members were sent to the provincial C.G.I.T. Camp last August at an expense of thirty dollars, and this project will be again financed this season.

W. A. O'Brian, representative to the Presbytery, gave an interesting report of the activities of that body, dwelling especially on the local allocation of $1500 to the M. and M. fund, and listing the churches of the Presbytery in their contributions to this important obligation. After extended discussion it was decided, on motion, to have a canvas of the entire congregation between now and next May, not for money but for individual pledges of a definite amount to be paid by the end of December, Sunday by Sunday being recommended as the best way of redeeming the pledge. The canvas in December has not been found satisfactory, owing to the many other claims which come in at that time of the year.

Two elders, whose time on the Session had expired, were re-elected, Messrs. Joshua Whitefield, and H. W. Johnston, and the Board of Stewards was elected as follows: Messrs. M. McDowell, H. A. Fallis, John McKnight, W. G. Hetherington, H. C. Argue, W. A. O'Brian and Thomas Douglas.

On motion, it was decided to have the church annual reports printed within the next two or three weeks, rather than later in the year, so figures of the treasurer's report may exactly tally with those in the annual financial statement. The Sunday School treasurer, W. G. Hetherington, reported a total raised of $779.86 and a balance on hand of $63.83. The president of the Young Peoples' Society being absent through illness, the pastor mentioned $35 given the M. and M. Fund of the church, a delegate at the annual Winter School at Cobourg, and commendable activities carried on in the spirit of harmony and with growth and interesting programs featuring the year's work.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by J. H. George.

PERU UPRISING ENDS IN DEFEAT

Sixty Are Slain Before Gov't Forces Take Last Rebel Stronghold.

Capture Several Notables.

LIMA, Peru., Feb. 21. (A.P.)—The Peruvian Revolutionary Government headed by Lieutenant Colonel Luis M. Sanchez Cerro emerged triumphant to-day from the maze of intrigue and reactionary plotting which has threatened for months, culminating in an unsuccessful military uprising yesterday at Lima and Callao.

Sixty one persons were counted dead to-day in the revolt, which began before dawn with an attack on the Presidential Palace in Lima and ended at 1.20 p.m. when the last rebel stronghold, the old fortress Real Felipe at Callao, capitulated before a loyal infantry advance.

Of the 61 persons killed, only about 20 were rebels. Many others were taken prisoner and Colonel Sanchez in two public pronouncements said that most severe military penalties would be inflicted. The prisoners included the heads of the movement, General Pablo Martinez, Colonel Zorilla Lujan, and Captain Arenas chief of the Callao police force.

Hemorrhoids

Or piles are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is a serious matter to have piles and one person in four has them at one time or another. The annoyance and distress is great. It is difficult to obtain lasting relief. So much so that a surgical operation may be considered necessary. That is unless your physician is familiar with Dr. Chase's Ointment for many doctors recommend this treatment to their patients.

For nearly half a century Dr. Chase's Ointment has been the never failing relief for itching, bleeding and protruding piles. It is now very generally known by the medical profession, and the public generally, as the standard treatment for this torturing ailment.

Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Ointment for "users are boosters" in this case. Relief comes quickly and you can obtain the ointment at any drug store.

TIME TO START FORMING PLANS FOR THE GARDEN

Lot Ten by Twenty May Be Transformed Into Picture of Changing Beauty.

MUCH FUN—LITTLE COST

Put Flowers for Cutting and Vegetables Most Often Used Near the Door.

But why bother about gardening now, with the echoes of New Year's celebrations just dying away, your average person may ask? True, here in Canada, we have a bit of winter still before us and it will be some weeks before we can sally forth, spade in hand. But right at this point we might as well start shattering illusions by explaining that a good deal of success in gardening, and not a little pleasure too, lies in planning.

The more we picture what we are going to do, the better the results. It is not necessary to worry over lack of means or experience. We can spend just as little as we like and we can get fun and satisfaction transforming a ten by twenty lot into some constantly changing picture of natural beauty. But what about the children? By all means leave them a place to play, or better still, allow them to associate in the work of planning and planting. Moreover, it is not necessary nor advisable to cover the whole place with flower beds.

Better results can be obtained by seeding down the central portion in grass which makes a much more satisfactory playground than dust or cinders, and then skilfully planting the edges with flowers, shrubbery and creepers which will lend privacy and screen unlovely fences and abrupt, straight lines. As for experience, every one must start somewhere. This will come as spring and the flowers will come, and we will enjoy the process. It is preferable to plot our plans on paper, roughly drawing them to a scale.

Plan Permanently

If one is the owner of the property something permanent should be worked out, the development to take place over a period of years. Against the house, breaking the rigid lines and corners, will be creepers such as Boston Ivy and Virginia Creeper. In front of this we can put shrubbery or perhaps a tree or two and then flowers, perennials or annuals or maybe some spring flowering bulbs to go in next fall. Generally speaking, the informal plan is much the best. This will mean the taller growing plants like the dahlias, cosmos, giant zinnias, delphiniums, hollyhocks, annual larkspurs and such things at the back, gradually tapering down to the little, tiny things like dwarf nasturtiums, marigolds and finally alyssum, lobelia and other edging plants. There will be paths to lay out, which should curve around the corners, or if there is not a reason make one by setting out a group of shrubbery and winding your path about this. Straight driveways, garages, necessary but ugly, telephone poles and sewer connections to screen.

In our plans we must take several factors into consideration. The time of flowering is important so that we will have something in bloom all the time. Colors must be noted to prevent clashing. Heights are important or we are liable to have one flower hidden by another. But we have all this vital information in our old friend the seed catalogue which, along with a good bulletin on gardening, procurable from either the Provincial or Federal Department of Agriculture. Carrying out the informal idea, it is well to plant flowers in clumps of several specimens of the same variety and color.

When we turn to our vegetable plans, however, we must be formal with straight rows, carefully planting rows of early and smaller stuff in between those of taller and later plants so that we will get more out of our limited space. Another point to remember in both the vegetable and flower garden is to have those things that require most attention like flowers for cutting and vegetables such as lettuce and onions which are used frequently, near the door or in any case near some supply of water. But there is no hurry about actual details. The better plan is to investigate our wants in a general way and also the means at our disposal and gradually maturing final decisions.

Laying Contests Aided Production

During the ten years since Egg Laying Contests have been conducted by the Experimental Farms Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture a steady increase in the volume of egg production is noted. In 1929 the average of 5,256 birds trapested in these contests was 176.5 eggs per bird, an increase of fifty-four eggs per bird over 1919.

Leave Outdoor Wintered Bees in Cases Till End of May or Early June.

(Experimental Farms Note)

Springtime is the most critical period in the life of the bee colony because it is then that the bees are usually fewer in numbers and lower vitality than at any other period of the year, and furthermore, the food supply is too often inadequate at this time.

It is also during the spring months that the heaviest strain is placed upon the colony, for in spite of its weakened condition, it is called upon to produce a huge force of bees within a few weeks in order that these bees may be in time to gather the harvest. It behooves the beekeeper, therefore, to be very careful in his spring manipulations, otherwise he may weaken rather than strengthen his colonies.

Colonies Must be Strong

The object of all early manipulations is to produce bees for the harvest, and anything that will defeat this object must be avoided. Only strong colonies, headed by prolific queens, supplied with an abundance of food and sufficient room, and well protected can produce an efficient field force of bees. Spring weather is very treacherous, therefore, leave the bees in their winter quarters as long as possible, provided of course, they are contented there.

Cellar wintered bees are best left in until willows are yielding pollen. Outdoor wintered bees are best in their cases until the latter end of May or early June. Do not keep a poor failing queen any longer than it takes to replace her with a good one. Do not let the bees once suspect that there is a danger of starvation, otherwise brood rearing will be curtailed. If stores are running low, give the bees honey or sugar syrup. Weak colonies are low in brood producing power. Strengthen them either by uniting, or by the Alexander plan. Do not weaken the colonies by exposing them to cold driving winds, but protect them with wrapping, cases, or windbreaks.

Reduce Hive Entrances

Further, protect them from cold or robbing by reducing the hive entrances. Avoid excess handling for especially during cool weather, it is easy to chill brood and thus weaken the colony. Avoid over-crowding during late spring, as it encourages early swarming which is highly undesirable. Avoid pessimism; it kills the joy of bee-keeping.

Advises Compulsory Poultry Regulations

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 21 (C.P.)—Saskatchewan poultry suffer from tuberculosis and fall cholera to a marked degree, according to Dr. J. S. Fulton, University of Saskatchewan. Dr. Fulton addressed members of the Saskatchewan Poultry Board recently and informed them that the health of birds in the province was not satisfactory.

He propounded methods of pullorum test work in eradicating poultry disease.

The board passed a resolution urging the federal government to make compulsory regulations respecting grading and marketing of dressed poultry.

ORCHARDS SHOULD BE INSPECTED DURING FEBRUARY FOR BLACK KNOT

Pruning Alone in Most Cases Will Prove Effective Cure.

BURN INFECTED BRANCHES

(Experimental Farms Note)

Black knot of plums and cherries is a fungous disease which is easily recognized by the black, conspicuous galls which it causes on twigs and branches.

The following control measures, which have been found to be successful from experiments carried out at the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology, St. Catharines, are suggested for Ontario growers: (1) the cutting out of groups or thickets of wild cherries or plums adjacent to cultivated trees; (2) pruning of affected cultivated trees; (3) spraying orchards to prevent new infections. In some districts the wild plums and cherries are no menace to the cultivated orchards and consequently their degree of infection ought to be locally ascertained before passing judgment on the necessity for their removal.

Burn Prunings

In the treatment of cultivated trees several precautions should be taken. The fungus is perennial in affected branches and extends beyond the external evidence of the knots. The diseased branches should, therefore, be pruned about four inches below the visible boundary of the knot. These prunings ought to be collected and burned. Orchards should be inspected and the knots removed several times each year, namely (1) in February or early March, before the winter spores of the fungus mature, (2) May when the new knots spear yellowish-brown in color and before the summer spores of the fungus mature. Any knots that are overlooked in the first inspections can be removed late in the fall. In regions where outside sources of infection can be largely eliminated, pruning alone should serve to hold the disease in check.

In locations where persistent surgical treatment is not sufficiently effective, spraying has greatly reduced the number of infections. The following applications are recommended: (1) A dormant spray applied early in April. For this spray both oil and emulsion Bordeaux and lime sulphur (1:40) have proved effective; (2) a shuck spray consisting of lime sulphur (1:40) applied around the end of May in the Niagara Peninsula. A third spray also consisting of lime sulphur (1:40) applied two weeks later than the shuck spray is useful in some seasons by virtue of its reducing infections from the summer stage of the fungus which usually matures in early June. Detailed information regarding spraying or other control measures can be obtained by communicating with the Dominion Botanist, Experimental Farms Branch, Ottawa, or with the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology in your province.

WHY IT IS HARD TO KILL WEEDS

Majority Have Come From Older Lands Where They Have Held Their Own for Ages.

PRODUCE MUCH SEED

(Experimental Farms Note)

Each kind of weed has a life history of its own, and the reason why one is hard to kill may not be at all the chief reason why another persists. Some of the principal reasons though are the following:—

1—They are naturally adapted for life in gardens, fields, and the surroundings of man. They might be easy to kill, or would die out of themselves, if they happened to start growth in the dense shade of a woodland would be easy to kill, or hard to keep alive, in the unnatural environment (for them) of our fields and gardens. Most of our weeds have come from older lands where they have held their own against man for ages, in just such an environment. Oftentimes the crops they grow with are less hardy and agressive than they are, and can only survive and thrive as they are cared for by the farmer, while the weeds only seed to be left alone to win out in the race for light, space, water and plant food.

2—An immense quantity of seed is produced by some weds, especially by annuals and biennials, the resulting pollution of the soil requiring years of cleaning, even if no more plants are allowed to go to seed.

3—Many species have vigorous perennial root systems (thistles, dandelions etc.) which renew growth until repeated destruction of the tops at every fresh appearance, starves them.

4—Many weeds have ingenious adaptions as plumes, hooked prickles, "tumble weed" form of growth, etc. for the wide dispersal of their seed.

5—Sometimes weeds persist for the simple reason that farmers will keep on re-seeding their land with crop seeds containing weed seeds, rather than pay a little more for pure seed.

6—Weeds may seem harder to kill than they really are, because we half-kill them, and then forget about them until they have become troublesome again. "Eternal vigilance is the price of safety."

7—Weed control is sometimes rendered difficult because neighbors neglect to do their share, and the careful farmer suffers with the rest. Co-operation is needed.

ARRANGEMENTS WELL UNDER WAY FOR QUINTE DISTRICT SEED FAIR

Event Will Be Staged in Peterborough From March 11-13 —Open to 6 Counties.

PREMIUM LIST—J. B. NELSON

Arrangements are now in hand for the fifth annual Quante District Seed Fair which is to be held in this city from March 11-13 inclusive, and attractive brochures are off the press containing detailed information for exhibitors as to the rules and regulations governing the fair and also containing a comprehensive premium list. The pamphlets may be obtained on application to J. B. Nelson, fair secretary and treasurer, of the local branch of the Department of Agriculture.

The Quinte District Seed Fair is primarily educational and is aiming to encourage the production of better and more profitable crops together with the use of better cleaning machinery. Exhibits must have been grown, selected and prepared by the exhibitor in the year 1930.

Open to Six Counties

The Fair is open to the six counties of Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington, and already entries are being received in encouraging numbers.

Among the championship cups are those awarded by W. E. Maybee and W. E. Tummon, M.P., for best oats; best fall wheat donated by John Elliott; best barley, donated by J. Hubbs, ex-M.P. and Dr. Embury, M.P.; best aslike, donated by Judge W. E. Raney; best alfalfa, donated by Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., and best bushel of potatoes, donated by F. W. Bowmen, M.P.

There is also the Warden's Cup, open to competitors from each county who will exhibit four bushels of registered oats, barley or certified potatoes to each member of the winning teams.

Junior farmers' judging competitions and individual judging competitions are also included in the list and help to round out a very attractive program, which will doubtless have a widespread appeal among the agriculturists of the district.

WARD OFF FLU

By Keeping the Blood Rich and Pure.

To guard your health against the ravages of that dreaded disease—flu—the blood must be in the very best condition. It must be rich, red and health-giving.

Dr. Williams Pink Pills make it easy to keep the blood in this condition. Their whole mission is to make rich, red blood and once having supplied your body with this pure blood it is easy to keep it that way by the occasional use of these pills.

If your blood is thin and impure you are a fit subject for flu and must rebuild the blood to ward off the trouble. If, unfortunately, you are seized with this dreaded disease before you have time to rebuild the blood a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will speedily bring you back to robust health and prevent the many dangerous after-effects of the trouble. The Pills are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CATTLE BREEDING EXPERIMENTS GIVE VERY INTERESTING RESULTS

Tests Reveal Inbreeding Does Not Necessarily Lower Vitality.

CHAMPIONS PRODUCED

(Experimental Farms Note)

An experiment was started at the Cap Rouge Experimental Station some fifteen years ago to compare close breeding, line breeding, and outcrossing of dairy cattle. That inbreeding does not necesarily lower vitality is shown by the following instances: Finette was bred to her son Victor and gave Gougou who became the champion 2 year old producer of the breed. The latter did not lack stamina as she qualified for Record of Performance as a 3 year old, as a 4 year old, and as a mature cow. She gave Jeanne, the champion 305 day mature cow of the breed, and Iliade who was at one time champion 3 year old producer.

Line Breeding

The good effects of line breeding are shown in the case of Colombelle who, to the service of Delphis, gave Albertine with a yield of 228 pounds of fat, as a two year old. Albertine, bred to Elegant, a son of Delphis, gave Herodiade with a production of 354 pounds of fat, as a 2 yearold. Herodiade, bred to Champion, a grandson of Delphis, gave Lumina, the champion 2 year old of the breed up to 1927, with 475 pounds of fat.

It must not be forgotten, however, that concentration of blood will increase defects as well as qualities, so that the main requisite is the use of animals of high vitality having no defects in common.

CHANGE WATER DAILY FOR CHICKS

Put Fountains on Platform to Wet Litter Separate From Run.

REDUCES DISEASE

We hardly can overestimate the importance of fresh clean water for the baby chicks. It constitutes more than half of the chick's body, and in addition it helps to soften and digest the food, plus assisting in the carrying of waste out of the system.

For the first week the chicks should receive luke-warm water.

It is generally dangerous to put any disinfectant in the drinking water. Some may poison the chocks, while others may not go so well with the feed. Clean luke-warm water given in clean drinking fountains is by far the safest. Make it a point to thoroughly clean the drinking vessels once a day, and if convenient, scald them.

If not using a wire floor in the brooderhouse, it is best to put the drinking fountains on a platform with a wire cloth top. This will keep the chicks away from the wet litter, brought about by the water they spill. The litter around the drinking fountains offers a wonderful chance for infection of cocoidiosis and kindred diseases.

DISTRICT NOTES

By Examiner Correspondents

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 21 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The grading statistics show the relative positions of the first five counties for average score for cheese production.

Counties	No. box.,	1st & spec.,	av.
Hastings	67194	97.9	92.660
Victoria	1854	96.5	92.622
Northumber'd	30720	96.4	92.507
Prince Ed.	27506	95.3	92.466
Carlton .	42431	96.9	92.466

Mr. John Campbell, formerly maker at the IXL factory but lately employed by the Citizens Dairy, Belleville, was a visitor to this district last week.

Some extracts from an address by Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner. "In 1923 according to Woddols Annual Review on world world markets New Zealand cheese was 85/100 of a cent higher than the Canadian product. That was the year grading was started in this country. Since that time there has been a premium of from ½ to 2½ cents per pound for Canadian cheese. —New Zealand cheese makers, urged on by their directors have over reached themselves too often by increasing yield at expense of quality, in other words they have left too much moisture in their cheese.—Unless some extraordinary demand arises for milk for other purposes, the cheese industry will be with us for a long time yet. The increasing premium as the supply grows less will make it more difficult to tempt patrons away from the cheese factory."

In the milk per acre competition sponsored by the Western Dairyman's Association Fred R. Thornton of Tharnesford with 75 acres and seventeen cows produced 1619 pounds of milk, 51.6 pounds of butterfat, per acre.

Attending the short course for cheese makers at the Dairy School, Kingston, this week are the following from this district: Messrs. Jas. and Leslie Shillinglaw, Fred and Wesley Remington, W. V. Drewry and J. A. Murray.

Fighting Insects Is Found to Pay

A saving of $26,000 in one district in Alberta through a local control campaign in connection with the sugar beet crop, and another case of a saving of $5,900 on one farm alone as the result of control work with the wheat stem sawfly, show rather conclusively the value of the work being carried out under the direction of the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

BROODER STOVE PLAYS BIG PART RAISING CHICKS

Even Though Brooding is Several Weeks Off, See That Stove is Working.

EXAMINE GRATES, PIPES

Watch How Chicks Act Around Stove to Determine Its Faults.

No matter of how good quality the baby chicks are and the care and feed that you give them, they will not grow into profitable birds if the brooder stove should go haywire and the chicks get chilled or overheated.

The brooder stove is one of the most important factors in successful brooding. Even though you may not expect to brood chicks for several weeks, set it up and see that it is in working order. Examine the grates to make sure that they are not burned out and go over the stove pipes to see if they are rusty so that they will not leak while the brooder is full of chicks.

Inasmuch as the efficiency of the brooder stove depends on the thermostat, be sure it is in working order. If there is any doubt as to its condition, you probably would be better off to get a new one.

Three days before you expect to put the chicks in the brooder, start the stove so that you will have time to regulate it. The temperature at the edge of the hover two to three inches from the floor should be about 100 degrees. If upon putting the chicks in the brooder they crowd close to the stove, it is too low; while if they crowd together in one corner, it is usually due to a floor draft. When the temperature is too high, the chicks will be found trying to get away from the stove. Chicks that are comfortable will encircle the brooder stove at night.

ORCHARDS RESPOND TO EXTRA FEEDING

Tests Supervised by O.A.C. Show Big Gain in Yield Where Niliate Used.

Coming slowly into maturity, and representing a very considerable investment, an apple orchard must give good annual yields to prove a really profitable proposition. Most young commercial orchards in Ontario to-day consist of well-chosen varieties; the important factors of drainage, pruning, spraying and cultivation or sod culture are seldom neglected. Many orchards, however, fail to yield as they should because the all-important matter of nutrition has been neglected, or perhaps not even considered. One has only to drive through the apple districts to see many orchards with thin, yellowish foliage that is a clear indication of nitrogen starvation.

In order to find out the possible advantages of annual spring applications of nitrogen, in the form of Chilean nitrate of soda, the Ontario Agricultural College supervised in 1929 and 1930 a number of orchard experiments throughout the Province. The results, especially in the second year, have been striking. Given in averages it was found that with trees fertilized both in 1929 and 1930, a yield of 1504 bushels of apples per acre was secured, on sandy orchard soils, against 652.2 bushels where no nitrate was used; an increase of 823.9 bushels. On clay soils, the effect of two years' applications of nitrate showed an average yield of 335 bushels per acre against 142.4 bushels without nitrate; a gain of 192.6 bushels. In either case, the expenditure for the nitrate, from 200 to 300 pounds per acre, was well repaid.

The College also noted a marked increase in tree vigor and growth, great improvement in color and appearance of foliage and a lower percentage of drop.

Sheep Raising Still Profitable On Farm

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 21 (C.P.)—The Saskatchewan Sheep Breeders' Association will ask the Dominion government to stiffen the tariff on wool. At the annual convention here recently the members went on record as favoring a tariff equal to that given the woollen manufacturers or manufacturers of semi-manufactured woollen goods.

Despite the low price of wool, sheep were a source of profit to the farmer to-day, it was declared by delegates. Woollen-mills were increasing their staffs and more activity prevailed than before the war.

SELECTING BREED FOR DAIRY HERD REQUIRES CARE

Before White Man Came Cattle Were Unknown on Continent.

EUROPE ORIGINAL HOME

Brief Historical Background of Five Popular Breeds in America Given.

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S.

The cow is not a native American animal. Before the white man came to this continent cattle were unknown here.

Europe is the home of the dairy cow. Several thousand years ago, so it is supposed, the process of taming the wild cattle of Asia began. It is an interesting commentary on the important place the cow holds in modern civilization that scientists have devoted years to a study of historical records in order to be better acquainted with cattle. Some of the oldestruins, which have been excavated, reveal the skulls of the ancestors of the modern herd.

The selection of a breed, either by the farmer who is just entering the dairy business, or the farmer who desires to improve his herd by introducing a breed, is one that deserves careful consideration. I believe a brief historical background of the five popular breeds in America will be of interest. Importation of these breeds from Europe have been very large, especially in the last fifty years. So let us examine the biographies and pick our favorites.

Jerseys

These cattle take their name from Jersey Island where they originated. It is in the English Channel between France and England. They are the smallest in size of any of the popular dairy breeds, and are noted for their beauty and the richness of their milk. The color of the Jerseys varies greatly. The most common color is fawn with black shadings below and on the head, the bulls being darker than the cows. The Jerseys, although small, are wonderful producers of rich milk. A few of them under official test have given upwards of 10 tons (20,000 pounds) milk in 365 days, that tested over 1,400 pounds of butter.

Holstein-Friesians

This breed originated in Holland. The compound name Holstein-Friesian is the official name of the breed in America, but in common usage now in America the breed is called Holstein. They are the largest of the dairy breeds, and are black and white in color. They are noted for the quantity of milk they give. More than 100 of these cows have given under official test over 15 tons of milk each in 365 days. This is an average of over 10 gallons of milk each day for 365 days, yielding more than 1,500 pounds of butter. This is more than 8 or 10 of the average dairy cows on many of our farms will produce.

Guernseys

The Guernsey breed originated on the Island of Guernsey, which is one of the channel islands not far from Jersey Island. The Guernseys are a little larger than the Jerseys and are coarser boned and more irregular in conformation. The color resembles the Jersey in general, but includes some colors not found in that breed. In the yield of milk and fat the Jersey and Guernseys are not far apart, the Jerseys leading slightly in richness of milk and the Guernseys in total milk production.

Ayrshires

The native home of this breed is the Shire of Ayr in southwest Scotland, hence the name. It is comparatively a new breed, but has made wonderful advancement in a short time. In size the Ayrshire ranks between the Jersey and Holstein breeds, being very much the same as the Guernseys. The common color is spotted red or brown and white in varying proportions. As a breed the Ayrshires are noted for a good, uniform production of milk.

Brown Swiss

This breed had its origin in Switzerland. Large numbers of these cattle are kept there for cheese and butter making which forms one of the largest industries in that country. In milk and butterfat production, this breed shows a very satisfactory yield. The color varies considerably in shade. It is called brown, but more of a mouse color is prevalent.

There is not a great deal of difference in the dairy breeds so far as production is concerned. It is more a matter of choice. For instance, there is no best breed. It is the breeding up of a family or strain to high milk and butterfat production that really counts. It is the blood lines or breeding that makes some cows more valuable than others.

Other conditions which may influence your selection are the breeds most common in your neighborhood, the cost of pure breed foundation stock, and your judgment of the demand for surplus animals from your herd.

It is estimated that only 3% of the dairy cattle in the United States are pure-bred, which means that the major production of milk comes from grade herds.

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous

CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 21.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent). Two interesting social functions are listed for the near future. On March 18 the W.M.S. of St. John's United Church will stage their annual St. Patrick's entertainment in the Sunday School room, and on March 24 another Ward Tea will be held by the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Mr W. I. Stillman, secretary treasurer of the Truth Council, No. 202, Campbellford Royal Templars of Temperance, has been appointed as delegate from the local council and will attend the annual Dominion Council to be held in Toronto on February 24 and 25.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Peter Corkery is very ill at his home here.

Many of the Campbellford hockey fans visited Stirling on Friday evening to see the clash between that team and Tweed.

Mrs. Cora Thompson, who has spent the past year in Stirling has returned to her home in Seymour East.

Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, is to have a powerful wireless station for oversea telegrams.

WEDDINGS

SPENCER—LUSK

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 21.—A pretty wedding took place in Holloway Street United Church parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, February 18th, when Ada Almeda daugter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Lusk of Belleville became the bride of Mr. Oscar Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spencer. Rev. Harold B. Neal officiated. The bride looked lovely in a frock of blue canton crepe with hat to match. Miss Thelma Reddick who was bridesmand was becomingly attired in yellow canton crepe. The groom was attended by Mr. Fred Lusk brother of the bride. After their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will reside in Trenton.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN MACDONALD

DUNSFORD, Feb. 21. (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred on Friday morning, February 19 of Mrs. John MacDonald, age 87 years, who has been a life long resident of this county.

Mrs. Macdonald has been in poor health for some time but was able to go around until about a week ago when she caught cold which developed into pneumonia. Her husband predeceased her 14 months ago.

The funeral was held on Saturday, February 21, from her home here with service at the house at 2 o'clock. Interment at Dunsford Cemetery.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving mother are four daughters, Mrs. Jessie Tully, Bobcaygeon, Mrs. Annie Maunders of Toronto, Mrs. H. Morrison, Lindsay, Miss Minnie at home, also two sons, Peter of California and Bill at home.

EDWARD G. MORRISSEY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, February 21. — The death occurred recently in Oklahoma of Edward G. Morrissey, a former resident of this place.

The late Edward Morrissey was born and received his education here, and when a young man went out west where he lived until the death of his brother, the late Andrew Morrissey, a few years ago. He then came back and worked the old homestead until last year, when he went west again.

Deceased was a favorite with young and old. He was over 70 years of age.

His funeral was held in Oklahoma. His wife and one son pre-deceased him, and surviving him are one son at home and three sisters: Mrs. Henry Matthews, in Toronto, Mrs. Clare McGuire and Miss B. A., in Lindsay.

LILLICO MOTORS HAVE EXHIBIT

New Dodge and Plymouth Cars on Display in Showroom.

ON WATER STREET.

Ivan T. Lillico has been prominent in the Peterborough automobile industry for some time, and his many friends are expecting him to make rapid strides in the selling field, with the new 1931 Dodge cars, trucks, and the popular Plymouth cars. Established in the completely renovated show rooms formerly occupied by A. Brown & Son, the Dodge is housed attractively and with ample room for effective display. Foremost among the new models, the Dodge Eight, stands supreme. Brilliantly and successfully, this car crowns Dodge dependability with new beauty, new performance, and new luxury. The new Dodge eight is impressive in size. It is generously roomy—superb in riding qualities. Its eight-cylinder engine develops 84 brake horsepower. Flashing acceleration and power are achieved with high efficiency and notable economy.

The frame is an entirely new double-drop type with box center—the strongest frame Dodge has ever built. By means of this frame, body height is reduced four inches without sacrifice of headroom, ease of getting in or out, or road clearance. Next in startling new features, the eight-in-line Dodge is notable for beauty of design, precision of manufacture and outstanding performance a tribute to the demand by the motor-buying public for an improved product year after year. Yet, unlike most improved commodities the price is within the reach of thousands of discriminating buyers.

In a class by itself, the new Dodge Six is a car which links fine tradition with a vital spirit of modern progress. A true Dodge product, it embodies in every detail the basic soundness upon which Dodge Bros. reputation was founded. Its features are dependability, economy, stamina and long life. These qualities are united with brilliant performance, and striking beauty, far beyond anything in Dodge history.

The new type of drop frame gives the new Dodge Six a sweeping, low hung grace. Its 68 horsepower engine stands ready to show its superlative ability on any road. Made in six amazingly beautiful models, three coupes, roadster, the phaeton and sedan. There's a car for every purpose and an invitation to try it yourself without obligation. Ask any Dodge driver and profit by his experience.

Dodge trucks are made in ½ ton fours, ½ ton sixes, 1½ ton fours, 1½ ton sixes, and up to 5 ton capacity. Their wheel base length ranges from 109 to 196 inches, depending on the capacity required.

The lower price field is smartly taken care of by the new, finer and lower priced Plymouth. New comfort, new performance and faster, the Plymouth is a Chrysler motors product, yet one of the lowest priced cars in the world. A car of flashing speed and rugged power—there is lightning acceleration, a get-away that leaves others behind when the light turns green.

The Plymouth has the coveted convenience of full size, it is the largest low cost car in the world.

The front of Lillico Motors showroom is made striking by a new Neon sign seventeen feet in height, featuring the word Dodge in upright letters, Neon lighted.

Lillico Motors are particularly well equipped to give Dodge and Plymouth owners "service that satisfies," and their service department, under the capable manager of Mr. Leo Ackford is in a position to give equally capable service on all makes of cars. They have recently added a heavy Dodge two-ton truck, equipped with a three-ton crane for road service.

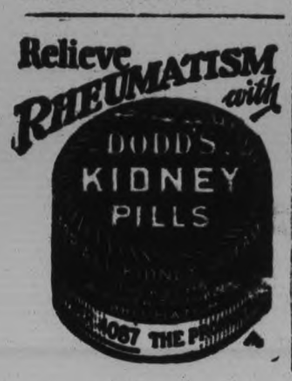
The show rooms of Lillico Motors are located at 383 Water street, and the telephone that brings prompt Dodge service is 362.

YOUNG ORANGEMEN ARE ENTERTAINED

Marmora Lodge No. 34 Spend Enjoyable Evening at Webber Home.

MARMORA, February 21 (Examiner Correspondence). — The members of Juvenile Orange Lodge No. 34 were guests on Friday evening of two of the members, Robert and Blanche Webber, at their home in Marmora Township.

Transportation took the form of an enjoyable sleigh ride. Robert Webber, Sr., placing his team and sleighs at the disposal of the young folk. Upon arrival at the house, community singing and songs by Mrs. J. Hart and Messrs. R. Webber and W. J. Cottrell enlivened the gathering. Games were also much enjoyed. A bounteous repast was served at eleven o'clock, and after thanks had been duly accorded Mr. and Mrs. Webber for their hospitality, the jolly party left for home.



AFFIRMATIVE SIDE WINNERS OF DEBATE

Feature of Regular Meeting of Pontypool Y.P.L. Ladies' Aid Valentine Party.

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 21. (Examiner Correspondence.)—An interesting debate "resolved that woman has made a greater contribution to the world through the home than through Public vocation," was the feature of the regular meeting of the Y.P.L. on Tuesday evening under the leadership of Miss E. Little.

The affirmative was taken by John Payne and Charles Fiske while the negative was upheld by Miss E. Little and Miss Ilma Shea. Each of the debators gave seven minutes of well prepared material. No debate was ever more keenly contested in this locality and there was enough wit and sarcasm to keep the audience on their toes.

The judges, W. H. Hooper, E. Young and Mrs. H. M. Richardson, gave their decision in favor of the affirmative by a small margin.

Miss L. Shea will have charge of the next meeting.

Valentine Party.

The Ladies' Aid held the annual Valentine party on Friday evening at the church and was largely attended. The pastor, the Rev. G. Adamson, officiated for the program in his usual capable manner, for the program which consisted of numbers by the local Public school children, readings by Miss M. Marvin, duets by Misses Shea, instrumentals by Messrs. Percy McMahon and Harry Hutchison.

The proceeds amounted to about twenty-dollars. During the evening a quilt was auctioned by Reeve Bert Richardson. After the concert a dainty lunch was served.

Y.P.S. OBSERVES VALENTINE'S DAY

St. Paul's Church Society at Stirling Holds Meeting in Social Form.

GOOD PROGRAM.

STIRLING, Feb. 21. (Examiner Correspondence.)—St. Paul's Y.P.S. was conducted in the nature of a Valentine social on Monday evening under the direction of the social and literary department. The church parlors looked very pretty and in keeping with the red heart valentine decorations. There were about a hundred and twenty-five in attendance.

The excellent program consisted of a vocal trio entitled, "The Sleepy Town Express," by Madeline Luery, Marie Luery and Jean Munroe accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Earl Luery. A vocal solo by Miss Bessie Conley was well received and several banjo selections were given by Morris Bell accompanied by Mrs. E. Rowland. A Valentine recitation entitled, "Which," by Jean Munroe, an instrumental duet by Margaret Walt and Dorothy Joblin and a reading entitled, "The origin of St. Patrick's Day" were other enjoyable numbers.

The Rosebush Orchestra gave several snappy numbers and community singing was led by R. Patterson.

A pantomime book contest was a striking feature of the evening's entertainment with Mrs. Nora Wescott and Lillian McGuire in charge. The following are those who took part: The Rosary, Dorothy Joblin; The Tale of Two Cities, Margaret Walt; Famous Men, Etta Thompson; Nicholas Nickleby, Irene Hulin; The Wide Wide World, Harold West; Lavender and Old Lace, Donalda Richardson; Inside of the Cup, Lloyd Rowland; Lights Up, Helen Jones; Under Two Flags, Margaret Simpson; Her Husband's Purse, Fred Joblin; Black Rock, John Munroe. The Lamp-Lighter, Jack Potter. Star and Compass, Mary Hulin. The Scarlet Letter, Pearl Reid, Thread of Gold, Evelyn Lindenfield.

A heart contest conducted by Mrs. Percy McGuire was won by group four, and the door prize was won by Mildred White. A dainty lunch was served at the close of the interesting program.

FIRE ESTIMATES

and equipment was reached, this was passed over with little consideration. Alderman McNabb stated, "If it is absolutely necessary for more men, it is a matter that should be given consideration, rather than passed right over. There has been a growth in the number of houses and industrial plants in the city".

Fire Chief Gimblett in giving an explanation, said that practically every day there are two men off duty, under the new system. "Yes they can all come in if necessary" he replied in answer to Mayor Denne.

Continuing he stated he still has a man off duty who was injured in the fire at Eastwood garage, which leaves him with only seven men.

Alderman Tuggey suggested that it would be good business to have a list of prospective firemen, who could be called upon when one of the regular men is sick.

Mayor Denne—We have got some reserve men, whom we can count on in emergency.

The treads.

Railways and Parks

The Parks Committee during the year 1930 spent the sum $5,530.54 out of their appropriation of $5,615.00, thus finishing with a small credit balance. They are asking this year for $5,600, slightly less than in the preceding year. Main discussion centered around the James Stevenson Park question.

"If this is the year we have to provide work for the unemployed, said Alderman Macdonald, this is the time we should carry out some of the badly needed improvements at James Stevenson Park."

Alderman McNabb—At present we have no value for the $1,000 appropriated for this park last year. The money was used for some other needful purpose. He was of the opinion that some work should be put on the park this year.

Alderman Macdonald also concurred and thought it would be a good idea to commence grading and to tear down the old grandstand this year. "The park was bought for the city and should be used for the city", he exclaimed, adding that what was once considered one of the finest parks in Eastern Ontario is now only an eyesore.

Speaking to the question Alderman Tuggey said he had recently seen an old copy of the Examiner with an article which spoke of plans for beautifying James Stevenson Park. "It is worse now than it ever was", he commented.

Mayor Denne was of the opinion that if the park is to be fixed properly, they would never do it for $1,000. To put the grandstand and grounds in proper repair, as they should be, he estimated the cost from $12,000 to $15,000.

Would it be all right to put half a mill in the rate for this park, asked someone amidst the clamor of voices—No it would not, answered a chorus, in answer to which Alderman Macodonald retorted, "It all depends on the amount of work we will have to provide this year for the relief of unemployment. We may have to put a mill on the rate".

STIRLING FAMILY HAS CLOSE CALL

Mrs. Keegan Collapses From Coal Gas on Awakening at Baby's Cry.

BRUISED IN FALL.

(Examiner Correspondence)

STIRLING, Feb. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. George Keegan were almost suffocated by coal gas at their home, north of Gore street, one morning recently.

About 3 o'clock they were awakened by cries from the baby. Mrs. Keegan arose and collapsed, bruising her head badly in the fall.

Dr. Alyer was summoned at once. The children sleeping upstairs were not affected.

Car Upsets

As Miss Nellie Williams was driving her car up Boardman's hill recently when the vehicle on striking a piece of ice suddenly skidded across the road.

The cart turned over in the ditch but Miss Williams managed to open the door and the occupants crawled out. The depth of the snow saved them from serious injury.

Surprise Party

Prior to their departure for Belleville Mrs. R. Reid and Mr. and Mrs. George Kingston were surprised by sixty of their neighbors, and friends of the United Church.

Mr. William Fitchett acting as chairman, presented Mrs. Reid with $35.00 in gold, after which Mr. and Mrs. Kingston were given a chair, Roberta Kingston a snap shot album, and Millisa Milligan, a scarf.

An address read by Mrs. Clifford Lansing was followed by a program of games and community singing. Lunch was served.

On Monday afternoon the regular meeting of the Wolf Cubs was held. A lesson the Union Jack and the right way to fly it was reviewed by the Cub master. The story, "Origin of St. Valentine's Day" was told, followed by Valentine games. Prizes were won by Mac Lummis, Russel West and Max Armstrong. Heart candies were served at the close.

On Tuesday evening the regular meeting of the Stirling Troop of Boy Scouts was held. Patrol Leader's first reviewed their patrol work and instruction was carried on in second class tests by the scoutmaster. On Friday evening the Provincial secretary, Edgar T. Jones was present and gave the boys a talk and demonstration on scouting. Scout Leader Jones was in charge of the Canadian Contingent of Boy Scouts at the World Jambourie in England in 1929.

The Executive Council for 1931 is as follows:

Chairman, Dr. C. F. Walt; secretary, Mr. A. E. Dobbie; members, J. B. Belshaw, H. C. Martin, C. R. Bastedo and W. C. West; leaders, Scoutmaster, F. L. Shortt; assistants, Rev. E. W. Rowland, Fred Hulin; Cubmaster, Lilian M. McGuire.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 21.—Wheat traders consolidated their gains of Thursday with fractional advances on the wheat market here yesterday. Quotations at the close of trading were ¾c to ½c higher.

Unexpected strength at Liverpool and Buenos Aires was chiefly responsible for the rise. Buying was on a generous scale.

Exporters did not place a figure on the overnight export sales, but indicated a slightly better demand.

Trading in cash wheat was slow and spreads were unchanged from Thursday.

Coarse grain trading was fairly active and prices held fractionally higher at the close.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.— Grain prices fell back sharply yesterday from upturns that revealed an all-around overbought condition. All markets ran against enlarged selling, whereas general demand dwindled. Unfavorable weather conditions in Argentina and the North American spring wheat belt failed to uphold values in the face of extra auspicious reports about the United States winter crop, together with evidence that heavy shipments of corn were on the way to Chicago from other big centres.

Close is Irregular.

Wheat closed irregular at ¼c decline to 1-8c advance, corn ½c down; oats ¼c off to 1-8c. up, and provisions showing 2c to 10c gain.

DOWNEYVILLE SOCIAL.

Catholic Women's League Stage Evening of Cards and Dancing.

DOWNEYVILLE, Feb. 21.— (Examiner Correspondence.) — A very successful social was held in the hall Friday evening under the auspices of the Catholic Woman's League.

Cards were played until about 11 o'clock, then a dainty lunch was served by the ladies, after which the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing with music supplied by the Lindsay Girls' Orchestra. The prizes for the cards were won by Miss Josie Sullivan, ladies' high points, Thomas Abraham, gents' high points, and Mrs Leo Harrington and Orme Morrissey.

WOMEN UNITE IN PRAYER SERVICE

"World Day of Prayer" Observed By Women's Organizations of Campbellford and Seymour.

MRS. J. P. ARCHER PRESIDES.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)

CAMPBELLFORD, February 21. — The "World Day of Prayer" was observed by the Women's Missionary Societies of Campbellford and Seymour yesterday afternoon in Christ Church Parish Hall, Campbellford, when a large representation of members from the different churches were present to take part in the very inspiring service conducted under the leadership of Mrs. J. P. Archer, president of the Anglican W. A. The service consisted of responsive readings which were conducted by ladies from the different church organizations, hymns, prayers and invocations tions. Mrs. E. H. Lewis was the accompanist for the occasion.

A prayer of "Thanksgiving" was offered by Mrs. G. Oliver, "Witnessing for the Church," by Miss Wood; for "A Crusade of Righteousness," by Mrs. N. C. Wallace, and for "King, Empire, Country and Peace," by Mrs. A. Hatfield.

Mrs. Sloggett prayed for "The Church in the New Age," Mrs. R. Weston, for "Missionaries," Mrs. Connor for "Youth," and Mrs. Allan Watson for "Christian Service." The Salvation Army Captain offered a prayer for "Personal Consecration of all Women in all parts of the World."

Mrs. L. M. Smith read the Scripture, "The Consecration of the Witness;" Mrs. R. C. Tait, a Scripture response, "A Witnessing Church;" Mrs. T. Linton a responsive reading, "Witnessing through the Ages," and a responsive reading "The Jerusalem Conference," was read by Mrs. W. A. Newsour.

A spirit of prayer and reverence marked this service, the atmosphere of which was one of devotion and worship. It concluded with the saying of the Benediction in unison.

WEDDINGS

COONEY—COX.

MADOC, Feb 21 (Examiner Correspondence.)—A quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday evening, at half-past six, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Cox, Madoc, when their daughter, Mildred Hester was united in marriage to Elmer Austin Cooney of Murray Township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. G. Marshall, of St. Peter's Presbyterian church, Madoc.

Thousands of Run Down, Ailing, Constipated People Get a New Lease on Life

Vitalex is literally taking the whole country by storm. From all sections and all classes of people enthusiastic reports are pouring in. People who had lost all interest in life because of ailments brought about by disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are amazed at the prompt manner in which the herbal contents of Vitalex organize all the internal organs, cleanse the body of poisons and the vitamins rebuild and revitalize.

Dr. Welch, a graduate of the Hahnemann Medical College, who has been very successfully practicing in Chicago for the past sixteen years enthusiastically endorses Vitalex.

"During my sixteen years as a practising physician," says Dr. Welch, "many tonics have been called to my attention, but never in all my years as a medical doctor have I had the pleasure of prescribing a body builder and stomach trouble eradicator that had a formula in any way comparable to Vitalex.

"I have seen countless cases of wonderful results from Vitalex and I consider it a real privilege to state that I know of no other tonic containing Vitamins B, C, and D or to compare in any way with it!"

Who Will Benefit From Vitalex?

Some may ask: "Who would be benefited by Vitalex?" The answer is, those who are irritable due to sluggish liver, those who believe kidneys need assistance in elimination, those with poor appetites, who cannot sleep soundly, who lack ambition due to loss of sleep, those who are nervous because of Vitamin deficiency. Vitalex gently urges the glands to produce a kindly, gentle metabolic action.

It is the opinion of authorities everywhere that the Vitamins B, C and D contained in Vitalex are the most essential elements needed by vitamin-starved bodies. Vitamins feed every fibre of the body—the blood, bones, muscles. Vitalex goes further in its corrective effects than concoctions lacking those herbal juices which are effective in stimulating intestinal action.

Miss Katherine Martyn and Mrs. Cecil Gallagher entertained at a miscellaneous shower on Thursday evening at the former's home, 312 Rubidge street, in honor of Mrs. F. G. Johnston (nee Edna Dingman) whose marriage took place last week. The rooms were pretty with yellow and orchid tulips, hyacinths and daffodils. The guests were received by Miss Martyn assisted by Mrs. Gallagher. The color scheme of yellow and orchid was carried out in the decorations for the dining room. The table was centred by a large centre piece of Italian cut work with matching doilies, a silver basket of yellow and orchid tulips surrounded by a wreath of green smilax and tulle. Tall orchid candles and silver holders, and mint baskets fashioned of orchid, sweet peas, and containing yellow and orchid sweets completed the decorations. Mrs. W. Crookshanks poured tea and Mrs. G. Poole cut the ices. They were assisted by Miss Grace McCarthy, Miss Ethel Kennedy, Miss Violet McNevan and Miss Bernice Garside. The gifts were wrapped in yellow and orchid, and carried in, in prettily decorated basket, by two little tots, Alice and Joyce Gallagher, and presented to the bride. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, which testified to the high esteem in which she is held.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Many of you readers, no doubt, are contemplating some new interior decorations this Spring and because it seems to be an interesting subject just now, we will dwell on it to-day.

• • • • • • •

I know a number of housewives who always insist on the very latest thing in interior decoration, because they think it is much superior to former decorations.

• • • • • • •

But I am told that such is not the case—that the latest thing in interior decorating does not necessarily make the finest decoration.

• • • • • • •

Just as soon as a new style comes forward, many housewives are eager to adopt it, regardless of whether it is suitable for their particular needs or not.

• • • • • • •

It is well for those who cannot afford, especially during these depressing times, to have their dwellings continually done over, that style is not synonymous with good taste.

• • • • • • •

You as housewives, no doubt, realize the fact that beauty is not always present in style, as is seen in the mid-Victorian period.

• • • • • • •

During that period, some of the furniture was far from being beautiful, but the vogue at that time was so sweeping that really beautiful furniture was stored in attic or barn in order to make room for the latest in furniture.

• • • • • • •

It is the element of beauty that should guide you, as the home decorator, in choosing your furniture. It may be antique, it may be modern, or in periods between these two extremes.

• • • • • • •

We all realize, of course, that whenever beauty and good workmanship are combined the result is always worthwhile. They can stand the test of time and never fail to stand out

• • • • • • •

Many homes have an assortment of periods combined in interiors, yet so choice are the articles that good decoration is apparent.

• • • • • • •

Careful treatment must be accorded rooms in which periods, not always congenial, are combined. If you are an expert decorator who does rooms in specific periods of allied periods, you will have no such puzzling problems confront you, as when you assimilate various styles.

• • • • • • •

I have often noticed that it is seldom that purely period rooms have the glow of comfortable beauty that settles down on well decorated rooms in which are well arranged the choice furniture assembled during various generations.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

MEDICINE BY HYPODERMIC NEEDLE

One of the methods of giving medicine that is now very popular, is by means of a needle into the skin, deep into a muscle, or into a vein.

Now it seems easier to take medicine by the mouth, a method that has been used for hundreds of years.

Why do physicians prefer this newer method?

Because a drug put directly into the blood stream immediately begins its active work, whereas if given by the mouth it has to go down to the stomach then to the small intestine, then by means of the blood it goes through the liver and all the different digestive juices work on it to such an extent that it loses at least half of its value before it reaches the blood. In fact, in some individuals with some drugs, practically all value is lost by the time it reaches the blood. Further, it takes considerable time for it to reach the blood, and this delay is sometimes a serious matter to the patient.

Also, when a drug is given by the needle, the physician knows that all of it is going to be effective, whereas, by the mouth, he has no definite knowledge, although with many drugs it is believed that one half of its effect is lost by giving it by the mouth. Therefore the dose by hypodermic needle is usually one half of that given by mouth.

Further, the stomach could not tolerate certain drugs that are absolutely essential to the cure of certain ailments, and so the hypodermic needle method is really responsible for these cures.

Another valuable point is that when the patient is instructed to take medicine by mouth at home three times a day, he often neglects or forgets to take it, and the physician has no means of keeping a check on him. But when he reports to the doctor's office once a day or two or three times a week he gets regular definite treatment.

You might naturally suggest that this would help to build up the doctor's office practice. But as you get quicker results, and a chance to see the doctor in person each time, thus enabling him to note your progress, you are really going to be ahead financially and every other way. Many patients now use the hypodermic needle to administer insulin in diabetes. Perhaps in a few years with standardization of drugs more of this will be done. So don't think of the injections of medicines by the hypodermic needle as being something to be dreaded. Think of it as one of the advances medicine has made to enable you to receive more prompt and effective treatment.

ARMY MUSICIAN COMING TO CITY

Staff Captain Bramwell Coles Outstanding Band Musician at Army Temple.

One of the outstanding personalities in the Salvation Army musical world and a name well known amongst all interested in bands and their doings will be a visitor at the Salvation Army Temple this week-end in the person of Staff Captain Bramwell Coles. The services are designated Young People's Band week-end and will be featured with music by the boys band, assisted by the Senior combination. The Staff Captain is one of the most prolific writers of army music there is and all music lovers are urged to come and hear his interesting talks. To attempt to enumerate all his contributions to army bands and songster brigades would take a lot of space but amongst the marches are "The Chalk Farm" "Prize March," "Under Two Flags," "Departed Heroews" a concert march, and the most recent one, "The Maple Leaf." Written since the Staff Captain's arrival in Canada and in which such airs as the "Maple Leaf" "O Canada," "God Save the King" are introduced. Concert selections from his pen are recognised by leading musicians as masterly "The Atonement" and "Man of Sorrows" being of special beauty. The later is a musical interpretation of the 53rd Chapter of Isaiah and will be played by the senior band during the week-end. Much music for the singing brigades of the Army has come from his pen. For many years he was associated with the Chalk Farms S.A. band undoubtedly the foremost combination in England.

Was Weak and Run Down

Could Scarcely Do Housework

Mrs. Edward A. Allen, Besanson, Alta., writes: "I would like to tell you of the great benefit I have received from your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was feeling very much run down in health, and was so weak I could scarcely do my housework, in fact, I would have to lie down in the afternoon for an hour or so. I saw your Pills in the drug store and took a box home with me, and I was delighted with my renewed strength. I have recommended them to a neighbor and feel sure they will help her too."

HAY FEVER IS FULL OF BLISSES BUT NOT TOO BLISSFUL IS FINDING Clever Play and Full of Fun to be Presented Next Wednesday Night.

PROCEEDS FOR RELIEF.

(By Jeanette)

I went to see a practice of "Hay Fever" the other night. The hall was cold. It's a nice, large hall, but they had forgotten about the heat and then they got some green wood and dumped it into the two stoves and the wood smoke got in my eyes and made them smart.

I began to think of that story of Mark Twain—you know the one—where he went to a meeting and heard a man talk about charity in such a way that tears came to his (Mark's) eyes and he decided to give them a cheque for a hundred dollars, when the plate came 'round. Then the man talked a little longer—and a little longer—and just a little longer, and finally when the plate came around, Mark took off a quarter. He was so bored. And I began to wonder who would give me a quarter for coming to hear their old play.

That was at the beginning, and I didn't think so much of the first act, until right near the end, when Mrs. Bliss the play is full of Blisses, but they aren't too blissful at that—quite the contrary—got going in real earnest.

And the second act came along and made me forget about how my eyes were smarting and I started to laugh a lot and get a kick out of the lines. And then there was the third act, which is really a wow. By the time the very sudden finale arrived, I was absolutely oblivious of my cold toes, and would have been quite willing to sit through it all over again. It was Mark Twain's experience, the other way around.

"Hay Fever" is really lots of fun. Adrian Macdonald, who directs it, has the beautiful faculty of letting them alone and so they get to acting spontaneously. And when you get a group of amateur actors enthused about a clever play and let them go to it, they can put it over. Anyone who saw the clever Normal youngsters in "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," also directed by Adrian Macdonald, will know what I mean.

It's a clever play and is really quite subtle. On the surface, you won't like the Blisses at all. They are a brash and a conceited and a show-off quartette, but if you get to the real meaning of this entertaining play by Noel Coward, you will find the grand old ideas functioning beautifully. They are amazingly frank and most terribly rude. There was a book that was extraordinarily popular some years ago, and still is, no doubt. It was "The Rosary." In it was an English duchess who loved to put up her lorgnette and tell people off. Well, they don't go quite that far in "Hay Fever," but just watch Mrs. Bliss and the rest of the family welcome the unwanted visitors.

Mrs. Bliss is seeking her soul. She is a retired actress with a taste for flattery and young men. She is possessed by that strange spirit that the French term "Le demon du midi." It is a disease that is quite common to people in middle life who have been successes in their youth and can't quite get over the habit.

Then there is the graceful and wilful Sorel Bliss and her brother Simon, quarrelling constantly, and the story-writing father, and the diplomat who comes to spend the week-end, and the delightful divorcee and the flapper and the other young man who comes to make love to the mother and remains to kiss the daughter, in the seclusion of the library. And last, there is the maid, supposed to be "round, fat and untidy." That is all. They are nine—the sacred number, but there is nothing in the least sacred about any of them. They talk and act and go on in the most peculiar manner. They will entertain you, however. "Hay Fever" is excellent entertainment. Under the auspices of the Kinsmen, it will be presented for your approval and your admiration, next Wednesday night, in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute. And the proceeds of this delightfully modern bit will be given to charity.

As for the reason for the title—try and find out.

Seats are to be had at Riley an Hickey's and there are still some real good ones available.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETIES OBSERVE WORLD'S DAY OF PRAYER

Adjutant W. B. Jones in Charge of Gathering in Salvation Army Temple.

MISSION APPEAL.

The Women's Missionary Societies of Peterborough convened in the Salvation Army Temple on Friday afternoon to observe the World's Day of Prayer, with Adjt. W. B. Jones presiding. A spirit of intercession was manifested throughout the service, which opened in silent meditation upon Archbishop Trench's ode on the Benefits of Prayer. The leader, Adjt. Jones, read the impressive Call to Worship from St. Matthew's Gospel 11, 28-29 and 28, 19-20, and the large audience of representative women joined in singing the hymn of worship, "Joy to the world." Prayer by the leader was followed by a responsive service with "Consecration of the Witness" as the theme. Two minutes in silent prayer and personal confession and consecration was a prelude to the prayer hymn, "Breathe on me, breath of God," sung by the congregation seated, with bowed heads as they continued in prayer. "A Witnessing Church" with Scripture response on Paul's call to "come over into Macedonia and help us," was followed by a prayer of thanksgiving offered by Miss F. Dixon representing St. Andrew's United Church. Mrs. C. H. Edwards also of St. Andrew's, led in prayer for a witnessing church. Again the congregation entered heartily into the spirit of the hymn, "The Church's one foundation."

"Witnessing Through the Ages," in which the leader recalled the host of faithful witnesses who, through the long centuries, have spread abroad the Gospel of Christ, was the next topic, which was more deeply instilled into hearts of the W.M.S. workers by the earnest prayer for a crusade of righteousness, led by Mrs. A. I. Brown of George Street United Church. For our King, our Empire, and our Country for peace, that a true love of peace be kindled in the hearts of all men, and that the bonds which unite the nations may be more firmly welded in the spirit of Christian love. Prayer was offered by Miss McCamus, George Street United, while Mrs. W. H. Andrews and Mrs. (Rev.) J. L. Hughes of St. George's Anglican Church, prayed that all racial discords and international strife may be lost in the growing harmony of love, and that upon all who guide the nations in conference the spirit of God may descend in power. "O God, our help in ages past," closed this subject.

Mission Appeal

A missionary appeal came in the query by the Leader "Is it right that we Christians hold the Gospel for ourselves alone and do not seek to spread it" and was answered in scriptural response by the audience in the words of the Master "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to Me." A beautiful solo "Teach me to pray" was sung by Mrs. Shadgett.

The Jerusalem conference in 1928 marked the witnessing in a new age when fifty-one separate nationalities found themselves to be one race called Christians.

"Where cross the crowded ways" provided an intermission in the service of prayer.

The next were a group of brief prayers: For the witness of the church in all arears of life by Miss Kidd of St. James'. For the younger churches in their problems and the older churches in the time of testing led by Mrs. J. Rutherford Park street Baptist. For recognition of the truth that "every Christian must be a missionary. Mrs. A. E. Thornley representing Mark Street United. For missionaries and their work in all lands and for Mission Boards. From the Gospel Hall, Mrs. Hartshorn offered this prayer. For India and China, that their problems and troubles may be solved by finding Christ. Mrs. W. R. Turner of St. Paul's Presbyterian church prayed.

That the boys and girls of all lands may accept the leadership of Jesus Christ, was earnesty prayed by Ensign Feltham, of the Salvation Army, while Mrs. Amys of St. John's Anglican, asked that a vision of beauty and greatness of Christian service may be given to students in our schools and colleges and that they may be led to accept responsibility for the work of the Kingdom.

All Saint's Anglican church was represented by Mrs. H. E. Connolly who prayed for the personal consecration of life, time and talents of the women of all nations.

The leader responded with Isaiah's promise of peace.

"Lead on O King Eternal" was the closing hymn and the Benediction in unison was a fitting conclusion to a prayer service that was world-wide in scope — as Christian women throughout the world on this day were using the same program in some form with the text for the same: "Ye shall be My witnesses."

Miss Ethel Payton presided at the organ for the musical part of the program.

STORMY WEATHER HARD ON BABY

Stormy, blustery February and March weather is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary to keep them in-doors. They are often confined to over-heated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds the little one should be given an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets will ward off colds, or if they do come suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will quickly banish them. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

W. O'NEIL, PRESIDENT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, February 21. — The war veterans of Omemee and vicinity met Thursday evening in the Farmers' Club Rooms, with the object of either joining with the Canadian Legion or forming a local club; but after considerable debate it was decided to form a local club.

The following officers were elected:
President: William O'Neil.
Secretary: Dr. McPhee.
Treasurer: Wm. Brockley.

It was moved, seconded and carried that the officers have power to transact any business. The fee of 50c was agreed upon for membership.

The Armistice Day collections are to be used for benevolent work, or as the members may wish.

An invitation was extended the veterans by Rev. Mr. Whitham, Cavanville, to attend a banquet which is to be given in the near future by the veterans of Cavanville.

The newly formed club decided to hold a euchre party, which will be open to the public, the date to be arranged later. After the business was finished the members enjoyed cards. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little; but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The 16 ounces thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SUPPER CLUB HEARS REV. J. H. SUTCLIFFE

Life is Great Game Where Everyone Must Prove Himself Says Speaker.

"All life is a game where everyone is set out on the diamond or the gridiron to prove themselves. Some make it a sorry looking game, while others make it a fine game," declared Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church in an address before the members of the Friday Night Supper Club, held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

The guest speaker for the occasion was introduced by Graham Eastwood, who welcomed Mr. Sutcliffe to the Club.

"People of olden times and killjoys of the present day keep pleasure out of life, hoping thereby to prepare for heaven," said Mr. Sutcliffe. However, heaven is only a continuation of the present life, and there is therefore a place in Christian religion for pleasure.

All of the large games and bouts in the United States at which millions of spectators attend are by no means bad if the game is well played. President Harding once said, "What the United States has to learn is to know how to play." In a rowing race, the speaker said, the first mile is travelled by training, the second by the life the rowers have lived, the third by the life the parents lived, and the fourth by the life the ancestors lived.

People crowd around the fellow who comes through, and do not bother with the one who fails. Time brings out a man's weaknesses, and these should be corrected or the game of life will overtake him and make him "down and out."

"Happy is the boy who can go through life with a smile and keep a stiff upper lip, who can stand on his own feet and master his own weaknesses," continued the speaker. "Good sports are admired by both friends and foes. The poor sport is swayed by blind prejudices, is a fellow with an alibi; he does not care about reputation as long as he can call a man down; he is a man who quits."

Everyone likes a good loser. Sir Thomas Lipton was presented with a cup by Mayor Walker of New York for being "the world's best loser." However, one must not stay defeated, though it is a difficult thing to shake hands with a chap after losing.

"We all get discouragements and our pride is often weakened because we are not in condition, we may be in condition physically but not spiritually. Good athletes have to live clean lives or they can not endure the strain of sports. The game of life has rules, and you and I must conform to them from the cradle to the grave. If we play squarely, we gain in the end, if not, we lose."

Terry Hall thanked Mr. Sutcliffe for his address on behalf of the Club. The usual Club songs at intervals gave the evening an attitude of merriment.

National Art Form Is Ideal Stressed

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—(The Canadian Press)—A note of optimism with regard to the possible preservation and development of the main features and characteristics of the peoples who settled on Canadian soil, their styles of architecture, their ability to express their thoughts, tastes and ideals in artistic forms, particularly in the Province of Quebec, was sounded by Charles Maillard, director of the Provincial School of Fine Arts, in a recent address delivered before a distinguished gathering of members and women guests at the Cercle Universitaire.

Prof. Maillard outlined the efforts of the pioneers of this country to lay wide and deep the foundations of a new and distinct Canadian nation, their spirit of enterprise in commerce and industry, their determination to remain Canadians in mind and purpose. This great past is handed on to us to preserve and improve, he said, and one of the best means of doing so is by artistic expression.

Isolated artists, men and women of more than average ability in the past, artists who expressed by their style of architecture in private and public buildings, churches and public monuments, in scenes of interior decoration, some of the leading facts of Canadian history and the life of our ancestors, he said. To perpetuate these traditions of the past and better acquaint the rising generation with the modern technique and the history of the great schools of art, the Government of the Province of Quebec opened, eighty years ago, in Montreal, a Provincial school of Fine Arts.

CENTRETON

Messrs. Henry Prettie, Johnson McKenzie, R. McKenzie and F. Etcher were visitors to Cobourg on Monday.

At the Y.P.S. meeting on Tuesday it was decided to hold a sleigh riding party next Tuesday evening. If the weather does not permit a social will be held in the Sunday School Hall. Miss M. Bethel gave the topic, "Mrs. Harris at the Telephone," and the scriptural lesson was read by Miss Edith Webb.

The meeting of March 3 is Bible Study night, with Miss Mary Lockhart in charge.

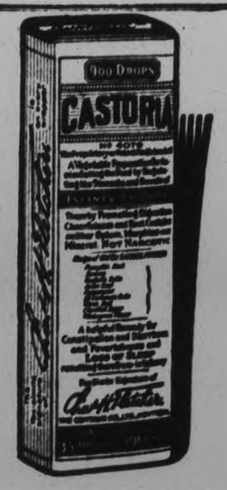
Castoria... for CHILDREN'S ailments



ARE you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or for the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish spell, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the formula on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

Lakefield Strengthens Hold on E.P.L. Lead

League Leaders Overcome One Goal Lead in Third Period.

INDIVIDUAL SCORES.

L. Sabatino, Blewett and Stabler Were Mainstays of Winners.

East Peterborough League Standing

	W	L	T	Pts.	TP
Lakefield	5	1	4	14	2
Cogs	4	4	2	10	2
Norwood	4	5	2	10	1
C. G. E.	2	5	2	6	3

Lakefield strengthened her hold in first place in the opening game played here last night by winning over C. G. E. 3-2. The trailing Toolroom outfit surprised them all by making it such a tough fight. They were leading 2-1 at the end of the second period, but the league leaders finished stronger to take the count.

The ice was fair to start with but was soon cut up. Both teams, however, flashed some nice combination at times although all the goals resulted from individual tries. A medium sized crowd were on hand for the doubleheader.

For the winners, L. Sabatino, Blewett and Stabler were good, while Wingett and Wood did some nice rushing. Junkin had to stop plenty in the net. J. Sabatino played a good defensive game. The C. G. E. squad worked hard throughout, their forward line playing particularly snappy hockey. Hollingsworth hadn't a chance on the three that got by him. The defense and alternates were just as effective too.

Louie Sabatino took the puck up from the face-off and missed the net. Hatton brought it down. Stabler went up centre but Epps took it away from him to go in close and score for the Toolroom. Blewett went up but lost it. Epps worked in again to net the rubber, but it was offside. Louie went up again and lost it to Hatton who shot and missed. Both outfits were shooting often but mostly from the blue line. Williams took a pass from Hatton but the puck was picked off by the goalie. Then Stabler went right in on Hollingsworth to tie the score. Play was back and forth at a sluggish pace for several minutes, marked by individual thrusts. R. Epps shot a hard one but it was stopped and then the boys started roughing it. Five penalties, four of them for Lakefield players, were handed out within three minutes. The latter were playing two men short and finding the going hard at the bell.

Wingett went down the ice to start the second frame, but Swanger took it and came back. Persistent back-checking kept the disc in the centre for a space. The Epps brothers were combining good and threatening often. Blewett went down and lost it at the defense. Williams tried a shot and L. Sabatino took it back. Hatton kept the goalie on his toes for a minute, then Wingett moved the play away. A few minutes later, Williams went through the whole Lakefield gang on beautiful piece of stickhandling to put C.G.E. one up. Louie was trying hard at this time and keeping his opponents worried. Epps took another crack at the goal but it was saved. Play was pretty even for a time. Both teams were going fast and shooting hard, while the back-checking of the forwards kept the play individual. Stuffy Mahood tried to climb Swanger late in the session and had to take a rest. J. Sabatino rushed twice at the last of the period.

Lakefield started strong in the third and looked superior all the way through. L. Sabatino lined a hard one at the cage, but it was stopped. H. Epps nearly scored in a mix-up near the other net. Stabler went up for an attempt, then Wannamaker, then Wood. The boys were travelling now and having a big edge on the play but Hollingsworth was keeping the rubber out. Hatton passed to Epps who missed the goal. J. Sabatino took it up. Meagher nearly got through but was run into a corner, and Wannamaker went up the left boards. His shot was wide. Play was up an down now at a good clip with Lakefield doing the pushing. Halfway through the chapter, L. Sabatino whistled a corner shot past Hollingsworth to again knot the count. Both outfits were inclined to rough it a bit but strict refereeing cooled them off. Epps went down fast and topped the net, and Blewett came back fast to get through the defense and slip in the winner. They were both speeding it up at the end with C.G.E. working their heads off to score.

Summary of the game:

The teams:

Combines Outclass Cogs For 6-1 Win

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, our O.H.A. season exploded right in our faces this week, owing to St. John's, our last hopes, taking it on the chin from the Oshawa jrs. Whether it was, as some bird pointed out, they lost their luck when they had to wear the Hockey Club's unies, the Saints certainly didn't have no horseshoes anywhere in sight when they skated out to do battle with the invaders here Mon. nite. In the 1st place, they never did like soft ice and, 2ndly, Mister Ellis and Mister Howe, which has been defencing with much skill and adding a lotta punch to the Saints' attack, turned up Mon. nite with old John B. Flu firmly in possession. Neither of them shoulda been out there at all, and the flashy Mister Ellis could only stagger through the 1st 20 minutes when he was commandeered by the doctors and shot home to bed. Mister Howe remained until the end, but he was playing on his nerve alone. And on top of this double blow that wrecked their defence and took a hunk of pep outa their attack, the Saints had the misfortune to be the victims of 3 of the softest goals of the winter. Under the conditions the lads did well perhaps to escape a worst beating, although with only half the Oshawa luck they mighta cashed in on a few scoring chances themselves.

A feature of this engagement was the synthetic refereeing of Mister B. Hedges, of Toronto. Mister Hedges is the type of official what would shine handling the bell in a grudge fight between, say, the firemen and the bus drivers, but why the O.H.A. should ever give him a job taking charge of a jr. fixture nobody what watched him work Mon. could understand. Not that he was unfair or nothing of that sort, but simply because he didn't seem capable of checking up on the rough stuff. Both sides got away with murder, as the lads say, and at that it wasn't Mister Hedges' fault that they wasn't a manslaughter charge or 2.

Well, old-timer, we still got the E. P. loop to provide the hockey bill of fare for the last of the season, and that oughta furnish enough fireworks to make a fitting end to what ain't been such a bad campaign after all.

Are we going to have a sr. ball club? Why bring that up, I comes back with.

And now to wind up this tale of woe for the week I merely affix the well-known signature,

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

WINNERS SCORE FOUR COUNTERS IN 2ND PERIOD

Combines Easily Outclass Cogs Both on Offense and Defense.

WARE GETS FOUR.

Wilson and Williams Are Outstanding Players For Local Clubmen.

The second East Peterborough League game at the Brock last night saw Alex Kempt's Norwood Combines outclass Cogs to take the big end of a 6-1 score. The Cogs might have put up a stiffer battle if they had been at full strength, but they were minus Creighton, Maudsley and Lebarr who were playing in Lindsay. At that, it was a pretty fair game, the winners having only one big period the second when they ran in four. The ice was cut up and that slowed the boys down to some extent.

The winners all played great hockey both offensively and defensively. Ware being the sharpshooter for the evening, bagging four. Wright helped in most of the counters and shot hard and frequently. Hill also looked flashy on the front line. The defense were hard to beat checking hard but legitimately for the most part. Wilson and Williams for the Cogs were the outstanding players, though the others worked hard too. Foley saved some beauties in each period.

Rooke went in and had a shot on the Combines' citadel to start it off. Wright was stopped at the blue line. McLaughlin and Shannon worked in close but missed. Williams came down and lost to Ware who went through and shot hard, Foley making a swell save. The boys were moving up and down rapidly now with neither bunch having any advantage. Then Wright streaked in and passed to Ware who shot the first goal. Ware went up again for another try and Cripp brought it back. Wright and Shannon got close in but were offside. Norwood were pressing hard and threatening often. Wright took a hard drive but missed the cage and Wilson came down the ice to shoot one wide. Cogs' forward line looked dangerous on several rushes but couldn't counter. Jacks worked his way up for a shot which was stopped. Foley had his hands full for a while as Norwood kept the play around him. Williams came down and was sandwiched at the defense. Voyer went up but lost to Graham who was then boarded by Shannon who drew a penalty. Cogs had four men up the ice in a vain attempt to score. Rink length lone rushes and hard checking brought the period to a close.

Norwood Scores Four.

Cripps and Wilson were stopped beginning the middle canto. Kempt took it back but lost it. Cripps went through again and made Junkin dive to save it. Wright went down but Williams brought it back only to lose to McLaughlin. Wilson took it but was checked. Play was mostly in the centre now with both outfits checking and ragging it. Norwood's goalie had to come out to stop Rooke and McLaughlin took it up the ice. He passed to Ware who got in and slapped in the second marker. Their forward line were rushing continuously and Hill took a pass from Brennan a few minutes later to make it three. Two Cogs were off together and the winners worked hard to take advantage. They were still one man short when Ware stickhandled his way in fast to bulge the twine again. Williams made a pretty rush but was skated into a corner. Foley stopped four or five hot ones in a row. Williams went up the right side for a shot, then Hill took it down, passed to Wright and the latter shoved it in. The same player nearly scored a minue later but missed the net. Wilson and Cripps went down but were blocked. McLaughlin went up on a lone sortie, and Williams returned the visit. Shannon eased through centre for a hard shot which was stopped. The two teams were playing fast and even at the bell.

Cogs Score Lone Goal.

The last stanza started slow neither outfit showing any pep the first few minutes. White slipped down the boards for a try and Ware went back fast. Wilson grabbed the rubber to tear through for a wicked shot that got by Junkin for the Cogs only goal. Wilson tried another but was stopped. Then Wright and Ware combined for the final counter, the latter shooting the puck in. Junkins came out to stop Williams on a close one. Norwood were playing nice teamwork now. Wilson made several lone attempts but was checked. Hill went up the ice but lost to Williams who rushed the length of the rink for a hard shot. They were both playing snappy now. Rooke and Wilson came down and McLaughlin took the rubber up again. Foley just managed to nab that in time to save the goal. This part of the frame was featured by plenty of checking, and not all gentle either. Graham rushed fast but the shot was blocked. Shannon took it to the defense and Williams brought it back. He returned it again and shot hard but couldn't get it past Junkin. They were travelling fast and taking some man-sized bodychecks at the final gong.

Summary of the game:

The teams:

Cogs—Goal, Foley; right defense, White; left defense, Williams; centre Rooke; right wing, Wilson; left wing, Cripps; alternate, Graham.

Norwood—Ware (Wright) 3 minutes.

FRANCIS IS EASY WINNER OVER SHEA

Rugged New York Italian Battles Chicagoan All Over Ring.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(CP)—Kid Francis, another of those well-known "under-dogs," has overturned the dope in Madison Square Garden where short-enders in the betting have won with monotonous regularity in recent months.

The rugged little Italian, held on the short end of 8 to 5 odds, showed the utmost contempt for expert opinion by belting Eddie Shea, clouting Chicago featherweight, all over the ring last night and winning the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges.

Shea returnng to New York, after an absence of six years and in the role of foremost contender for Bat Battalino's 126-pound crown, never could fathom Francis' unceasing attack, won only three of the ten rounds, was reeled under the Kid's body attack in the eighth and tenth rounds and was compietely exhausted by the time the final gong sounded.

Francis, who still can make the bantamweight limit, fought entirely on the offensive. Never taking a backward step, he marched in to close quarters and belted Shea solidly with short jolts to the body that slowed the Chicagoan down to a walk.

Shea, at 126 pounds, had a four-pound pull in the weights.

STIRLING AND MADOC WILL BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP OF TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE

Frankford Loses to Madoc 3-1 While Stirling Blanks Tweed 5-0 Last Night.

MAY PLAY IN BELLEVILLE.

TWEED, February 21. — The final dash for the Trent Valley League championship will bring Stirling and Madoc together in home and home games, the first of which will be played probably next Friday night and the last canter on the following Monday.

This prospect definitely resulted from last night's games, in which Frankford lost in Madoc by 3-1 and Stirling extinguished Tweed's flickering hopes here by 5-0. As a matter of fact these games had no substantial effect on the standing of the teams as the long schedule drew to a close, for it was already generally recognized that Stirling was secure in first place and Madoc could not be ousted from second, although some of the local optimists calculated that Tweed still had a chance to climb out of third position if the two leaders lost their remaining games. But there is no use in recalling such fancies. The qualifying schedule after two long months is virtually all over excepting two inconsequential engagements on Tuesday night. One of these sends Tweed back to Madoc, but after the fracas here a week ago between these neighbors, which will re-echo in the Police Court, some of the fans are suggesting that it might be wiser to default this game. Others insist that the team finish out the schedule. They believe that the unfortunate flare-up between Barkey of Madoc and Geraldi of Tweed will not react in a reprisal in the last game of the season.

Bill Whitty, manager of Stirling's Trent Valley leaders, stated last night that their game in the play-offs would be transferred to Belleville. The details will be arranged to-day or on Monday.

Tweed fans regretfully recalled last night the winning pace they had set during the first weeks of January and the promising expectations of clinching a place in the play-offs. And, to add brine to their wounds, Stirling handed them a 5-0 lacing in the concluding home game that left a more bitter taste because of the memory of the sweets of their initial string of victories. The team was weakened last night by the absence of Cripps, who was laid up with a cold, and by the indisposition of Campbell, who played in spite of a temperature.

Stirling was at full strength and appeared to be paying under wraps for the most part. At least two of their goals looked soft. They were long shots from around the blue line. On the whole it was a lively workout for Stirling. The team is as good as Bill Whitty can make them, and that is saying a lot. That they are not even better than they are is not the manager's fault. By the way, Whitty has a lot of respect for Madoc, and will not underestimate them in the coming series.

A Smart Machine.

Stirling last night played their positions with machine-like precision, and showed smart combination work in spite of the rather heavy ice. Occasionally they went in around the Tweed net, but generally were content to drop back to the blue line when their thrusts failed. Davis at centre and Morton in goal stood out among the Red Shirts, and the second line, composed of Jack Ackers, White and Day, injected a lot of ginger into the game every time they turned loose.

The teams were:

Referee—Orville Kennealy, Peterborough.

First period—
Stirling—Ty Little, 7 mins. 28 secs.
Second period—
Stirling—Beatty, 16 mins.
Stirling—Ackers (White), 1 min. 34 secs.
Third period—
Stirling—Ty Little (Davis), 3 mins. 30 secs.
Stirling—Day, 6 mins. 20 secs.

Four Brothers on Team.

Tweed still carries the four Giraldi brothers, and three of them, George, Alexander, and Max gave a good account of themselves last night. Johnny Marchen blocked and rushed well, and Campbell, in spite of his illness, gave the impression of being an exceptionally clever mid-ice performer. Both teams at times laid their barrage from the blue line, and Harry Ingram occasionally fired from his own line to the Stirling net.

Ty Little got Stirling's first goal on his own rebound. It was the only score in the opening period. Marchen opened the second with a rink-end rush and Campbell followed with another. Most of the fusillading in the first ten minutes was at blue line range. Les Beatty notched Stirling's second counter on one of these drives. McGee got his hand on the puck, but it bobbled through and dropped in behind him.

Tulsa at Chicago.

Jack Ackers earned the third goal less than two minutes later. He and White eluded Tweed's defence, and Ackers took plenty of time with his shot.

Morton showed his stuff with a great save when he stopped a close shot from Fred Giraldi on a neat combination with Campbell and Alexander Giraldi that got by the Red defence. Then Ty Little put Stirling four up. McGee blocked his shot from the boards, but Little chased in, grabbed the rubber, and swung a back-hand shot into the far corner of the net. Davis helped him on that rush. Fred Giraldi flashed a brilliant individual effort rounding the defence to the goal line and circling out in front. He was carried too far for an effective shot. Day helped himself to an easy marker, another blue line shot that bumped over McGee's stick. Davis made a beautiful rush, sweeping through the defence, but missing the goal by a scant inch.

Campbellford Beats Madoc High School

MADOC, Feb. 21.—(Examiner Sorrespondence.)— Campbellford junior hockey team arrived in Madoc on Friday evening in spite of stormy weather and very heavy roads, to meet Madoc High School hockey team on Madoc arena. The teams were pretty well matched, as indicated by the scores, 1-1, 2-2, and 3-2. The play was even, with rather poor ice. Good combination was attempted by both teams, but many passes were missed from poor ice surface and it seemed almost impossible to get going. Penalties were few, and about evenly distributed. Goals for Madoc were made by Whytock and Akey, and for Campbellford boys by McPherson, Stoker and Copperthwaite.

Line-up for Campbellford —Goal Heppenstal; defence, Wilk and Holme; centre, Henndy; wings, Copperthwaite and Busk; subs, Stoker, Lambert and McPherson. For Madoc —Goal, Nickle; defence, Ashley and West; centre, Ross; wings, Whytock and Akey; subs, Armstrong, Lockwood.

Referee—Mel. Caverly of Madoc.

LEAFS LIKELY FALL BEFORE BRUIN ATTACK

Duncanites Have Already Lost Two Games to Hub Club This Season.

MAROONS AT OTTAWA.

Easy Win Called For Canadiens Over Gerard's Amazing Amerks.

(By George Maguire, Canadian Press Sports Writer.)

TORONTO, February 21. — There is every possibility of sharp tightening up developing in the stretch-drive for play off berths in the Canadian group of the National Hockey League to-night. The three game schedule sends Boston's star collection of hockeyists against the Maple Leafs at Toronto; New York Americans against the Canadiens at Montreal, and the Maroons against the Senators at Ottawa.

The Bruins, leaders of the United States section by 11 points over Chicago, have beaten the Leafs twice before this season, and as the Duncanites have given ordinary displays in their last two starts, are quite likely to make it three straight.

Canadiens, of course, have a comfortable lead over the opposition, being nine points up on the Leafs. They have beaten Eddie Gerard's powerful defensive machine four times, and tied in the fifth match. A defeat, therefore will be a surprise even though the Gothamites decisively trounced the Maroons in New York on Thursday.

Maroons at Ottawa.

The Ottawas, strengthened in morale following their two game winning streak over the New York Rangers and Toronto, may extend their good fortune still further against the faltering Munromen. The latter lost their first encounter with the Senators but have beaten them three straight since then by single goal margins.

Two games are programmed for Sunday and once again third place in the American group is in dispute. Rangers and Detroit Falcons are tied for the honor at present with 36 points four behind the Blackhawks. The Rangers are at home to the tail-end Philadelphia Quakers a team they have beaten five times already, and Lester Patrick's Blue Shirts are likely to make certain of another brace of points at the expense of the cellar occupants, who on Tuesday night last startled the hockey world by trouncing the Falcons.

The Motor Magnates are faced with a much harder task than their New York rivals. The latter squad, however, has not had much success against the Falcons in their four previous engagements. Chicago won the first by scoring the odd goal in five, but the Jack Adams coached outfit reversed the result in the next three games, all of which they won by single goal margins.

RETAIN B. C. TITLE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 21.—(By the Canadian Press.)— King George Juniors of Vancouver retained their British Columbia hockey title by defeating Trail, 3 to 0, in the British Columbia final here last night. The Vancouver team, thus enters the first round of the Dominion championship playdowns against Alberta champions.

CAMPBELL TO BE KNIGHTED SATURDAY.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(A.P.)— The King will confer the accolade of Knighthood to-morrow upon Captain Malcolm Campbell in recognition of his establishment of a new world's speed record for automobiles.

Westclox Tie St. Paul's For League Leadership

CLOCK QUINTET DEFEAT SAINTS BY 6-4 COUNT

Game is Close Checking Affair With Both Teams Playing Defensive Basketball.

LITTLE COMBINATION.

Westclox Defense Proves Stumbling Block For Several St. Paul's Rushes.

In the only scheduled game played in the Ladies' Basketball League last evening, the Westclox entry defeated the first place St. Paul's team 6-4 and put themselves right up with the leaders.

The game, as the score would indicate, was a close checking affair with both teams playing careful basketball and neither team playing any wide open team work.

It must be said for the Westclox that they had many fine shots at the basket that simply refused to go in and it was only hard luck on many occasions that kept their score down. The Clockmakers played a fine brand of ball and Leona Kingdon on the forward line showed excellent form and with any luck at all would have run up a larger score.

Dot Webb, S. Keown and Connie Mason on the Clockmakers' defense proved a decided stumbling block to the Saints and attack after attack were stopped by these stalwarts when a score seemed inevitable.

Dribble the Ball

For St. Paul's it must be said that they played nice basketball but had a tendency to dribble the ball too much, giving the opposition a chance to check. The Saints also seemed in a hurry and weren't always sure where their mates were but Arleigh Comstock figured prominently in their attack and carried a heavy share of the burden.

Maisie Cowan and Toady Patterson worked hard all the way but didn't appear as effective as on previous occasions.

Close Checking Affair

From the start it was evident that the game would be close as both squads were checking hard and eight minutes of the period were up before Leona Kingdon sunk a nice shot for the Clockmakers.

for the Clockmakers. The Saints hung on gamely and were rewarded when Arleigh Comstock tallied on a nice effort.

After that both squads played much faster ball but half time found the game tied 2-2.

In the second half, the Westclox came back strongly and by nice combination, gave Hazel Foster the chance to score.

For several minutes play was even but Grace Comstock tallied for the Presbyterians to even things up again, and with only 4 minutes left to play Isobel Thirnbeck broke away to sink a nice long shot for the Clockmakers.

The last few minutes St. Paul's made many dangerous sallies but the opposition defence was equal to the task and the Westclox quintet took the contest 6-4.

Blue Petes Blank Wohelo

In a league fixture played Thursday night, the Blue Petes broke into the win column at the expense of the luckless Wohelo Club when they defeated them 4-0.

Both teams missed many opportunities to score but the "Blues" were the only squad able to take advantage, Jean Howson and Betsy Scott accounting for the markers.

PETERBOROUGH RANGERS

Friday evening's school consisted of one minute's rapid fire, the object being to get as many accurate shots off in the time given as possible, loading each shot singly. This was won by Dave Clements. The second part was an off hand practice won by J. McGrath. The last practice was an elimination, won by D. Clements with George Cowan following through to the last.

Dave Clements is offering a medal to be shot for during one month's time. The firing to be done in four different positions. Prone, sitting, kneeling and standing. The highest score to be awarded the medal.

NINE TEAMS IN JUNIOR RUNNING

Windsor Tech Meets Acid Test To-night in First Game With Stratford Midgets.

CATARACTS WEAKER.

TORONTO, Ont., February 21 (C. P.). — Nine teams, representing widely separated parts of the Province, remain in the running for the Ontario Hockey Association junior championship and the right to continue in the hunt for the Memorial Cup, emblem of the Canadian junior crown.

Hockey critics are already selecting Owen Sound, Windsor Tech., Stratford, West Toronto, Niagara Falls, or West Toronto as the six best squads in the O.H.A. However, Oshawa, Kingston, and Mimico remain in the picture and may upset predictions by eliminating one or more of the so-called stronger clubs.

The Windsor Tech. squad is composed of practically the same players that represented the club last season and who almost knocked Niagara Falls out in the semi-finals. The Border City team gets the acid test at home to-night when they meet Stratford Midgets in the second game of their play-off series. The first ended in a 2-all tie.

Niagara Falls have lost two of their star performers who graduate this season to senior ranks, but have a powerful team that has yet to meet defeat. The Cataracts lost to West Toronto in the final last season after a thrilling series.

Owen Sound did not compete in the regular schedule through lack of competition, but even senior teams could not beat them in exhibition games, and they added to their prestige by eliminating the strong Toronto St. Michael's College team last week.

West Toronto, who lost in the Dominion final to Regina Pats at Winnipeg last season are not as strong as formerly, two of their star forwards having outgrown the junior ranks. They meet Toronto C.C. in the second game of the local group play-offs on Monday. The first tilt ended in a 3-all tie.

SPOTTED FEVER BREAKS OUT ON WARSHIP.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(A.P.)—What appears to be an outbreak of cerebro spinal meningitis, or spotted fever aboard a British warship, and further cases in the army barracks at Aldershot where already there have been several deaths from the disease has given rise to anxiety.

TECUMSEHS HOLD PLACE BY POINT

London Defeats Syracuse Stars 3-1 to Advance Into Third Position.

IRONSTONE AGAIN STARS.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 21. (CP)—Displaying the form which carried them through to nine straight triumphs last month London Tecumsehs defeated Syracuse Stars 3 to 1 last night and to-day are clinging to the third position in the International Hockey League standing by the narrow margin of one point over Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Goalkeeper Joe Ironstone gave another splendid exhibition of net guarding to keep the Tecumseh snipers running the score into double figures.

Speedy Groh, hard working utility player, finally found an opening in Ironstone's almost impregnable guard early in the second frame to give the Canucks the lead which they held for nearly 10 mininutes. Holmes then knotted the count but the deadlock lasted less than two minutes for Hal Hicks combined with Reinikka for a beautiful goal.

Mike Neville, smooth playing centre, clinched the game for his team early in the final period when Reinikka again provided a perfect assist.

London's reign in third place may be ended abruptly. To-night the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets tackle the league leading Bisons at Buffalo. The latter were forced into overtime at Windsor last night before they squeezed through to a 4 to 3 victory over the Bulldogs and it is possible the Border City team "softened" the Mickey Roach squad enough for the Yellow Jackets to "take" them.

The Bulldogs still hold a three point lead over the Tecumsehs and after losing a close verdict to the Bisons tackle the Indians in Cleveland. A victory for the Ohio city team will lift them into third place just a game behind the Bulldogs.

On Sunday night the Yellow Jackets and Syracuse Stars clash in the only scheduled fixture and should the Smoky City team score victories on successive nights it is possible for them to tie the present holders of second place.

LINDSAY VICS HAVE GOOD LEAD

Homesters Score Winning Goal in Third to Defeat H. C. Intermediates 5-4.

FOR HABOCO TROPHY.

Lindsay Intermediates have a one goal lead for their return game here with Peterborough Monday night as a result of the 5-4 win last night in Lindsay. They are playing home and home games for the J. H. Boyle Company cup. About 400 fans were on hand for the battle last night and they got their money's worth. With a good sheet of ice, both squads played a fast, even game with few penalties handed out. The Petes had a couple of junior players in their line-up.

The Peterborough outfit had a slight edge in the play the first session with Norm Calladine going good to net the rubber twice. LeBarr and Creighton were in one several nice plays. The end of the middle frame found both teams even up 3-3. Pat Calladine scored the Petes' goal, and Dallin and Jarvis worked hard. Miller in the net had a tough time holding the Lindsay crew in the final chapter as they worked in and shot often. They bagged two to take the lead while Lackey was netting one. Maudsley went through one some beautiful rushes but the winners' goalie was stopping them all. Reeves and Martin for Lindsay played an effective brand of hockey, the former having two goals to his credit. Referee Coombs of Lindsay kept the play clean for the most part, chasing the boys wherever they tried roughing it.

The final game will be played here at the Brock Street rink Monday night, and the Petes are confident they can wipe out the one goal margin and win the round. A big crowd is expected for the battle.

ELECTRICIANS WIN BY SINGLE COUNTER

Close Decisions Are Feature of Mercantile League Games Last Night.

Two very close games in the Mercantile Hockey League were played off at the Sacred Heart Rink last evening, the scores being Grant and Thorpe 6, Brinton Carpet 5, and Utilities 3, Peterborough Canoe 3.

In the first game the teams were evenly matched. The game was a clean one, there being no recorded penalties. There was action and speed throughout the three periods. In the last minutes of the third period an argument arose concerning a goal. Decision was given in favor of Brinton Carpet, making the score 5-4 for Grant and Thorpe. Heal slipped down the ice and through the enemy line and scored a goal for the shopkeepers. Hatton for the other team broke away for another goal, and immediately afterwards time was sounded, with the score 6-5 in favor of Grant and Thorpe.

For Grant and Thorpe, Reid played a good game in the nets; Heal scored three goals, and Davis, Robertson and Leonard each scored one. Corbett and Hatton each made two goals for Brinton Carpet, and McGarrity scored one. The teams:

Referee—P. Collins.

BATTLE TO 3-ALL DRAW

The Utilities-Peterborough Canoe also proved to be an even game. The plays were fast with very few exceptions. The game was comparatively clean, there being only 3 penalties handed out, 2 to P. C. and 1 to Utilities. Both teams fought hard to break the tie, but the game ended with the score 3-all.

Croft, Dyer and Collins each scored a goal for Utilities, and the Meyettes and Clancy for Peterborough Canoe. The teams:

Referee—G. Masters.

The standing of the various teams in the League so far is:

	P	W	L	T	P
Grant and Thorpe	2	2	0	0	4
Brinton Carpet	2	1	1	0	2
Utilities	1	0	0	1	2
Peterborough Canoe	1	0	0	1	2
Silverwood's	2	0	2	0	0

The next game will be played Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the Sacred Heart Rink, when Peterborough Canoe will meet Silverwood's.

Cambridge Gets Into Form For Big Race

An excellent picture of the Cambridge University crew as it shot under a bridge over the River Cam, England, where the members of the Light Blue crews are practising for the big race in March. Although the Cambridge boat has been successful in winning the coveted University Race for the past four years in succession, their opponents, the Dark Blues of Oxford, are looming up this year as a real threat.

CELLAR TEAMS WIN FROM LOOP LEADERS

Oshawa Defeats Silverwoods 7-2 While Nationals Nose Out Falls 2-1.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb 21.—(By the Canadian Press.)—The bottom division of the Ontario Hockey League last night gave the top half something to think about over the week-end.

Oshawa, the tail-enders, handed the second place Kitchener Silverwoods a thorough drubbing by a score of 7 to 2. Stratford Nationals, who are only two points ahead of Oshawa, nosed out Niagara Falls, 2 to 1, while Guelph Maple Leafs advanced to a tie for second place with Kitchener and Niagara by outscoring the League leading Galt Terriers 4 to 3.

This upheaval has resulted in a general tightening of the standing. Only five points separate the leaders and basement holders. The Terriers lead the Cataracts, Silverwoods and Maple Leafs by one point, while the Nationals are only another behind, but there in front of Oshawa Pats.

HABOCO CUP GAME ON MONDAY NIGHT

Lindsay Vics Carrying One Goal Lead Into Second Game of Series.

The Boyle Cup will be presented to the winner of the Lindsay-Peterborough post-season series by Harry Boyle after the game at the Brock on Monday night. The game is called for 8.30 o'clock, and the local Intermediates are one goal down, as Lindsay won the first match 5-4 on their own ice. Fans are likely to turn out in good numbers for the final game, as this is the last time they will see Peterborough Intermediates in action this year, and the only time Lindsay Vics have played here.

Surplus receipts will go toward doctor bills drawn by the boys in their tough O.H.A. schedule. Goalie Gillespie had a broken hand, others had broken ribs, a smashed nose, and a bunch of teeth knocked out in a season full of hard luck and hard bumps throughout.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass.
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

CAVAN

Cavan Women's Institute shipped two very fine bales of clothing to the north country a couple of weeks ago. They were consigned to a member of the W.I. at New Liskeard and the letter acknowledging the receipt of the bails, showed how much they were appreciated. The need in that district has been very great.

A boy who received a suit from the consignment and found a note in the pocket with the donor's name, also sent an interesting letter voicing his thanks. These gifts and the personal messages received from the recipients, seem to bridge the distance between new and old Ontario. There is a bond of sympathy between the two districts, and it is debatable which receives the greatest pleasure and blessing, those who give, or those who receive.

Plans are being made in the various institute branches, for the summer series of meetings to be addressed by lady speakers sent out by the Department. This year Cavan Women's Institute has invited three of the adjoining branches to meet with them at an afternoon meeting in Cavan Community Hall, and enjoy the speaker in unison. At these meetings often profitable discussions follow the address.

The reports given by the secretaries of the branches are listened to with interest, many good ideas being found in these reports. It is a benefit for a society to hear what has constituted the activities for the year, of their neighboring institutes. An exchange of ideas and plans removes the monotony of the rural program.

HAVELOCK

Charity formed the foundation of a very able and instructive address by Mrs. M. Kinnaird at the regular meeting held in the Town Hall, the following of which is an extract:

"Charity suffers long, it is kind and loving. Charity is more than giving help to those who are in need because the poor we have always with us and it is our duty not only to feel for them but assist them without any grumbling over their faults and failures—for he who is faultless does not exist.

Charity envieth not—vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, or in other words does not fancy itself but is gentle and unassuming, never acts unseemingly is not selfish. It is real and not make-believe.

Charity is not easily provoked, it thinks no evil and never rejoices in other people's downfal or misfortunes. It rejoices in everything noble and truthful. If we have charity we will never misjudge our neighbours or think evil about them, but always esteem others better than ourselves.

Charity beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things and endureth all things. It never falleth. I remember hearing of a minister when he married a young couple told them that when they would get into their new home they would find two big bears to cope with. The one would be bear and the other forbear. I believe it would be the proper thing for us all to bear and forbear with one another.

Charity believeth all things and never goes about with a doubtful spirit. It hopes for all things and hope is the anchor of our soul. It is a wonderful help when we hope for the best in everything it keeps us bright under the circumstances for it endureth all things—never was known to fail, because charity is real love and love always conquers—because God is love.

Now you will find all I have said about charity in the Good Old Book read it when you get home for yourselves, you will see it all in 1 Corinthians 13.

WARSAW

Sweden has a National Federation of Housewives, with over a hundred branches, in towns, villlages, and country. The association is self-governing, receives no state support and is neutral regarding politics and religion.

The object is to bring together all classes of women who work in the home and have the same interests, that they may profit by exchange of experience and information, and be awakened to their responsibilities towards the home and the community, and to be a safeguard to the Swedish home. The local branches generally meet once a month and discuss much the same subjects as we do, and arrange evening entertainments. Special courses, which are very popular are arranged in cooking, baking, sewing, darning, weaving, lamp shade making, basket making, upholstery and care of flowers.

Special classes are held for the care of the new-born baby, a subject to which great importance is given.

Many local branches have worked and provided funds for such purposes as providing a summer home where tired housewives may rest, building a public bath and wash house. For this they try to, and generally do, get assistance from local authorities. Each members receives a free copy of the monthly magazine.

Special educational work is carried on in country districts for young country girls over school age. There are the people's high schools which girls of sixteen or over may attend, which take up subjects of general education as well as weaving, physical culture and hygiene. These courses last five months. There are courses in domestic economy. Scolarships are given those who really cannot afford the fee. These schools are partly supported by the state.

The thirty-five schools of domestic economy have courses lasting three and one half to five months. Girls are admitted at the age of sixteen, but must have had some practical experience in domestic work. They get practical and theoretical instruction in domestic economy, also to sewing and weaving, and to milking, poultry farming and gardening. They also have some state support, and scholarships.

There are also travelling school kitchens, fully equipped, which give six week courses. Teachers for these schools receive a special training in one of the two training colleges, each of which receives a government grant.

The pupils must be at least twenty years of age, must have had a secondary school education, and experience in domestic work. They take up the subjects of the girls' schools, and also the care of pigs and cows.

MILLBROOK

"Cupboards and their Uses," was a recent study at an Institute gathering, some very practical suggestions being entered in note-books, in consequence. As an instance: Have a corner cupboard in your bathroom—it will fit in even if wall space is limited, and will take care of a lot of things needful in this particular part of your home. Also when buying bathsalts, and other toilet preparations, take care to choose those that come in the same kind of painted glass or tin container. Thus you may accumulate a set of boxes, or glass holders, that will hold the smaller staple groceries, such as barley, bay leaves, dried bread crumbs (rolled), spices, etc., and your shelves will be adorned with as attractive a set of containers as you could possibly buy. Gummed labels, on which are written the name of the ingredients, will tell you instantly just where what you need is to be found.

Another suggestion noted was that of hanging cups and small pitchers on brass hooks, in place of standing them on the shelves, and so space may be saved to a considerable degree. A row of cups, and dainty pitchers, hanging thus is most attractive, but it is necessary to exercise care to have sufficient space between the hanging article and the dishes on the shelf below, if breakages are to be avoided. Place the hooks evenly, and though the cups, etc., look better near the outer edge of the shelf, safety is more thoroughly assured if they are hung a bit farther back.

The bad habit of placing things on the cellar steps, in waiting to be carried down when a trip to the basement has to be later made, was scored strongly during the discussion on step-saving and space-saving, as many a really serious fall has reulted from forgetfulness of the articles left on the stairway.

One member's solution of the problem was to have a small table near the stairhead, either the cellar or other stairs of the house, and on this to place the articles to be carried down when steps led in that direction. Another table at the stairs' foot is also a convenience, as here again may be placed things that will later be carried up when hands are free to hold them. Another member added her plan of having always a large tray, or perhaps for the cellar a shallow basket, on the table for holding a number of articles in the trips up and down the stairs.

Of course for brooms, mops, long-handled brushes, etc., a holder made of a board with hooks on which these may be hung, is the ideal plan. Have holes bored through the handles of brooms, etc., run a strong cord, or fine wire, through the hole, and hang them on the hook—thus you avoid dust-catchers, or traps over which the unwary may stumble, often with serious accidents as the unfortunate outcome. Screw-eyes near the top of the handles will take the place of the holes bored, if this arrangement is preferred.

What To-day Means To You

"PISCES"

If February 21st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p.m. and from 5:30 p.m. to 6:45 p.m.

Astrological indications denote for February 21st, a day of useful activity, stimulation of thought, and clear vision. Not so much a time for new enterprise, as for the correction of errors in past efforts. It is an auspicious occasion for travel, and for the formation of new ties.

A child born on this February 21st, will be self-willed, and, when thwarted, reveal a violent attitude. These traits must be eliminated if it is ever to become what the Fates have decreed—a strong purposeful character with a background of geniality and companionability.

If your birthday is February 21st, the stars presge that your bed will not be of roses. You will have to struggle long and hard to purge your system, of envy, jealoufy and violent dislikes. If you have succeeded in doing this, you will have acquired the virtues of tolerance, agreeableness, and contentment, all very necessary qualities if you are to enjoy the career for which you are destined. Your horoscope denotes that you possess high ideals, and try to live up to them; that you have more than average intelligence, and know how to apply it; that you have well-balanced, although strong, comvictions, and do not hesitate to proclaim them. You will not have many friends. The few you have, however, will make up in loyality for lack of numbers. You take life too seriously to appeal to many. You also take yourself very seriously, and have no sense of humor. You sense of justice is very marked, and you feel others' wrongs as much as though they were inflicted on you.

Association with a partner would "cramp your style." You must, to get the best results "go it on your own." In home life, you will dominate but not domineer. You will be constant in your affections, and, though not given to emotional outbursts, will secure the abding loyalty, the deep affection and the loving respect of those near and dear to you.

If February 22nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 7:15 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and from 6 p.m. to 7:15 p.m.

The astrological signs of February 22nd are in harmony with the day of the week. Nothing startling, nothing of a disturbing character, is predicted. The atmosphere promises to be negative, rather than positive. It can be made a perfect Day of Rest, replete with a happy calm.

A chil born on this February 22nd will demonstrate, in physique and mentality, the strange truth of heredity. If it be a girl, it will resemble its father; if a boy it will be like its mother. As time develops, it will reveal, more and more every day, the same traits that distinguish the parent whom it resembles.

If February 22nd is your birthday, the Fates have been, and promise to be, kinder to you than you really deserve. You have neglected opportunites. You have been indiscreet. You have not been exceptionally industrious yet, you have "got away with it," and see no reason in spending your time in useless regrets. One of the strongest assets in your mental balance sheet is your outstanding truthfulness. When you have done those things that you should not to have done, and left undone those things which you should have done, you have never "made any bones" about it, but have simply ttold 'the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

Another factor that helps you in every emergency, is an engaging personality and a smile that both captivates and disarms. You are never a "whiner," nor are you a "squaller." To these qualities you owe many valuable friendships. You are superficially, but not fundamentally, clever. You are neither thoughtless nor selfish. You are, however, strictly uncomventional. As a companion, you sre interesting. As a traveler, you are adapt, able. As a lover, you are more emotional than constant. As a parent, however, you shine the most, as in the presence of your children, the years slip off your shoulders, as easily as a coat, and you yourself become a child again—irresponsible, merry, and full of fun.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book, "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. Made in Canada.

SOLLOWAY FREED ARRESTED AGAIN

Former Broker Taken in Custody By Ontario and B. C. Officers.

LEAVES LETHBRIDGE JAIL.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Feb. 21. — (CP)—Four months' imprisonment ended, I. W. C. Solloway steps out of Lethbridge jail this morning a free man as far as the Province of Alberta extends, but faced with conspiracy charges in British Columbia and Ontario. Fourteen days were deleted from Solloway's term because of good behavior.

A partner with Harvey Mills in the defunct brokerage concern of Solloway, Mills, Ltd., the broker head received his four months' term when convicted with Mills in Calgary of conspiracy in connection with the operations of his company. Mills, the junior partner, was sentenced to one month in Lethbridge jail.

When Mills gained his freedom from the Alberta prison he was taken to Vancouver to face charges there, then sent to Ontario where he was remanded to await trial in the British Columbia City.

As Solloway leaves the prison walls today police officers from the Attorney General offices in British Columbia and Ontario will take him into custody, in the same manner as when Mills was released.

Ease in 5 Minutes—Comfort in 5 Hours

Muscular-Rheumatic Aches and Pains

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Distressing muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond pleasantly to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant," because it gets action and is not just a salve. Musterole helps bring soreness and pain to the surface, and thus gives natural relief. You can feel how its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy; jars and tubes.

CHURCH BOX SOCIAL SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Delightful Event Held Under Auspices of Ladies' Association of Fleetwood.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LIFFORD LINE, Feb. 21.—The box social under the auspices of the Ladies' Association of Fleetwood United Church on Friday evening proved very successful.

On account of numerous similar attractions in honor of St. Valentine and considerable illness in the community the crowd was not as large as was primarily hoped for.

The ladies sponsoring the event contributed Valentine boxes of white crepe paper with red hearts arranged in an attractive combination. These had been arranged at a meeting early in the month.

Mr. A. Monk of Bethany in his usual efficient manner disposed of the boxes which with other decorations assisted in lending the gracious spirit of St. Valentine to the atmosphere of the entire occasion.

The Young People of Bethany presented their play "No Account David" which is proving very popular at the various centers in which it has been put on. The ladies considered themselves especially fortunate in securing such pleasing talent.

Between acts the young people of Fleetwood provided excellent music on banjo, organ and mouth organ. Mrs. Cummiskey, Miss Ida Shea and Mr. Hamilton were prominent contributors in this capacity.

A most enjoyable social time was spent at the conclusion and as the "two horse" open sleighs were reloaded all present voted the occasion one of the happiest of the season.

The neat sum of approximately $25 was the proceeds for the evening.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 78 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As Tarzan started down the trail, a tall, ungainly figure emerged from the jungle north of the camp. He made straight for the plant white man and Mugambi, neither of whom had dreamed that a human being other than those of their own camp dwelt upon the unfriendly shores of Jungle Island. "Who are you?" demanded the ape-man. "What do you know of the theft of my wife and the Mosula woman?"

"Everything," replied the fellow. "Your women are stolen, and if you ever want to see them again come quickly where I lead. Even now the pearl ship may be out to sea by the time we reach her anchorage." "Why have you come?" demanded Tarzan. "I heard that devil, Kai Shang, and your man dish up their plot. Kai Shang chased me from the camp and would have killed me. Now I will get even with him. Hurry. There's not a minute to lose."

Stung anew into action at this turn of affairs, Tarzan, followed by Mugambi and the pearl-fisher, started at a rapid trot through the jungle towards the north. Would they come to the sea in time? But a few more minutes would answer the question. And when at last the three did break through the last of the screening foliage and the harbor and the ocean lay before them, it was indeed too late.

Fate has been most cruelly unkind, for the pearl schooner was already under sail and moving out of the mouth of the harbor into the open sea. What was he to do? Tarzan's broad chest rose and fell to the force of his pent emotions. The last blow seemed to have fallen, and if ever in his life Tarzan of the Apes had had occasion to abandon hopes 'twas now that he saw the ship, bearing his wife to some frightful fate, moving gracefully seaward.

130 Horses Listed 57th Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 21.—(CP)—One hundred and thirty scions of equine aristocracy are nominated for the 57th running of the Kentucky Derby here Saturday, May 16.

"Equipoise," largest two-year-old money winner since the immortal Domino, and winter book favorite, is in the list made public today by M. J. Winn, president of the American Turf association and executive director of Churchill Downs. The C. V. Whitney colt has opposition from such colts as "Twenty Grand" of the Greentree stable, A. C. Bostwick's "Mate", and the Tennessee Stable's "Vander Pool", not to mention any one of a dozen or more high class three-year-olds who may show real Derby form before the turf classic is run at the Downs.

DEPUTATION GOING TO TORONTO.

Comprising members of the City Council, the local Chamber of Commerce and the local member of the legislative assembly, a deputation will leave this city on Tuesday morning for Toronto to augment the Provincial deputation headed by Mayor Robson of Guelph to protest against what they believe to be unfair taxation on municipalities with respect to suburban and provincial roads, and to ask for some relief from the gasoline tax for this purpose The deputation will be one of the largest to invade Toronto for some time, it is stated.

WOMEN WORKERS NEEDED

The Women's Section of the Peterborough Relief Association is anxious to procure the names of women who are able to accept positions as working housekeepers in the city or in nearby country homes.

At present, two women are needed, one as a housekeeper for a family of two, in a village on the highway, another for six weeks or two months on a farm near Hastings, where the woman of the house is ill with a broken leg. In each case, a comfortable home is provided, although the wages would not be large.

Apply to Mrs. W. R. Morris at the Relief Committee rooms, 435 George street.

STOVES ARE NEEDED

The Examiner is anxious to get two cook stoves of medium size, also enough patches of material to finish a partially completed quilt, and a sewing machine for a woman who can do work at home if she could get a machine.

TRUCK CATCHES FIRE

A truck belonging to T. R. Edwards took fire outside of 209 Brock street yesterday at 2.49 p.m. An alarm was immediately sent into the Fire Department who extinguished the flames with foamite.

The cause of the fire has not been determined yet, but it is thought that it was caused by a faulty starter.

TRENTON WELTERWEIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Feb. 21.—(CP)—Paul Walker, Trenton, N. J., welterweight, fought in a defensive role here last night and lost a 10-round decision to "Young" Corbett of Fresno, Cal.

The Fresno boy belted the Easterner with right and lefts throughout the bout. Walker was tough and dangerous at all times, but he was on the receiving end of most of the punches.

IN MEMORIAM.

WELCH. — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Eva Elizabeth Shaw, who passed away on February 22, 1930.

Taken from earth so swiftly,
Plucked like a flower in bloom;
So young, so fair, so loving,
Yet called away so soon.
We think of you in silence,
And your name we oft recall;
But there's nothing left to answer
But your picture on the wall.

—Sadly missed by Father, Mother, Brothers and Sisters.

ARMOUR. — In memory of Mrs. George L. Armour, who departed this life 8 years ago to-day (February 21).

Deep in my heart lies a picture
Worth more than silver or gold;
It's a picture of my dear mother,
Whose memory will never grow old.

RADICAL REFORMS IN HABERDASHERY

Al. Sharpe Opens New Store in Remodelled Premises Vacated by Regent Tailors.

Radical dress reforms are anticipated for the smart young man about town, this spring in the showing of the latest men's fashions at the new store of Al. Sharpe which opened for business this morning in the remodelled premises recently vacated by Regent Tailors. In the show windows and on the heavy-laden racks are suits in the new harmony blues, greys, browns, etc., striking a note of originality and a change from the more drab colours which have formerly prevailed in suitings. The large stock of furnishings and accessories also reflect the sartorial efforts to add a touch of colour and brightness to the garb of the male population.

In its remodelled freshness and beauty of appointments the store itself, provides a splendid background in keeping with the stock, and is in full harmony with modern store design in metropolitan centers. The fixtures executed in gum wood, were made to Mr. Sharpe's order by the Alladin Company of this city, while the carpenter work was undertaken by H. C. Huffman. The walls are tinted in an artistic shade of golden-yellow, while the floor is laid in battleship linoleum of a harmonizing shade, with a large blue pile rug at the rear, providing a setting for a 'homey' looking electric fireplace.

The office is situated on a sort of mezzanine floor, built with balcony effect and finished in spotless white enamel.

Mr. Sharpe who has just completed seven years in the trade at his former store next the Capitol Theater, is now entering upon another term in the new premises, with the same old policy of "service and courtesy" as his chief aim.

WEDDINGS

JOHNSTON—LEAHY.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnston, 66 Lee street, on Saturday, February 14, at 3 p.m., when Mary Margaret, daughter of Mr. William Leahy and the late Mrs. Leahy, of Halifax, N.S., was united in marriage to Clifford John Johnston, second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnston, 66 Lee street, by the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard.

The bride looked lovely in a dark brown Canton silk dress, shoes, stockings and small hat to match and a pretty sheaf of calla lilies and mixed flowers. The young people were attended by Mr. Ted Johnston, of Toronto and Mrs. Johnston, city.

After the ceremony a wedding lunch was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The table looked pretty with spring flowers in vases and was centred by the wedding cake.

The young people received many beautiful and useful presents showing the high esteem in which they are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will reside in the city.

OBITUARY

MRS. PATRICK BOLTON

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Patrick Bolton, 249 Lake street. The deceased was a life-long resident of Peterborough and is survived by her husband, two sons, Joseph of Peterborough, and Edward of Cleveland, Ohio, one sister, Mrs. William Schaal of Meriden, Conn., and a cousin, Rev. Fr. Finn of St. Peter's parish.

The funeral will take place from Mrs. Bolton's late home at 8.45 p.m., Monday, to Sacred Heart Church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

In Police Court

Appearing in a somewhat dishevelled state, the result of a night in the cells, following a drinking bout, Clifford Graham pleaded guilty to being in an intoxicated condition on Gilchrist Street last evening, and was ordered to pay a fine of $10.00 with $4.50 costs. The only other case on the docket was that of Huron Hunter, who appeared on remand in answer to a charge of fraudulently obtaining food and lodging. He was granted a further remand until Tuesday next, on the promise that in the meantime he would endeavor to square affairs with his landlady.

Studebaker Reduces Prices Of New Models

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 21.—In accordance with their established policy of always paying on to the public every warranted reduction in the price of their motor cars, the Studebaker Corporation of Canada Limited to-day announced a substantial reduction in the delivered primes of the new free wheeling six-cylinder series. The increased demand for products of Canadian factories and free wheeling first introduced in Canada by Studebaker and other recent developments in the motor industry have so stimulated Studebaker sales that they are showing a very substantial increase over the corresponding period of 1930.

Now that the company has again been able to materially reduce the delivered price of this very popular six cylinder model it is confidently expected that any sales records which have been established during their twenty years of operation in Canada will now be surpassed.

THERONOID

IT GIVES US A GREAT DEAL OF PLEASURE AND SATISFACTION TO BE ABLE TO REPORT CASES LIKE THE ONE STATED BELOW. THIS CASE IS ONLY ONE OF MANY SUCH CASES THAT PASS THROUGH OUR HANDS. IF YOU ARE SUFFERING FROM A CHRONIC DISEASE, YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO INVESTIGATE ANY FORM OF TREATMENT THAT WILL BE BENEFICIAL, MORE PARTICULARLY ONE THAT HAS PROVED ITSELF, LIKE THERONOID HAS DONE ALL OVER THE AMERICAN CONTINENT.

To Theronoid of Peterborough — May 22nd, 1930

"DEAR SIRS:

It gives me great pleasure to be able to report to you the effects that electro-magnetism as applied by the THERONOID has had on my condition. First of all I will briefly describe the condition I was in before using the appliance. I had a pain around my heart for thirty years, neuritis for five years, rheumatism for fifteen years. On the 7th of October last I called in the doctor and he informed me that my blood pressure was two hundred and twenty, and it was doubtful if I was going to live very much longer. My age is fifty-eight, so according to that I was about sixty-two points too high. I also suffered from constipation.

I started to use THERONOID on Feb. 3rd, 1930 and went back to my work at the ..... on the 2nd of April. I have now completely lost all traces of neuritis, rheumatism and heart trouble and my blood pressure is normal, after only two months of use. I am feeling quite well, in fact I can do anything and eat anything and I sleep well and my constipation is relieved. Instead of feeling fatigued when I get up in the mornings I feel fresh and ready for my day's work.

The facts are exactly as they existed and I have no fear of recommending THERONOID to anybody who is suffering as I have suffered. You are at liberty to use this letter in any way you may see fit and trust it will be the means of other people regaining their health."

WE ARE NOT GIVING YOU THE NAME OF THIS CASE, BUT THIS LETTER MAY BE SEEN AT OUR OFFICE, AND THE CLIENT WILL CONFIRM HAVING WRITTEN SAME, IF YOU CARE TO INVESTIGATE.

Attorney Acting Against Perkins Bull Expects Client to Get Over $250,000.

MRS. SIDLEY GETS DIVORCE.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 23.—The $250,000 damage suit of Dr. John Street Sidley against M. Perkins Bull, K.C., who lies injured in a Toronto, Ont., hospital, may be settled out of court within the next week, Jay Frederic Reeve, Sidley's attorney, revealed to-day.

Dr. Sidley is suing Bull for damages suffered, it is alleged, because Bull has employed private detectives to shadow the physician for three years. Attorney Reeve said his client would receive a settlement of between $250,000 and $500,000.

Reeve felt reasonably sure that the settlement would take place before Wednesday, which is the day scheduled for the hearing of a petition for injunction brought by Dr. Disley to restrain Bull from having him trailed by detectives.

Dr. Sidley's wife, a daughter of William Horlick, Sr., founder of a malted milk concern, obtained a divorce Saturday after a fifteen minute hearing in Racine, Wis.

Bull is suffering from injuries received when the automobile in which he was traveling from Chicago to Detroit crashed into a truck trailer, recently near Coldwater, Mich.

FACES COBOURG CHARGES

LINDSAY, Feb. 23.—A young man, Albert Lindsay, was arrested here Saturday by Provincial Officer John Nelson. Lindsay has been wanted since 1928 at Cobourg, where several charges of housebreaking await him. He was taken back to Cobourg yesterday by a Provincial constable.

CALGARY QUALIFIES.

OKOTOKS, Alta., February 23 (C.P.). — Calgary Bronks defeated Calgary Maroons here on Saturday 3-1 to capture the two game series 5-3 and qualify for the semi-finals of the Southern Alberta Senior Amateur Hockey League play-off against Drumheller Miners. The game was transferred here, as there is no ice in Calgary.

EUROPE STUDIES WHEAT PROBLEM

Representatives of 24 Countries Discuss Disposal of 3,000,000 Surplus Tons.

BRIAND OPENS SESSION.

PARIS, France, Feb. 23. (A.P.) — Europe was reminded by Aristide Briand to-day that its attempt at organization was on trial when he opened the European Conference called to discover a means of disposing of an excess 1930 wheat crop estimated at 3,000,000 tons more than requirments.

The veteran Foreign Minister, author of a plan for a European federation, told representatives of 24 countries attending the meeting that it would go far to determnite the willingness of Europe to act as a body.

"The hour has come" he said, "to prove this solidarity in which we have confidence. Here we are on the threshold of the first experiment in this solidarity and I invite you to measure its practical consequences and the symbolical significance it cannot fail to take in the minds of the people.

"It is a question of the solution of the first concrete problem invoked by the commission of study for a European union. But the real need is consolidation of peace in this part of the continent where distraction from the economic crisis is necessary."

The conference named a committee to determine the exact extent of this year's wheat surplus and later to consider the surpluses of corn, barley and other grains.

Andre Francois-Poncet, French undersecretary for national economy, was elected president.

AUSTRALIA DIVA DIES AT SYDNEY OF RARE DISEASE

World Loses One of Purest Sopranos Grand Opera Has Ever Known.

DECORATED BY KING GEORGE

Melba During 40 Years of Career Became Known Over Globe—Was 71 Years Old.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Feb. 23. —(AP)—The curtain was rung down today on the life of Dame Nellie Melba, one of the purest sopranos grand opera has ever known, after weeks abed with a strange illness which baffled her physicians.

Seventy one years old, the famous prima donna for several days had fought a losing battle with a skin malady picked up in Egypt and aggravated by a long journey home from Europe before Christmas and the extreme heat of the Australian summer.

Hastened Own End

Friends believed that she hastened her own end with insistance upon spending Christmas in her native Australia, disregarding the advice of her physicians in Europe under whose treatment she was growing better. She became ill again aboard ship and had to enter a hospital at Sydney before proceeding to Melbourne.

She was happy, however, in spending almost her last hours in Melbourne near where she was born, and from which she took her stage name, Melba. Her real name was Nellie Porter Mitchell, changed by her marriage in 1882 to Armstrong. Her father was David Mitchell, a contractor of Scottish blood, at Burnley, not far from here.

Known to all the world as the successor to Patti and Jenny Lind, Melba sang last in America at the New York Metropolitan in Faust in 1917-18, and after that was seldom heard in public. She was said to have retained the purity, sweetness and flexibility of her voice almost until the time of her death.

Her most famous roles were as Gilda in Rigoletto, Violetta in La Traviata and Lucia. Other roles were the soprano parts of La Bohme. Tosca, Othello and an occasional Bruenhild. Although the critics were lavish in their praise they sometimes complained of her coldness as an actress.

Married Life Unhappy

Her life with Captain N. F. Armstrong, her husband, was not entirely happy.

Shortly after birth of her son, George Nesbitt Armstrong, she became separated from both, and in April, 1900, Captain Armstrong, then

EARL OF BESSBOROUGH TO HASTEN DEPARTURE FOR POST IN DOMINION

Plans General Tour on Arrival to Gain First Hand Knowledge of Development.

SEES GREAT FUTURE AHEAD.

LONDON, February 23 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — The Earl of Bessborough, newly appointed Governor-General of Canada, declared in an interview to-day that he had decided to hasten his departure for Canada, sailing on March 27.

"The appointment of the Earl of Willingdon as Viceroy of India made it impossible to arrange for the normal take-over as between one Governor-General and another," said the Earl, "and I want to reduce the interregnum as far as possible.

Visited Canada in 1902.

"Going to Canada will be for me a renewal of the old acquaintance which I formed with the Dominion in 1902, soon after I left Cambridge. It was the first country I visited, and I am certain no 'grand tour' such as our forbears believed to be essential to the completion of one's education, ever conferred such a benefit upon a young man. Since that time I have been back only once."

The Earl spoke of Canada's present standing in the eyes of the world, and declared she was bearing the burden of depression more easily and with a greater prospect of early relief than any other nation.

"I shall be able to appreciate in full the past three decades," the Earl continued. "It is easy, I know, to talk in terms of extravagant enthusi-

Eye Knocked Out; May Still Function

KENTVILLE, N.S., Feb. 23. — When a bus skidded on an icy road and struck the door of Charles Alders' automobile, a piece of flying glass sliced his left eye from its socket and laid it out on the cheek. A companion replaced the optic and Alders was rushed to a doctor, who says there is a fifty-fifty chance of saving the eye.

Hit And Run Driver Strikes Millbrook Car

After completing a visit to 762 Water street last night, Albert Ford of Millbrook along with his son, Wilson, and a male companion, were just in time to see a hit-and-run driver making his get-away after having collided with their car, which stood at the curb. They were in time, too, to get the retreating car's number, which they reported to city police. Mr. Ford's car was damaged on the left front fender and bumper, while the bumperette at the rear was also broken. The other car was also damaged, as a portion of it which was left behind testifies.

Expenditures of New South Wales the first six months of last year exceeded the revenues by nearly $27,000,0000.

Presidential Candidate Held as Lunatic; Advocated Beer Bubblers on All Streets

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 23.—Henry W. Hayssen, self-announced Presidential candidate on a platform calling for public "beer fountains,' awaited a sanity hearing in completely a bare cell of the city jail today after he had fired his padded cell yesterday and thereby caused one death.

Hayssen, who says his home is Lake City, Fla., set fire to his mattress in the city jail Friday and was given over to the county pending a sanity hearing. Early Sunday morning he set fire to a padded cell in the county jail, and as a result a Negro woman, charged with murder was suffocated and the lives of 276 prisoners were placed in jeopardy.

The self-styled Presidential candidate was arrested after he had walked about streets with placards on his chest and back proclaiming his identity and platform. He called himself the President of the "Universal Brotherhood.'

In his platform talks in the park meetings held against a city ordinance, officers said Hayssen opposed prohibition and advocated "beer fountains or bubblers on every principal street corner, fed by a national system of beer pipe lines for a thirsty nation, to supply good, wholesome beer."

Good wines and whiskey at all times at moderate prices, also was one of his campaign promises.

INJURIES FATAL TO FRED DAYTON INQUEST ORDERED

Marmora Man Dies Following Injuries Received While Blasting.

INQUEST MARCH 3.

Dayton Came to Marmora Three Years Ago From Village of Warsaw.

MARMORA, Feb. 23. —(Examiner Correspondence.) —Frank Frederick Dayton died on Saturday morning here, as the result of injuries received the previous day while at his work in the Silica Rock Quarry north of the village. Coroner Dr. H. H. Alger of Stirling, has empanelled a jury and has ordered the inquest to be held at the Town Hall at 2 p.m. on March 3rd.

The deceased man, it is stated, had placed two charges of dynamite in the face of the rock for the purpose of blasting. One of the charges was exploded, but for some reason the other charge 'hung fire.' Dayton was going forward to investigate, when without warning the charge exploded, hurling fragments of rock in all directions. Dayton was struck on the head and had a portion of his left ear cut off. He was immediately rendered first aid and rushed to his home, where he lay in a precarious condition throughout Friday night. At times he was semi-conscious.

Mr. Dayton who was 24 years of age, had come to Marmora about three years ago, from Warsaw. He leaves his wife, formerly Emma Cooper, of Marmora township, and one baby son, Frederick. The funeral was held this afternoon, with interment at Marmora Protestant cemetery, preceded by a service at the United church.

As far as is known, the deceased had no relatives in Warsaw.

The following citizens have been empanelled for jury service: W. Linn, foreman; G. Wellman, S. S. Johnston, J. Blakely, T. E. Potts, Thomas Warren, J. Finnegan, H. Naylor.

TOWN MOURNS AS J. T. AYERS PASSES.

LACHUTE, Que., February 23. — The town of Lachute was in complete mourning on Saturday with all places of business closed while the majority of its five thousand inhabitants attended the funeral of John T. Ayers, president of the extensive local woollen mills bearing his name and long prominent in provincial and municipal politics. Mr. Ayers died on Wednesday at the age of 56 years.

14 Convicts Escape To Arizona Desert

FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 23. — Fourteen convicts, including one murderer, who clambered over the State penitentiary wall here yesterday while a guard was not watching, were being tracked through sagebrush and cactus of surrounding desert to-day.

Fifteen escaped, but one was captured. A steel girder, taken from a prison construction job enabled the convicts to climb to the top of the wall and drop 20 feet to the ground outside. The last man was seen by a guard as he sprinted for cover.

Warden William Delbridge immediately released bloodhounds and a guard detail.

BISHOP FALLON WIDELY MOURNED

Tributes Are Paid to Late Prelate by Many of Other Faiths.

FUNERAL ON FRIDAY.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 23 (C.P.). — The funeral of Right Rev. M. F. Fallon, Roman Catholic Bishop of London, whose death is mourned throughout Canada, will be held on Friday, Feb. 27, at 10 a.m., according to a brief preliminary announcement this morning.

The body now lies in the Episcopal residence and will probably be removed later to St. Peter's Cathedral or to the seminary which stands as a striking monument to the work of the late bishop, where it will lie in state. Further details of the funeral will be arranged later.

Many Tributes Paid.

Tributes have been pouring in from widely distant points, denoting the high esteem in which His Lordship was held by those of other faiths, as well as his own.

At a meeting of the Bishop's Chapter, an administrator will be chosen to carry on the affairs of the Diocese of London until such time as a successor has been appointed to the Bishopric of London.

Throughout the city leading clergymen of all denominations paid tribute to the career of Bishop Fallon and expressed sympathy for those of the Roman Catholic faith in the loss of the head of the Diocese of London.

Archbishop David Williams, of the Anglican Diocese of Huron, stated that the death came to him as a shock.

"Bishop Fallon filled a large place in the life of the city. A great champion of education in all its aspects, his name will be indissolubly associated with the institutions which he founded and by which he secured the

SCHOOL TEACHER IS NOT GUILTY OF ASSAULT CHARGE

His Honor Finds Girl Was Wilfully Disobedient.

ENCOURAGED BY MOTHER.

Child Was Injured By Accident When She Fell Over Desk.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 23.—Complete vindication of Harry Gillies, the 21-year-old Oak Grove school principal, was given Saturday afternoon by Judge J. J. Coughlin in county judges' criminal court at St. Thomas when Gillies was arraigned on a charge of assault, causing actual bodily injury to Bessie Lamont, a 13-year-old pupil.

"The law," ruled His Honor, will not step in between a teacher and a pupil any more than it will between a parent and the same child when that child openly affronted authority. A teacher is even permitted to make mistakes, and punish the wrong pupil. In this case the child was injured accidentally by her own wilful disobedience in resisting authority."

Encouraged by Mother

Mrs. Lamont, the girl's mother, said that Bessie was struck across the head by the teacher a month before, and that at that time she wrote Gillies and told him "he was no gentleman, and not to strap Bessie again." With such an ally, the court found, Bessie was prompted to defy her teacher and even repeated her mother's words to Gillies after the strapping in the schoolhouse was over.

"Mr. Gillies, you are no gentleman," other pupils quoted her as saying. "My mother wrote and told you that you were no gentleman." Then Bessie, the witnesses said, slammed the door in the teacher's face and left the school an "unconquered girl." There were two witnesses, girls of Bessie's age, who saw the whole affair.

They said that Bessie was a disturbing element in the school, and that during the rehearsal for the school concert that day, Bessie shoved the other girls out of position and "screeched in an unnatural voice." The elder of the girls, Catherine McDonald, sat beside Bessie in the composition class, and she said that Bessie took her pencil away from her, and teased her to get it back, and finally reached over the aisle and placed a hand on her knee.

The teacher was watching the girl and told her to remain after four. He took the strap out and asked Bessie to hold out her hand. Bessie said that she asked him why, and he refused to tell her, so she locked her hands behind her back and defied her teacher. The other girls swore that Gillies gave her the reason, saying that she was to be whipped for "teasing Catherine McDonald and disturbing the peace of the school room."

Gillies struggled to get a grip on Bessie's hand, and jerked at her arm.

Gangs Clash At Dance One Killed, Many Hurt

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 23. (CP)— "The Holligans" a gang from the Red Hook section of Brooklyn, battled with "the Hudson Avenue Boys" in a dance hall early to-day.

The casualty list was one man dead, another critically wounded and an uncounted number slightly injured. Police said the Hooligans were Irish youths and the Hudson Avenue boys an Italian faction.

There were between 800 and 1,000 men and women, most of the latter girls in their teens, on the floor of the dance hall when the trouble started.

They fought wildly to get to the exits. In the scramble women were trampled under foot, clothing was torn and eyes gouged.

Charles 24, a chauffeur, died from two bullet wounds.

SCATHING ATTACK IS DELIVERED ON WHOLE POSITION OF DEALINGS BY BRITAIN WITH NATIONALISTS

Even Scores Baldwin During Appeal to Epping Constituents for Confidence Vote.

FAVORS SIMON REPORT.

Pictures Transfer of Indian Gov't Responsibility From British Parliament as Act of Shame.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP) —Describing Mahatma Gandhi as a "seditious fakir", striding up the streets of the Vieeregal Palace, Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill this evening delivered a scathing attack, on the whole position of British negotiations with Indian Nationalists.

He unloosed his eloquent scorn impartially on Gandhi, Premier Ramsay Macdonald and the Viceroy of India Lord Irwin, and even on his own leader, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, while appealing to his constituents of Epping for a vote of confidence after his resignation from the Conservative "shadow cabinet."

Spectacle Nauseating

The spectacle of Gandhi carrying on his campaign of disobedience while negotiating with the Viceroy of India was "nauseating" Churchill declared.

"The Macdonald Government is trying to deal with Indian National politices," he said "by the same sort of Blarney and palaver which sometimes passes muster in the House of Commons. But instead of half baked recommendations of the Round Table Conference, Parliament should return to the Simon report as Britain's constitutional foundation for solving the Indian problem.
the Indian problem."

Transfer be Act of Shame

Mr. Churchill declared it would be an act of shame, cowardice and dishonor to transfer the responsibility of Indian Government from the British Parliament to a "highly artificial oligarchy of politicians, lawyers, merchants, landlords, money lenders religious dignitaries and fanatics."

In conclusion he pledged his whole efforts to rouse British public opinion against the present "unwise and dangerous" proceedings at the same time remaining loyal to Baldwin for the purpose of defeating the Labor Government.

British Delegations Plan Visit To Canada

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23. (C. P. Cable). — Another important trade delegation accompanied by an official representative of the government will shortly leave Great Britain to study markets in North America.

The Scottish Woollen Manufacturers' Association has appointed James McPherson Brown, John Hutcheson and Edward S. Harrison as a delegation to investigate the markets of Canada and the United States.

The party will leave for England on March 4 and after visiting the chief cities in the United States will travel from Seattle to Vancouver, thence to Winnipeg Toronto and Montreal.

A delegation of the federation of British industries is already making preparations for a journey to Canada with the object of conferring with Canadian manufacturers in the Canadian markets.

Americans In Paris Guests Of W. E. Edge

PARIS, Feb. 23 (AP)—Representatives of virtually every nation on the American continents to-day were guests of United States Ambassador Walter E. Edge at the annual Washington's birthday luncheon.

Hon. Phillippe Roy, Canadian Minister and Dean of the North American diplomats in Paris, expressed his "I believe," said he "we owe our peace and stability in North America to a federal system of Government in the United States and Canada and we should not at any time imperil the friendly feelings which have existed so long between Canada and the United States."

SPLENDID TALK ON FRANCE IS HEARD BY CLUB

Professor Robert Finch Outlines French Character to Rotarians.

ARE INDIVIDUALISTS.

People Are Not to be Judged By Those Strangers Meet in Paris.

France as the land of the individualist, was eloquently pictured for the benefit of the Peterborough Rotary Club to-day, when Professor Robert Finch of the University of Toronto presented a most interesting summary of French character and citizenship. Professor Finch, who is Professor of French at the University, visits France every year and his paper was based upon his own impressions of the country and its people.

Introduced by E. B. Fowler, Professor Finch pointed out the difficulty foreign visitors to France had in attempting to form an accurate conception of the character of the people. An outstanding feature which had to be grasped in an analysis of the French race was the important place occupied by the peasant class, over five million of whom owned their own property. Love of the soil was firmly established, so that while the British worker turned to his football at the end of his day's work, the French worker devoted his attention to his vegetable garden.

The individual craftmanship of the French artisan was stressed by the speaker. There was the village joiner who was capable of making a fine piece of furniture; the mechanic who could not only repair an automobile but if need be could make one.

The bourgeois, Professor Finch explained, were people who had sufficient means to make them independent. It was the ambition of every Frenchman to acquire a little property, to lay by sufficient savings to have an income from investments. That was the goal at which they all aimed and they looked upon their means as primarily for their own use and that of their heirs, with the result that the French people as a whole did not give lavishly to charity, nor were they noted for benefactions to Universities or other institutions as was the case in Britain or in Canada.

Economically France before the war had been in the happy position of not worrying a great deal about the outside world, because she did not possess a large export trade and did not import a large amount of raw materials. Although these conditions have somewhat changed, France still does not concern herself very much about external affairs and develop-

SUSPECT SLAIN IN GUN BATTLE

Sheriff Badly Hurt Lies in Hospital After Frustrating Burglary.

TWO CAPTURED.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb 23.—With one of his assailants dead and two others in Monroe County jail, Deputy Sheriff George Gordon was in serious condition in Genesee Hospital to-day, following the officer's frustration of an attempted burglary near midnight last night.

The dead man is Frank Cross, 28, formerly of Scottsville, killed by Gordon, police said, in the running gun fight that began when Gordon stopped his automobile to question the three men.

The other were Andrew Mitchell, 28, of this city, and Gerald Files, 17, of Syracuse. They are held on vagancy charges.

Bishop M. F. Fallon Dies In London

NOTED PRELATE DIES FOLLOWING LENGTHY ILLNESS

His Lordship Had Been in Failing Health Since March, 1928.

COLORFUL FIGURE.

Last Public Appearance Was in June, 1930, Met Priests of Diocese.

LONDON Ont., Feb. 23. (CP)—Rt. Rev. Michael Fallon, Roman Catholic Bishop of London, died at his home here last night after an illness of some years.

The bishop's condition took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday morning, his personal physician, Dr. W. J. Tillmann, reported, and the patient sank rapidly toward evening. With him at his death was one brother, Rev. James Fallon, O.M.I. of Buffalo.

His lordship had been in failing health since March, 1928. In the Spring of that year he suffered an extremely serious attack of pneumonia and it was considered miraculous that he recovered at all. He did recover but the illness left him in a weakened condition, though he was able to attend to business of administering the diocese that demanded his personal attention. But he only appeared in public a few times following the illness, complications set in from which he several times made gains toward health, only to relapse again.

Better During Summer

During the past Summer he was at Corunna at his Summer home and while he was constantly under medical attendance, was improved in health sufficiently to be able to take short boat trips to enjoy the bracing air. This Autumn and Winter however, was slowly but certainly losing in the struggle for life and on Sunday, January 26, the announcement was made in all Catholic Churches in the city that his condition was extremely grave and that the last sacraments of the church had been administered to him. Special prayers for him were said in all Roman Catholic Churches at that time.

Later in the day Dr. W. J. Tillmann, his attending physician, reported that the Bishop had rallied somewhat from the severe morning hemorrhages but was still conconscious. In the following days the Bishop made successive rallies toward a stronger condition, but it was known that despite the amazing stamina his lordship had time and time again exhibited during his long illness, the ultimate end was only being delayed for a brief time.

Surviving him are five brothers, Joseph J., Cornwall, Ont.; Thomas D. Buffalo; Vincent L., Kingston; Rev. James Fallon, O.M.I., Buffalo, and Rev. Charles Fallon, O.M.I., also of Buffalo.

Pathe Men Shall Be Tried In Film Horror; Pair Face Jury In Death Of Dancing Girl

NEW YORK, February 23. — Judge Levine ruled on Saturday in General Sessions that two officials of the Pathe Sound Studios, Inc., where eleven lives went up in flames on December 10, 1929, must stand trial on charges of second degree manslaughter.

The court denied a motion to dismiss the indictment against John C. Flinn, vice-president of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., and Henry F Lolly, manager of the studio, a subsidiary of the Exchange.

Judge Levine held that failure of the studio in charge of these two men to install an automatic sprinkler system as ordered by the Fire Prevention Bureau seven months before the fire, constituted culpable negligence."

After the decision, District Attorney Crain said:

"The trial will begin with reasonable despatch."

Judge Levine pointed out that on May 15, 1929, the Fire Prevention Bureau had ordered the Pathe Company to install an automatic sprinkler system in the studio, but that no effort to comply with the order was made. He continued:

"The failure to install the sprinkler system seems to have been the proximate and direct cause of the death of Catherine Porter."

BRITISH EXPERTS LEAVE FOR PARIS

Henderson and Alexander Will Continue Parley on Naval Building.

TOUCH POLITICAL FIELD.

LONDON, Feb. 23.— (A.P.) —Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secreatry, and Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, left for Paris to-day to continue negotiations over the French and Italian naval building programs.

These conversations were inaugurated some time ago by Robert L. Craigie, Admiralty expert who visited Rome wher he talked with Augusto Rosso, of the Italian Foreign Office, and Paris where he went fully into the situation with Rene Massigli, French expert.

Both French and Italian Foreign Office have been reticent concerning the tenor of the negotiations now going on but a few days ago it was authoritatively stated that technical questions had been gone into pretty thoroughly and that the political field had been touched upon.

BEATTY TAKES HOPEFUL VIEW

States Worst of Depression Over Despite No Noticebale Improvement in Railway Earnings.

CHANGE BE GRADUAL.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 24.—Discussing general business conditions in Canada, President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway made the following statement here:

"General business conditions in Canada, as reflected in railway earnings, do not show any noticeable improvement, due to the absence of normal purchasing power. There are, however, indications of improvements in some industries, and the movement of grain has increased. While I do not think we can look for any sudden change, I do expect that within the next few months the effect of the measures taken to meet the present emergency, and the gradually returning confidence of the people of the country will be apparent.

"There is some evidence already that the psychology of the people is better in both the United States and Canada, and this is, I think, due to a feeling that the worst of the depression is over, and therefore, a more hopeful view of the situation is generally taken."

MANHOLE BLAST IN TORONTO KILLS NORMAN LEWIS

Goderich Man is Hurled Into Air and Over Parapet at Union Station.

VISITING HIS FATHER.

Fragments of Iron Cover and Sidewalk Thrown High Into Air.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Stepping on a Front Street manhole cover at the precise instant when sever gas exploded in the pit directly underneath him, Norman Lewis, aged about 45 of Goderich, at 9.25 last night was hurled bodily into the air, over the Union Station parapet, and dropped 20 feet to the cab driveway below. He died 10 minutes after reaching St. Michael's Hospital in a police ambulance.

With a thunderous detonation that shook the Union Station and nearby buildings the blast shattered the cold silence of Front Street, folding up large sections of sidewalk like so much breadcrust, breaking a heavy iron lid into a dozen jagged fragments and scattering stones, cinders, and chunks of concrete for yards around. Large chips were knocked out of the granite parapet by flying cement. A dark cloud of dust floated away in the breeze, Lewis lay sprawling in the roadway below and a great jagged hole, gaped where he had been just walking.

Judge E. N. Lewis, of Huron county, father of Norman Lewis, died early to-day in his apartments here. Mr. Lewis, Sr., was spared knowledge of his son's death owing to the fact that he was seriously ill. Mrs. Lewis, wife of the deceased Judge, on learning that her boy had been "hurt" last night immediately collapsed.

Cars Hurriedly Leave

Cars which had been parked at the curb on the south side of Front Street not far from the spot scurried away expecting a second blast, and although the street had been comparatively idle, bystanders and pedestrians, redcaps and postal employes from the station, hurried out and crowded around the hole.

Leo Barbeau, 650 Pape Avenue, station redcap, who was standing near the entrance to Postal Terminal "A" looked around quickly at the sound of the explosion, and saw Lewis sail up five feet above the edge of the stone rail, which is four feet high.

Fall Kills Mother; Baby is Uninjured

TWO RUM CRAFT SUNK IN BATTLE BY COASTGUARDS

Newporters Watch Scene as Fleet Launch Dodges Patrol Boats.

MANY SHOTS FIRED.

Guardsmen Returning Claim Both Crews Rescued as Ships Sink Outside Harbor.

NEWPORT, R.I., Feb. 23 (C.P.).—The dark waters of Narragansett Bay echoed early to-day to the dull boom of one-pounders and the rattle of machine gun fire as coastguard patrol boats and rum runners fought it out to a finish that was believed to have come with the sinking of the rum-running craft.

The gunfire was heard by scores of Newporters, who hurried to the high bluffs at the outskirts of the city to watch the guardsmen and the runners manoeuvre about the inner harbor. For an hour two patrol boats and a small power boat sped about the harbor firing random shots. The crowds that gathered to watch saw the power boat dodge in and out of the circle of the guardmen's searchlights time and again and finally sweep out into the bay.

Fire Redoubles.

The gunfire redoubled. Then, it grew faint in the distance, out by Prudence Island, and finally faded away.

An hour later, shortly after 2 a.m., a patrol boat, its number unknown, crept into Newport harbor, tied up alongside a tug, and, according to the Newport police, told the tow boat captain that two rum runners had been sunk outside the harbor. The crews of both boats, the police said, the Coast Guardsmen reported were aboard the patrol boat and would be taken to New London, Conn.

The patrol boat stopped but a few minutes, then left the harbor.

NEW PLANS LAID IN BROADCASTING

Taschereau Would Give Station Owners Power to Prevent Slander Being Circulated.

PROTECTION FOR PUBLIC.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 24. (CP) The Gazette publishes the following despatch from Quebec:

"Protection against defamation of character, the latter made possible to a multiplied extent because of the radio, is the aim of a measure which it is understood Premier Taschereau will lay before the Legislature in the course of the present session.

"As far as can be learned the bill has not yet been drafted, but the main principles are understood to be that the radio station is given power to control those who lease the station so as to prevent slander being circulated through the air, and secondly, the Government basing its action on its claim to control radio, is securing a measure of protection for the public as against the broadcasting stations.

The act is to be called the civil responsibility radio broadcasting act. It is laid down that those who are owners, lessees, or possessors of a broadcasting station are to be all liable for damages which are caused by defamation committed by the persons who either through speech or even in song use the station.

"The station is protected by a clause which states that the owner may break up a programme or speech at any time when he feels that defamation is being committed, which practically puts the owner of the broadcasting station in the position of being censor of his clients, but he is protected against damage actions on the part of the person who has leased the station because of such interruptions, having merely to pay back a pro rata amount of the money paid as compensation for the unused portion of the time."

Dutch Warship Afire Sends Out Call For Aid

PALM BEACH, Fla., February 23 (C.P.). — Messages received here by the Marine Radio Station WOE here last night told of a fire on Saturday night aboard the Dutch warship Banckert at the Island of Eruba in the Caribbean Sea. The extent of the damage was not learned.

The Banckert sent out a distress signal signed with its call letters "PACO," which for a time were confused with an American tanker of that name.

The Island of Eruba is a Dutch possession off the coast of Venezuela.

MAN AND WOMAN PAY FOR MURDER IN DEATH CHAIR

Irene Schroeder, Walter D. G Dague Convicted of Slaying U. S. Patrolman.

DIE AT DAWN.

Prisoners Remain Calm to Last in Final Act at Rockview Penitentiary.

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, Bellefonte, Pa., February 23 (C.P.).—Calm and collected, Irene Schroeder and Walter Glenn Dague went to their deaths in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary to-day just after break of dawn.

The State claimed of them the supreme price for the killing of a guardian of its highways.

The woman went to the chair first, at 7 a.m. One contact was made, and she was pronounced dead at 7.05.

Dague was placed in the chair at 7.08, and five minutes later was dead.

Mrs. Schroeder's face was pale, almost ghastly, except for a slight bit of rouge on either cheek, as she was brought into the death chamber. Her eyes were open until she was seated in the big chair, then she closed them and kept them closed until the death hood was placed over her head.

Dague came in with steady stride, and as he sat down in the chair, gazed left and right at the witnesses. Then the hood was adjusted and the electric contact was made while the prison chaplain still was offering up a prayer for the condemned.

$20,000 FIRE SWEEPS BLOCK OF STORES IN STIRLING, CALL SENT TO BELLEVILLE FOR AID

Woman in Apartment Above Gives Alarm at 2 a.m. Sunday.

ORIGIN A MYSTERY.

Several Hours After Outbreak Before Blaze Was Brought Under Control.

STIRLING, Feb. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—The block owned by Ross Coulter, general merchant here was completely gutted by fire at an early hour Sunday morning.

Miss A. Fleming, one of Mr. Coulter's staff, who lives in the upper flat over the store, was awakened at 2 a.m. by a sound as of an explosion and the smell of smoke.

Arousing the Misses Sarles, who also roomed in an apartment overhead, Miss Fleming rushed to the nearest telephone and gave the alarm.

The fire brigade responded at once, and in a few minutes the fire area was thronged with villagers.

Mr. Beacock, who has recently rented one of the rooms for his undertaking establishment, was nearly suffocated in his attempts to remove his furniture to a safety zone.

For a time the Chinese Cafe and T. Neal's hotel were threatened.

The fire protection proved inadequate, and assistance was obtained from Belleville.

About 5 a.m. control was gained over the flames, but not until the building and contents were seriously damaged.

The origin of the fire is a complete mystery. The front of the building is still intact, but the back has all fallen in.

The damage is estimated at $20,000.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 23. — About $25,000 damage was done early yesterday morning when a store owned by Ross Coulter at the village of Stirling was swept by fire. The stock of dry goods and men's furnishings was totally destroyed. The loss will be partly covered by insurance.

An explosion in a basement boiler is given as the cause of the fire, which started shortly after 1 o'clock. The Belleville fire department, under Chief William Lynch, rushed to Stirling with an engine, but the blaze had gained too great headway.

Three persons living in the flats over the store were awakened by the smoke and fled to the street. The Misses Sarles and Fleming escaped in their night attire, but managed to save most of their furniture.

DUTY ON CARROTS, 8 CENTS POUND

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 24 (C.P.)—The value for duty on carrots, when entering Canada under the intermediate or general tariff, has been fixed at 8 cents a pound, according to a bulletin issued to appraisers by the Minister of National Revenue. The establishment of this value is made in consequence that "carrots are being imported into Canada under such conditions as prejudically or injuriously affect the interests of Canadian producers."

TITLE HAY FEVER MOST INTRIGUING

Audience is Assured of First Class Production on Wednesday Night.

SEATS STILL AVAILABLE.

"Although "Hay Fever" is the title of the play the Kinsmen are presenting this year, with Adrian Macdonald as director, there isn't the slightest suspicion of sneezing about it. In fact, the title is one of the intriguing things about this entertainment. To present it in Peterborough, the club is paying a very high royalty, so that the audience is assured of a production of very high calibre.

It combines a lot of elements in its brewing. There is a domestic atmosphere of the strictly up-to-date type, an English setting with an American flavor in the emancipated outlook of the players, and a narrative that encompasses a great many ideas in its outlining. It is entertaining and strictly up-to-date. It will be presented on Wednesday evening of this week in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute.

Mrs. D. MacTavish, who has had a lot of experience in theatrical work, is the leading lady, Mrs. Bliss, and Dr. Herbert Young is her husband, David, who is an author. Then there are the two young people of the house, Sorel and Simon, with restless souls whose discontent with their environment lead them to many strange speeches. These are Miss Nan Parsons and Dr. Ralph Honey.

The four guests, all arriving separately for a week-end with different members of the household, are Mrs. Cliff Carruthers, as Jackie Coryton, a flapper type; Miss Marcelle McNulty, as Mrs. Myra Arundel, a hopeful divorcee; Alex. Elliott as Richard Greatham, a diplomat, and Murray Smye, as Sandy, a cheerful young man of philandering tendencies. Then there is the hard-working maid, Clara, with Mrs. Fred Hooper in this role.

Although a large portion of the seats have already been taken for this popular play of Noel Coward's whose reputation as a playwright guarantees the success of any production from his pen, there are many still available. The seat plan is open at Riley and Hickey's store. The funds from "Hay Fever" will be devoted by the Kinsmen to charitable work in the city.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Have you been thinking any more about that St. Patrick Party you had thought of having? It is better you know to get your invitations out early for others too, may be thinking of entertaining and it is most disappointing to discover at the last minute that some of your most desired guests have previous engagements!

• • • • • • •

The foremost thought in your mind will be the refreshments for when there is a definite color scheme to follow many unique ideas can be had.

• • • • • • •

For supper you might have wafers tied with green ribbons, olives and pickles, Irish potato chips served on lettuce leaves, green tea, lady fingers tied with green ribbons and green ribbon candy.

• • • • • • •

But, of course, before supper you will want partners. These may be found by having your guests draw duplicate articles from a large green basket in the centre of the table.

• • • • • • •

The articles intended for the girls are tied with green ribbons and the ones for the boys with gold-colored ribbons.

• • • • • • •

Each article has its own particular omen; the key to which is found written in rhyme on the place cards, such as clay pipes. A pipe means health peace and joy, to this lucky girl and boy. Green hat: A little high-hat in this young pair, but just the same it will get them there. Toy rolling pin: A life full if strife, a battle of woe will follow you born wherever you go. Shamrock: A shamrock means luck for the both of ye, a wish for each petal, ye each have three!

• • • • • • •

Other refreshments may consist of dainty lettuce sandwiches and green pepper sandiches cut into shamrock shapes with olives, and with salad made from white grapes and nuts.

• • • • • • •

Tiny green frosted cakes and white ones with a green shamrock in sugar on each, are tempting with pistachio ice cream served in a little green case.

• • • • • • •

A St. Patrick's Day salad is made from four cupfuls of cold boiled potatoes; 2 tablespoons finely minced onions and 2 of celery and a good salad dressing. Cut the potatoes in tubes, sprinkle with onion and celery and toss the mixture into the dressing just before serving.

• • • • • • •

Arrange in a mound, garnish with crisp parsley and tiny shamrocks from sweet gerkins.

• • • • • • •

Banana ice cream served in lady finger cases makes a pretty dish for desert.

C.G.I.T. MEMBERS ENTERTAIN MOTHERS

Enjoyable Banquet Held in Sunday School Hall of St. Andrew's Church.

The girls of the C.G.I.T. of St. Andrew's church held a very enjoyable mother and daughter banquet in the Sunday school hall, when they entertained their mothers some of the church officials and leaders of C.G.I.T. groups from sister churches in the city. The room was charmingly decorated in the club colors of blue, white, interspersed with flags and maple leaves. The table looked very pretty with runners of blue on the white cloth, silver baskets of daffodils and blue candles in silver holders.

The members of the Mission Circle acted as waiters, serving a sumptuous meal.

Community singing was indulged in with Jean Ray at the piano, and who also acted as accompanist for the evening.

Eleanor Stacey, the president, presided and acted as toast mistress, proposing a toast to 'The King,' followed by singing the National Anthem. After the toast to 'Our Flag,' Doris Tremaine proposed a toast to 'Our Church,' which was responded to by Rev. C. V. McLean.

A toast to 'Our Sunday School' was proposed by Frances Clark and responded to by Mr. A. MacNabb, assistant superintendent of the Sunday school.

Helen Hefferman proposed the toast to 'Our Mothers,' which was ably responded to by Mrs. McLean.

The toast to the C.G.I.T. was proposed by Muriel Donaldson and responded to by Mrs. McKone.

Margaret Patoine proposed a toast to 'Our Absent Girls,' which was responded to by Jane Cathcart, who read letters from Barbara and Dorothy Foster of Oberlin College, Ohio. A telegram, from Mary McDonald of Miss Wheeler School, Providence, R. I. Letters from Ruth Barnes, McDonald Hall, Guelph, and from Dorothy Henry and Arleigh McKone, Queens University, Kingston, and Mary Westby of Toronto University, came down and responded in person.

The toasts were interspersed with a fine program, consisting of solo, 'Mother Macree by Margaret Emmerson. Piano solos by Margaret Emmerson. Duet, 'Mother O Mine,' Jean McKone and Edith Culcheth, and a delightful solo by Mrs. Ford Turner, entitled 'Farewell.'

Before the close of the program Mr. J. A. McKone spoke a few words of congratulation to the members of the C.G.I.T., mentioning the great help they had been to St. Andrew's church, taking classes in the Sunday school, filling the empty seats in the choir and assisting in many other ways to build up the work.

A hearty vote of thanks to the members of Mrs. McLean's Mission Circle, who so efficiently acted as waiters, was voiced by Jean McKone and seconded by Margaret Weir.

THE MODERN MAN BURNS HIMSELF UP.

Excepting trained athletes, we moderns are puny creatures compared with our forefathers. Even athletes soon burn out eating acid-forming foods, the great cause of modern physical inferiority. From 32 to 50 Dr. Jackson was one of the unfit. At 50 Dr. Osler gave him four months to live, dying from acid-forming foods. He then invented alkali-forming Roman Meal. Before that he had lived on the ground floor, unable to climb stairs. Four years afterwards he climbed the fifty storeys in Washington's Monument, up and down, solely due to the alkalinizing properties in Roman Meal. In September, 1928, when seventy, he ran five miles in forty-five minutes—was not even winded, again due to Roman Meal. Write for free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," and other literature, also sample of Roman Meal and Kofy-sub, the new alkaline beverage, to ROBT. G. JACKSON, M.D., 502 Vine Ave., Toronto 9, Ont.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

THE COST OF HEALTH

The newspapers, magazines, and medical journals are talking a great deal at this time about the high cost of medical care.

When we think what it costs to get relief from pain, to be looked after during an attack of rheumatism, or to have a new baby come in to the home, there is no question but that, compared to former years, the cost does seem excessive. As a matter of fact the doctor's fees in a hospital case are but a fraction of the total cost.

Now I don't want to talk about the long time it takes a doctor to get equipped—public school, high school, university, and medical colleges—but about the fact that sickness is something that must be provided against, just as we provide against cold, hunger, and lack of clothing.

Or, as some one has well put it, the cost should not be placed against sickness, but against health. That is, that just as one buys food, coal, or clothing, they should likewise buy health, because health is just as much a necessity to life as any of these.

And I believe if you give the matter a little thought you will agree that health is the most important of all life's necessities. With a nice home, a good position, plenty of friends, one might naturally expect to be happy, and yet without health, life is not usually happy.

As you know, even if you have more than the usual amount of brains, or more than the average amount of ambition, you can only get as far in this world as that body of yours is able to take you. To have your body in good condition should be just as much a matter of importance to you as the providing of shelter and food.

And so, by reasonable care and thought as to food, rest, exercise and so forth, you get along well until some unforeseen ailment or accident befalls you. And so, just as you buy other necessary things, you must buy back your health. You pay for fuel and clothing without hesitation, in fact may purchase some things that are called luxuries and don't haggle about the price.

And when you remember that a considerable amount of illness is not due to to the fault of other people, but due to your mistakes of overworking, underworking, overeating or undereating, lack of sleep or too much sleep; things you might reasonably be expected to avoid, you can hardly complain much if you have to buy back good health by having to visit a dentist, doctor, surgeon or some hospital.

Health is worth all it costs.

"LITTLE MOTHER" TAKEN BY DEATH

Miss M. Beaven Was First Woman to Become Lord Mayor of Liverpool.

CHILD WELFARE WORKER.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 23.— (A.P.) — Liverpool to-day mourned Miss Margaret Beavin, first woman to become its Lord Mayor and known as "Little Mother" because of her interest in child welfare. She died here yesterday after a brief illness.

Although weighing only 125 pounds she was a forceful public speaker and served successively as Justice of the Peace, member of the City Council and Lord Mayor of Liverpool. In 1929 she ran for the House of Commons as a Conservative but was beaten by the Labor candidate, Derwent Hall Caine, son of the novelist.

She organized the Liverpool Child Welfare Association which has assisted more than 100,000 children and has maintained 30,000 in homes and special hospitals.

She was considered as a little too sensitive for the rough and tumble of political life.

The former Lord Mayor received many offers of marriage. During her Mayoral speech of farewell to some Salvation Army girls she advised them not to remain spinsters.

"It is all right when you are young," Miss Beaven told the girls, "but when you are getting on, you want a man to look after you." In speaking of her own refusal to be married, reiterated many times, she declared: "I have enjoyed freedom to long. Men are just good pals to me."

ANNUAL MEETING OF Y.M.C.A. BOARD SHOWS YEAR OF UNUSUAL SUCCESS

Six Directors Whose Terms Expired Were Re-elected to Board.

Closed Year With Surplus.

"As we stand at the opening of the year 1931 and look forward to the completion of our building and the larger and more satisfying opportunity of serving our members in a much larger number of young men and boys of our city, the outlook is most interesting and fascinating," stated G. H. Roper, general secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. in his report presented at the annual meeting recently held under the chairmanship of President W. A. Richardson.

Reviewing the work of the past year, he speaks of it as the "most eventful since the erection of the present building." He goes on to speak of the campaign, launched in the early part of the year, to add to the splendid foundation laid by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Macdonald, and of how steps were taken to secure estimates on the cost of the new building on the completion of the financial campaign, resulting in contracts being placed in September last.

"Since that time," he remarks, "the work on the addition has progressed with rapid strides and is now well on the way to completion. We are fortunate in the quality of the workmanship and material which are going into the building and we are particularly indebted to the architect, Walter Blackwell for his clear conception of our needs and his painstaking care in designing the new wing and his careful supervision of the details of construction."

Despite adverse conditions, Mr. Roper reports that subscriptions to the building fund are being made in a very satisfactory way; over $60,000 of the amount having been received to date, which has enabled the directors to take care of the building costs promptly up to the present time.

"The position of the current finances of the Association were never better than at the present time," he states. "We succeeded in closing the past year without any deficit."

"One of the most important features of the year," he continues, in dealing with the program of activities," were the Sunday afternoon meetings, conducted under the leadership of the Leader's Corps, previous to the Easter season. The "Y" Men's Club and Friday Night Supper Club also continued in a most active way."

"The bowling leagues were formed as usual in the Fall with the exception of the church leagues. Six teams were entered in the Y.M.C.A. alleys and eight teams in the ladies' league."

In conclusion, Mr. Roper, as general secretary of the association, expresses his appreciation of the co-operation of the board of directors, other members of the staff, and all those who assisted in any particular way in the program of the Association and the Ladies' Auxiliary. He also voices his deep personal thanks and gratification for the splendid response and the wonderful work of all who assisted in the great financial campaign, which made it possible to realize dreams which were formulated and developed over a period of twelve years.

A Distinct Loss

"The Association has sustained a distinct loss in the death of one of the trustees, a man who was most loyal and faithful member of the board for a period of twenty-five years. Mr. James Connal served the Peterborough Association in the days when the work was very difficult and discouraging, observes Mr. Roper. He never lost faith in the possibilities of the program, and was largely instrumental in building the firm foundation to which the present enviable position of the Association is largely due. The sympathy of the Association is extended to Mrs. Connal and family."

Nominating Committee

The nominating committee recommended that the six directors whose terms expire, be re-elected for the period of three years, namely Messrs. G. A. Macdonald, C. S. Cummer, Dr. J. J. Craig, James Hamilton, F. Hills and P. P. Westbye. The nominating committee is composed of Messrs. C. Lacheur, chairman; R. L. Dobbin, C. A. Salmonsen, H. Tudhope, P. W. Johnson, and H. C. McLeod.

Physical Department

The total attendance at regular gymnasium periods during the past year was 4,089 for 269 sessions. "This is very creditable, states D. A. Loomis, physical director, and Charles Cummer, chairman of the Physical Committee.

A Junior Harriers club was formed and several successful Saturday afternoon races were run off. A team of fifteen boys took part in the annual Hardy Trophy Relay race, in Toronto on October 25.

"The Physical Committee takes this opportunity of expressing its appreciation to the members of the Leaders' Corps for their splendid co-operation throughout the year. They are certainly the backbone of the Physical Department," the report concludes.

Boys' Department Activities

The Boys' Work Secretary, J. C. McClengahan, reports a slight drop in membership, the figure being around 192 as compared with 200 in the preceding year. The outdoor program has consisted chiefly in hikes for the beginners and juniors which were held during the summer months. The games lobby was open to the boys every afternoon until six o'clock, also on Friday and Saturday evenings. Educational movies have been shown every other Saturday evening to the juniors and beginners, while skating and skiing parties have been enjoyed by the intermediate groups.

He also reviews the work of the various other boys' organizations, and referring to the Boys' Hobby Show held last year, in conjunction with the annual physical display, states that it may be considered as a fairly successful enterprise.

"Y's" Men's Club

The present standing of the "Y's" Men's Club is only twenty members. The club feels that this is very good, however, considering the business conditions which necessitated several of the other members seeking employment outside of the city, who would otherwise stayed with us," reports Secretary H. D. Baker.

Practically every member of the club helped in the building fund campaign last May; the club as a whole contributing $1,000.

Reports were also submitted by Secretary-Treasurer Russell F. Kitchen of the Y.M.C.A. Leader Corps, and Mary Allin, Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Auxiliary, both of which spoke of an entirely successful year, and much progress.

HOW TO GET RELIEF FROM CATARRH

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness, or head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength); take this home, add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to make, tastes pleasant, and costs little. Every one who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial. You will probably find it is just what you need.

JAMES STEVENSON PARK.

It is gratifying to note among members of the City Council a realization of the fact that the James Stevenson Park should not be allowed to slip further back this year.

Mayor Denne's larger plan for the complete reconstruction of this property is, of course, what will inevitably have to be adopted, but unless found necessary as a measure of unemployment relief it is improbable that this ambitious program will be launched this year.

It will come sooner or later, but in the meanwhile there is no reason why this park, the only enclosed athletic ground within the city limits, should be allowed to fall completely to pieces.

This year's estimates should contain the modest appropriation necessary to keep the city's ball ground in decent shape for the summer season—that is, enough to provide for keeping the grass cut, the baseball diamond rolled and levelled, and the fences at least patched up and strengthened.

When it is remembered that this property was self-sustaining throughout the whole career of the Peterborough Central Ontario League team, who paid enough in rental to the city to pay for the upkeep of the park, the small sum necessary to keep the grounds in playing shape for the younger players, who will be the seniors of to-morrow, should not be begrudged.

JUST A WASTE OF TIME.

If the public hearings in regard to tariff changes are merely to consist of a series of debates between Premier Bennett and the indefatigable R. J. Deachman, they might as well be abandoned.

The views of the two are as far apart as the North and South Poles.

Mr. Bennett believes, of course, in tariff protection for everything that Canada grows or makes.

Mr. Deachman, who used to represent the Consumers' League and now bobs up as the voice of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, doesn't believe in tariff protection for anything.

The two could argue every afternoon for a year and emerge just as unshaken in their opinions in regard to protection as they were when they started.

An English cricket enthusiast would have as much chance of persuading an American to acknowledge that cricket is a better game than baseball as the Premier has of convincing Mr. Deachman that there is anything in a protective tariff that is good.

And there is just as much likelihood of Rev. Ben. H. Spence touring the United States in the interests of Government sale of liquor as there is of Mr. Deachman converting the Prime Minister into an advocacy of free trade.

The Government might just as well go ahead with its tariff changes without the waste motion of public hearings if the latter continue as they started.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.

A bill introduced in the Legislature last week proposes to amend the Municipal Act in a way that will remove one of the main objections voiced against the holding of municipal elections early in December.

At present the Municipal Act provides that the first meeting of every municipal council, except a county council, shall be held on the second Monday in January of the year for which the council is elected, which means that in those municipalities in which elections are held on the first Monday in December the new council does not take office for five weeks after being elected.

In the meanwhile, the old council carries on, and under the Municipal Act as it exists now has the power up to the end of December to pass money by-laws, enter into contract and appoint or dismiss officials, certainly a condition that is not in line with sound business principles.

The amendments now proposed will iron out these difficulties.

They provide that the first meeting of every municipal council, except a county council, shall be held on the first Monday after election, and further, that the old council shall not after the annual election incur expenditures or appoint or dismiss officials.

The change would seem to be decidedly in the public interest, and the measure should on that account receive the support of the Legislature.

THE NEED IS URGENT.

It is no justification for refusing to help such a worth-while cause as the Peterborough Relief Association to point out that there are imposters and undeserving cases among those seeking assistance.

Humanity being what it is, there will always be such people; but their existence should not harden the hearts or dull the sympathies of those who are in a position to render assistance, for The Examiner is in a position to say with all the emphasis possible that there are enough deserving cases to render necessary all the financial aid that can be provided.

There is the further point to be considered and that is the work has been much better co-ordinated in recent weeks, and is being worked out into a system that will prevent overlapping and defeat the aims of those unscrupulous enough to prey upon a movement designed to help the victims of an abnormal situation.

Care is being exercised to see that help goes to those who really need it, and is withheld from others who look upon the present situation as a field to be exploited.

The call for funds is issued because the need is urgent, and because it is felt that the money subscribed will be used effectively, economically and systematically to prevent the suffering and distress that are inevitable without just such a business-like effort to deal with the situation.

The response so far has been heartening, but more funds are still needed.

If you have not made your donation yet, will you do so this week?

According to an American professor, long skirts are always a sign of hard times. So if you want prosperity to come back, girls, you know what to do.

DIGNITY COST NINE LIVES.

The wounded dignity of a wing commander in the British navy cost the lives of nine people, including his own, a fortnight ago.

At the inquest held Wednesday on the victims of the seaplane which dived into the English Channel, it was stated that Wing Commander C. G. Tucker was at the controls. He had not done much flying, and Flight Lieutenant V. H. Ely, who was with him, was an experienced pilot. When the difficult task of landing had to be effected, the lieutenant leaned over to take the controls from the commander. The commander knocked the lieutenant's hands away, and the disaster happened.

Dignity is often a foolish taskmaker. Nowhere is it more apt to be offended than in the services. The officer who had two stars to the other fellow's one, three to the other's two, or a crown where the other man has none, is always prone to stand on his dignity. The symbols on his uniform invest him with an overlording that is sometimes carried to an overbearing extent.

This is responsible for a great deal of petty and irksome practices in the army and navy from lance-corporal to field marshal, from petty-officer to admiral. Just because he could not bring himself to be shown how by a more competent aviator though of lesser rank, Wing Commander Tucker and eight other men died in the flower of manhood.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

GETTING OUT A PAPER.

"Getting out a good newspaper is a fascinating task, but also a difficult one," says the Linotype News, adding, "No other job that comes to mind is quite so taxing, so hurried, or demands greater pains. From the moment a newspaper is started, be it either a daily or weekly, the work is carried on under pressure, a race against time. Put yourself in an editor's position—could you do it?

"Could you, for example, spell correctly offhand the names of a large percentage of the residents of the town? If you could do that, could you write their initials correctly without resorting to the telephone directory or other authority?

"Could you write down, offhand, the names of your city officials, your local school board, your county officials, getting all the names, initials and offices correct?

"Could you gather the threads of a story from half a dozen persons and weave it into an intelligent, readable account the first writing?

"Could you write seven columns of material of 1,200 or 1,400 words each in two or three days, week after week, year after year, and when you had finished those seven, pound out two or three columns more before press time?

"In writing a heading, could you call to mind in a moment enough synonyms so that you would not repeat the main thought in the same words.

"Could you judge in a minimum of time what size headlines and what position in the paper could be given to each of the 75, 100 or more stories that might go into your paper?

"Could you decide in a moment or exercise 'snap' judgment on the dozens of questions a newspaper man must face daily and get a majority of them correct?

"We won't tire you—but if you could do these few simple things and a thousand and one more difficult ones, you should be a newspaper editor.

"Then point we wish to make is that one can produce a good newspaper only after continual diligent study and years of practical experience. You have heard dozens of persons remark that they could turn out a newspaper and a good one, too, a bit better, in fact, than the one they are getting. That is not true unless they have gone through the years of study that a good newspaper demands of its makers.

"Were it not for the peculiar fascination associated with newspaper work there would be no newspapers, for there is no greater taskmaster and money alone would be far too scant compensation."

FUSS AND FEATHERS—AND WORK.

A Western newspaper protests against Parliament being opened with a "display of fuss and feathers." At this time, it thinks, when men are out of work, and there is much of distress, "such a flaunting of show can only make for unrest."

This sort of talk may pass as being democratic, but it shows a pathetic ignorance of economics. When will people who write and talk so glibly about such things learn that even "fuss and feathers" serve a purpose, that all the "fuss and feathers" and the gowns and all of the other things that are seen at an opening of Parliament, must make work and provide wages for somebody, simply because they are made and sold by somebody?

A certain class of people constantly rail against luxuries, speak bitterly against the "flaunting of wealth." It never seems to occur to them that the people who buy luxuries, whether they be expensive motor cars or jewelry, or fine raiment, help to support enormous industries, employing workers, paying out good wages.

Take the case of the opening of Parliament, with its so-called "fuss and feathers." Suppose 200 ladies attend, buy 200 gowns, buy other things as well. Where do these gowns come from? Who makes them, who manufactures their material, who sells them? Where, in short, does the money go that is given for their purchase? Well, at least 60 per cent. of it goes into the pockets of working men and working women. Goes to make work, to pay wages, to prevent unemployment, hard times.

Suppose there were no "fuss and feathers." Suppose that the 200 ladies remained at home, didn't buy new gowns, didn't buy silk stockings, or new cloaks, and a lot of other things, and just kept their money in the bank, who would be better off? Would the workers be? Or the unemployed?

The answer is as plain as a pikestaff.

Nothing is easier, or cheaper than to pose as a certain kind of democrat, to rail against luxury and wealth, to pretend to be a friend of the "masses." Yet nine times out of ten people who talk that way don't know what they are talking about, don't take the trouble to think. If their minds were one-tenth of one per cent. as active as their mouths, the country would be saved a lot of trouble.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The present session of the Ontario Legislature promises to be one of the tamest in history. Mr. Hepburn might perhaps describe it as the calm before the storm.

It might be as well to remind local speeders that they can't hope to win a knighthood unless they can beat four miles a minute.

Mr. Dearchman should be able to grow eloquent now over the fact that Western grain-growers who want to buy high-powered, expensive automobiles will have to pay more for them.

Toronto is to have a higher tax rate this year. Like smaller cities, the Queen City finds the burden of financing what should be provincial enterprises a decidedly heavy one.

The Red-Headed Goddess

By

ALICE ROSS COLVER

Endless miles of broken land lay before them. The interminable level stretches just ahead rolled off to meet an azure blue sky, in immense, irregular waves of gray, splashed and streaked with just enough color to prevent their being monotonous. Far off in the distance rose mountains, outcroppings of rock and abrupt projections of ground that were so tinted by tricks of light, to the faintest pastel shades of mauve and blue and lavendar, and so played upon by the sun and the shifting shadows of clouds, as to seem like dream cities. Gazing at them, they could easily imagine they saw in actuality the delicate ruins of great Gothic cathedrals, the broken splendor of castle walls surrounding high turrets and spires, and crumbling, terraced gardens sweeping upward to the devastated pile of a gleaming white palace.

"But of course they aren't, are they?" Lorraine asked.

"No. They aren't.'

"It's as though this had once been a world, and then something terrible happened—"

"—and the gods looked down and laughed. See there, Lorraine."

She turned to the right where he was pointing, and saw what Dirk had called the grim humorous handiwork of the deities. It was a scattered grouping of gigantic rocks that had been carved through the centuries by wind and storm into the most fantastic shapes and figures imaginable. They resembled, for the most part, idols of enormous proportions—beasts, birds, half-human figures—and they were all startling because of the peculiar red color of the sandstone, which stood out in sharp relief against the cobalt heavens.

The scene held a terrifying enchantment. At the moment it was at its smiling and loveliest best, warmed to exquisite coloring in the bright warm sunshine; but even as they gazed, great masses of clouds rolled rapidly up in the sky, moving with amazing speed, and casting immense shadows that at once blotted out the desert's delicate beauty. Almost immediately the scene became sombre; the silence that wrapped the land grew oppressive, and the grim wastes boldly announced their defiance of the puny strength of the man and woman. Both of them felt it, but their consideration for each other made them hide their secret fears.

Dirk's face, however, settled into resolute lines. He had gotten Lorraine into this predicament and now, barehanded, without equipment or provision of any kind, he must get her out. It was a challenge to the best of his manhood, to all of his brains, to every ounce of his strength and, even with that, the winning of this fight would be largely a matter of luck. Lorraine's voice broke in on his thoughts. Turning he found her white faced, but clear eyed and smiling.

"This is a jam, Dirk."

"Yes."

"We'll have to dig out of it—together."

"Yes."

Her eyes glinted suddenly with a sweet humor.

"It looks like the beginning of our glorious adventure, Dirk dear!"

At that he gave a sharp exclamation and caught her hands in his.

"You're such a sport, Lorraine! Haven't you a word of blame for me?"

"But it's really all my fault, you know."

"You're wonderful—wonderful!"

With difficulty he checked himself before the mistiness of the girl's eyes and then she, aware of the danger toward which they were drifting, swiftly altered her manner. Jauntily sticking her hands in her pockets, she gave a gay little whistle, while he, responding to the gallantry of her mood, pulled off his cap and flung it high in the air with a great shout. Two infinitesimal figures, they were, making a brave showing at casual indifference to the fate that was silently settling the odds against them.

"Let's sit down, Dirk, in the shade of the old juniper, tree and decide—well—among other things, exactly where we're going. I feel that it's imperative to know. Where are we anyway?" she asked, as they flung themselves on the hot sand.

"Northwest Arizona," he told her. "I am sorry not to be more specific."

"Northwest Arizona," she repeated, as though she were learning a lesson that was very important. "That means nothing. Oh, wait! It does too!"

"Why?"

"Indian country!"

He nodded.

"Navajo reservation, I believe. But that doesn't hold any terrors in this day and age."

"Well—maybe not. Only Dad said—"

"What did he say?"

She pondered a moment. Did it matter, after all, that this was the territory her father had mentioned to her as being the place where the Indians were restless and rebellious? Their tract covered thousands of miles. It was scarcely possible they would ever see an Indian.

"What did he say?" Dirk repeated.

"I'll tell you, but I guess it's not important after all. He simply said that the Navajos in this district were getting rather restless again, dangerous."

"Dangerous? What do you mean? I thought they were pretty well subdued in this day and age."

"They are, for the most part. But they are nomadic, Dirk, and have never been civilized or educated except for a small handful. The majority—and it is increasing in numbers all the time still cling to their old customs and beliefs. They have refused to send their children to the Government schools, and they ask only that the whites leave them alone to wander over their territory, raising sheep and weaving blankets. They are really quite peaceful unless they are stirred up. Recently they have been stirred up."

"What over?"

Lorraine wrinkled her brow in thought. "I don't know exactly. I didn't pay much attention. They've had a fuss with the Hopis. Their land surrounds the Hopi land, you see, and there's been a quarrel about a stretch of it that they both want."

"Even so—"

"It doesn't sound like much, telling it this way. Maybe it isn't. Dad was awfully serious though. He says they have lawless leaders, and when they are aroused they are as wild and barbaric as they used to be, just as ruthless and careless of life. The Indian agent has been supposed to settle this bus ness, but he hasn't been able to, either because he's inefficient, or because the quarrel has really taken on sizable proportions. Anyway, the Ind ans, he says, are threatening an uprising, and so he is calling for troops. Dad has to find out if they really need to be sent."

"Just the same, Lorraine, there have been fusses before this. They're always taken care of in plenty of time. I should worry about the Indians. I'd be damn glad to see one."

"I believe, myself, I'd breakfast with them if they invited me!" She laughed, immensely reassured by Dirk's light treatment of her news, but still not quite able to throw off a secret dread. "By the way," she went on, "what have you got in your pockets for—er emergencies of life?"

He dumped them inside out and spread out the contents on the sand for her inspection. When he had found all he possessed, there lay a knife, a screw driver, pliers, a few bolts and screws, a silver pencil, a cigarette lighter, a silver cigarette case half full, some twine, some matches, a collection of rubber bands of various sizes and a wallet packed with money.

"Now you," said he.

So she emptied her pockets too, and displayed a package of chewing gum, two clean handkerchiefs, a stub of pencil, a soiled and folded map, a comb, a folding drinking cup and a single, shining amber bead.

"I broke my string when I jumped," she explained. "This must have caught somewhere." She was about to toss it away when he stayed her hand.

"Keep it."

"Why?"

"Oh—I don't know. Indians like baubles. It might serve as a bribe sometime, if we ever meet one."

"What you really mean, Dirk, is that we'll need everything we've got when we start light housekeeping! We'll hang that up in our—er—living room window, the way our New England ancestors hung their witch balls of glass. I'm sure it'll not only ward off evil spirits, but bring us good luck. Isn't it pretty in the sun?" She laughed gaily and then sprang to her feet. "As long as we're going, we might as well go," she suggested. "It looks like a long way! Toss a coin, Dirk. Heads—east. Tails—west."

But he had a better idea. Remembering the canyon they had crossed, he told her he thought there must be water in the bottom of it, because he could remember seeing green trees below them as they flew over it. All they needed, then, was a landmark to keep their direction straight, and, once having picked that, the going ought to be neither far nor difficult.

"The canyon lies east of us," he s id. 'I bet it's not more than ten miles to it Now let's see what—"

"Dirk," she interrupted. "Every once in a while you get an idea like a hero in a book."

Her light raillery, her whole easy, insouciant attitude made everything easy that first hour. Taking for their landmark a distant group of gleaming pillars, broken to uneven heights but still bearing a strong resemblance to an ancient Greek Temple, they set off. The morning was bright and not hot. In the clear Arizona air the temple seemed deceivingly close. They were young and strong. The canyon with water—and food, of course—was just ahead, and wings of hope brushed their faces. Even the fact that Lorraine's ridiculous little gold evening slippers kept filling with sand, as did Dirk's evening pumps, was a matter for mirth. Repeatedly they emptied them laughing.

But during the second hour laughter languished. Conversation became desultory, and Lorraine's shoes, beginning to show tragic indication of early loss of both beauty and usefulness, filled them with uneasiness. If her shoes wore out—But they would not face that. So they plodded on, a sort of grim courage on their faces now, as they began to feel a faint discomfort from hunger, from thirst, and from the noonday heat.

"Phew!" Lorraine jerked off her cap, revealing wet, red curls. "I can't stand wearing this any longer!" She dropped down on a flat rock, wearily. "How many miles have we gone, do you think?"

He examined his watch. "Only four or five. It's slow moving through this sand."

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

PREPARED BY THE REV CLARENCE H. WILSON, D.D. FOR THE COMMISSION ON EVANGELISM OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

THE TEMPTATION OF NEED.

"Man shall not live by bread alone."—Luke 4:4. (Read Luke 4:14 and Luke 9:10-17.)

Meditation

In the carpenter's home in Nazareth there was plain living, no doubt, but there was no want. In the wilderness for the first time in His life Jesus met the temptation of the hungry poor. Thinking of His mission, as we must suppose He was, the suggestion came that He should direct His work toward relieving physical want. And He said, No. Life has other and deeper supports than bread. Economic salvation would not make life complete: it might even reduce it to lower levels. However pathetic the struggle against want, it is not so hopeless as a spiritual destitution. Education and religion promise better than any social order that rests in materialism.

THE REV CLARENCE H. WILSON, D.D.

Prayer

Lord of the seed time and the harvest, we pray for those who are sorely tempted by poverty. Support them in their time of trial that they do not fall into sin. And hasten, we beseech Thee, the day of their deliverance. Amen.

What To-day Means To You

"PISCES"

If February 23rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Astrological influences on February 23rd will account for the inexplicable pariation in the mental tone of most people, and the gloomy moods which will tend to destroy any possibility of a marked success or happiness. Not a favorable day for dealing with correspondence. From a family point of view there will be disturbing factors of both a moral and material sense.

The child born on this February 23rd will be proud and touchy; jealous of its own rights and privileges, and very tenacious in maintaining them. It will have a practical, unimaginative character, and will want to know the how of things, not the why.

You stand on the other end of the human scale from the thinker, the poet or the dreamer. You belong to the type of men or women who rule the world, or to carry out the plans of others. You are not a charming person, you are too serious to have the fluid quality of charm, but you can be very pleasant and agreeable. Your manners are good, your feeling of courtesy is strong. Your strongest quality is fortitude. You stick to your ship while there is a plank left afloat. This quality implies sincerity and courage, and honesty of purpose. To take a fighting initiative is an instinct with you. You are not a fox, but a hunter.

Your tendency is to estimate men by what they are rather than by what they think, and you are ambitious to be popular amongst at least the so-called smart set in your community. Psychologically, you are not a good character analyst, and you are destined to be let down by more than one of those whom you honor with the name of friend. Yours is a one-track mind, and you will be utterly at loose ends, if you have to give up your one absorbing interest, be it that of a mother and home-maker, or a man, with a business or career. Beneath the gripping materialism of your nature there runs a warm current of affection for children—you love them and they love you.

MOTHER TAKES ACID—MAY DIE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 23.—Mrs. Lorne Johnson, mother of a large family, is in the hospital here in a critical condition as a result of swallowing an ounce of carbolic acid.

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 23. (Special to Examiner.)—Though the early hours saw some fairly broad movements on the mining market to-day, the list showed a tendency to see-saw with New York closed the higher priced issues were moved in a careful manner and bulk of attention was directed to a few of the lower priced stocks. Gossip was of an indefinite character, as one chap put it, "what could you expect on George Washington's birthday."

According to a wire from a well-known northern mining service, clericy mines is arranging for a diamond drilling campaign on recently acquired holdings adjoining Granada. The communication also stated Arno was negotiating for a gold property in the Matchewan district.

Model Oils Ltd., has declared a quarterly dividend of 3 cents per share payable on March 16 to shareholders of record March 5. The company, whose stock is listed in the west, holds 1239 acres in several of the western fields and up to October 31, 1930, had received 29,117 barrels of naphtha from its No. 1 well in the Turner Valley field. No statement has been issued since the annual meeting in July 1930.

The Meeker gusher in Pennsylvania, which came in recently with a heavy flow of gas and oil, is reported to be situated only 150 feet from one of the principal leases of Homestead Oil and Gas Ltd. a Toronto company financed by Leo. Errenhouse and associates. The company capitalized at 500,000 shares, has approximately 50 leases totalling over 5,000 acres acquired during recent months by its geologist W. E. Hurd.

A small vein intersected in a north crosscut on the 625 level of Granada Rouyn is continuing to yield high grade, it is reported. Where first cut, the vein was very narrow but rich. As drifting proceeds the vein is widening and is now an additional source of ore for the mill. Present holders have refused offers for control of the company, but outside interests are said to have submitted an offer for a minority interest under terms which would provide several hundred thousand dollars for the treasury. This offer is not in the form of an option, but would call for immediate purchase of the remaining 200,000 treasury shares.

NEGATIVES WIN BY SINGLE POINT

Interesting Debate Features Meeting of Omemee Women's Institute.

PLEASING PROGRAM.

OMEMEE, Feb. 23 (Examiner Correspondence)—"Resolved that a wife gives up more than a husband," was the subject of a very interesting debate held in connection with the meeting of the Women's Institute on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Rea, King street. Mrs. Eggleson and Miss Robinson taking the affirmative while Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. McPhee upheld the negative.

Both sides had very true and humorous points which made the debate very entertaining. After considerable time the judges, Mrs. Mackey, Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. E. McPherson gave their decision in favor of the negative, winning by one point.

Mrs. Rea, president of the Institute, occupied the chair and following the opening excercises, an account of the banquet which was given recently by the Institute was adopted. Letters of appreciation from members who have been ill and who were remembered, were received.

Miss F. McPherson contributed an instrumental selection followed by the debate. Miss Race played an instrumental selection and a Valentine contest was enjoyed, the winners being Mrs. Rea and Mrs. McPhee.

After the meeting, lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Shields, Mrs. A. McConnell and Miss Robinson. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Elliott, Sturgeon street.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

Liquidation of long wheat combined with rather poor support with weakness in Liverpool and Buenos Aires, gave the local wheat market a heavy tone Saturday and price declined more than one cent from the previous close. There were slight reactions from time to time but they were rather difficult to hold.

The usual week-end dullness prevailed in export circles and there was only a small business worked, principally of wheat in nearby positions. There were reports of rains in many sections of Kansas and Nebraska, while the forecast indicated unsettled conditions over a wide area of the winter wheat belt. Despite this Chicago wheat held firmer than at Winnipeg.

Liverpool closed 7-8 to 1 penny lower, and Buenos Aires closed 5-8 to 3-4 lower, with the weather reported clear in Argentine and foreign demand for wheat as slow.

Private Liverpool cables stated that their market was weak on profit taking while buyers appeared to be filled up temporarily and offerings were a little more liberal.

From France it is reported that many fields of wheat will have to be re-sown as the winter seed rotted in the ground. Worlds available wheat stocks as compiled by the Daily Trade Bulletin increased 18,325,000 bushels in January, compared with a decrease of 6,379 000 bushels last year. Total stocks now are placed at 601 547,000 bushels vs. 577,141,000 bushels a year ago.

Country marketings in Western Canada from Aug. 1st to Feb. 20th total 261,919,000 bushles as against 213,308,000 for the same period a year ago.

All American Exchanges, Stock and Cotton Exchange will be closed on Monday, Washington's birthday.

Winnipeg and Liverpool will be open.

Winnipeg futures closed 1 3-8 to 1 1-4 lower on the bottom.

Coarse Grains:

There was no special feature to these markets but all were lower in sympathy with the decline in wheat, some scattered liquidation was in evidence, but the pressure was not heavy. A few cars of oats were worked for domestic account. Oats closed 1-2 to 5-8 lower. Barley 1-2 to Rye ¾ lower; flax dull and featureless, closing 1 cent lower.

Liverpool cables due 3-4 to 5-8 lower based on Winnipeg.

UTILITIES "A" AT NEW RECORD

International Issues Advance to 45 in To-day's Trading on Toronto.

GENERAL LIST HIGHER.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 23. (CP)—The Canadian market made good progress on the side of the advance to-day despite the fact the American stock markets were on holiday. Inter-listed issues, it is true, were rather holding firm at current levels than picking their way into new high ground but a number of individual stocks gave evidence of strong support.

The feature of the market was Brazilian Traction, which although traded in New York, finds its market rather in Canada. Both London and Montreal were reported heavy urchasers and the shares ran up to a new top price above 27.

Dominion Stores, rising consistently of late, was at its best for the year at 20½. Loblaw firmed as well. Atlantic Sugar advanced a point, to above 30. International Utilities gained, the 'B" stock showing the greater activity but the "A" setting a new 1931 price, at 45. Page-Hersey Tubes above 92 was also higher than at any time this year. On the curb Goodyear Tire common shot up to 102 and Montreal Power advanced above 60, both instances of new 1932 prices.

NEW CONSTABLE REPLACES LLOYD.

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 22.—It was announced at the office of the Sarnia detachment of the Provincial Police to-day that Constable Thomas Riding had been transferred to the Headquarters staff at Tornto.

He will take the place of Harold Lloyd who was dismissed as a result of a family altercation. Constable Riding has been here since May, 1929.

STEAMER IN DIFFICULTY.

VALETTA, Malta., Feb. 23.—(C.P.) —Winds of gale force lashing the Mediterranean have seriously delayed shipping in this vicinity and no British mails have reached here for two days.

A Lloyds message from Gibraltar to-day reported an S O S from the Japanese setamer Katroi Maru, out of Yokohama for London. She gave her position as 38.15 north 1.40 east.

RAILWAY PROBE LAST OF MARCH

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 23. — Judge Joseph Wearing today announced that the projected judicial inquiry into the workings of the London and Port Stanley Railway would not begin until the last week in March, at the earliest.

NORANDA SELLS 2 CENTS HIGHER

Higher-priced Mines Careful Due to Closed Market at New York.

CHEMICAL RESEARCH UP.

TORONTO, Ont., February 23 (C. P.). — Oils displayed the broadest movement on the mining market today, higher-priced mines moving carefully due to the fact New York was closed and lower-priced issues showing only minor price changes to midday.

Chemical Research continued under heavy accumulation, price advancing another 90 to $4.85 in brisk turnover. Home Oil recovered 6 to $1.06 and balance of the group was holding.

Noranda sold a few cents higher at $17.60, but Nickel, after opening unchanged from Saturday, eased off a quarter to $18.75 at noon. Abana, whose new directors are planning to contest the wind-up petition entered last week, regained 5 to 18.

In the gold group Mining Corp. dropped 3 to $2.12. Wright-Hargreaves sold up a couple to $2.27, and balance of the higher-priced issues displayed slightly easier trend. Eldorado was down a couple at 58, but Big Missouri gained a like amount to 45, and Howey and Siscoe were up a point each.

J. T. LANG STATES ATTITUDE BOLDLY

Declares Flatly For Repudiation of Interest Payments on Debts Overseas.

SPEAKS AT SYDNEY.

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 23.— (C. P. Cable via Reuters.) — Breaking away from the Commonwealth Government and the Governments of the other states, Premier J. T. Lang of New South Wales delivered a slashing speech in the East Sydney Federal by-election campaign to-day, declaring flatly for repudiation of interest payments on debts overseas until "overseas financial interests extend to Australia conditions of repayment similar to those America gave to England.

Greeted With Cheers.

While a huge and enthusiastic gathering cheered him, the extremist Labor Premier of the State declared that 14 years ago overseas interests by conscription through the Australian Governments attempted to take her sons from their homes to give their lives on the battlefields. "To-day the same interests are working through the same channels to take the bread from the mouths of our sons and daughters, to satisfy their insatiable greed," Lang said.

The New South Wales Labor movement, Premier Lang continued, dissociated itself from the proceedings between the recent Premiers' conference and the Australian banks. The State also repudiated the banks' terms for extending financial help, namely, that social services must be suspended, pensions reduced and wages lowered.

Cut Production Costs.

Premier Lang declared the banks were able to help the Australian governments, and agreed that the cost of production must come down, but he differed with the other premiers on the methods to be applied, he said.

The New South Wales plan called for complete scaling down of all interest charges as the first step. The Government proposed to make no further interest payments overseas until Australia received the same teams from her creditors as Great Britain received from the United States, he added.

Coast Guards Lose Race To Rum Craft

NEW LONDON, Conn., February 23 (C.P.). — Laden with liquor, part of which was stacked in a barricade, the speedboat Monolola ran the gauntlet of fire from one-pound guns aboard coastguard patrol boats in the eastern passage of Narragansett Bay to-day. She escaped by outdistancing the service craft, which pursued her and were still attempting to locate her at a late hour.

U.S. PLANS 2 NEW SUBS

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 23 (CP) The next two submarines to be built by the United States will be, on present plans, the first United States undersea craft since the World War uninfluenced by German U-Boat design.

The two vessels, soon to be laid down, are the V-8 and V-9, less than half the size of the newest United States submersibles. They will retain the speed of the larger craft and will be in equal offensive strength. Their displacement will be 1,100 tons apiece.

BOY BADLY BURNED.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Feb. 23. —Robert the three-year-old son of Robert Kerly of Merriton, was probably fatally burned early this afternoon when playing with matches.

The doctor had the child removed to the St. Catharines Hospital where there is little hope held for his recovery.

Cerro Enlists Troops To Retake Arequipa

LIMA, Peru Feb. 23.—(AP)— The Peruvian Provisional Government, headed by Lieutenant Colonel Luis M. Canchez Cerro, enlisted volunteers in Lima and Callao and moved troops down from Cusco and Pun today to put down a revolution which began Friday night at Arequipa, second city of the republic.

Official bulletins admitted that Arequipa had fallen to the insurgents, and that "several" had been killed in fighting which took place incident to capture of the city by the rebels. These official communiques offered the only definite information available here, everything else being subject to a strict censorship.

Seriousness of the situation could be gathered from a Government call for 1,600 volunteers of from 21 to 30 years of age for 60 days service The recruits will be incorporated into regiments and units of the second military region at Lima and Callao. The decree stated that the call was made "for reasons of public order."

Atlantic Sugar Adances To New High at Montreal

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 23.—(C.P.) —A continuation of last week's bull market was seen this morning on the Montreal stock exchange. At noon advances ranging to over two points were shared by a wide list of stocks and recessions were very few.

Again a spectacular feature was Atlantic Sugar, which went to a new high at 31 3-8, up 1 3-8 from Saturday's close. Quebec Power shot up 2 3-4 to 45 1-2; Montreal Power crossed 60 to sell at 60 7-8, up 1 3-8; National Steel Car gained 1 at 40; Canada Cement preferred 1 1-8 at 94; B. C. Power "A" 1 at 41 3-4; and lesser gains were registered in Brazilian Traction, Cement Common, Canadian Pacific, Gurd, McColl Frontenac, Power Corporation and Shawinigan.

Abitibi lost 3-8 at 10 5-8, Dominion Bridge dropped 1-2 at 49 1-2 and Smelters eased 1 at 181 1-2.

SPLENDID TALK

ments that disturb other centres left Paris cold, the speaker declared.

The French people could not be judged from those who associated most with visitors to Paris, nor from the people of the south. The real embodiment of the French character was most likely to be found in the great central or northern districts. Those who counted politically were invariably from the provinces, and the influence of the French peasants was so great from a political standpoint that care was always taken not to affront the peasant.

Up to the present, the modern idea of mass production in industry had made little progress in France. Essentially the French people were individualists and their ideas did not fit in with the group system that was influencing the rest of the world. If individualism were to be eventually wiped out then France, too, might perish, but if out of the present mass system there would emerge again a virile individualism, then Frence would came back anew and renewed, Professor Finch predicted.

It was difficult for the French people to give themselves over to a system of group control. This was effectively illustrated by their reaction to attempts at traffic regulation. Motorists shot blithely by the upraised arms of traffic policemen and where light signals were introduced they were in the main ignored by the French drivers, who simply refused to obey the stop signal if no traffic were in sight, this attitude being typical of the French character.

Rotarian Rev. C. V. McLean and Rotarian W. R. Morris both expressed the appreciation of the club to Professor Finch and President Abbott added a personal word of thanks.

A young visitor to-day was Robert Thornton, who was given a couple of minutes' time to tell about the bond-selling campaign of the Tuxis Boys; the youthful spokesman making an effective speech.

It was announced that next week's meeting will be held on Tuesday night and will take the form of an inter-city meeting with Lindsay.

A new member, Rotarian "Bill" Ross, was given a hearty welcome by President Abbott at to-day's meeting.

Burglar Gets Year On Brantford Thefts

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 23.—(C. P.)— George Anderson, Yorkton, Sask., was sentenced to-day for his backdoor burgalries in this city when Magistrate Jones imposed a sentence of one year in each of the three cases he had pleaded guilty to here. The sentences will run concurrently. The court felt the man had already been heavily punished in Chatham, London and Paris. Anderson faces at least a five year term, getting that penalty in Chatham and another two years in London.

Magistrate Blake gave the man five years for his work in Paris. This sentence will run concurrently with his other sentences.

MURDERER'S APPEAL REFUSED.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (C.P.). — Lord Chief Justices Hewart, Avory and Humphreys to-day dismissed an appeal by Alfred Rouse, who was convicted last month of the murder of an unidentified man whose body was found in Rouse's automobile near Northampton. Rouse is under sentence of execution.

METROPOLITAN LIFE ASSETS IN EXCESS OF THREE BILLIONS

Policyholders to receive $94,000,000 in Dividends—Investments in Canada Increased $21,000,000 — Insurance in force nearly $19,000,000,000.

Convincing evidence of the basic soundness of our economic position in Canada and the United States is revealed in the annual report to policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The report is more than ordinarily interesting because Metropolitan is a mutual Company, having no stock and no stockholders. The policyholders include about one fifth of the total populations of Canada and the United States; consequently the Metropolitan story is the story of the great mass of the people in these two countries and at the same time a tribute to their steadfastness of purpose under handicaps which tested courage. The striking feature of the report is the statement that assets have reached a figure in excess of three billion, three hundred million dollars, being larger than those of any other financial institution in the world; certainly a sum that gives confidence to the average policyholder, because every dollar of this amount stands behind each Metropolitan policy issued. An idea of the constantly increasing security behind Metropolitan policies is gleaned from the report, which shows that during each day in 1930 the sum of $988,323 was added to assets. A significant fact benefiting the policyholders is the declaration of dividends for payment to policyholders in 1931 of Ninety-Four Million Dollars, which is an increase of Twelve Millions over last year and is the largest amount ever declared by any life insurance company. Total insurance in force at the end of the year was nearly Nineteen Billions of Dollars on almost forty-five million policies. Of this insurance over Nine Billion Dollars was Ordinary, nearly Seven Billion Dollars was Industrial and nearly Three Billion Dollars Group. Total production in the year 1930 exceeded Three Billion, Three Hundred Million Dollars, an amount that eclipsed the total written during the prosperous year 1928 and which was but two percent below the record production of 1929. In Canada there were two million, eight hundred thousand policies in force for nearly One Billion Dollars at the end of 1930, of which over Five Hundred and Thirty-Three Millions was in Ordinary. Insurance issued, revived and increased in Canada during 1930 amounted to over One Hundred and Ninety-Six Million Dollars. Payments to Canadian policyholders in the year, exceeded Eighteen Million, Five Hundred Thousand Dollars. Conforming to the practice of the Company the premium income collected in Canada during 1930 was paid out or invested in Canada. The investments of the Metropolitan Life in Canada are now Two Hundred and Ten Million Dollars, which is an increase of Twenty One Millions for the year. These investments are chiefly in bonds issued and guaranteed by the Dominion and Provincial Governments and by municipalities and also in first mortgages and loans to Canadian policyholders. The daily averages of business done by the Metropolitan during the year are unusually interesting as pointed out by Third Vice-President Henry E. North, Manager for Canada. Claims paid averaged 2,144 per day, while 19,639 life insurance policies per day were issued and revived. Other figures show $10,907,716 a day in life insurance issued, revived and increased; $2,093,529 a day in payments to policyholders and addition to reserve and a daily increase in assets of $988,323. Continuing Metropolitan health activities, which have been so marked a contribution to the good health of the people of Canada and United States, the Welfare Division reports a total of 377,732 free nursing visits to Industrial policyholders in Canada of which 60% were on maternity cases. Nearly 4,000,000 pamphlets on health subjects were distributed in the Dominion, bringing the total to date to almost 32,000,000. In co-operation with governmental and municipal health departments, the Metropolitan participated in fifty-three health campaigns in Canada during the year. Through its Policyholders' Service Bureau, their specialists in various fields of management, co-operated with Canadian business men in solving problems of production, distribution, industrial relations, industrial health, accident prevention, accounting and finance. During the year over 6,700 economic and business reports were distributed.

Third Vice-President and Manager for Canada, who reports Metropolitan Assets in excess of Three Billion Dollars.

SCHOOL TENDER BOOSTED $4,762 COURT IS TOLD

Bennett ad Wright Manager Makes Admission in A.B.C. Hearing.

AT LONDON HEARING.

Claims Money Divided Among Unsuccessful Tenders and Guild.

LONDON, Ont., February 23 (C. P.). — That in tendering for the building of the technical school $4,762 had been added by Bennett & Wright for distribution among unsuccessful tenderers, was the evidence of Robert Patten, the firm's branch manager, at the preliminary hearing of the padded tender charge against Louis Singer, W. F. O'Connor, Harr Weinraub, and Roy Belyea, the Canadian Plumbing and Heating Guild and the Dominion Chamber of Credits to-day.

The three unsuccessful tenderers got $1,000 each, the remainder going to the London Local of the Guild. Similarly, on the $47,000 tender for the Western Fair building $3,000 had been added for the benefit of unsuccessful tenderers. Bennett & Wright paid the money to a London firm on a fictitious invoice. The London firm then distributed the money.

A letter was shown to Mr Patton written by Noble & Rich of this city re the Western Fair job.

This was declared bogus and never intended to be real. A cheque for $3,116.50 was then produced, and witness declared that none of the money went to the Guild. On an invoice for $3,147 for plumbing at the Western Fair building, witness said that the $3,000 was wrong, as he was of the opinion that others had been contracting on that job. The $147 of the amount was real, the invoice was dated September 2, 1927, and the rubber stamp on the cheque showed a previous date.

Witness told the court that the 2 per cent. paid into the local organization was not shown in the books nor did he have any record of the collections.

Canadian Police Seek Pal Of Suicide

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 23 (C.P.).—An investigation now being conducted by the authorities at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., discloses the fact that Pte. T. J. McNamara, who killed himself at the fort yesterday, came to the Canadian side of the river Saturday night with William Klotsch, another soldier at the fort, who is now missing and cannot be located, though the Canadian side is now being combed by the police for him. McNamara had few friends in the Michigan Soo, owing to his recent arrival from Panama, and had come to this side with Klotsch on former occasions. McNamara returned to the fort alone from this side, and when near it met a bugler, who told him that he was ordered out for kitchen duty.

"What do I care. I'm a short-timer," replied McNamara, and this remark is taken as an indication that he then had thoughts of suicide in his mind.

Sir A. Gibb Is Silent On Canadian Ports

LONDON, Feb. 23 (C.P. Cable). — Interviewed to-day Sir Alexander Gibb, said to have been invited to make a report on the ports of Halifax, Saint John, Quebec, Montreal and Vancouver, told the Canadian Press that at present everything was confidential, and he had no statement to make.

Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Canadian Minister of Marine, announced in Montreal yesterday that Sir Alexander, a noted port authority, had been invited to go to Canada to make a report on the technical and business features of the leading Canadian ports in accordance with the Canadian Government's desire to increase the business efficiency of the ports.

Student Found Dead Police Are Baffled

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., Feb 23 (AP) Scotland Yard agents were summoned here to-day to investigate the strange death of John Charles Ellis, first year man at Sidney-Sussex College.

Ellis was found this morning dead in his room. He was fully dressed a handkerchief tied over his mouth and his hands and ankles tied with handkerchiefs.

Chief Inspector Belby and Detective Sergeant Bell left London immediately to attempt solution of the mystery.

Ellis' home was in Northwood, Middlesex. Servants discovered his body early this morning. He had apparently been dead for some time and his bed had not been slept in all night.

P.C.I. Wins Central Ontario 'Cage Honors

GARNET AND GREY SQUAD LOSES SECOND GAME TO OSHAWA 24-21 BUT WIN OUT ON ROUND 46-44

Struggle Marks First Loss Petes Have Sustained on Home Floor in Three Years.

TEAMS EVENLY MATCHED.

Visitors Show Better Combination and More Speed Than Homesters.

In the second contest of a two game series for the championship of Central Ontario, the local Collegiate senior basketeers dropped a 24-21 decision to the fast moving Oshawa quintet Saturday afternoon, but due to their win in the Motor City a week ago when they outpointed the green shirts 25-20 the P.C.I. squad are champions, winning the round 46-44.

The struggle marked the first loss the Petes have sustained on their home floor in three years' campaigning.

As the score would indicate, both teams were quite evenly matched, but on the day's play Oshawa showed much better form and a greater burst of speed than the locals and with a little more help from Dame Fortune would have easily taken the round from the P.C.I. boys.

The visitors played smooth combination and had the Petes badly baffled on many occasions, working the ball to the opposition basket only to lose it in a scramble around the local defence.

The Oshawa crew certainly showed marked improvement over their display at home and with Addison leading all the scorers with 12 points, they threw a big scare into the home camp. He was ably assisted by Henley who accounted for 7 points and Shelenkoff with 5.

For the Garnet and Grey team it must be said that several of the boys were under the weather, Stanger, Macdonald and Armstrong being flu victims, although Vern Armstrong played a strong game on the forward line and led the P.C.I. marksmen with 9 points.

Along with Armstrong, Chesler showed nice form to bag two field goals and toss a nice foul shot.

Art Ward showed up as the nicest playmaker of the day and though not a high scorer, he was credited with many assists on baskets scored.

Failed to Play up to Form

On the defence, Stanger and Reynolds worked hard all the way but did not show up as on previous occasions and Stanger although responsible for 5 points found the going rather hard.

His mate Reynolds, played a steady game but fouls were costly to him and his team and he was forced out of the game with 4 personals.

As soon as referee Charlie McLeish got the teams going, it was evident that P.C.I. were decidedly off colour and had a bad case of stage fright.

The pace was slow and gave the large crowd little to enthuse over, but the visitors soon started their attack and led P.C.I. a merry chase. Half time found P.C.I. leading 11-9.

The play speeded up considerably in the last half and the last 15 minutes were packed full of excitment. The Petes while playing better basketball at this stage, were not playing their usual steady passing attack and were relying on long passes the length of the floor which the Oshawa defence intercepted with ease.

At one stage of the fray the visitors had the round tied up but were unable to keep up the pace and with only two minutes to go, made a determined stand and nearly had it tied up again but the whistle saved the day for the locals who were just holding their own and gave the P.C.I. outfit the round and the right to continue in the Ontario playdowns.

THE PLAY

P.C.I. was slow in starting and the visitors drew first blood when Andison dropped a nice long shot in for two markers.

The score zig-zagged back and forth for practically the entire period, first one side then the other, scoring.

Armstrong, Macdonald and Ward, led several dangerous attacks but it was several minutes later that Armstrong scored twice in succession on nice attempts.

On Reynold's foul, Shelenkoff scored a single but Stanger came right back to tally on a Macdonald-Ward rush.

Oshawa pressed hard and the front line showed nice form to let Andison ring a beautiful counter from some distance out.

The Petes put on a spurt again and Armstrong, Macdonald and Wolstenholme had several opportunities but the Oshawa defence were right on the job. However, Stanger managed to tally a close in shot after several P.C.I. attempts had drawn blanks and on Henley's foul, he added another single to bring the team's total to nine.

Shelenkoff closed Oshawa's scoring for the half with a long shot and Armstrong came back to put P.C.I. one basket up as the whistle sounded for half time.

Coming out for the second half two points down, Oshawa made many dangerous sallies into the Petes' territory and were finally rewarded when Andison made a nice try.

P.C.I. came back strongly and Chesler received nice passes to sink two close in baskets and Art Ward added another on an individual attempt.

It was here that the visitors passed P.C.I. and made a determined bid for the round. The locals were using long passes at the time and Oshawa broke them up with great regularity and on combination plays that were beautiful to watch and which had the Garnet and Grey team at sea, Andison and Henley scored twice and the latter added three single markers on fouls by Reynolds and Wolstenholme.

The homesters still had plenty of fight and on a personal by Hicks, Chesler added a single to the cause.

The pace was beginning to tell and the visitors called a two minute rest. On the next play Reynolds was disqualified with four personal fouls and was replaced by Kelly and Armstrong contributed three points on a field goal and a single to put his team one point up on the visitors.

Make Valiant Effort

Oshawa made a valiant effort to overcome the five point lead the Petes had, and were playing high class basketball but the best they could do was two field goals by Andison who was working overtime for the cause.

The final count gave Oshawa the game 24-21 but left P.C.I. the round 46-44 and the Central Ontario championship.

DE LAVAL EASILY DEFEATS C.G.E.

Excell in Combination and Defense to Take 56-27 Decision From Engineers.

LOSERS PUT UP GAME FIGHT.

De Laval handed out a rather bad trimming to the C.G.E. Engineers in a basketball game on Saturday evening, when the score terminated at 56-27 in favor of the former. De Laval was exceptionally fast, and excelled in passing and getting the ball from their opponents on the rebound. The score at the end of the first half was 26-8, but the Engineers fought nobly for their additional 19 points.

Sturgeon was in good form, and managed to keep his score under the hundred mark by making only 32 points. Routley did the next best for the winners by scoring 8 baskets. Although McLeish did not start to score until the second half, he was the major scorer for C.G.E., totalling 10 points for his team. Jones followed on with 6.

Crawford Team Defeats Payne In Tournament

Crawford's team won out over Payne's by a very narrow margin at a volley ball tournament held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Saturday afternoon. The finals ran to three games, 15-12, 14-15, 15-13, and the winning team had only four points for a lead.

Rhodes' team defeated Johnson's in the first game of the afternoon. In the second game Quinland won from Tranter, only after the match ran to three games. Hamilton's five lost to Crawford's in the third game, and Payne won the decision over Gould.

In the second round of the tournament Payne defeated Rhodes, 15-3 and 15-8, and Crawford downed Quinlan, 15-14 and 15-6. Three very fast and exciting games had to be played before the decision finally went to Crawford in the last round of the tournament.

LAKEFIELD HIGH WINS SCHOOL TILT

But Are Defeated in Public School Class in Campbellford Games.

PLAY NICE HOCKEY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 23 (By examiner Staff Correspondent)—Saturday was "hockey day" for the Campbellford schools, when the Davidson Arena was the scene of a double-header when Lakefield Public and High School hockey teams clashed in two very interesting games which were featured by some fine exhibitions and a sheet of very poor ice. However, despite the latter drawback, Lakefield walked home with a neat little High School victory over Principal Greig's outfit to the tune of 2 to 1.

In the Public School class, however, the visitors were not so fortunate. Here it was that High's sextet shone forth and played, trimming the visitors 4 to 2.

Public School Game

In the clash between the Public Schools, Campbellford featured the fastest team, taking the lead early in the play, Runnions and Cubitt were the play-makers on the forward line, pressing the visitors hard in every period. Lakefield, however, played a good defensive game, and showed a fine exhibition of combination; Blewett, at defense, proved a little whirlwind, doing some of the niftiest stunts on the ice and making himself a man to be watched. Runnions scored the first tally for the entertainers in the first period, on an assist from Cubitt, following this shortly afterward with a lone play by which he counted a second goal. Soon after play started in the second frame, Runnions again counted for Campbellford, followed five minutes later by one for Lakefield, made by Payne in a lone play. The fourth count for the Millers was made at the end of the period by Lambert on a long shot. In the last session the game speeded up considerably. Payne and Blewett playing on the forward line, Campbellford were unable to tally in this frame, the only count being made by Blewett, who took the puck through the house and shot, unassisted.

Score.—Campbellford 4, Lakefield 2.

Campbellford — Goal, McArthur; defence, Lambert and Phillips; centre, Pettifer; wings, Runnions and Cubitt; subs, McArthur, Smith and Blake.

Referee—L. Copperthwaite, Campbellford.

HIGH SCHOOL GAME

The High School game was a different proposition. In this episode the Lakefield squad had the edge on the play, the entertainers being unable to show the same speed or combination. Much of the play was in the entertainers' area, where Oddie between the nets received severe punishment but displayed his ability as a goalie keeping the homesters from a severe licking. In the last period especially he had more than his share of the work, but despite the terrific bombardment he received at the hands of the Lakefield boys only two goals were counted against him. The first frame was a scoreless tie, the teams making heavy play with the Campbellford area as the centre of it, with occasional rushes by Redpath and Linton.

The second session was featured by the first count being made for Campbellford when Redpath sent a floater down the ice which angled into the visitors' net. This made a spurt necessary for the Lakefield squad who came back at half play with a tally. Wanamaker netting the puck after a scramble in front of the entertainers' net. The rest of the period was spent in heavy play, with Campbellford doing its best to drive forward, and the Lakefield outfit keeping them as much as possible in their house. In the third period the play was all Lakefield's, Oddie doing his stuff to perfection, Richardson on defence put up a fine scrap for the Campbellford squad, but was unable to break through and count. Wanamaker made the winning count in the latter half of the period, the play ending in a 2-1 win for Lakefield.

The Score: Lakefield, 2; Campbellford 1.

The teams:

Lakefield—Goal, Pearson; defence, White and Nichols; centre, Chittick; wings, Payne and Wanamaker; subs, Tanner McFadden and Brown.

Referee—H. Lambert, Campbellford.

BOBCAYGEON TEAM WINS AT FENELON

FENELON FALLS, February 23.—Haliburton came out of the north on Friday night 425 strong to root for its entries in the Fenelon Falls tournament, and it is to be regretted that they could not carry the cup home with them after their fine showing, but the northern teams were eliminated by Bobcaygeon and Red Rock, and then the Bobcaygeon Juniors won in the finals.

The games opened with Red Rock eliminating Haliburton 2-1 in a breath-taking game that left the fans rather limp because of its closeness, and then even a closer game was staged when Kinmount suffered a 1-0 defeat at the hands of the Bobcaygeon Juniors. In the finals, Bobcaygeon scored a one-goal advantage over Red Rock to win the Durant and Renfrew Cup. The games held the interest of the crowd until the early hours of the morning.

Canadiens Erase Four Goal Deficit to Win From Americans.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 23. (By Geo. Maguire, Canadian Press Sport Writer).—Displays of wide-open hockey and prolific scoring marked the five games played in the National hockey League at the week-end. Only one change occurred in the status of the teams but notwithstanding this several remarkable victories were registered.

New York Rangers made the only move in the standing of teams in either group by decisively whipping the tail-end Philadelphia Quakers 6 to 1, to edge Detroit Falcons from a tie for their position in the American group. The Motor magnates were held to a tie in Detroit by the Chicago Blackhawks, 70 minutes of thrilling hockey producing but one goal apiece. This slid the Falcons into fourth place one point behind the Rangers.

Toronto fans voted the Boston-Maple Leaf tilt the best exhibition in the Queen City this season. Both teams played spectacularly throughout and the game ended with the Bostonians driving in on the Leaf cage three and four abreast, but the Canadia group second place holders held on grimly to finish on the right side of a 4 to 2 count.

The Leafs "kid" line showed the best hockey of any trio sent out by either team and added six points to their scoring averages.

Leaf Goal-getters

"Chuck" Conacher notched one goal and gave two assists, Harvey Jackson netted once as did Joe Primeau who also chalked up an assist. Hal Cotton tallied the other Leaf marker while George Owen and Galbraith were Boston's successful marksmen.

As Canadiens trounced New York Americans 6 to 4, in the Forum the Leafs failed to gain on the section leaders, but they did increase their margin to four points over the Amerks and to six over the fourth place Marcons, who were held to a 3-all tie by the Senators.

Rated a strong defensive team but not so prominent offensilvely the Americans astonished the Habitants and their supporters by a 12 minute barrage on the Canadian goal in the opening session which netted them four goals.

This seemed like an insurmountable handicap for the Stanley Cup holders to overcome, but the league's leaders started in earnest to reduce the Amerix' lead and at the end of the period had notched three goals and were only one down.

The Montrealers knotted the count in the second and clinched the game in the third with a smart brace of goals.

Howie Morenz, popular choice by all-star team selectors for centre ice, added four points to his record by scoring twice and assisting twice.

Ottawa's surprising Senators appeared headed for their third straight victory until the half-way mark of third period. At this stage they held a three to one lead over the Maroons by reason of a brilliant performance. However, they elected to revert to defensive tactics and this appeared to be playing into the plans of the Montreal huskies who quickly combined for two tallies to even the score.

LOOP GAMES END IN EVEN COUNTS

Yellow Jackets, Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Stars Battle to Draws.

PIRATES IN THIRD.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 23.—(CP)—It was a "no decision" program in the International hockey league at the week-end. Three matches were played but all ended in stalmates.

Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets were the big noise. The Smoky City hockeyists played on successive nights and garnered two points to jump into third place, three points behind Windsor and one ahead of London and Cleveland.

The Yellow Jackets battled the league leading Buffalo Bisons to a two-all tie in Fort Erie Saturday and then moved over to Syracuse where they were held to a scoreless draw by the cellar occupants.

Windsor and Cleveland participated in the other deadlock. The game, played in the Ohio City, was goalless until four minutes of the overtime had elapsed. Captain Alex Grey then skated from end to end to score a neat counter and last season's champions appeared to have the game in "the bag" when Lorne Duguid dashed clear through the entire Cleveland team to notch the equalizer with only a few seconds remaining to play.

The standing to date follows:

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Buffalo	38	24	10	4	88	56	52
Windsor	39	19	14	6	111	91	44

Grove School Defeats Trinity College 5-2

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 23.—The best exhibition collegiate game of the hockey season was played in the Lakefield ring on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the first team of Trinity College School, Port Hope, played The Grove.

The visitors were larger and heavier and in the face off looked like sure winners but skill and remarkably fine team play on the part of the locals won by a score of 5—2, after three very strenuous periods of clean fast hockey. K. A. MacKenzie handled the bell and the game efficiently.

The line-up was as follows:

Grove: Disney, goal; Wright, right defence; Carson, left defence; Macrae center; Elmsley, right wing; Stuart, left wing; subs, Bagg, Carson, Beardmore.

T. C. S.—Browne and Harrington, goal; Ross, right defence; Irvine, left defence; Grant, centre; Taylor, right wing; Padley, left wing; subs, Carr-Harris, Grier, Trenholme, Lockwood.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 23. — Wheat dropped 1¾ cents to 2 cents below Friday's figures here on Saturday. Bearishness prevailed, founded on rumors that the Fedreal Farm Board in the United States was competing with Canadian wheat for foreign markets.

Heavy selling, both by local traders and Chicago interests, and poor export demand weakened the market, which slumped at the opening and continued the fall right to the close.

Light trading occurred in cash wheat and coarse grains, with values easier in sympathy with wheat futures.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO Feb. 23—(AP)—Almost heedless of soaring prices for stocks, grain markets pursued a general downward course Saturday. Reports of rain and snow in Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado, together with predictions of moisture for the greater part of the grain belt, had a decided bearish influence. Besides, general export demand for North American wheat and eastern shipping call for corn were apparently at a standstill, although talk was heard that government-sponsored agencies had disposed of some export wheat at the Gulf of Mexico.

Wheat closed heavy, unchanged to one cent lower, corn ⅝ to ¾ off, oats unchanged to ⅜ decline and provisions a shade to five cents up.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—(CP)— On the produce and dairy market here last week prices of eggs, cheese and potatoes were higher, while butter was lower. Saturday prices were unchanged.

Eastern Townships and Western No. 1 pasteurized butter was 32 cents a pound, and to retailers solids were 34 cents and prints 35 cents. Last week's receipts were 5,458 boxes of which 1,449 boxes were Australian.

Carlot prices of British Columbia and Ontario fresh eggs were: Extras 32 cents; firsts, 26 to 29 cents, and seconds 21 to 22 cents, firsts at 27 cents and extras were 31 cents. Storage firsts, in carlots, were 16 to 19 cents, and seconds 16 to 17 cents. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts for the week were 5,641 cases.

On the cheese market Winter white was quoted at 12 cents and colored at 14¾ to 15 cents. Summer cheese was 15½ to 16 cents. Receipts last week were 712 boxes.

SOARS FINELY, BUT NUISANCE ABOUT GREENS

Even Bobby Jones Admits He is Baffled by Latest Adjunct to Scottish Game.

DIFFER IN LENGTH.

Former Amateur Champion Putting Shy on Winter Greens.

By Lester Rice

Expert golfers are discovering a tantalizing trait in the new, larger and lighter golf ball that is giving some of them no little concern. Off the tee and through the fairway the ball acts beautifully. It has fine soaring qualities and plenty of length, but around the greens it is rapidly becoming a nuisance.

Even so great a master as Bobby Jones frankly admitted that the ball continues to baffle him around the greens. It demands a touch far more deft than the old ball. It was noticeable at East Lake on Wednesday that both he and Horton Smith were unable to make the ball behave properly around the greens.

Bob and Horton have always been infinitely fine players within fifty yards of the flag. The short game was their chief forte. But since the new ball became the fashion their short game has suffered appreciably.

DIFFER IN LENGTH

Another concern for the experts is the fact that the manufacturers have not standardized the ball in the matter of length. Some balls are far more peppy than others. It was noticed in the Atlanta match that Smith very often was from ten to fifteen yards ahead of Jones from the tee. Smith is playing a ball that, while it conforms to size and weight, is smaller than some of the other brands which are slightly above the prescribed size.

It was this same ball that finished first in the Los Angeles open and finished second, third and fourth in the Agua Caliente event. Beside Smith, Hagen, George Von Elm, Ed Dudley and one or two others are using it to advantage. It was this ball that caused Gene Sarazen at Agua Caliente to call for a measuring device when he discovered that Dudley's ball was smaller than his. It was then discovered that, while Dudley's ball conformed to size, the brand that Sarazen was using was larger than necessary.

JONES PUTT-SHY

At East Lake, where he played on Winter greens that are of a much better texture than the course's Summer carpets, Jones putted without confidence. Putts that ordinarily he would hit resolutely into the cup he seemed to shy at and, although he had plenty of opportunities, it wasn't until the sixteenth that he was able to hole a putt longer than six feet in length.

Smith, ordinarily a fine putter, played miserably on the East Lake greens. The new ball has so unsettled his confidence that he is no longer certain what putter he ought to use. In the East Lake matches he used a strange looking contrivance whose head and neck were shaped like the letter "S".

TUT-PETROLLE BOUT BIG ATTRACTION

Latter to Leave Padded Glove Game for Good if He Loses Decision.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 23 (C.P.)—Mickey Walker and Johnny Risko, and their clash at Miami, Fla., tomorrow night, may get the headlines, but Madison Square Garden has a battle on tap this week that may give the customers a better run for their money.

The Garden is offering a return bout on Friday night between two of the most powerful hitters in the lightweight division, King Tut of Minneapolis and Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N.D.

Tut has been Petrolle's Nemesis for several years. The "Fargo Express" quit the ring more than a year ago as a result of a bad beating he took from the Minneapolis puncher. Then, he returned to the ring, battered his way through a host of good 136-pounders and gave Jimmy McLarin, Vancouver welterweight, the worst beating of his career.

Back among the contenders again, Petrolle was matched with Tut at St. Paul early this month and was knocked out in a round. He threatens to quit the game for good if he fails to win on Friday.

AID OF INJURED PLAYERS.

Tonight at 8:30, the local intermediates and Lindsay Vics resume their fight for the J. H. Boyle Company cup which will be presented the winners by Harry Bolye right after the game.

The boys from Lindsay won the first of the home and home games on their own ice Friday night by the score of 5-4 and they hope to keep that one goal margin tonight. The Petes will be at full strength for the affair and are confident they will win the round. The money cleared will go toward doctor bills incurred by the team through their tough O. H. A. schedule.

The ice should be in good shape for the contest and a large crowd of fans will likely be on hand.

GREAT BRITAIN GETS READY FOR SCHNEIDER SPEED TESTS

Landis Decision Will Likely Known in Month

CHICAGO, Feb. 23. (CP) — Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, probably will have to wait another month before hearing a decision in a test case that may either affirm his dictatorship over the game, or damage his position.

Federal Judge Walter Lindley, before whom the injunction suit of St. Louis Browns against Commissioner Landis, concerning the disposal of Outfielder Fred Bennett, was heard, has been too busy with other case, and to-day said he didn't expect to reach a decision 'for about a month."

Seaplanes Have Been Worked on for Over Year and R.A.F. Flight Already Chosen.

FRANCE-ITALY COMPETE

LONDON, Feb. 23 (C.P.)—The days of uncertainty, of discussion and counter-discussion, are apparently ended, and the next contest for the Schneider International Seaplane Trophy now seems certain to take place, probably over the Solent, at the end of August or the beginning of September, when the swiftest racing aeroplanes of France and Italy will endeavor to wrest from Great Britain the trophy won and held in the two previous contests.

Reversing the earliest decision, the government has agreed to provide full official backing for British participation, similar to the help given in 1927 and 1929, but with the important difference that the entire cost must be borne by non-governmental funds.

Great Britain won the two previous contests in 1927 and 1929, and, according to the regulations, has the privilege again this year, as in 1929, of organizing the race in this country. Two foreign nations, France and Italy, have entered teams of high-speed seaplanes. Efficient organization of the race demands Royal Air Force aid in the provision of accommodation for visiting teams and aircraft, while Royal Air Force pilots belonging to the High Speed Flying section are the only men in the country qualified by actual experience to pilot aeroplanes flying at speeds six miles a minute and more.

Lady Houston, widow of the millionaire ship-owner, promised to guarantee, if necessary, all the money required. She has promised to supply the government with a bankers' guarantee for the amount, and all that now remains is to reach a financial settlement, including a survey of money available which will delimit the contest to which Lady Houston's help will be called upon.

Fly Over British Waters

Again this year, as in 1929, the racing seaplanes will fly over British waters. Last time Flight Lieutenant H. R. D. Waghorn won the contest at the average speed of 328.63 miles an hour. Second to finish was Maresciallo dal Molin, the Italian pilot of an old Macchi 52 monoplane, who averaged 284 miles an hour. One British entrant, Flying Officer Atcherley, was disqualified for failing to round one of the pylons at the turning points, but succeeded in establishing new world speed records over distances of 50 and 100 kilometres. Lieutenants Monti and Cadringher in new Macchi 67 seaplanes failed to complete the course — they were blinded by exhaust fumes and oil—and Flight Lieutenant D'Arcy Greig was third on the old Supermarine S5 monoplane which won at Venice in 1927.

None who saw the race can ever forget the stupendous speed of the blue and silver British S6 monoplanes as they tore by overhead at a speed on the straights of six miles per minute. The perfect weather, glamorous sunshine and blue sky, the numberless ships, gay with bunting, at anchor in the Solent, the background of the Isle of Wight and the mainland black with onlookers beneath the trees and buildings, and over these the racing seaplanes moving faster than any other vehicle made by man—these composed a picture of unforgettable magnificance.

All thoughts are now directed to the next contest. Fortunately, as long ago as February last year the firms concerned in the building of the S6 monoplanes and their engines—the Supermarine Aviation Works and Rolls-Royce—began technical investigation of the problems involved in preparing for the next contest. This essential work has continued ever since. The two firms have maintained constant communications on the subject with each other and with the Air Ministry.

No definite information has reached London about the French and Italian plans for the contest. Both countries propose to enter teams of three machines, and the work of construction and training pilots is going on steadily. The British team, too, should consist of three racing machines, piloted by officers selected from the High Speed Development Flight of the Royal Air Force, now stationed at Felixstowe.

R.A.C. Pick Club

The choice of a course for the race will be made by the Royal Aera Club. The main objection to the use again of the Spithead and Solent course of the 1929 race arises out of the dislocation of shipping which occurred at that time. The channel used by ships sailing into and out of Southampton passes eastwards from Southampton Water into Spithead, and the course used last time lay across it. It may be possible to find an equally suitable course farther west, covering roughly that part of the Solent between Calshot and the Needles. If the water in that area is found to be of sufficient depth at all states of the tide, there would probably be no objection on other grounds to its selection for the race.

The two Supermarine S6 seaplanes of 1929 are at present at Felixstowe, where they have been used by the R.A.F. High Speed Flight. The three flight lieutenants of that flight will no doubt form the nucleus of the party of pilots from which the British team will be chosen at a late stage in the period of training. It may be taken as certain that no officer who has flown in a previous Schneider Trophy race will be included in this year's team, so that although Flight Lieutenant Waghorn is also at Felixstowe, he is not likely to be a member of the team. The two other pilots of the 1929 race are now serving abroad. Flight Lieutenant G. H. Stainforth, who was a member of the last team but did not fly in the race, is now at Uxbridge, and will presumably be eligible for selection.

The members of the High Speed Flight are Flight Lieutenants E. J. L. Hope, F. W. Long, and J. N. Boothman. With them at Felixstowe is Squadron Leader A. H. Orlebar, commanding the Flying Boat Development Flight, who was in charge of training for the last race. He has been appointed manager.

SHAMROCKS BLANK TULSA OILERS 3-0

Chicago Bracketed With Kansas City in Second Place of American League.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23. (By the Canadian Press).—Instead of bowing to the mighty manpower of Tulsa's hockey machine as they were expected to Chicago Shamrocks reacted bullishly to a record-breaking home crowd of 11,000 here last night and shut-out the American league leaders, 3 to 0. Bracketed with Kansas City in second place, Shamrocks today were still ten points back of the Oilers but satisfaction was theirs in full measure.

Fleet Bobby Burns, wingman out of Gore Bay, Ont., engineered the Chicagoans to an impressive triumph scoring one goal himself and passing to Eddie Wiseman and Jack Riley for the others. Wiseman got an assist on Burns' goal.

To stay even with Chicago, 'Paddy' Byrne and his Kansas City Plamors went back to their favorite sport—shutouts. They blanked the homeless Minneapolis Millers 5 tuesday night, 1 to 0, and made it 2 to day night, 1 to 0, and made it 2 to 0 last night.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

Two shutouts, a tie and two real upsets were registered in last week's City League Five-Pin battles, when the ten men's teams in this loop got into action after a two weeks' layoff, and hammered the maple with a vengeance that put seven of the total pinnage scores over the 3000 mark. The Canadians were the outstanding scorers of the night, making a grand total of 3437 pins, while the Night Hawks, with 2737 pins were the tailenders.

The biggest surprise was uncovered when the Night Hawks tangled with the Cognawagas and absorbed a coat of kalsomine to the tune of 4—0. The Cogs, who were in the last place at the finish of the first section, were in top form and had a winning margin of 425 pins on the night's play, while the losers bowled below par with the exception of Mike Duffus and Elliott who topped the 600 mark. Williams, with a triple of 749 and Prest with 606, were the standouts for the Cogs, and Graham for the same team had a nice single of 283.

The second upset on the program was provided by the Brintons who humbled the Lucky Strikes 3—1. This reverse was not totally unexpected as the latter team have been in a slump for some time. The Carpet Makers bowled brilliantly. W. Farr and W. Curtis supplying the fireworks with scores of 294-191-283=723, and 154-272-316=742 respectively. Fred Hickey with a total of 687 led the losers and Martyn was second with 661.

The fast-stepping Canadians swamped the Westclox outfit for a four point gain despite the fact that four of the losers were well over the 600 mark. The winners, led by Routley with a triple of 765, turned in some classy work, every player being over 600, while Freeman clipped off 714. Tommy Cupoli was the best for the Clockmakers, scoring 710.

A third game rally which toppled 1294 pins turned the tide of battle for the Rangers against the Bowlrites after the latter had won the first two games. This total also gave the Rangers total pinnage and the contest ended in a 2—2 tie. John Playford's lusty arm spilled 773 pins for the Rangers, which included a single of 308 while Joe Marsden with 695 was next in the parade.

The Big Five smothered the Belmonts under a steady attack, to take the works and increased their total by 4 points. Tom Curvin and N. Fallon, with 763 and 699 respectively, were the chief gunners for the winners. Doc. Green's triple of 680 was the only exceptional score for the Clubmen.

WALKER CONTINUING HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT

Meets Johnny Risko Tuesday Night in Third Battle of Palms.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—(CP)—In an atmosphere of marked contrast to fistiana's boom days here but with the prospect never-the-less of some earnest punch-tossing, the one-time toy bulldog, Mickey Walker, will renew his heavyweight campaign in a ten-round match tomorrow night with the durable Johnny Risko of Cleveland.

The fight is the first of a double-barreled fistic carnival under the palms this winter in the Miami arena built by the Madison Square Garden Corporation, which withdrew from the setting this year after promoting two annual festivals of sock.

"Pa" Stribling, whose versatility as father-manager-promoter seems to have developed from his acrobatic days, is directing the Walker-Risko show and featuring it with three-round exhibitions by his son, W. L. (Young) Stribling and Max Schemeling, who are matched to fight this June for the world's heavyweight title somewhere in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago or Jersey City.

"Pa" Stribling will be quite happy if his show tomorrow night draws upwards of $50,000, at prices ranging from $2 to $5.

Dr. A. F. Anderson Wins Alberta Rink Honors

By virtue of two straight wins over Edmonton Club's rink, the Royal club quartet skipped by Dr. A. F. Anderson, formerly of Peterborough, earned their right to represent northern Alberta in the Macdonald-Brier Dominion curling championship playdowns. The Anderson rink was to play off with the southern winners in Calgary, and the winner of that match to represent Alberta in the big play in Toronto beginning March 3rd. According to the Edmonton Journal, "Dr. Anderson's skipping ability is known the length and breadth of the province."

Dr. Anderson is superintendent of the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton, where he has resided for twenty years. His parents still live in Peterborough at 207 Dublin street. Old-timers will recall the doctor, who graduated from High school here in 1895. He learned the rudiments of curling before going to Toronto to begin his medical course. And his old friends will be pulling for him if his rink plays off in Toronto next month.

"NEW BALL WILL CUT DOWN CIRCUIT CLOUTS," SAYS RUTH

Elimination of baseball's "rabbit ball," the first move in ten years to help pitchers was greeted to-day with universal approval of players, fans and writers.

Quite naturally the pitchers who received harsh treatment during the lively ball era, were enthusiastic about the "reform," but it was surprising to find that the sluggers, beneficiaries of the rabbit ball, also hailed the change as the greatest improvement of recent years.

Baseball fans long since have tired of the rabbit ball with its resultant trick home runs and synthetic .300 batting averages, while baseball writers for several years have been urging a return of the pre-war period.

Babe Ruth, the player who made the baseball world "home run minded" believes the peak has been reached and that his 1927 performance of 60 home run in a single season will stand as an all-time record. "Adoption of the new ball has made my record safe," says Ruth, who adds: "I've never felt secure before, but with the new ball I have no hopes of bettering the record myself and no worries about anyone else doing so."

Ruth believes the new ball and rule changes regarding sacrifice flies will produce better pitching and lower batting averages. "I don't think deadening the ball will hurt me much," said Ruth, "but it will throw the skids under the pop fly hitters who have been golfing them over short fences. Pitchers will have more confidence and the wild wingers are certain to strike out more frequently."

According to Ruth, the biggest harm the rule markers have done is changing the sacrifice fly rule. It will cut 20 to 30 points from the batting averages. Ruth doesn't mind being charged with a time at bat when he advances a runner from first to second base, but bringing him home from third is another matter. That's an actual score, and although the batter gets credit for driving in a run, his batting average will be lowered by charging him with a time at bat. Ruth hopes to have more than 600 homers before he is through as a regular.

WEST VS. WILSON CASE DISMISSED

Magistrate G. A. Payne Hands Down Judgment in Campbellford on Coasting Case.

POINT OF LAW ARGUED.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 23 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Dismissing the case, with costs, was the decision handed down by Magistrate G. A. Payne in regard to the West-Wilson case, tried in the Campbellford Police Court on February 9, and on which he reserved judgment.

This case created much local interest and arose out of an action brought by Dr. Simon West against James Wilson, both local residents, for violation of the municipal by-law forbidding any person from practising coasting on the streets of the town. The evidence in the case showed that the two men lived on a boundary road, and that on January 26 Wilson had returned from town with three bags of coal on a hand sleigh. He had hauled the bags singly up the hill to his home, coasting down to the bottom again with his young boy on the sleigh. This he had done a second time until the coal was carried home.

Appearing for the plaintiff, J. D. Lynch had argued that a habit of coasting had been established, to which the magistrate had agreed. N. Alexander MacColl, defending the case, argued, however, on point of law, pointing out that according to the Municipal Act, it ruled that on all boundary roads both municipalities must be jointly agreed on the by-law. In this instance there is no corresponding by-law in the Township of Seymour.

Magistrate Payne, in handing down his decision, stated: "I have considered the arguments put in by the counsel in this matter, and recognizing that the defendant is entitled to any reasonable doubt, I dismiss the charge, with costs. No witness fees allowed."

op of London, in 1910. His eloquence and ardent advocacy of the principles he espoused frequently brought his name before the public, one recent instance being that in which his criticism of the visit of Sir Henry Thornton to Mexico led to the injection of Toronto's Mexican consul-general into the sphere of federal political controversy.

Bishop Fallon was born of Irish parents in Kingston on May 17, 1867, and with two brothers entered the Catholic priesthood. The bishop had received his early education in the Christian Brothers school and Kingston collegiate and his early theological training in Ottawa university from which he graduated with his B. A. degree in 1889. He was sent thence to the Georgian University in Rome where he secured his D.D. in 1894, and in the same year he was ordained. He had taken special training in oratory and soon assumed a place as a distinguished pulpit speaker and lecturer. He was professor of English literature at Ottawa university for some years before assuming the rectorship of St. Joseph's church in Ottawa, where he continued for three years before taking charge of Holy Angels' church in Buffalo in 1901. In Buffalo Father Fallon became an outstanding figure in church affairs, and in 1904 he was made provincial of the Oblate order. He continued in this position, the duties of which took him to all parts of the United States and Canada, until 1909, when he received his appointment to be Bishop of London.

Adviser to Lloyd George

Lloyd George summoned him to England during the world war to seek his aid in settling the Irish question. At the same time De Valera sought his ear. At 10 Downing Street he rejected the proposal of the ministry and refused to recommend it to the Irish people on the ground that the plan was less than justice. In his young days he had lectured on Daniel O'Connell and Edmund Burke, and he had a knowledge of Irish affairs so intimate that Irish leaders in Ireland welcomed his counsels on many occasions there.

He insisted on education in English for his people here, and clashed with French-Canadians on the issue of bilingualism. He was then accused by many in Quebec of siding with the Orangemen, but he demanded that his people should not be educated under a system that would leave them "hewers of wood and carriers of water."

He also advocated the settlement of Northern Ontario and the Canadian West with Irish and other English-speaking Catholics, and frowned upon French-Canadian penetration of these territories.

In 1911, in an address before the Canadian Club here after a period of residence in Germany, he warned that the Kaiser contemplated an early bid for world control, and he urged warlike preparations to meet the day. When the war did come, he issued a call to his people to support Union government and conscription.

In his student days he was a formidable football player, and at Ottawa University he coached the college team that captured the championship of Canada. This love of clean sport persisted through his life, and he was the patron of many athletic events. His own particular hobby in recent years was golf.

His Lordship had been in failing health since March, 1928, when he suffered an extremely serious attack of pneumonia. His recovery was considered almost miraculous but the illness left him in a weakened condition, though he was able to attend administrative business than demanded his personal attention. Following the illness, however, complications set in from which he had several times made gains toward health, only to relapse again.

His last public appearance was to open St. Seter's Seminary chapel, in June, 1930, at which time practically all of the priests of London diocese were in attendance. At that time it was seen that he was making a great sacrifice to be present.

His health, too, was probably undermined somewhat by worries over land disputes in Essex County, including the Villa Manor case involving the location of a cemetery, and a dispute with certain realtors over a grant of land made to the church.

SCHOOL TEACHER IS NOT GUILTY

Bessie had her hands clasped behind her back, and refused to let go. She fell over a desk, according to the teacher. Bessie said she was thrown over the desk. Gillies got her on her right side and struck her clenched hands with the strap. Later he got Bessie on her feet and drew first one and then the other hand out for a strapping. Bessie then stalked out of the door, slamming it behind her.

"The teacher may have been an agent in Bessie falling over the desk," said His Honor, "but I find that it was accidental, and that the breaking of the ribs was brought about by the wrongful refusal of this child to take punishment which she was entitled to receive. When she marched out of the door her flag was flying, and her rebellious spirit unconquered."

AUSTRALIA DIVA DIES AT SYDNEY

a rancher near Galveston, Texas, obtained a divorce. She later became reconciled with her son.

She was made Dame of the British Empire in 1922, in recognition of her war work and on King George's Birthday in 1927 she received the Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

She was stricken with a severe attack of influenza in February, 1929. In 1930 she contracted the disease which brought her death and was so ill last November when the ship bringing her from Europe reached Freemantle, West Australia, that she could not land.

The diva was partly conscious most of to-day, but about 5 p.m. to-day she lapsed into a coma from which she never awoke. A few members of her family were with her when the end came, and a small gathering of friends, including M. Lemmome, the famous flautist and accompanist to Melba, suffering himself from a chill, were nearby.

She died in St. Vincent's Hospital, Sydney, where she was taken at the end of January after spending a few weeks at her vine-clad cottage at Melbourne. The nuns at St. Vincent's had cared for her lovingly even since she first came to them.

Career of 40 Years

In the forty years of her career Melba sang all over the globe. France remembered her best for her Phelia in Thomas's Hamlet; Germany for her Elsa; England for her Mimi and Gilda, while she set a height of perfection for Juliette's farewell to Romeo in Gounod's opera to which others will always aspire. But to the masses perhaps she was best known for her "Home, Sweet Home," which few singers could give with such rich, beautiful tenderness and feeling.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Dizzy Headaches and Fainting Spells

Mrs. Lloyd Babcock, Hartington, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I was all run down in health. I had dizzy headaches, and suffered a great deal with fainting spells. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters and after taking two bottles I felt like a new person.

MISS DORIS SCOTT HONORED AT PARTY

Friends of Popular Trent River Girl Observe Birthday at Social.

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 23 (Examiner Correspondence) — Friends and neighbors met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Scott to honor Miss Doris Scott on the event of her birthday, Friday night, February 20. Guests were present from Toronto, Campbellford, Hastings, Havelock and Trent River and surrounding district.

Eight tables were placed for progressive euchre with ladies first prize to Mrs. Fred Cooke and gent's first prize to Mr. James Cock.

The guest of honor was the recipient of many handsome gifts testifying to the esteem in which she is held.

Dainty refreshments were served after the games after which dancing was enjoyed to the accompaniment of guitar and violin played by Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks.

District Notes

Miss Alice Garneau of West Seymour was a week-end visitor with Miss Doris Scott.

The Efficiency League met at the church Friday night with R. W. Umphrey as chairman. Sides were chosen for the different colors and the following contributed to the program: address by R. W. Umphrey; organ instrumental, Miss Helen Brown; reading, Milton Hawley.

END PILES QUICK

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protuding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and in one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this City, that McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back.

World Day Of Prayer Observed By Society

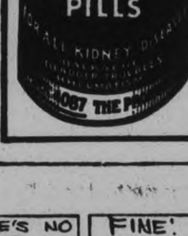
WESTWOOD, Feb. 23 (Examiner Correspondence)—The members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church held the February meeting on Friday, the World Day of Prayer, at the home of Mrs. John Hope, when the president, Mrs. Hugh Cameron presided.

A letter was read by the president regarding the temperance resolutions, recommended by the temperance secretaries at a conference, held during the annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterian of the United Church of Canada. All those present at the meeting signed in agreement of the resolutions.

The program of the World Day of Prayer was closely followed and was very impressive, prayer being offered by Mrs. J. Hope and Mrs. H. Cameron. Others who took part in the prayer service were Miss Jessie Davidson, Mrs. W. Morris and Mrs. H. Neilson.

She Suffered With Painful Backache

Dodd's Kidney Pills Brought Her Relief



"For weeks I suffered with terrible pains in my back," writes Mrs. A. Ward, 37 Bristol St., Hamilton, Ont. "I couldn't find any relief from the medicine I was using. Seeing an advertisement for Dodd's Kidney Pills I tried them, and much to my surprise the pain started to disappear. Now I am as well as ever, thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become a family remedy all over the country because people have tried them and found them good. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy, that can be taken by old and young alike. Ask your neighbors about them. 2-23

Col. R. Gregory Dies In Louth Township

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Feb. 23—Colonel Roland W. Gregory, farmer, fruit grower and retired military man, died in Louth Township this morning in his eightieth year. He served 45 years n the Canadian Militia and was a veteran of the Fenian Raid. A former Commander of the Second Dragoons, he was placed on the retired list in 1919 with the rank of Colonel. During the Great War he organized the 7th and 8th C.M.R. Regiments during the fall and winter of 1914-1915, and later was Commandant in different military camps in Canada.

In the Provincial election of 1926 he was the unsuccessful Conservative candidate in the riding of Lincoln. He is survived by his widow, two sons and three daughters.

Windless Storm Plays Odd Trick On Pacific

LONDON, Feb. 23 (A.P.)—A dispatch just received from Raratonga, Cook Islands, reports that the recent New Zealand earthquake was preceded there by several days by a tremendous but windless ocean storm which lasted the whole night of January 28.

January 28 was a perfect Summer day in that tropical region; with the sky cloudless and the sea calm and blue.

Suddenly the ocean waves rose 15 feet high outside the lagoon, rolled over the reef and rushed up the harbor, swamping sheds at the wharfside and throwing spray 80 feet in the air.

There was not a breath of wind at this time and through the spray it could be seen that the Pacific Ocean was perfectly calm beyond the zone of disturbance. Giant waves lashed the harbor all night, then subsided.

The annual meeting of the Scarlet Chapter was held recently, when the officers for the coming year were chosen. Rt. Wor. Bro. George Porter was installing officer, and he was assisted by Wor. Bro. R. Richie of District No. 1. The following were duly elected:

Wor. Com., George Ranes; Dep. Com., Stanley Cumming; Chaplain, A. Brien; Scribe, William Wilson; Treasurer, J. Childerhose; Marshal, H. G. Rumary; 1st Lecturer, J. Wilson; 2nd Lecturer, George Foster; 1st Conductor, C. H. Luffman; 2nd Conductor, R. Gleed; Herald, T. Brien; Sentinel, H. Tounsend.

The companions then received a few addresses from the newly-elected officers; after which light refreshments were served by the entertainment committee.

LIGHT BURNS ON AT LONELY POST

Keeper Marooned Three Days at Lighthouse in Atlantic By Storms.

RATIONS LOW.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 21 — Those who go down to the sea in ships are not the only ones who write thrilling episodes into the ocean's great epic of heroism, self sacrifice and stark devotion to duty.

A thrilling chapter of the great saga was revealed last night when it became known that J. B. Small, assistant keeper of the Deer Island lighthouse, has maintained a lone vigil on his storm lashed outpost in the north Atlantic for three days and nights without sleep and on shortened rations. The howling northeaster which sweeping down from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, has flayed the entire coast for the past 72 years, prevented the other keeper, who went ashore for provisions before the storm from returning to "spell" him on watch.

SIR OSWALD MOSLEY PLANNING NEW PARTY IN BRITISH POLITICS

Reports State at Least 15 Members of Present Labor Cabinet to Join Move.

MAKE RADICAL CHANGES.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23. — (C. P. Cable).—"Over and over again at elections since the war, people in all parts of the country have asked Parliament for effort and energy, but every time the will of the country has been frustrated by the talking of 'shop' at Westminster" reclared Sir Oswald Mosley, brilliant young Socialist, in a speech at Portsmouth last night.

His speech was the fore-runner of the formal announcement expected within a day or so, of the establishment of a new party in British politics; a party headed by Sir Oswald with the aim of bringing about a drastic treatment of the unemployment problem.

Dissatisfied With Action

Sir Oswald, nicknamed by his opponents as "Manifesto Mosley" has been hammering away at the Labor Government ever since he left Premier Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet dissatisfied with the failure of the ministry to accept his proposals for the domestic problems that beset the Government.

Following frequent broadsides, Sir Oswald is now apparently ready for a clean break with the Labor Party, and when he goes he will not go alone. Reports, that do not meet with any denial from Sir Oswald, are that upwards of 15 of the present Labor members of parliament will follow him and start a nation-wide campaign.

Sir Oswald's policies were recently formulated in a manifesto signed by a number of other M. P.'s, calling for establishment of a five-man cabinet with power to take radical measures.

There was even more need for rationalization of Parliament than for the rationalization of industry which is already under way, he said last night. He expressed doubt whether any industry in the country was so out of date as Parliament.

Outcome Uncertain

"The practical effect of a clean break by Sir Oswald cannot be measured. The energetic, 34-year-old son-in-law of the late Lord Curzon so far has not been taken too seriously by the die-hard Conservatives. But if he is going to continue, more energetically than before, and from outside the party, thrusting his proposals before the people, the Labor Government is bound to feel the effects.

And in the background, looms the question of the attitude of Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, who holds much the same ideas in regard to solving the unemployment problem, as does Sir Oswald.

Sir Oswald was first elected to the House of Commons as Conservative member for Harrow, Middlesex, in 1918, when he was 22 years of age. In 1922, he was elected as an Independent, and in 1924 as a Laborite. He entered the Macdonald Ministry of 1929 as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and resigned last year He receives great help from his wife, the former Lady Cynthia Curzon, who is also a Labor member of Parliament.

Deny Capone Gunmen Seeking Perkins Bull

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 23 (C.P.).—The condition of W. Perkins Bull, K.C., of Toronto and London, England, who was rushed to the local hospital last week suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident at Coldwater, Mich., was reported as "fair" by hospital authorities early to-day.

Mystery still surrounds Mr. Bull's hurried trip from Chicago to Toronto last week.

Reports published Saturday to the effect that "three Capone gunmen" were in Toronto with the avowed intention of getting Mr. Bull were denied last night by Bartle Bull, son of the barrister, and local police, who were reported to be guarding the injured lawyer.

Norwood Y.W.A. Plans St. Patrick's Social

Mrs. Mary Fennel and Mrs. Thomas Clarke Joint Hostesses at Meeting.

NORWOOD, Feb. 23. (Examiner Correspondence.)—Mrs. Mary Fennel and Mrs. Thomas Clarke were hostesses to the members of the Y.W.A. meeting on Wednesday evening.

Miss Lila Kirke convenor of her group very capably led the opening of the meeting which was followed by prayer by Mrs. Fennel. Miss Georgina Beavis gave the topic the second chapter from the study book on Japan.

Miss Margaret Burgess tendered a delightful solo, "Teach Me to Pray," and Mrs. Fennel gave her report of the Presbyterial held in Trinity Church Peterborough, in January, which was most interesting and instructive, many ideas being derived from the suggestions which Mrs. Fennel brought from the conference.

Miss Pauline Weir presided for the business session in the absence of Mrs. Packenham. The cent bags were distributed and birthday money was received from those having birthdays in January and February. Plans for the St. Patrick tea to be held on March 14, in the Sunday School Hall was discussed.

Miss Verna Scott convenor of the March group will have charge of the next meeting on March 11. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Fennell for opening their home for the meeting.

FAVORABLE REPORTS NORWOOD CHURCH

Chairman of Board of Stewarts Report Expenditure of $4,000 For Local Purposes.

NORWOOD, Feb. 23. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual meeting of the Norwood United Church was held on Wednesday evening with the Rev. R. F. Stillman presiding and reports were received from all departments of the church showing a most successful year's work.

E. C. Squire, clerk of the session reported a membership of 339 showing a net increase of 6. With South Dummer and Cottesloe added the membership of the charge is 647.

The chairman of the Board of Stewards, B. W. Aquire, reported an expenditure of approximately $4,000 for local purposes.

The election of stewards and members of the session resulted in the following: Messrs. Hugh Robb, Harry Wildman, Fred Gardner and Frank Jenkins were elected elders for the next four years; and the Stewards include, Messrs. A. G. McDermott, Joseph Humphries, Charles C. Brown, Joseph Gardner and W. H. Buck.

Miss Laura Metcalfe reported a membership of sixteen in the Mission Band and $78 raised during the year. Mrs. A. G. McDermott is the superintendent, Miss Georgina Beavis reported a membership of 23 in the Y.W.A. and $200 raised. Mrs. R. F. Packenham is president. The Young People's League raised $95 for Missions besides $35 for local expenses. Miss Grace Dayman is president of this organization. The Women's Association with Mrs. B. W. Squire president, raised $289 and the choir had a successful year closing with a surplus of $65.

Mrs. William Spence gave the report of the Women's Missionary Society raising $450. Mrs. R. F. Stillman is president of this organization.

The total amount raised by the three congregations for all purposes was $8,389. Considerable improvements to the church buildings was done, having the chimneys rebuilt and the tower re pointed, spending in all $1107.

TANLAC BUILT HIM RIGHT UP

"Greatest Restorative Tonic," He Says.

Ill for a year with Stomach Trouble, Mr. Ernest Lacasse, 455 St. Jean St., Quebec, became so pale and thin that he was simply wasting away. Anything he ate, distressed him, because his stomach was in such bad shape that he could not digest the simplest food.

"Finally," he writes, "I decided to try TANLAC and three bottles made a new man of me. TANLAC restored my appetite, stopped the indigestion and put the colour of health in my cheeks. I heartily recommend TANLAC as the greatest restorative tonic I have ever known."

And this is just what TANLAC is!

Over 100,000 people have endorsed TANLAC by letter—over 55 million bottles have been sold.

New C.P. Liner Sets Record On Pacific

(By Percy Whiteing, C.P. Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, Japan, Feb. 12 (by mail). —The new Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, speed queen of the Pacific, has established so far as mercantile vessels are concerned, the time record between Kobe and Yokohama. Arriving at Yokohama on the afternoon of February 11, she completed the trip in fifteen hours and fifty-four minutes. The trip is ordinarily scheduled as a nineteen hour run.

The liner's average speed was 21.44 knots, and it was stated that her engines were not unduly driven.

Delayed between Shanghai and Kobe by a terrific snowstorm, the Empress was speeded up somewhat in order that she might not be delayed in leaving Yokohama on her run to Vancouver.

The Kobe-Yokohama run is considered the blue ribbon run for ship's speed, so far as Japan is concerned.

asm about Canada and her remarkable record of industrial expansion, but the most reserved commentator cannot but admit that her advance to the status of the sixth industrial nation in the world is a feat to be proud of.

"It is true she is feeling the burden of trade depression in common with the rest of the world but I make bold to state that she is bearing that burden more easily and with a greater prospect of early relief than any other country.

Plans Tour

"One of my first acts when I arrive will be to travel through the Dominion to gain first-hand knowledge of the development of the country in all its phases, and everywhere I go I would like to carry a message of imperial unity and goodwill.

"It is a source of great satisfaction to my wife and myself that her French nationality should have occasioned such gratification in the ranks of the French community in Canada. She is looking forward as much as I am to our term of office among people whom we already recard as close friends.

"I firmly believe" the Earl continued, "that Canada is destined to become one of the greatest countries in the world and many of us deare called upon to assist in her development must regard it as a privilege to devote whatever power of head or of heart we may possess to do honorable task.

"I, at any rate, pledge myself to the service of my new country and to the formidable duty of proving a worthy successor to Willingdon. No man can do more than that."

The Earl since his appointment was announced on Feb 8, has been active in settling up the affairs of his large estates in Sussex, and Kilkenny, Ireland, for the period that he will be in the Dominion.

The Countess of Bessborcugh, the former Roberte de Neuflize, is expected to make a brief farewell visit to her native Paris before sailing with the Earl for Canada.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM ALBERT WRIGHT.

The death of William Albert Wright occurred in Timmins, Ontario, on Sunday morning, after a short illness. The deceased was the eldest son of the late Thomas Wright and Mrs. Robert Armstrong, of Peterborough He leaves to mourn his loss his mother, a stepfather, two sisters, Marjorie at home and Mrs. Forsythe of Bridgenorth, and two brothers, Keith and Robert, at home.

The remains will arrive in Peterborough Tuesday noon, and the funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at 2.15 from the family residence, 519 Bolivar Street, to Trinity United Church at 3 p.m. Rev. David Wren will officiate, and interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

REBA HESLIP

The death occurred in Flint Michigan, on Saturday of Reba Heslip after only a short illness. Miss Heaslip was born in Peterborough, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Heaslip, on July 2, 1915. The deceased has lived in Flint for the past three years and is survived by her parents, four brothers and three sisters.

The funeral was held from the residence of her grandfather, W. J. Downer, 565 George street, at 2.30 this afternoon. The service was taken by her uncle, Rev. Marshall Heslip of Penetang, Ontario, assisted by Rev. D. McKee. Interment was made in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. BESSIE BELICK

Mrs. Bessie Belick passed away at 1.20 this morning, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Davis, 392 Aylmer street. The deceased was born in Poland some 75 years ago and came to Peterborough in 1921. Her husband predeceased her about 26 years ago. Mrs. Belick had suffered from heart trouble for some time, and her death came as a result of an attack. Her passing is mourned by all the Jewish populace of the city, as she was beloved of everyone with whom she associated. The sole survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Frank Davis of this city, and Mrs. M. Broadman of Brooklyn, N.Y.

The funeral service was held at 392 Aylmer street at 11 o'clock this morning, with Rabbi A. Fine, officiating. The remains were taken to Toronto on the noon train for interment in the Jewish Cemetery.

Department Called To Two Small Fires

The Fire Department was called out to a fire at 12.38 Sunday morning for a fire in the building on 434½ to 440½ George street, owned by C. M. Birsdall. The fire started in the rear of the part rented by V. Niccoli, and its origin is undecided as yet. The flames spread up through the partition, through the roof and up to the attic. The damages have not been computed completely, although they are considerable.

Another alarm was sent in for a fire in D. Bowle's apartment in the building at 414½ George street, at 9.06 Sunday evening. The fire started in a clothes closet, and the whole building was soon filled with smoke which issued from the windows. The damages resulting were not considerable.

Shelter Is Set Afire 15 Children Flee

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 23.—(C.P.)—Five distinct fires of incendiary origin in different parts of the building caused 15 small children to flee from their beds in the Children's Aid Society shelter on Charles street early to-day.

Detectives of two divisions and inspectors of the Provincial Fire Department are conducting a thorough investigation as to the cause of the fire. The staff consisting of the superintendent and five assistants, had been in the dining room but a few moments when the alarm was raised by a small child who came running down the stairs.

Rushing upstairs the staff found the flames roaring through a linen closet in the centre of the building, while another closet off the front room was also a mass of flames. Damage is estimated at $1,500.

CANADIAN MINERAL RECORDS.

New records were established in the output and value of gold, petroleum, and natural gas during 1930, and more copper, lead and zinc were produced during the same period than in any previous year in the mining industry of Canada, according to the latest official estimate. Gold production in 1930 passed the two million ounce mark for the first time, natural gas set up a new high record of 29,285,600 thousand cubic feet, and crude petroleum reached a production of 1,500,000 barrels.

REV. E. S. BISHOP AT ST. PAUL'S

Representatives of Lord's Day Alliance Addresses Congregation on Sunday.

GIVES SPLENDID SERMON.

In the absence of Rev. Mr. Allan from the city, the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was occupied on Sunday by a representative of the Lord's Day Alliance — Rev. E. S. Bishop, B.A., of Toronto. The Alliance has been instituted as a safeguard of the Sabbath privileges accorded to Canadians—the day of rest from all labor, as far as possible—through the working of the Lord's Day Act. Many improvements have bee naccomplished by way of the good offices of this association, and it is deserving of public recognition and support.

With these thoughts uppermost in the minds of his congregation yesterday morning, Mr. Bishop took the text, "Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath." These well-known words, he said summed up the spirit of the Lord's Day as a day for cessation of all manual labor and allowing us to attend God's House for worship. Jesus instituted this day as a break in the week for man, to build up his spiritual and physical strength, to prepare him for another week of toil, to have our spiritual interests raised to a level above the weekday routine. This relation to God should be carried into every day, and the strength we derived by a contact with God, in our business life, could not be gainsaid. There comes to us inspiration and the personal touch when we take Him with us day by day, and not alone on Sunday. There are laws protecting man against breaking of the day, and many people observe the sanctity of the Sabbath meticulously; but how many, alas, are lax in the observance of the day as a rest period. Temptations are on every hand—and one of these, said the speaker, is to be found in agricultural life, more especially in the West, a temptation to do chores or work in the busy season, which never do much towards the wellbeing of the farmers. In this connection Mr. Bishop told of instances where farmers might have been helped by a little labor on Sunday, but the spirit of loyalty to the Lord's Day forbade action—they said they could gain nothing by breaking the Sabbath day.

In British Columbia, continued the speaker, numerous industries had been in the habit of carrying on operations on all seven days of the week, until now, through the offices of the Alliance, the day of rest is generally recognized, and more work and better conditions now prevail. Leaders of industrial and municipal life are guiding public opinion; and their consideration of the men and women gives that respect for the Sabbath, and a wholesome effect is shown, especially among the younger generation. Our influence, collectively and individually, will have a stabilizing effect on others. Christianized opinion shows why the Lord's Day, a gift from God, should be observed and jealously safeguarded and appreciated.

The Alliance, concluded Mr. Bishop, watches for the people, that there shall be no unnecessary encroachment on our day of rest—the day in seven. A few commendations on the work and wishing God-speed to its activities, were cited by the speaker, as the concluding words.

The Love of the Father.

The evening theme dealt with God's love for His children, as represented in the familiar parable of the prodigal son. It is an old story, began Mr. Bishop, but there is a fascinaiton which makes it new each time it is recited. It is supposed to be the greatest masterpiece of the parables told by Christ. Picture the boy, he said, leaving his home, asking for his rightful inheritance; wayward and headstrong, with the lower instincts urging him to desert his home for the bright lights of the far country. There is a look of pity and pathos on his father's face; his eyes fill with tears, his heart is heavy and sad; he tries to keep the boy from his rash act, but finally bids him farewell; and after watching the wanderer setting out on the road until he is out of sight, the bent figure of the father turns wearily toward his home. There is now an aching void within the dwelling; he yearns for his return day after day, and lives in the hope of his coming. At last, a day dawns, when, watching the long road, as was his daily custom, the father sees his son returning—but it is a different boy; he is dishevelled and in rags, his money is spent on riotous living, and he is a sadder but wiser son. He has tasted the dregs of bitterness, has learned his lesson, and returns to find his father's forgiving arms around him and the welcome kiss on his face. It is a glad day for the father and son—so much like our Heavenly Father's welcome to His lost sheep who return to the fold.

Conditions Similar To-day.

This is just a picture of what is happening every day among our own young people, said Mr. Bishop, who in his travels sees and hears much of the lives of the younger generation. They hear the call—their natures take on advanced years, and they move on, irrespective of the advice of parents. They perchance make good—or they may live to rue the step, and prodigal-like, return to the home they left. Possibly, said the speaker, during the 400 years of silence, Jesus may have met with just such examples which called forth the parable cited.

The development of the roving spirit may come on quickly, giving youth no cause for thought of the morrow; they expect all will be well. They feel they must find a place for their aspirations when they step out on the great adventure. The choice of a path is made, very often, without the guidance or advice of their parents; later they choose a life partner, their hearts alone guide in this step. They seek no advice from their parents, of experience; they take the way of their own impulses. The sad part is that many receive a rude awakening on looking back to what might have been an ideal condition had they taken wise counsel. The home should be the guiding place for every step the son and daughter may take when setting out on life's road. "The duty of a father is to steer his son," said Mr. Bishop. And it would be well if our young people would first of all seek the guidance of the Heavenly Father in all things, and avoid the pitfalls in later life. The story of the prodigal mother is also enacted from time to time, an example which often leads to misery and disappointment where there are young people in the home.

Not a Tragedy.

Summing up his remarks, Mr. Bishop said, though tragic aspects surround the parable, it is not a tragedy. The wanderer returned, the father rejoiced, the son was reinstated in the home, and forgiveness was his reward. Like our Father in heaven, this story brings home the thought to remind us that God is always anxious that we should be with Him in His love and mercy.

The choir, under Martin B. Chenhall, rendered the usual pleasing music, with a solo and anthem in the morning and an anthem and male voice number in the evening. In addition, Mr. Chenhall gave an enjoyable organ recital fifteen minutes prior to the evening service.

A special offering was also taken up for the funds of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Paterson, Campbell Appeal Before Court

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 23 (C.P.).—As in the appeals of W. J. Smart and Maurice E. Young, the argument was advanced on behalf of D. S. Paterson and Austin R. Campbell that there was no evidence to indicate that the appealing brokers had any knowledge of entries or had even seen entries in the papers or books of the D. S. Paterson brokerage house.

This contention was made by D. L. McCarthy, K.C., appearing for Campbell, at the continuation of the hearing of their appeal from sentences of three years and two and a half years respectively on two charges of conspiracy. Paterson and Campbell were convicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud and conspiracy to affect the market price of stocks during the Fall Assizes and were handed out the above sentences by Mr. Justice Jeffrey, presiding Judge.

Bull Almost Kills Brooklyn Matador

The Brooklyn artist-matador was saved from possible death in the arena here yesterday by Marcial Lalanda, Spanish bull fighter and Franklin's rival for the bi-lingual cheers of a holiday crowd.

Franklin killed four bulls. The fifth, the black one, gored him when he slipped on soft sand. Franklin struggled to his feet to renew the combat, but Lalanda, seeing Franklin's leg wasb leeding, rushed to the rescue.

Public School Finals Scheduled for Tuesday

The final game of the Public School League playoffs will take place tomorrow night at the Brock Street Rink from five to six. The teams, King George and King Edward, battled to a 2-all draw in the first game last Wednesday, so they will have an even start in to-morrow's contest. The boys are fighting for the championship of the league and for the cup which is at present held by King George, last year's winners.

The two teams finished the schedule on even terms, and their play all Winter has shown them to be very evenly matched. If the ice is fast, the final game should prove exciting.

RUGBY LEAGUE DRAW.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (C.P. Cable). — The draw for the third round of the Rugby League Cup competition made to-day produced the following matches:

Wigan Highfield vs. Warrington.
Salford vs. York.
Broughton Rangers vs. St. Helen's.
Halifax vs. Oldham.

First mentioned teams play at home. Games will take place on March 3.

Blacksmith 'Cupid' Fears for Anvil

LONDON, Feb. 23 (A.P.)—Richard Rennison, the marriage-making blacksmith of Grena Green, Dumfries, Scotland, made his first visit to London over the week-end and was so afraid that someone would steal his anvil-altar that he brought it along with him.

On his first sightseeing trip he left the anvil at his hotel but he was so nervous for its safety that thereafter he took it with him wherever he went. The Mirror said that although the anvil weighed 240 pounds he was able to carry it to and from his taxi and up and down subway escalators without distress.

He was greatly impressed with London. "But Gretna Green is best," he said; "there is more romance there than in all of London." He has married more than nine hundred couples.

TROUBLE BREWS FOR PRIMARIES

Army of 70,000 to Keep Order During Election of Mayor and Aldermen.

Two Sluggings, Kidnappings.

CHICAGO, Ill., February 23 (C. P.). — An army of approximately 70,000 to-day made plans to maintain order in to-morrow's mayoralty and aldermanic primaries, with reports already before them of pre-election violence.

The reports came from the Eighth and Thirtieth Wards, and told of an attempt on the life of Theodore Clifford, a candidate for alderman, of two sluggings and two kidnappings. Clifford reported to police that two shots had been fired at him from another automobile as he rode along in his own car last night. He was slightly hurt by flying glass broken when a bullet shattered the windshield on his machine.

Bernard Sheehan, 21, and John C. Grady, 30, complained they had been seized and beaten by hoodlums when they handed out campaign literature asking the selection of John O'Shay over John S. Clark. Simultaneously O'Shay headquarters reported that two unnamed men had been kidnapped in an automobile and attacked by their abductors before they were freed on the outskirts of the city.

45,000 Poll Watchers.

Credentials were issued to 45,000 poll watchers by Judge Edmund K. Harecki, supervisor of the election, and a force of 15,500 judges and clerks of election will be augmented by 5,000 policemen and a special city and county detail of several thousand men.

As Primary Day approached there was speculation about Alphonse Capone, the gang leader. Rumor had it that he was in Chicago. His attorneys said that he "probably" was, but just where could not be learned. Police said if he had come back from his winter sojourn at Miami, Fla., they did not think he had returned for to-morrow's primaries, but rather to appear in Federal Court next Wednesday.

Capone's appearance was ordered in connection with agitation for contempt of court, issued when he failed to come in a year ago for questioning about his income tax. There was another rumor that Capone would be indicted for income tax fraud, but George Q. Johnson, United States District Attorney, declined to comment.

ARMY CELEBRATES 13TH ANNIVERSARY

Soviet Red Army Celebrates With Parades and Speeches.

MOSCOW Feb. 23. (C.P.) The Red Army to-day celebrated its thirteenth anniversary with parades, speeches and other enthusiastic evidences that it was ready to defend Russia against any invasion.

The Commissar of war, Vofroshilof, issued an order of the day putting the army on its mettle because, he said, the country was being continually threatened by "capitalistic war."

Russia stands for peace, he said, but this did not mean that the country would permit any invasion of its rights.

"Our policy" he said, "is and will be peace. We will adopt all measures to preserve peace for our workers and peasants. We do not want to annex the territory of other countries but we will not permit another country under any conditions to trespass our frontiers."

According to government figures the Red Army numbers 562,000, which officials declare is the smallest in proportion to total population in all of Europe.

Officers Installed Knights Of Pythias

The installation of officers in the knights of Pythias took place Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. There was a large attendance of members and special guests included A. Coulter, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals, and W. Ramsay, Past Grand Chancellor.

After the ordinary routine of Lodge work, the installation ceremonies were carried out by Grand Lodge officers: A. Coulter, W. Ramsay, G. Gimblett, Sr., W. Rose, Grand Prelate, K. Sloan, Master of Arms.

The following officers were installed: Chancellor, A. Robinson; Keeper of Records and Seals, G. Gimblett, Jr.; Master of Exchequor, Art Blade; Master of Finance, R. Carr; Prelate, A. Constable; Master of Works, G. Gimblett, Sr.; Master of Arms, S. Finney; Inner Guard, B. Reid; Outer Guard, C. Sanders.

Following the official ceremonies, a banquet was given by the Refreshment Committee, T. Baxter and R. Cleghorn, to whom much credit is due for the excellence of the service and food.

An orchestra consisted of F. Clarke, banjo and solo; T. Curvin, ukelele; R. Roberts, saxaphone; Red Moncrief, piano. A very fine and varied program was presented by the orchestra, who proved popular to the members of the lodge.

Wrecked Rum Runner Is Towed Off Rocks

NEW LONDON, Conn., February 23 (C.P.). — Badly battered and with most of her liquor cargo under water in her holds, the liquor supply vessel Algie of Shelburne, N.S., which went aground last week on the rocks off Montauk Point, L.I., was moved to-day alongside a wharf of the Merritt, Chapman & Scott Corporation for temporary repairs.

The craft was lifted from the rocks last night by the corporation's derrick Century, and towed here by a wrecking steamer, under the escort of coastguard patrol boats. The Algie's hatch covers and steering gear were gone, while planks in her hull were stove in as a result of the pounding she received while on the rocks.

Following repairs, the Algie and her cargo will be taken to New York.

SECOND PLOT ON KING'S LIFE.

VIENNA, FEB. 23.—(C.P.)—Police to-day announced discovery of another plot against the life of King Zog of Albania, who missed assassination last Friday when gunmen fired at him near the Vienna opera house. The new plot was laid to Albanian political opponents of the king who, it was said, planned to attack him in Votive park, where he often walks.

CITY POLICE REPORT DECREASE IN CRIME

Fire Destroys Bancroft Continuation School

VILLAGE SCHOOL DAMAGE $20,000 IN MORNING FIRE

Loss is Estimated at $20,000 Both Public and Continuation Schools Lost.

200 PUPILS ATTENDED.

Work Will Be Started Immediately on the Construction of a New Building.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 24 (C.P.)—Fire breaking out in the basement of the Public and Continuation School in Bancroft to-day totally destroyed the building and contents. The loss is estimated at $20,000, there being $8,000 insurance. Edwin Whitefoot, care taker of the school, discovered the fire shortly before the pupils arrived for their day's work and although the brigade and helpers arrived quickly, the blaze had gained considerable headway.

Work will be started immediately to construct a modern and up-to-date high and public school. In the meantime the children, there being 200 pupils in the school, will be accommodated in the Orange Hall, Community Hall and basement of the United Church.

FRANCE CANNOT CUT WAR BUDGET

Lafont Claims Country Already Reduced Military Forces By Half.

NOW EQUALS GERMANY.

PARIS, Feb. 24. (C. P. Cable via Havas)—Bouillou Lafont, war budget reporter of the Chamber fo Deputies, to-day declared external uncertainties prevent any reduction in the military and naval budget, which however, will show no increase over that of 1930.

France has already reduced her active military forces by half and her expenditures for defence purposes by 16 percent, he said, while the United States increased her expenditures by 86 percent and Japan increased hers by 48 percent.

The active troops trained in France now equal those of Germany, he said.

"Our expenditures of materials are insufficient" he said. "We cannot disarm further as long as international powers will not assure security of which our military power is actually the best guarantee" he concluded.

BILL MAY PASS ON IMMIGRATION

Rumor U. S. Administration Now Prepared to Support Bill Cutting Quota to 10 Per Cent.

LITTLE EFFECT ON CANADA.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 24 (By Ken Clark, C.P. Staff Correspondent)—Congress may squeeze through legislation designed to limit immigration to the United States to ten per cent of that in 1929 after all. It is learned Senator David A. Reed of the Senate Immigration Committee has been empowered to report the Jenkins Bill to the Senate immediately upon its reception from the House. In the House the bill has preferred status and will probably be passed late this week.

Contrary to what had been previously believed it is now asserted the administration is prepared to give its support to the Jenkins measure which reduces immigration from countries already upon a quota to ten per cent. of their former allotment and rates immigration from non-quota countries at ten per cent of the influx in 1929.

Inasmuch as immigration from Canada has been declining for several years, and the recent action by United States Consuls in observing the public charges clause of the Immigration Act has had the result that during January only 406 visas were issued to would-be immigrants from Canada, the affect of the passage of the Jenkins Bill upon Canadians would not be serious.

Passage of the measure, however, would establish the precedent of placing what amounts to a quota upon immigration from countries of this continent.

Britain and France Reach Naval Accord

PARIS, February 24 (C.P.).—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and Charles Dumont, Minister of the Navy, announced to-day that Great Britain and France had reached a naval accord in principle, conditional upon ratification and participation by Italy.

They added that the agreement would be held secret until its approval by Italy.

BOARD OF WORKS SETS ESTIMATES FOR COMING YEAR

$80,600 is Figure Set By Board to Spend During 1931.

$4,900 BELOW 1930.

Road Maintenance Will Cost $10,000; Gravel $10,000 and $9,000 For Sewage Plant.

With the fixed purpose of keeping the 1931 tax rate down, the members of the Board of Works last night sharpened their pencils on that committee's appropriations for the year.

The Committee succeeded in slashing the estimate by $2,500 from last year's appropriation which was itself a decrease of $4,900 from the 1929 appropriation. It was estimated that $80,600 would see the Board of Works through the year and that amount will be forwarded to the Council for final passing on Monday night.

Some of the biggest items in the Board's requirements were: $10 000 for gravel, $5,000 for streets and bridges; $10,000 for road maintenance which includes clearing, repairs and resurfacing; $9,500 for sewage disposal maintenance and operation; $11,000 for dust laying which includes oiling. An addition over last year was an appropriation of $800 to be expended in painting traffic signals on the streets. Including in this amount $250 for the purchase of paint spraying machine.

Woman Smells Smoke Prevents Serious Fire

STRATFORD, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP)—Had it not been for the fact that Mrs. A. Murray of the Mack Apartments, Wellington street as awakened by the smell of smoke, at an early hour this morning another disastrous blaze might have taken place in Stratford. Investigating the origin of the smoke, Mrs. Murray found that some clothing which was being dried in front of an electric heater had ignited and it was starting to burn.

One of Mrs. Murray's children was sent immediately to call the Fire Department. An alarm was turned in an within a few minutes the department was on hand and the blaze extinguished with chemicals.

CITY REQUIRES LARGER FORCE OF CONSTABLES

Complete Confidence is Expressed by Judge Huycke in Work of Chief Newhall.

RECALL MATTHEWS CASE.

Chief Worked for Days in Solving Store Robberies, Chairman States.

Expressing his complete confidence in the reliability of the local Police Force, His Honor Judge Huycke yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Police Commission praised without stint the work of Chief Constable Newhall in securing the proof of ex-Constable Leonard Matthews' thefts and the manner in which the Chief had handled the whole affair. Further, Judge Huycke stated his firm opinion that Peterborough required a larger Police Force.

He eclare that the Matthew's disclosures should not be allowed to reflect any discredit upon the other member's of the force in the public's mind. "I have absolute confidence in the reliability of the Police Force," said His Honor.

Confidence In Force

Mayor Denne moved a motion, which carried unanimously, voting the Commission's confidence in the members of the Force.

"If the Police Force is not what it should be it is not the fault of the Police Commission but the fault of the citizens themselves" said His Honor in drawing attention to the inadequate strength of the local Force and its inability to properly police the city.

Recalling details of the Matthews' affair, he said that several months ago the Chief had told him of the many thefts and stated his suspicions of Matthews. "We found ourselves in very great difficulty in dealing with the affair. We could not detect the true facts of the case if it became public in any way."

It was first suggested that a private detective be secured to handle the case and track Matthews, and the Judge said, but the difficulty here was to secure a requisition for expenses of such proceedure without making the purpose of such funds public. "If it had not been for the faithful and superhuman efforts of Chief Newhall the trouble would not have been located and so successfully brought to a conclusion. The work of the Chief is worthy of the highest praise from the citizens. For weeks he had only a few hours of sleep as he worked night after night in trailing Matthews".

Recently Judge Huycke stated that he had visited St. Catharines, and while there he had especially studied police matters. He found that St. Catharines which was similar in almost every respect to Peterborough and only a few thousand larger had a Police Force of 25 men. "I believe that in smaller cities it is customary to have a police constable for every thousand inhabitants".

FIFTEEN YEAR OLD BOY FACES CHARGE OF ROBBERY IN COBOURG

Three Youths Are Remanded For One Week When They Appear in Court.

YOUNGEST THE Leader.

(By Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Feb. 24.—Unique in the criminal records of this district is Harold Blanchard, one of three young men who are charged with having held up the staff of the local branch of the Dominion Bank, Tuesday, February 17, and having stolen under threat of arms the sum of $1,965.

This boy is only fifteen years old, and because of his youth around which the law extends its protective arm, he appeared this morning in the juvenile court before Magistrate William Floyd, while his two companions were subsequently remanded for a week at an open session of the police court.

Alleged to Be Leader

Blanchard is alleged to have been the leader in the bandit raid which followed the familiar and sometimes successful routine of surprising and threatening the bank staff with the flourish of a revolver, and backing them up into the vault. The tills were then swept bare of the day's cash, all of which was recovered

Alleged Dope Peddler is Under Arrest; Opium Was Being Sold in Liquid Form

Alleged to be a dope peddler with an extensive trade in the city, Wing Lee, a local Chinese, was arrested this morning by detectives. Police say that Wing cloaked his nefarious trade beneath a thriving business in Oriental groceries to local Chinese.

It is alleged that his dope customers included white men as well as Celestials, and police admit that it was his business with whites that first attracted suspicion.

Wing conducted his business at the Star Laundry on Hunter Street, and for weeks the place has been under watch. About 11.30 to-day Detectives William Meagher and William Piercy, with Federal Officer Jennings raided Wing's quarters and uncovered a large quantity of opium. Police say that Wing did not sell the opium in its usual form, but dispensed it as a liquid, having it adulterated in alcohol.

LINDSAY DOCTOR FREED OF BLAME

Magistrate Does Not Find Sufficient Evidence to Commit For Manslaughter.

CHARGE DISMISSED.

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 24.—Magistrate Willis, in Whitby Police Court this afternoon, found there was not sufficient evidence to committ Dr. J. H. Gleason of Lindsay for trial on a charge of manslaughter arising out of an automobile accident on the Whitby-Lindsay highway in September last, in which Dr. Gleasons's mother was killed, and accordingly the charge was dismissed. In giving a decision, Magistrate Willis said:

"It is not my duty, as Magistrate to try this case, and find whether the accused is guilty or not guilty, but merely to find if there is sufficient evidence to put the accused on trial before a higher court. I find that there is no evidence of speeding, nor reckless driving, nor any evidence of insobriety. For that reason, I find that the Crown has failed to make out a prima facie case against the accused on the evidence adduced, and I therefore dismiss the charge."

Magistrate Willis made mention of evidence which showed that a truck, into which Dr. Gleasons car ran in the accident, was showing a small white light, the red glass on the light having been broken. It was natural for a driver overtaking another car, he said, to be warned by a red light which was missing in this case, and this, he felt, was an added feature in relieving Dr. Gleason of responsibility for the fatal accident.

NAMED ADMINISTRATOR

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 23. (CP)—Monsignor A. P. Mahoney rector of St. Peter's Seminary, and for nearly a year Vicar-General of the diocese of London was named administrator of the diocese, at a special meeting of the bishop's chapter held this afternoon. Mons. Mahoney will act as administrator until the appointment of a successor of Bishop Fallon, by the Holy See at Rome.

Husband, Wife Die Within 18 Hours

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 24.—Louis Steiss, age 82 years, Heidelberg, eight miles northwest of here, and his wife, age 75 years, passed away within 18 hours of each other. Mr. Steiss died at one o'clock yesterday afternoon while his wife died at seven o'clock this morning. Death was due to old age in both cases.

TWO BOMBS ROCK BAKERY, FACTORY

Labor Trouble Blamed For Attack on International Harvester Works.

DAMAGE IS $2,200.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 24. — Two black powder bombs were set off early to-day, doing a total damage of $2,200.

One shattered practically every window in the five storey twine mill of the giant International Harvester Company works on the West Side. The other wrecked the front of a small bakery on the South Side belonging to Joseph Wukins.

While labor trouble is believed responsible by investigators for the International bombing, the bakery was believed damaged because Wukins has been selling a pound loaf of bread for seven cents while his competitors were charging ten.

Sarnia Bars Streets; First Step To Tunnel

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 24 (C.P.).—Permission to close Front, Christina and Victoria Streets from Davis to Cromwell Streets and Davis Street from Front to Christina Street during the period of construction of an entrance to the projected vehicular tunnel between Sarnia and Port Huron was granted to the tube sponsors by the council last evening.

This is the first official step taken toward the construction of a tunnel under the St. Clair River for vehicular traffic.

SCOTLAND YARD IS BAFFLED OVER YOUTH'S DEATH

"Mystery of Room 23" Stirs Picturesque University Town of Cambridge.

CRACK MEN ON CASE.

Trussed Student Evidently Died of Suffocation—Had No Known Enemies.

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., Feb. 2. —(A.P.)—This picturesque British University town has suddenly become the scene of one of the most baffling death mysteries that Scotland Yard has had to deal with in months.

It is the "mystery of Room 23" in Sidney-Sussex College where the trussed-up dead body of an 18 year old University graduate, Francis John Charles Ellis, was discovered yesterday.

The most searching investigation by crack men from Scotland Yard has as yet been unable to determine how this quiet, hard-working, ambitious young student with no known enemies, bad associations or striking eccentrities could have met death in his own room where there were no signs of a struggle and yet to be found bound hand and foot with a smothering band of handkerchiefs over his mouth.

Blame Suffocation.

So far only one point about the case has been definitely established, that death was due to suffocation. This was determined by the noted pathologist, Sir Bernard Spilsbury, who came here from London on an urgent summons and carried out a post mortem early to-day.

The theory that Ellis was the victim of hazing has been given up, there was no apparent motive for murder and investigators said they found it impossible that the intricate job of binding which the body revealed could have been done by Ellis himself. There was a suggestion that he might have been prompted to experiment by the activities of a society of students who have been studying "matic," but it developed to-day that he had never taken an interest in the society's doings.

Mrs. S. H. Ellis, the victim's mother, who is the widow of a well-known surgeon, hurried to Cambridge and to-day was giving every aid to the Scotland Yard men investigating the case.

GOODWILL PARTY VISIT HAVANA.

MIAMI, Fla., February 24 (C.P.). The party of Canadian business men headed by the Mayor of Hamilton, Ont., was split into two sections today. Many of the goodwill delegates left last night for Havana and will not return until Thursday. Meantime no formal functions were scheduled either for Havana or for Miami.

48 Fewer Cases Before The Court During Past Year

Crime and Lawlessness in Peterborough Are Shown to Have Suffered a Further Decrease Last Year According to Annual Report of Chief Newhall.

LIQUOR CHARGES BROUGHT BEFORE COURT IN THE LEAD BUT THESE SHOW DECREASE OF 25 OVER THE YEAR 1929

Amount Collected in Fines Totalled $4,313.45, Which Was a Decrease of $1,371.83 Over the Previous Year—529 Unfortunates Sought Night's Lodging.

Crime and lawlessness in Peterborough are shown to have suffered a further decrease last year by the annual report of the Police Department submitted yesterday by Chief Constable Samuel Newhall to the Police Commission.

This report briefly and concisely gives complete data on all work of the police during the year 1930. It shows that 48 fewer cases were dealt with in Police Court last year than in the preceding year. In 1929 the Police Court cases totalled 553, but last year they were reduced to 505.

The biggest part of the decrease is taken care of by the 25 fewer cases entailing breaches of the Liquor Control Act. Liquor cases were cut from the total of 158 in 1929 to 133. A reduction of 16 is also noted in the number of cases under the Vagrancy Act.

Liquor Charges Lead.

At that, liquor charges brought more into court than any other offence. Fifteen were charged with driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Theft brought 48 into court, an increase of six over 1929, and shopbreaking and theft caused three to face the Magistrate.

Six were charged with obtaining food and lodging by false pretences; seven with non-support; three with insanity; and 19 with fighting or common assault, and seven with committing assaults occasioning actual bodily harm. Among the minor offences are listed 17 for breach of the dog by-law, 96 for breach of the Highway Traffic Act, and 12 for breach of the Highway Traffic Act.

The other offences run the whole gamut of offences gainst law and property.

Nearly all those charged were Canadians, 404 giving Canadian as their nationality. Fifty claimed England as their native heath, 12 came from Ireland, 11 from Poland, seven from Poland, six from Italy, and five from Scotland. The others came from every quarter of the globe.

Under religion 151 claimed to belong to the Roman Catholic faith, while 142 said they were members of the United Church, and 134 stated they were Episcopalians.

Only Four Unable to Read.

It is noteworthy that of the 505 who passed before the Magistrate, all except four said they could read and write. Residents of the city made up 402 and non-residents 103

GRAPE GROWERS CARRY TROUBLES TO ONTARIO GOV'T

Niagara Peninsula Men Claim Extensive Importation From Australia Be Disastrous.

SUGGEST TWO COURSES.

Would Maintain Protective Duties and Advertise to Boost Market in Canada.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 24.—Extensive importation of grapes from Australia would be "absolutely disastrous" to growers in the Niagara Peninsula, Captain W. C. Thompson of Vineland, told the agriculture committee of the Ontario Legislature today. He expressed strong opposition to the proposed reduction in the duty on Australian grape juice and elimination of the duty in Australian wine.

Grape juice could be produced more cheaply in Australia than in Ontario and it was aided by an export bonus. If Australian wine is allowed in he said, "It cannot help but curtail the consumption of Ontario wine."

Representative of the grape growers of Ontario appeared before the committee at the first of its sittings to inquire into various branches of agriculture.

Two Courses

Two courses of action were stressed as aids to Ontario grape producers, the maintenance of protective duties and advertising and propaganda to develop markets in Canada.

With prohibitive duties on Canadian grapes imposed by the United States, Ontario growers could hope for no market outside Canada. The growers of the Niagara Peninsula, Captain Thompson asserted, could supply any possible demand for grapes in Ontario.

BRAVERY MEDALS AWARDED BY KING

Painters Helper and Three Welsh Miners Receive Edward Decoration for Gallantry.

PRIVATE INVESTITURE.

LONDON, Feb. 24. (A.P.)—A company of brave men was honored by the King at Buckingham Palace today when the season's important activities of the Royal Court were begun with the first investiture of the year.

Those attending were recipients of New Year's honors. One of them was a youth of seventeen. Nicholas Whitehead a painter's helper from Workington, who helped rescue a man who had fallen backward while painting a chimney and was hanging head downward at a height of 150 feet.

"You are a very brave young man and I am very proud to decorate you" said the King to the youth who received the Edward medal for gallantry.

Thomas Fleming who helped Whitehead in the rescue, also received the Edward decoration, as did three Welsh miners who last June rescued two men entombed in a Glamorganshire colliery.

To-day's investiture was private and lounge suits were worn, but for the one held Thursday, full dress and uniforms will be worn.

GEORGE T. CAREY NEW CONSTABLE

Brother of Provincial Constable William Carey Who Served For Years on City Force.

COMMISSION MEETS.

Selected from more than 100 applicants, George T. Carey, 281 Prince street, was appointed yesterday afternoon by the Police Commission as constable on the city force to fill the vacancy left by the discharge of Leonard Matthews.

For nearly half an hour the Commissioners carefully considered the half dozen or more applications sifted from the "undesirables" by Chief Newhall. Four husky applicants paraded before the commission and answered searching questions. The choice finally fell unanimously to George Carey.

The new constable is no stripling. He is 5 feet 11 inches in height, weighs 188 pounds and is 24 years of age. During the past eight years he has been a machinist at the DeLaval Company here.

His brother, William, served many years on the local force, rising to a detective's post and leaving in 1928 to join General Williams' Provincial Police Force. He is now stationed at Cobourg. Another brother, Harry, is a member of the local fire brigade.

Over 100 Applications

Some of the more than 100 applications came from out of the city, but the Commission was firm in the intention that a Peterborough man should get the appointment.

Carey will commence his duties on Sunday night. He will be on three months' probation before having his appointment confirmed. His salary will be $1,200.

NAVAL EXPERTS FEEL CONFIDENT SUCCESS IS NEAR

Henderson and Alexander in Final Parley With French Authorities.

MEET ITALIANS NEXT.

Discussion Arises Over Speed of New French Cruiser to be Laid Down.

PARIS, Feb. 2[illegible]—(A.P.)—The Foreign Ministers and Naval Ministers of France and Great Britain met at the Quai D'Orsay to-day to put the finishing touches upon a naval accord which it was hoped would lead to an agreement between France and Italy, rounding out the treaty signed at London a year ago.

Aristide Briand, Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Charles Dumont and Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander assembled just before noon for what was expected to be a final conference in negotiations which have proceeded here for the past fortnight between R. L. Craigie and Rene Massigli, Foreign Office experts.

The aim of the two British Ministers is to obtain France's signature to the agreement specifying a relationship of French to British naval forces and then to secure Italy's to a similar agreement.

May Continue to Rome.

If agreement is reached at to-day's meeting or even is in sight the British official party will proceed directly to Rome, not returning to London until the beginning of next week.

The British Admiralty was said to be particularly concerned that the projected French 23,000 ton armored cruiser to be laid down this year shall not exceed the speed of the battleship Rodney. The French apparently are willing to guarantee this on condition their embryo cruiser is not outclassed by Italian construction of the same category.

Le Matin emphasizes that France is entirely desirous of reaching an agreement with Great Britain and shaping her naval program accordingly, but naturally demands the certainty that the ensemble of continental fleets susceptible of being opposed to her will not surpass her own tonnage to which should be added the fleet necessary for colonial defense."

BRANDON COLLEGE TO CLOSE

BRANDON, anM., Feb. 24.—Without sufficient funds to carry on, Brandon College will be closed at the end of the present term, it was revealed here. The institution, which has ben in operation for 42 years, is affiliated with McMaster Baptist University, Hamilton, Ont. and has an enrolment of about 300.

A campaign to raise $750,000 started a year ago, was said to have fallen far short of its objective and contributors have been released from their agreements.

Officials Refuse to Deal With Clockmakers' Officials, Claiming Them Reds.

FEW RETURN TO WORK.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 24. (CP)—The backbone of the strike of 160 cloakmakers of the Jacob-Crowley Manufacturing Company is believed broken. Officially, strikers and employers still are deadlocked, but seven workers were reported to have started work yesterday while others clamored to b taken back.

Employers held the upper hand, J. H. Crowley announcing last night that the company would not negotiate further with strike officials. Workers, he said, would be taken back as positions opened up but production of the plant was being maintained.

The men and women cloakmakers walked out more than three weeks ago, and for a time strike officials threatened to call a general strike of all needle workers in the city. Employers refused to discuss the situation with these officials, claiming they were "Reds."

BUSY DAY SEEN FOR LEGISLATORS

Debate on Throne Speech to See Members From All Parties Active.

GAS TAX DEPUTATION.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 24 (C.P.).—Ontario's legislators are having a busy day to-day. In the House the debate on the Speech from the Throne is continuing with private members of all three parties holding the floor. The Agriculture Committee, which this year is undertaking a survey of agricultural conditions, is holding its second meeting, and representatives of the grape-growers of the Niagara Peninsula are here to press their claims for abolition of the permit required for the purchase of native wine and other steps to aid the wine-making and grape-growing industries.

Of no less interest is the large deputation of municipal councils, headed by Mayor Robson of Guelph, here to demand some re-adjustment of the Provincial taxation for highway purposes. A number of cities and towns are demanding a share of the gasoline tax collected by the Province.

WHERE ARE WE TO GET MONEY ASKS PREMIER

Rural Communities Seek Less Taxation, Urban Centres Ask Exemption.

HIGHWAY PROBLEMS.

Must Keep on Developing Premier Henry Tells Motor League.

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—"With regard to road development generally," said Premier Henry, speaking at the annual banquet of the Ontario Motor League last night, "I feel proud that it is still under way. While there is very serious doubt in the minds of some with regard to a progressive and aggressive program of road development during the unsettled conditions that we have been suffering from for the past 18 months, nevertheless I feel that we will not be able to change very much in our program, but largely go on—because I feel that it is the duty of the Government to keep the machinery of development more or less in motion, and be an encouragement to private interests that might be inclined to hang back because of the conditions and their doubts as to the business temperatures of the immediate future. Consequently, we will go forward with a reasonable amount of pavement and road development in 1931."

Taxation Problems

Premier Henry went back over the history of Ontario's road development of the past decade. He expressed the belief that "a great deal of that progress has been due to the spirit of this league, and its development of the idea that modern highways are an economic base upon which our general progress can be built." The speaker then proceeded to indicate that "you cannot however, make bricks without straw. I said a moment ago that there was some misgiving in the minds of some as to what was in store in the immediate future. The rural parts of Ontario are carrying on a more or less quiet campaign to be relieved of some of their responsibilities in the financing of roads—particularly with reference to the King's Highway.

"At the same time the city dwellers are also making an onslaught on us. In fact, tomorrow, if my memory serves me aright, there is a delegation coming to the Government to place before it the need of relief for the urban centres in relation to the development of roads in their immediate surburban areas. Now it must be quite apparent to every thinking citizen that you cannot build roads without money. We have no method, as a Government, of coining gold ad lib. and going on indefinitely. We can raise a certain amount of money from the various taxes. That, however, does not meet the demand; so we have to go on borrowing on the future.

Lower Taxes

"The rural man says to us: 'Don't charge us any more; you may charge a little less.' The city man says: 'We ought to have returned a proportion of the moneys collected, and we should not be asked to pay anything on suburban road development.' Now, perhaps, I may leave that thought

BOURKE DENIES MAKING APPEAL

V. C. Hero is Not Going Blind ad is Merely Interested in Proposals.

RANCHER IN B. C.

NELSON, B.C., Feb. 24 (Canadian Press Despitch). — Lieutenant-Commander Rowland Bourke, V.C., D.S.O., is not going blind, and is not asking help, as indicated in a recent despatch from Cobourg, Ont., the Victoria Cross winner said in a telephone conversation from Crescent Bay, 12 miles from here.

The Lieutenant-Commander had been in communication with the Cobourg branch of the Canadian Legion, he said, but it was in connection with a report of a Legion meeting there which was said to have declared in favor of Canadian Victoria Cross winners being provided, through Dominion or Provincial intervention, with positions in the government service.

If such a scheme should become effective, Lieut.-Commander Bourke, whose home has been in this district for twenty-nine years, believes that although he served in the British Navy he ought to rank as a Canadian, but, he said, he was not asking, nor looking for special treatment.

The idea that he was going blind, he thought, had arisen from a misunderstanding of his letter. What he intended to convey was that owing to defective eyesight he had been unable to obtain a Commission in Canada, and so went to the Old Country.

Bourke is a rancher and potato raiser at Crescent Bay.

Prisoner Applies For Committment

LINDSAY, Feb. 24.—Ned Biagi, the well known Haliburton bootlegger, with a long court record, was yesterday morning sentenced to jail for one month and fined $200 for illegally having in his possession spirits unlawfully manufactured. The liquor, which was found in a false cellar in Biagi's house by Excise Officers T. R. James, of Lindsay, and Jennings, of Peterborough, registered 100.3 proof spirits.

An amusing incident occurred at the conclusion of the court. During the delay in making out the committment papers to be signed by Police Magistarte Jordan, Biagi, who was left alone in court room, became impatient over the delay and made tracks for the jail. Shortly after his arrival Jailor Stone informed the magistrate over the phone that Biagi had arrived minus the committment papers. The magistrate instructed the jailor to receive the prisoner as the necessary papers were on their way.

HOTEL TAX BILL IS WITHDRAWN

Premier Henry Asks For Withdrawal Bill Remedy in Municipal Act.

RETURNS BY J. P.'s.

TORONTO, Feb. 24. — Withdrawal of the Toronto bill to give the city the right to impose business tax on the Royal York Hotel was the highlight of a brief session of the Legislature yesterday afternoon. The bill was introduced by Fred G. McBrien (Conservative, Brock-Toronto) to remove the exemption which railway hotels enjoy in the matter of business tax.

Premier Henry asked for the withdrawal of the bill. He pointed out that at the time the mileage tax was increased for railways a few years ago, an understanding was reached that railway hotels would be exempt from business tax. "I imagine that what is sought by this amendment is to put other hotels on an equal footing with railway hotels in the matter of business tax," said Premier Henry. "If there is any discrimination the Municipal Act provides the means of remedy. The act enables a municipality to exempt other standard hotels from business tax."

In withdrawing the bill Mr. McBrien also mentioned the provision in the Municipal Act which enables a city to exempt standard hotels.

When Premier Henry, in the absence of Minister of Health Robb, explained that the department wished to pursue investigations farther regarding the danger of new mattresses being manufactured out of the stuffings of old ones, S. C. Tweed (Waterloo North) withdrew his bill to prohibit this practice in the manufacture of mattresses.

A veiled hint of the power of the Government to take away the commissions of Justices of the Peace was contained in discussion on Attorney-General Price's bill to amend the Justices of the Peace Act. This amendment provides that Justices of the Peace shall make returns of all cases coming before them. W. E. N. Sinclair, K. C., pointed out that the amendment did not provide penalties for non-conformance with the provision.

Attorney-General Price—We prefer to try it out without penalties at first.

Hon. H. C. Nixon—Of course, the Government can withdraw the commissions from Justices of the Peace.

Attorney-General Price—Yes, we have that power.

The Lightning Rod Act amendment, which allows farmers to make and instal their own lightning rod system without license or registration passed the committee.

PROFESSOR FINCH DESCRIBES LIFE IN MODERN PARIS

Too Much Stress Has Been Laid on Tourist Attractions in the City.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM ACUTE.

Each Family in an Apartment House Allowed Two Parties a Year.

"Life in modern Paris is most interesting and enchanting. Too much stress has been laid on the tourist attraction of the city, but fortunately the real Paris is still French, it is still a city of homes," declared Professor Robert Finch of Toronto University in an address before the Women's Canadain Club, Monday afternoon in the Library Hall. Mr. Finch's cleverness and versatility was in evidence during his talk on life in Paris.

The speaker in an informal address said Paris is a city, circular in shape and cut through by a river with an island in the center. The buildings, never over 80 feet in height, are of grey stone with blue-grey slate roofs. A mist hangs over the city although it never blurrs from sight the crispy sky. It is this bright greyness which gives the city its enchantment.

Paris is built on a series of small hills and centers around the river Seine. The city's port is 60 Km. in length and 15,000,000 tons of shipping is handled annually. The harbor is not noticeable owing to the long avenues of beautiful trees which screen it in. The river is covered with various types of boats, the most interesting of which are the peniches. People travel up and down the river on these, spending their lives on them. Some peniches are fitted out as restaurants.

Two Parties a Year

Everyone lives in apartments, said Professor Finch and life begins and ends with the concierge, who is charwoman, policeman, mailman and keeper. Law requires that she keep a complete list of dwellers in the apartment house, and each occupant must have a "carte d'indentite." Each family is allowed to hold two parties a year in their apartment, and due warning is given to the other tenants. The concierge warns the inmates when a death has occurred in the house and music is forbidden for one day. The speaker went on to develop further characteristics which, good or evil, makes the concierge the dominating figure in Paris life.

Another important figurehead in the life of the city is the family menage. On her way to the house in the morning, she purchases the bread (from 4 inches to 4 feet in length) for the day. She also calls in at the creamery for cheese or butter. After preparation for and cleaning up after breakfast, the menage spends the rest of the morning in dusting and tidying up. She has a passion for symmetry in the drawing room. After dinner she goes to the market where she is interested in bargaining and displaying her purchases on her return home.

The names of shops and streets are particularly striking. Shops may be called "Delights of the Golden Age," "Caravan of Arabia" and the streets "Silver Drum" or "Lavender Seller." Streets named after states-

Tweed Resident Loses Valuable Team of Colts

TWEED, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence) — Dick Graham, of Tweed, had the misfortune to lose a team of colts on Saturday when they were drowned in Stoco Lake.

The men were cutting ice for the town and Mr. Graham sent the boy who works for him for a load of ice. He met another team with a load of ice and when he turned out to pass, the horses broke through the ice and went down with the sleigh on top of them. The boy was able to jump but the horses drowned in twelve feet of water before help could be secured.

Too many women neglect this greatest Threat to Beauty!

LOSS of teeth threatens loss of beauty—and half the adult teeth lost are lost because of pyorrhea.

Here are words to startle every woman who values the youthful contour of her face, for a famous British scientist tells us that many people have pyorrhea for ten years before tender, spongy gums appear.

You should, of course, see your dentist regularly, but, more than this, you should give your teeth and gums thorough daily care.

Brush them with Forhan's. Massage them with Forhan's. This dentifrice was originated by R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., a specialist in pyorrhea.

Used for brushing the teeth, it cleans them gently, thoroughly, safely. Clean teeth add to beauty, but that is only half the story. When there are harsh tartar deposits at the gum line, the irritation is one cause of pyorrhea.

The other important reason for using Forhan's is the benefits it gives with massage (full instructions with every tube). Follow directions and you will feel the tingle of vigorous circulation—health-giving circulation—which helps to keep the gums strong and firm.

Forhan's is the logical dentifrice for the whole family—so safe that the tiniest child can use it. Do not let the precious years slip by—adopt Forhan's now as your dentifrice. It comes in two sizes, 35¢ and 60¢—just a few cents per tube more than ordinary toothpastes, and exceedingly well worth it. Forhan's Ltd., Montreal.

Ever Thought of Endowing your Home?

SUPPOSE that — having purchased a home and effected a mortgage on it—you should die suddenly!

Wouldn't your wife and family have a hard time meeting the interest on the mortgage and discharging the principal sum when due?

Not so, however if you were insured under an Imperial Endowment policy for the amount of the mortgage.

A small amount invested each year in such a policy will enable your heirs to pay the mortgage immediately after your death, even if it should occur next week.

On the other hand, if you should live until the policy matures you can then pay off the indebtedness yourself out of the proceeds of the Endowment.

Have you a mortgage on your home? Why carry this responsibility yourself? Why bequeath an unpaid mortgage to your loved ones?

Let us show you how easily you can make sure of its repayment whether you live or die.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 24.—Egg prices were higher and butter, cheese and potato quotations were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Carlot prices of British Columbia and Ontario fresh eggs were unchanged, extras being quoted at 32c and firsts and pullet extras at 28c to 29c a dozen. Western Prairie fresh firsts advanced 1c at 28c and seconds gained 2c at 22c a dozen. Extras were unchanged at 31c and pullet extras were quoted at 26c a dozen. Storage firsts were unchanged at 18c to 19c and seconds at 16c to 17c a dozen. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 623 cases.

On the butter market Eastern Townships and Western No. 1 pasteurized were unchanged at 32c a pound, with broken lots at 32¼c. To retailers solids were 34c and prints 35c a pound. Receipts were 1,544 boxes.

Winter white cheese was quoted at 12c, colored at 14¾c to 15c and summer cheese at 15½c to 16c a pound. Receipts were 100 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots, were quoted at 75c per 90 lbs. bulk, and to retailers 85c per 80-lb. bag.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Feb, 24.—Brokers were asking steady prices for butter on the local market yesterday, but trading was slow, few buyers being interested. Carlots of high scoring No. 1 creamery solids were offered at 32c, but buyers seemed to be sufficiently supplied to take care of their needs for some time to come. The expected heavy buying spell will now be postponed for another period and when the "time" comes it will probably be found that these buyers have again satisfied their requirements without any undue flurry. The general ranges of prices asked yesterday were 31½c to 32c for No. 1, and 30½c to 31c for No. 2, and these applied to both Western and Ontario makes.

Cream Steady

Cream prices were again firm at 31c to 32c for special, 30c to 31c for No. 1, and 27c to 28c for No. 2, f.o.b country points.

Cheese Easier

Cheese prices were somewhat easier at 14¾c to 15c for new large, 15c to 15¼c for twins and 15¼c to 15½c for triplets, to shippers, and steady to retailers at 16c for new large, 16¼c for twins, and 16½c for triplets. Receipts were a little heavier, but the demand was equal to them.

Eggs

The egg market was quiet, but firm, with receipts fairly heavy and the demand not quite so good. Brokers, however, were not lowering prices, and were talking higher quotations for the middle of the week on the higher grades. Country shippers were offered more money and retailers were asked to pay higher prices for fresh supplies.

Buyers offered country shippers 27c for extras, 24c for firsts and 20c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned, a slight increase on the first two grades and a 2c increase on seconds. Retailers were offered extras in cartons at 34c, extras loose 32c, firsts loose 30c, pullet extras loose 27c, and seconds loose 24c; steady on extras; 1c higher on firsts and 3c higher on pullet extras and seconds.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 24. — Scattered buying and light offerings featured a "local" market here yesterday on the grain exchange, and values at the close were ¼c lower to ¼c higher for the session.

Foreign cables indicated a pause in the demand of millers with Canadian and Argentine shippers reducing their offers.

Export business over the week-end was estimated at 200,000 bushels. Demand for cash wheat was quiet, with spreads not materially changed.

Coarse grains trading was featureless and prices moved within a narrow range.

Criminal Code Comes Before Police Chiefs

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 24. (CP)—Amendments to the Criminal Code were discussed at a meeting to-day of representatives of the Chief Constables Association who waited upon Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice. Beyond the statement that the discussion had been general, there was no announcement made at the conclusion of the conference. The meeting, which extended over nearly three hours, was in camera.

It is understood that suggestions were made the effect of which would be to curb Communistic activities, but members of the delegation declined to discuss the matter. Certain amendments respecting vagrancy as now covered in the code were considered.

WOULD GRANT FREE TRANSPORTATIO TO RUSSIA OF ALL COMMUNISTS

ADDRESSES ORANGEMEN

Soviet Activities in Canada Are Scored by Nathaniel Belch.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 24 (Special to The Examiner)—"So long as Communists confine their activities to working out their own salvation in Russia we should have no objection to offer, but when they come to Canada and agitate to make a Soviet of our Dominion then it becomes an entirely different matter," contended Brother Nathaniel Belch, county secretary fo the annual meeting of East Durham Orange Lodge held at Millbrook recently. The speaker continued to offer the suggestion, "That the Federal Government grant free transportation to Russia to all that are preaching communism here in Canada. It might to some extent relieve our unemployment problem and it would give to all those who are agitating for a Soviet here in Canada an opportunity to go to Russia and help to make a success of the great experiment, which if proven a success would have a hundredfold more influence on the people of this country than all the Communist agitators that might speak from our platforms," he observes.

World Wide Depression

Such is one of the interesting extracts from Brother Belch's address in which he endeavored to stress the mission of the Orange Order and in view of the present world-wide depression and unrest to review many of the problems which are confronting the world.

"Ever since I was a boy," he states, "as far as my humble position would allow I have been a close observer and student of the problems of the times, some of which I have herein attempted to discuss, and I feel bold to say that the present world-wide situation is a direct challenge to our Democratic and Capitalistic systems."

At some length he continues to discuss the situation, particularly as it concerns Canada and Great Britain and goes on to state that, "While we hope that happier times and prosperity may soon return I do not believe we can ever secure our fullest share as long as our huge puplic debts hang over us, and as a possible solution to be considered in the future at a more favorable time I would suggest a capital levy in graduated form similar to the annual income tax on each individual citizen according to what he is worth or financially able to pay."

"I am quite aware of the fact that such a drastic proposal would meet with very stern opposition and at the present time I do not wish to urge its merits other than to say that it would place the burden of payment on those who would feel it and who would best be able to bear it."

Appeals to the Masses

After going on at some length and reviewing the five year plan as it is in operation in Soviet Russia, the speaker concluded by saying that, "From the little light and understanding that I have as I view this situation, never since the Orange Order was founded has its platform and principles appealed to the needs of the masses as it has to-day. Those principles were proclaimed and taught to the world by the Great Teacher nineteen hundred years ago. His Gospel of love and the Way of Life when He sought to bring the Kingdom of Heaven down on earth to dwell in the Hearts of men and secure the way for Peace and Good Will towards all men."

And these great world problems can never be satisfactorily or finally solved until the nations imbibe the Spirit of that Great Teacher in their hearts and endeavor to draft their international laws and agreements in accordance with the divine law, the way of life that has given us.

And as Orangemen and supporters of our British democracy which has been developing upwards from the time that the English barons wrung the Magna Charta or Great Charter from the tyrannical King John. When I look down through that history and think of the struggles and blood-bought victories, the price for which it was bought and preserved, I feel that we do not appreciate the noble heritage we hold to-day.

And as free men who prize the freedom of our democracy we must accept the challenge that the world conditions have thrown upon it. I frankly admit that there are many defects in our present Government systems, of which time at present will not permit me to discuss, other than to say that our present system in some respects is most unwieldy and apparently most difficult to adapt to the changing conditions of the times. We need more co-operation and less obstruction. We want all our citizens to take an intelligent interest in the affairs of our country and of the world at large so that they may develop a strong public spirit that should promptly react in the policy and legislation of our Governments. We must take up our responsibility as citizens of a free country and try to develop and improve that system so that the burdens resting on the masses may be lightened and in time removed.

The meeting was one of the largest in attendance and one of the most instructive and enthusiastic meetings ever held by the County Lodge, and during the course of the proceedings the following officers were re-elected to office:

Wor. County Master—Bro. Hildon Johnston, Janetville.

Deputy County Master—Bro. Fred Lewers, Fraserville.

Chaplain—Bro. Thomas Aiken, Millbrook.

Recording Secretary—Bro. Nathaniel Belch, R.R. 3, Millbrook.

Treasurer—Bro. Stuart Fallis, R. R. 3, Millbrook.

Marshal—Bro. James H. Paul, Fraserville.

Lecturer—Bro. Everett Zealand, Campbellcroft.

Second Lecturer—Bro. Vernon Peacock, Campbellcrort.

The Wor. County Master, in the course of his address, reviewed the work in the County during the past year wherein he succeeded in visiting every one of the fifteen Lodges, and some of them twice in that time.

Bro. Johnston, during the past two years that he has been County Master has fully lived up to the high standard set by his predecessors in office in the years gone by and while the usual term of office of County Master has been two years, the brethren showed their appreciation of his work by re-electing him for a third time and thereby bestowing on him the signal honor of enabling him to qualify for vote and life membership in Grand Lodge of British America.

Bro. Johnston admonished the brethren to walk uprightly as the outside world judged the Order by the conduct of the individual members. He also made feeling reference to the late brethren who had passed to the Great Beyond. He also, as at every opportunity, appealed for better support to our official organ, the Orange Sentinel. He mentioned some of the good work the Sentinel was doing, and pleaded for a larger circulation which would increase the influence of the Order.

The reports for the Lodges of the County showed them to be, on the whole, in good working order and revealed quite a substantial increase in membership over the previous year.

Millbrook was again chosen as the next place of meeting of East Durham County Orange Lodge, and it was decided to celebrate the coming July 12th in Cobourg.

BABY MOORE

QUEENSBORO, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—The three-weeks-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore of Remington passed away on Saturday. The funeral was held from the home on Monday afternoon at 2 p.m., and was in charge of the Rev. I. N. Beckstead of Eldorado.

MRS. MARY MORTON

TWEED, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence)—The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Morton was held on Tuesday afternoon to St. James' Church, the service being conducted by rector Rev. W. L. Wright, assisted by Rev. T. G. Marshall, of St. Peter's Church, Madoc.

FRANK F. DAYTON

MARMORA, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Frank Frederick Dayton took place on Monday afternoon and was largely attended.

Rev. F. H. Howard conducted the service at Marmora United Church and spoke consolingly from the text, "Two men shall be in the field; the one shall be taken and the other left." Two hymns, "Nearer My God to Thee," and "what a Friend We Have in Jesus" were sung and Mr. G. Woodhouse also rendered a beautiful solo. The pall-bearers were W. Bedore, H. Bonter, T. Dickson, C. Campion, C. Holland and A. Meehan.

ISAIAH GRAHAM

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Isaiah Graham took place from his late residence on Nelson street on Friday afternoon with Rev. S. A. Kemp officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives, neighbors and friends, gathered to pay their last respects to one who had lived his life in the community and had made many associations in a wide circle. Mr. Kemp spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family and brought to their sad hearts the message of the Lord who, Himself, comforted the mourners with words of hope.

Interment was made in the Lakefield Cemetery.

Mr. Graham was born in Smith almost 58 years ago and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Graham; he has resided in the village about seven years. He was fond of social life and was of a kindly nature, and it will be remembered that he won a prize at the Lakefield Fair with his large family. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, and ten sons. He was a life-long Methodist, going into the Union in 1925 with his church.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN

QUEENSBORO, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late William Franklin, who died at his home here, without regaining consciousness, two days after being run over by a load of pulpwood which he was hauling, was held in Hazzard's Corners United Church on Sunday afternoon and was very largely attended.

The deceased was seventy-three years of age on the day of his death, and was widely known as a carpenter and woodworker. He was subject to weak spells and it is believed that he fell in front of the load, which ran over his body, breaking all his ribs and a shoulder blade.

The service was conducted by his pastor, the Rev. I. N. Beckstead of Eldorado, assisted by Revs. G. Enfield of Madoc, and J. F. Everson of Queensboro. Mr. Beckstead preached from 2 Cor., 5-10, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." A beautiful duet, entitled, "Jesus Understands," was rendered by Miss Alma Keene and Mrs. Arthur Wyatt.

Besides the widow, there are left to mourn eighteen children, fifty-seven grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

The bearers were Messrs. James Moore, Irvin Delyea, George Love, Wesley McCaw, Harcus Rollins and Garry Barry. Interment was made in Hazzard's Corners cemetery.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS OF CONSTANT RESEARCH

SPEED with LONG LIFE

SPEED is of interest in an electric range, but speed without durability of its elements; speed that means improper cooking; speed that results in waste of power and high cost of operation is a source of waste and dissatisfaction to the user. In Moffats Cook-Quik Element you have speed comparable to the fastest on the market, but to speed the world renowned Moffat qualities have not been sacrificed.

With the Moffat Electric Range were introduced new joys in cooking and baking, great reductions in food wastage during the cooking process, much saving of valuable ingredients in the dinners cooked, but these have only been accomplished by years of painstaking care in the production of features that help to make the modern Moffats Electric Range the highly acceptable cooking equipment it is today.

The addition of Moffats Cook-Quik Element is yet another feature that adds to the many points of superiority enjoyed by Moffats Gold Medal Electric Ranges.

A BETTER PLAN NEEDED.

One of the fruits of the present session of the Legislature may be the introduction of a better system of compiling voters' lists—surely a consummation devoutly to be wished.

On the initiative of A. Russell Nesbitt, one of the Toronto members, it is proposed to name a special committee of the Legislature, of which W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal House leader, and Hon. H. C. Nixon, Progressive leader, will be members, to study the whole question and bring in recommendations that will result in a more accurate compilation of the names of those eligible to vote in provincial elections.

That there is need for reform in this respect few people will deny.

The present method, as Mr. Sinclair points out, is "terribly cumbersome," and experience has shown that it is far from accurate, there being many omissions as well as a number of duplications.

It should be possible for a representative committee, realizing the need of a better system, to devise a plan that will give more satisfactory results.

And The Examiner ventures to bring forward the suggestion that while the committee is about it the question of pinning the costs of preparing the voters' lists where it rightly belongs might also be settled by a recommendation that henceforth the expense of preparing lists for provincial elections shall be assumed by the Province and not thrust upon the municipalities as at present.

TO-DAY'S DEPUTATION.

Peterborough was well represented by delegates from both the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce on the huge provincial deputation which waited upon the Ontario Government to-day in the interest of justice in the matter of provincial highway and suburban road taxation for the municipalities of Ontario.

Like every other municipality, this city is vitally interested in this matter, and could not afford to stand aloof when a genuine effort is being made to correct a situation that is fast becoming intolerable.

More and more in recent years have the municipalities been loaded down with expenditures that really belong to the provincial field, and the expense of provincial and suburban roads is perhaps the most onerous burden of all.

The glaring injustice about it is that while cities are required to pay a heavy share of the cost of building and maintaining these roads outside the municipal limits they have to pay every cent of the cost of building and maintaining streets within those limits, regardless of the fact that a number of such streets are necessarily links in the provincial system and are broken down by the wear and tear of through traffic.

Meanwhile the Province further penalizes them by collecting a gasoline tax, not a farthing of which comes back to the municipalities, notwithstanding that it is levied on gasoline that may be used entirely on city streets.

PROPOSES SALARY SLASH.

It looks as if it is to be left to the Progressive group in the Legislature to provide whatever "ginger" is injected into the proceedings of the present session.

In line with that outlook is the announcement of the intention of Hon. H. C. Nixon, Progressive leader, to introduce a resolution calling for a ten per cent. reduction in the salaries of the Cabinet Ministers and of the leader of the Opposition, and a corresponding cut in the sessional indemnities of the members of the Legislature.

This may be amplified to include a slash in the salaries of the higher paid civil servants, but even without covering that much ground should furnish material for one of the most interesting debates of the session.

The move will not be popular, either with individual members of the House or with the Government as a whole.

Premier Henry, it is true, sounded a note of retrenchment in his opening speech, but talking in generalities about economizing is a much different matter than accepting a practical demonstration of one method of reducing expenditures.

The slash proposed by the Progressive leader, if confined to members of the Legislature alone, would mean a saving of some $35,000 a year, with a much greater reduction in expenditure, of course, if civil servants were correspondingly cut.

"In the face of the very serious conditions of the present day," says Mr. Nixon, "I believe that the Legislature should make the initial gesture to put things back on a comparative basis."

To convince the Legislature of that fact will probably, however, prove a decidedly difficult task.

BOY BANDITS.

Even those who do not usually see eye to eye with Hon. W. H. Price will endorse the effort that the Attorney-General is making to secure the co-operation of the federal authorities in waging war against undesirable American magazines and newspapers.

Mr. Price has secured through the medium of a questionnaire sent to the crown attorneys of the Province an almost unanimous opinion that the gangster-crook type of stories appearing in many of these magazines is having an evil effect upon the youth of the country.

Within the past few days the newspapers have been full of stories that indicate that mere boys, some of them at least from good homes, have been influenced by some cause or another to launch out into criminal careers.

A short time ago there was a bank robbery by a sixteen-year-old boy at Fort Frances, last week Cobourg witnessed the spectacle of a fifteen-year-old youth participating in a similar crime, and a day or two later a judge in Toronto sentenced another sixteen-year-old gunman to seven years in the penitentiary.

With the newsstands flaunting luridly covered magazines full of gangster stories and lavishly illustrated with photographs of American crooks and their activities, it is not to be wondered at that the imagination of some of our boys is fired by such material, with the inevitable result—the advent in Ontario of the boy bandit

BISHOP, V.C.

The greatest living flyer of the Great War beyond question is Colonel W. A. Bishop, a Canadian whose sensational exploits still ring down the halls of fame and who, when the war was over, quietly went back to the business of making a living. In years to come Bishop will shine as an heroic figure of legendary proportions; at the moment we are, perhaps, still too close to the era of his great deeds adequately to value the great contribution he made towards victory. But in no combatant aerial force, filled as all of them were with brave men cheerfully meeting the chances of battle in machines which now would be considered primitive, was there a more skilled flyer than Bishop, a soldier more devoted, resourceful and courageous, a man more chivalrous in victory or more steadfast in misfortune.

Col. Bishop, now a resident of London, comes home occasionally to receive the welcome due a distinguished son. The other day he addressed in Ottawa the annual banquet of the Canadian Artillery Association, and into a few minutes packed the result of his deep knowledge of aviation problems, his shrewd observations of men and the course of events. He said the air should be the safest medium of transport, lamented the large number of unnecessary accidents, and declared the "flying fool" more properly should be called the "flying knave." "One crashed fool," he went on, "keeps hundreds out of the air." In passing, Col. Bishop referred to the "power-propelled gasbag" as "that absurd monstrosity of the air"—an opinion which many laymen must share with him.

There is a place in history for Col. Bishop, and his place in the affections and gratitude of the Canadian people is equally assured. Those engaged in peace-time aviation, carrying on where the gallant band of Bishops and Barkers left off, profiting by their pioneering, will welcome his comments and should profit by his constructive advice.—Ottawa Journal.

ARE THE PEOPLE SINCERE?

The various Governments that are now announcing belated programs of economy, in view of the decline that has taken place in their revenues, should be given the support of the people in carrying out such a policy, instead of being inundated with requests from them to explore additional avenues of activity and to expand existing services, all of which simply means an increase in governmental expenditures.

Whatever they may say about the burden of taxation, however vigorously they may assail Governments for adding to the tax rate, a great many people are actually happy only when the same Governments are spending money and spending it profligately. The individual who on the one day indulges in loud and bitter complaint about the growing burden of taxation is himself guilty on the next day of a peculiar inconsistency in either applauding the opening of a project that will mean a further addition to the rate of taxation or in demanding that some other project shall be commenced. People like to see Governments spending money, especially when such expenditures will benefit them or the communities in which they reside, and no matter how they may complain about the contributions that they are obliged to make to carry on government and all that it means, they are usually equally loud in their applause of an administration that will spend money to better their interests or the interests of the place in which they reside.

The Peterborough Examiner, in discussing this queer quirk in the mental make-up of a great many people, draws attention to a statement made a few days ago by the Hon. Dr. Manion, the Minister of Railways and Canals. That gentleman declared that if all of the requests made for betterment or extension of the facilities of the Canadian National Railways, only one branch of the nation's business, were acceded to, a capital expenditure of from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 would be the result. The revenues of the National system have reflected the depression in business. They are down materially from the level of last year, and the system is far from paying its way, thus requiring further assistance from the federal treasury in meeting a deficit. Yet Dr. Manion's statement shows that the people who must contribute towards meeting that deficit are perfectly willing to have the railways spend from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 upon branch lines, new stations, terminals and the like, a capital outlay not without its effect upon federal expenditures, interest charges and taxation.

This attitude is typical of that assumed towards governments and governmental activities by a great many people. Governments may make all of the good resolutions in regard to economy and a reduction of expenditures of which they are capable, but they will be successful only in the measure that they are able to resist the demands that will continue to be made upon them by their followers for the expenditure of money upon pet schemes or projects that are put forward by the latter. If people are really sincere in their protests against high expenditures on the part of Governments and the high rate of taxation that accompanies them, they should be willing to abandon claims for even higher expenditures. With falling revenues, Governments can only meet those claims by a corresponding elevation of the rate of taxation.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Rumors of Chicago gangsters being in Toronto are denied. If there were any such visitors the sentences handed out by Mr. Justice Jeffrey the other day doubtless sent them scurrying home.

Sir Oswald Mosley has bolted the British Labor party to launch a new policy of national reconstruction. From this distance it looks as if the Old Land had enough political groups now.

New laws against Communists are being sought by the Chief Constables' Association of Canada. The police have no illusions in regard to the menace presented by Red propaganda.

As the Globe points out, it must be admitted that the new provincial secretary is making jail life more interesting.

Up to the present the cables have reported no startling adventures in London for High Commissioner G. Howard Ferguson. He'll probably break into the headlines before long.

One of the youths arrested in connection with the Cobourg bank robbery is only fifteen years old. The most disquieting feature about the crime wave is the number of mere boys who are involved.

The Red-Headed Goddess

By

ALICE ROSS COLVER

"I believe the Greek temple moves too." She pressed trembling dry lips together and looked down, so that he might not see the tears that startled unexpectedly to her eyes. She wouldn't cry. She wouldn't cry. She'd be funny instead. Through the blur of her tears she saw her shoes, and, with a shaky kind of laugh, she waggled loose the sole of one and picked off the broken heel of the other.

"I need a new pair of shoes, please, Dirk," she said. "Kindly produce a new pair of shoes."

It wasn't funny after all, but she couldn't do any better. She sat there fighting hard to keep her self-control in the face of a feeling of overwhelming helplessness, when, to her utter astonishment, Dirk said: "Certainly," in a quite matter of fact tone, and, taking her leather hat from her hand, he dropped on his knees there on the sand before her and proceeded to do what she asked. By clever operation of his knife on her cap and his, he managed to fashion shortly a rude pair of moccasins, which he laced onto her feet with the twine from his pockets, then he rose and swept her a low bow.

"A perfect fit for perfect feet," he said.

She made no reply, but her eyes were bright with pride of this man, who was so soon showing what he could "do" and what he was like, "stripped of his wealth and his social position."

Then Dirk, glancing overhead, jerked her upright suddenly. Startled, she looked up too, and saw that the sun, a moment before brilliant, had become hazy, the clear atmosphere diffused and thick with a curious saffron light that made them both uneasy.

"Dirk, I feel—it looks—as though something terrible was going to happen."

"You wanted it to—do you remember?

She nodded. "Yes. Something terrible—and beautiful. That's what I said. But now I wish I had been content with dullness!"

They hurried forward, but in spite of the moccasins her feet burned and throbbed in the hot sand, and the next half hour was very difficult. To add to her misery, her head ached, and every once in a while it grew so light that it seemed to float from her shoulders.

"I'm not ill," she said, clinging dizzily to Dirk. "I'm just—"

"You're hungry and you're hot. The heat rushes at you in waves. But it's noon now and it'll be getting cooler all the time."

"Can't we rest awhile, Dirk?"

But he shook his head, anxious eyes on the sky that was such a queer purple color, on the sickly sun, on the curious yellowish veil that seemed to be drifting toward them from a vast distance.

"Better not. I'll help you. Lean on me all you want."

They trudged on, past endless clumps of sage brush, around long mesas of rock too steep for Lorraine to try to climb over, close by great gashes in the earth, where the sand lay in layers of various colors. Now and then they passed a straggling cedar tree, windblown into some grotesque shape, and clinging with desperate hold to a crevice in the rocks. Now and then a jack rabbit dashed past them, or a snake glided away, but always neither nearer nor farther, stood the Gothic cathedrals, the terraced gardens, the broken castle walls, the birds and beasts and other idols, the distant ship, and their guiding landmark, the ruined Greek temple.

By now Dirk was almost carrying Lorraine, his glance continually flung upward to the menacing heavens. Yet it was less the heavens than the desert that actually threatened them, for it had changed color, all its brilliant blue, its cold gray, its enchanting soft reds and purples had merged and risen in a yellow fog that was rolling faster and faster toward them. Already the sun was a flat silver disk lying like a huge coin on a black cloth. At intervals little spurts of wind, warning of the coming sandstorm, sent whirlpools of dust and grit up into their faces. The air was dry and choking, and spinning with fine, flying particles that stung their cheeks and filled their eyes. They began to run toward a ragged line of low-growing trees, the only shelter in sight.

Gasping, stumbling, with the sound of the wind in their ears increasing in volume until it became a terrifying roar, with the dry, hot sand-filled air burning and choking them, they rushed to the scanty, inadequate trees. Here, at least, was something to cling to, Dirk thought, something that had had withstood other storms like this through centuries. If they could get to the trees—

"Oh, my ankle! Dirk! I've twisted it!"

Lorraine fell, and, with one swift glance into her frightened face, Dirk stooped, lifted her in his arms, and bent his body to beat his way the last hundred yards. Just as he reached the trees, the sand-storm swooped upon them like a shrieking maniac, clutching at him and his burden with maddened, tearing fingers, completely blinding him, driving his breath away, turning a world that a short while ago had been clear-cut and serene and still into an inferno filled with whirling knives and yellow smoke.

But he was there! He dropped to his knees, groped with one hand for a tree, found it, encircled it with his arm, and, shielding Lorraine with his own body as much as possible, he dragged them both close to the trunk. To his horror, the ground beneath him abruptly gave way, the tree to which he clung bent, swayed and stooped and, in the next awful second, he and Lorraine were falling, in a shower of sand and stones and a tangle of scratching branches, over the edge of an abyss.

CHAPTER VI.

Silver Tongue and the Desert Philosopher.

Mahtahni Yezzi or Moungwi or Little Chief, as he was called by the Indians, but registered at Washington under the name of Joseph P. Smith, was alone in his little gray stone office building, at one of the Government agencies for the Hopi and Navajo Reservations. The building consisted of only one room, where all business was conducted. Its general appearance was that of bare neatness. A stove at one end, a few straight chairs, shelves built in the corner to hold the endless files with which an agent is burdened, and a large old desk constituted the furniture.

Smith was sitting before the desk staring in a kind of petrified horror at the telegram he held in his hand. Nine words were typed thereon. Nine curt words in reply to months of lengthy correspondence on his part, in which a dangerous situation had been set forth concisely and clearly, and an urgent appeal made to the Government to send troops at once. And he had received nine words in answer—and what words!

"Quell Navajo unrest. Impossible forward troops. Sending investigation committee."

Smith crushed the paper into a ball and hurled it at a book on his desk. "Quell Navajo unrest." It implied a fine confidence in the man the Government had appointed to rule over this uneasy land, but he knew it for an inane confidence also, and he was trembling as he got up from his chair and began to pace restlessly about the little room. "Quell Navajo unrest." But how? With what? He had an expanse of over three thousand square miles to quiet, and about five thousand savage beasts to soothe, scattered over this distance. Most of the Indians were uncombed and uncivilized, and he had just eight Hopi policemen to help enforce whatever action he tried to take—eight Hopis who had a way of disappearing in times of active trouble. Was Washington ignorant or indifferent—or both? Either possibility was appalling and inexcusable In his disburtance he paused before a window and stared with unseeing eyes over the desert.

It was twilight, that time of day when the enchanted land is touched with mystery. The parched brown ground, the distant, hot, sunbaked buttes of dry brick red, the too brilliant, too harsh blue sky, became magically softened and merged in the tenderest shades of mauve and jade, amber and lilac, rose and saffron. In a breath this strange uncompromising world was deep with sweet promise, its ugliness transformed by the softly falling deep blue veil of night. Gradually all color faded and the distances were blurred in purple shadows that crept closer and closer; the weirdly carved peaks and rocks stood stark and black against a lemon-colored stretch of sky. Fragrance of sage brush came blowing in on the cold night air, and one by one tiny twinkling lights sprang out in the high, pale heavens. Before the sky darkened, there could be seen, toiling up the steep rocky slope to their pueblos atop the narrow mesa ledge, figures of Hopi Indian men, returning from their day's labor of harvest in the fields Through the stillness came an occasional whoop,and the little fires, high on the cliff, springing up suddenly red out of blackness, seemed to be the women's answer to the men.

A peaceful scene, a rarely lovely scene, a scene for a poet to take to heart; but Joe Smith was no poet, and he saw neither peace no beauty. His were the quick, sharp, worrying thoughts of a greatly disturbed Government agent, with a task too large for his hands. These thoughts had nagged and nagged at his mind for months, until there seemed nothing left of it but shreds, until his nerves too, were tattered, so that their secret twitching was apparent through the thin shell of his composure.

Those people living in their little pueblos above his office were Hopis. Good people, the Hopis. Quiet, peaceable, intelligent, fairly adjusted to the ways of civilization being forced upon them, grateful for the benefits derived therefrom and not actively resentful of its drawbacks, but holding in their hearts the ancient feeling of enmity against their neighbors, the Navajos, that nomadic lawless tribe whose land surrounded theirs. It was this feeling that was causing all the trouble. A Navajo lad had been shot, by accident, by a Hopi. A Navajo man had lost his horse in Hopi territory. In neither case had a satisfactory settlement been made, according to prejudiced Navajo judgment. And out of such trifling beginnings, dating back over a couple of years, had grown other grievances, mounting up and up, a slowly increasing tide of bitterness and resentment which had reached its height when certain arable portions of land, originally given to the Hopis, but so far distant from their pueblos that they had been acquired in squatter fashion by the Navajos, and used undisputed by them for an unknown length of time, were now demanded back by the Hopis.

This demand had been backed up by Washington, and the agent before Smith had tried to enforce the order. The Navajos, however, were not to be thus easily dismissed from rich soil where they had spent years of toiling. Hot quarrels had resulted with occasional fighting and loss of life.

By the time the inexperienced Smith reached the scene, the situation had grown to grave proportions. He saw at once that a settlement was impossible without the appearance of the United States troops, and had consequently sent repeated pleas for them, with detailed explanations each time. Meanwhile, the Navajos were growing fierce in their resentment, their mutterings grew to be threats, and it was a well known fact that meetings were being held among the different tribes, led by the most lawless members. Unless the agent settled the question in their favor at once, some violence would be done. But the agent could not go against Washington's orders, which were to restore the land to the Hopis. Powerless, distracted, he could only hold off an actual outbreak by saying that he had written Washington asking for a redivision of the disputed land and Washington had not sent word yet, but this excuse was wearing thin.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

PREPARED BY THE REV. CLARENCE H. WILSON, D.D. FOR THE COMMISSION ON EVANGELISM OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

Feb. 24, 1931.

THE TEMPTATION OF FAITH.

"Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."—Luke 4:12. (Read Luke 17:5 and 6 and 4:9-13.)

Meditation

At the climax of His temptations our Lord's agitation was intense. It was madness that was knocking at His mind that day for He was tempted to do a crazy thing, trusting to God to see Him through. Supremely sane as He always was, He put the temptation from Him. Faith is not the abandonment of common sense but reason in its highest exercise. It does not bid us to trifle with eternal laws but rather to respect them. Jesus recognized the evil source of this suggestion that He should do a foolish thing. He said "Get thee behind me, Satan." Those who propose a rash testing of faith may well give heed to the intimation. We will trust God where we cannot see; but where we see we should employ proper means to attain our ends. To obey is better than sacrifice.

THE REV. CLARENCE H. WILSON, D.D.

Prayer

Almighty God who hast appointed laws for our governance, we pray that Thou wilt preserve our faith from the presumptions of vanity and the delusions of folly, that we sin not by tempting Thee.

A Thought

TASK TOO GREAT FOR US

The true civilized man of all periods and of all countries is he who knows how to conquer himself and so to order himself as to devote more, always more and more of himself, to the task which exceeds his strength.—Georges Clemenceau.

What To-day Means To You

"PISCES"

If February 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., from 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. and from 5:30 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

February 24th holds out no very bright prospects. On the other hand, there is not much reason to worry, if you keep cool and collected. Overtures may be made you of a dazzling character. These should be carefully considered and no definite action taken until the following day.

Children born on this February 24th will be pliant and amenable. They will never develop into strong, forceful characters. They will always need stimulating companionship, and someone on whom to lean, if not to depend. Their dispositions will be extremely affectionate

If you were born on a February 24th you possess a remarkable brain and a naturally sweet, yet frank nature. Even in your youth, you easily outstripped your rivals, without, apparently, making any particular effort to do so. Nature has been more than generous to you, and you can assimilate learning much quicker and more thoroughly than the average person. If, allied to this gift you possessed the virtues of ambition and perseverance, you could easily make your mark in the world.

You always choose in life the path of least resistance You rarely put up a fight, so long as your daily routine and your ease and comfort are not disturbed. You could easily be a champion. You prefer, however, the role of "a-could-be but-never-is." You prefer the soft spots of life, and alwaysdodge the hard ones. So long as you are assured of a comfortable life, you are willing to let who will be great.

Your inherent indolence, your indifference to material success, is all forgiven you because of the great charm of your personality. Your mannerisms are natural. Your disposition is sweet. No one has ever heard you say an unkind word, even of those who have succeeded, where you have failed. Your home life promises to be replete with happiness and contentment

THE DUNDAS AFFAIR

The Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—Please allow me space in your paper to voice my opinion, as well as others, for the cruel injustice recently meted out to my son, Gordon, who while under the influence of liquor, robbed a man of twenty dollars. This was his first criminal offence, and was sentenced to five years.

Gordon has handled considerable money belonging to others for whom he has worked, and never took a cent.

I feel that your paper, in giving this case publicity, overstepped its bounds. It could not have been made to appear worse, had it been a write-up of a desperate gunman (for example, Jesse James), for on learning that he was under arrest, did not the Police of Peterborough breathe a sigh of relief? It was never mentioned that he was unarmed, and under the influence of liquor.

Anyone who knows Gordon, knows well, that he is a gentleman while sober, but under the influence of liquor, he just apparently goes crazy.

Gordon had no permit of his own, but there was always someone ready with a bottle, although they knew he should not have it.

He never came home in an intoxicated condition, as he did not want me to see him, and knew how I loathed even the thoughts of it. That is the reason it made it so easy for the police to arrest him.

Government Control is nothing but an excuse for the bar-room, and had your paper called more attention to the harm liquor is doing for our young people, instead of making his case appear like that of a hardened criminal I think it would have been more to your credit.

I am so thankful that Mr. Johnson was not hurt or maimed in any way, and I hope if he reads this, that he will accept my apology for my son's misdemeanor. I know things like this cannot happen and go unpunished but I think that owing to his youth (twenty-four) and it being his first criminal offence, that they might have had a little more consideration and been a little more lenient toward him.

Trusting that you will not refuse to publish this letter.

I am,

GORDON'S MOTHER.

(Mrs. Robert Dundas, 716 Water St., Peterborough.)

THE THANKLESS NEEDY

Dear Mr. Editor:

The amount of money subscribed to the Relief Fund gives food for thought. We have to admit there is a lot of genuine poverty prevalent in the city, but there are a good many cases who never will improve their circumstances, so long as there is such things as "relief". For instance: I have heard men say they would not work for 30 cents per hour; or taking a job, find it not very suitable, they quit. "Nobody starves in Canada" is the idea. My remedy is, give relief, also try to find work for those that don't seem anxious. They are easy to tell. After getting work, if they come on "relief" again, enquire why they are unemployed and if it is their own neglect don't help them unless it be to deport them. I don't wish to be misunderstood, but feel ashamed to see and hear old country men, being one myself, willing to accept to much charity as a matter of course.

Although I know a good many who are right up against it, but will stick it a long time before they speak. At the present I am on short time, having been so for months, and have a wife and family, so do not know how soon I may be up against it, but I could feel assured, if the time ever comes, any enquiries would prove I price nor the work lose me any time.

CONSCIENTIOUS BRITISH WORKMAN

CONTROVERSEY—OVER CHIMES

LONDON, Feb. 24 (By The Canadian Press.)—The famous chimes of St. Paul's Cathedral have been silenced at nights under the instructions of Dean Inge, a man climbing into the tower and stopping the chimes after 8:30 p.m. and setting them going again at 6:30 a.m. Dean Inge considers the chimes a nuisance at bedtime hours, but there are many people in London who want them to continue throughout the night, and a controversy has sprung up over the matter. The clock has been going for about 200 years. It was silenced during the war.

THREE ADDITIONAL CONSTABLES RECOMMENDED BY COMMISSION

Estimates For 1931 Are Struck at Meeting of Police Commission.

$31,455.50 REQUIRED.

Three additional constables to the city Police Force was the recommendation forwarded to the City Council yesterday afternoon by the Police Commission in passing the police estimates for 1931.

His Honor Judge Huycke and Cliffe Newhall were both strong in the opinion that the city required at least three new constables. The Chief declared that his present force was undermanned and that Peterborough had the smallest police force for a city of its size in Canada.

He recommended that the force be increased to three men in order to allow increased protection to the outer parts of the city, also to allow proper relief of beats. Further, Chief Newhall explained that traffic was annually adding greatly to the arduous police duties and taking up more of his staff's time. He stated that the men never got a night or Sunday off and in some cases were forced to work fourteen hours at a stretch.

With the addition of the three constables the police estimates for the year would be $31,455.50, the added cost of the three men with equipment being $3,990. Without the increased strength of the force the estimates would be the same as last year, $27,465.50.

Estimates for 1931

Salaries	$22,340.50
Police Commission and Secretary	350.00
Telegraph and telephone	450.00
Clothing and equipment	1,340.00
Up-keep of Police quarters, light, fuel, etc.	450.00
Printing and stationary	300.00
Postage	55.00
Incidentals	300.00
Up-keep of cars and bicycles	1,400.00
Insurance on both cars	280.00
Chief's Convention	200.00
Total	$27,465.50

Recommendations 1931

3 Patrolmen	$ 3,600.00
Equipment for 3 new men	390.00
Total	$ 3,990.00
Estimates	$27,465.50
Grand Total	$31,455.50

"BULLS" AGAIN DOMINATE LIST

Several Issues Advance to New Highs in Broad Upward Movement.

OILS-RAILS JOIN RALLY.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 24. (CP) The Bulls to-day picked up the stock market where they had left it last Saturday and sent prices to new highs for the year in a broad and active upward movement. But each period of hesitation was used for the grooming of new leaders. Oils and rails, which had been sluggish during the first outburst of buying enthusiasm in the busy early hours later joined the rally. Copper and chemicals were particularly strong, although utilities and industrials shared prominently in the market's exhibition of courage.

Shorts in Westinghouse fled rapidly as the stock soared 7 points which was also the extent of Case's gain. Allied Chemical, Columbian Carbon and Union Carbide rose 5, among the chemicals, and were joined by Wright Aero, Eastman Kodak, and Industrial Rayon. Auburn Auto rallied 4 to a new high. International Sliver, an inactive, shot up more more than 10 points.

MONDAY'S LEADERS CONTINUE TO PUSH AHEAD DESPITE DROP DURING EARLY MORNING TRADE

Several Issues Register New Highs as Volume Expanded on Rise.

C.P.R. UNCHANGED.

International Nickel, Noranda and Brazilian Among Stocks to Advance.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 24. (CP)—Less uniform in its advance to-day, the Toronto Stock Exchange market nevertheless was still headed upward. Several issues lately prominent on the advance came in for mild profit taking the first hour. However, as those stocks which had taken the leadership to-day continued to push higher, the whole list strengthened in the second hour and several new highs were registered as volume expanded on the rise.

International Nickel slipped off slightly the first hour, then reversed its position and rose rapidly until at midday it was selling at a new 1931 record price of 20. Noranda also advanced and Brazilian, which had eased slightly after yesterday's strong display, firmed again. Early selling in Brazilian was in part for London account.

Ford of Canada came out unchanged and strengthened later. Dominion Stores sold off at one time as much as a point from yesterday's close, then firmed with the rest of the market. C.P.R. was firm, Service Stations at a new high around 37, Goodyear Common at a new top price of 105.

Liquor stocks were strong, though making only small fractional progress.

Prices Are Irregular On Montreal Exchange

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 24. (CP)—Prices were irregular on the Montreal Stock Market at noon to-day. Textile dropped three points to 79. Steel of Canada common moved up 2½ to 41½ and the preferred 1½ at 37. Nickel gained a point, power corporation was up one at 53¾. Gurd, Via Biscuit and Massey-Harris all dropped off a point. Canada Cement moved up 2½ points to 15 almost at a single bound.

Brazilian gained ¼ at 27½.

Grain Prices Undergo Setbacks Again To-day

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 24. (CP)—Grain prices underwent transient setbacks early to-day with corn dropping to a fresh low record for the season. Largely increased supplies of wheat afloat and Argentine shipments being diverted to Great Britain had a temporary bearish influence. Beneficial moisture received by domestic winter wheat was a likely factor. Opening unchanged to ¾ cent lower, wheat sagged further, but soon rallied. Corn started 3-8-¾ down, and then advanced.

Boy M.P.'s Reach Goal In Bond Campaign

TORONTO, Ont., February 24 (C. P.). — John Lauman of Kitchener, Premier of the Boy's Parliament, stated to-day that he believed the boys had succeeded in raising an objective of $13,000 through the sale of bonds.

Several thousand boys, he said, took part in the campaign, and the returns are due at the headquarters to-day.

The money raised will be used to finance co-operative activities for boys during the year 1931.

General Manager

D. H. Pollitt, whose appointment as president and general manager of the Norge Corporation of Canada, Limited, manufacturers of electric refrigerators, has been announced. He was formerly vice-president and managing director of De Forest Crosley, Limited. As well as being widely known as one of the most capable of merchandisers in Canada, Mr. Pollitt is one of the youngest men to hold the presidency of a Canadian company.

Winnipeg Review

With American markets all closed yesterday, Washington's Birthday being a general holiday, and with export business being insignificant, only about 150,000 bushels being worked over the week-end and yesterday morning, the local market was very dull and trading featureless throughout the day. Opening prices were about ½ lower and prices sank to one cent under the close of Saturday, from which point there were slight re-actions, but the market finally firmed up, regaining all of the earlier losses with locals or commission house buying in evidence and offerings very light. Actually the market was one of the dullest in weeks.

Liverpool closed ½ to 1 penny lower, and Buenos Aires was 5-8 to ¾ lower at mid-day. Broomhall reported that Canadian and Argentine offerings were cheaper, while the inquiry or demand was small. The cash wheat market was also quiet but there was a fair demand for some of the top grades at 1-8 better, and ¼ better for some of the toughs. Offerings were extremely light and only odd cars only changing demand. The domestic flour trade continues fair but business is very quiet in export channels.

World shipments the past week totalled 16,198,000 bushels, of which 4,875,000 was cleared from North America. On passage stocks were not available and very little news from outside was coming through. So far as could be learned some further precipitation was received over the winter wheat belt, but to what extent was not stated. Country marketings on Saturday in western Canada totalled 458,000 bushels as against 238,000 a year ago.

The situation yesterday looked heavy and without a broader foreign demand even present low price levels be difficult to hold. It is generally understood that European importers will require to buy during the next few months considerably heavier than during the past few months, but this demand is being largely filled by Argentine and Australian as well as Russian at sharply discounted prices under Canadian levels.

Coarse Grains.—These markets were firm, closing fractionally higher. There was a little buying of rye that was credited to American interests, but otherwise there was very little going on while offerings were small. In the cash markets only the odd car were changing hands. Oats closed 1-8 to ¼ higher, barley ¼ to 1-8 higher and rye ½ to ¾ higher. Flax market was steady, closing unchanged, very little going on.

Liverpool Cables due 3-8 to ½ higher, based on Winnipeg.

FORESEE FORD PLANT IN B.C.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 24 (C.P.). —Hopes that the Ford Motor Car Co. of Canada, Ltd., will start construction this year of a British Columbia assembly plant on land which it now holds in Burnaby, were expressed by Wallace R. Campbell, president, on his arrival in Vancouver.

Mr. Campbell said that when the time is propitious his company will begin construction. He hopes it will be within a year.

TATE LEADS LATE RALLY

DURBAN, South Africa, Feb. 24. (C. P. Cable).—After a bad start England staged a late rally in their first innings in the test cricket match with South Africa and compiled a total of 230. South Africa made 252. The top score of the English innings was made by Maurice Tate, sixth man in, who put on 50 after the batting stars on the team had failed.

Pollitt Is President Of Norge Corporation

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—The appointment has been officially confirmed of D. H. Pollitt as president of the Norge Corporation of Canada, Limited, which company was incorporated on January 29th to acquire the Canadian patent, trade mark, manufacturing and sales rights as well as all future developments of the Norge Company of Detroit, a division of the Borg-Warner Corporation of Chicago.

Borg-Warner is a $35,000,000 organization operating a number of plants strategically located throughout the United States to supply the automobile industry with many of its component parts. This company has made many important contributions to the industry, among which is the new free wheeling device now being featured on many leading automobiles, including Lincoln, Studebaker and Hupmobile. Borg-Warner took over the Norge Corporation of Detroit some twelve months ago with the end in view of diversifying its activities. They are at present conducting a vigorous campaign in the United States to effectively establish the company as a leader in the electrical refrigeration industry, concerning which Roger Babson, the famous economist, recently made such an encouraging forecast.

The capital stock of Canadian Norge is owned by De Forest Crosley Radio Company, Limited, the holding company controlling De Forest Radio Corporation and the Hammond Company of Canada, Limited, and of which Major J. E. Hahn is president and D. H. Pollitt, vice-president and managing director. De Forest Crosley is listed on the Toronto Curb and recently made a spectacular advance from 9 to 16 due, it is said, to reputed favorable earnings of the company during the current fiscal year which closes on March 31st. According to Mr. Pollitt, De Forest Crosley is the only exclusive radio plant on the continent to show a continuous annual sales and profit gain during the past seven years.

GOV'T UNWILLING TO HELP DESTROY MOTOR INDUSTRY

Bennett Gives Reason For 20 Per Cent. Discount on U.S. Cars—Protect Canadians.

AT TARIFF HEARING.

National Dairy Council Requests Increase on Cheese Rates.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 24 (C.P.).—Because the Government had decided not to be a party to the destruction of the motor industry in Canada, it had taken the recent action whereby discounts on United States motor cars were fixed at 20 per cent. This was the declaration of Premier R. B. Bennett at the Cabinet tariff hearing to-day.

Means Ruin of Business.

Speaking to H. S. Pritchard, of Windsor, Ont., appearing for Canadian automobile importers, the Prime Minister, who acted as chairman of the meeting, asserted that the Government had been confronted with evidence indicating that if high discounts were permitted to continue, Canadian manufacturers would have to go out of business at once and hand over the market to United States competitors.

"Is there anything to show that the Canadian motor industry is faced with destruction?" queried Mr. Pritchard.

"We are satisfied in respect to that," replied Mr. Bennett. "We are confident that the situation is, shall it continue in Canada or not."

To-day's hearing concluded the public sittings of the sub-committee of the Cabinet on tariffs. Proceedings lasted for about two hours, and representations were made by the National Dairy Council, which has already filed a brief requesting tariff increases on cheese and certain other dairy products, by a representative of the dairy farmers, and by Mr. Pritchard on behalf of the automobile importers. While announcing that the public hearings were now over, Mr. Bennett made it clear that the door was not closed to further representations which could be conveyed to the Government.

Would Boost Cheese Rate

W. F. Stephens, Secretary of the National Dairy Council, was heard first. He said that the council had already filed a brief asking for tariff increases on certain commodities. He quoted from the brief, the contents of which were made public some days agbo. Increases were asked in the rates on cheese, powdered whole milk, casein, etc.

"Why do you want a tariff on cheese" asked Premier R. B. Bennett chairman of the committee.

"In order that we may increase the manufacture of the higher class of cheese in Canada" was the reply.

With respect to powdered whole milk, Mr. Stephen said that the largest importations came from Holland.

Casein was being put to a variety of uses in Canada, and the demand for it was growing.

In answer to a question by Mr. Deachman, Mr. Stephen said that it was quite possible the price of powdered milk would be raised if an increased tariff was applied. The same thing would apply to the fancy cheese and to milk sugar. But Mr. Stephen emphasized that the increases would result in advanced prices to the farmers.

"I would draw the attention of the board to this statement that the tariff will increase the price to the consumer" said Mr. Deachman.

"We are not listening to your argument at present" replied Mr. Bennett.

"I notice that," was Mr. Deachman's retort.

In answer to Hon. R. J. Manion, Mr. Stephen said that in his opinion increases to the consumer would be temporary.

When Mr. Stephen concluded his statement, Dr. Pickel, member for Brome-Mississquoi, expressed the greatest surprise that Mr. Deachman had spoken at a previous sitting on behalf of the dairy farmer.

"He is the greatest enemy that the Canadian dairy farmer has," Dr. Pickel said.

"I don't think it is necessary for you to refer to him as an important enemy of anyone," interjected Chairman Bennett.

"It has proven so in the past," replied Dr. Pickel.

"I think you exaggerate his importance," went on Mr. Bennett.

"Impossible!" remarked Mr. Deachman.

Dr. Pickel went on to say that what the dairy industry of Canada needed was a stable tariff. The dairy industry in the Maritime Provinces was dead. "We want a good, sane tariff to rehabilitate it," he assertid. He favored a general tariff of 10 or 12 cents a pound on all foreign butter.

Auto Importers Protest.

On behalf of the Canadian Automobile Importers' Association, H. S. Pritchard, of Windsor, Ont., made an argument against the 20 per cent. discount regulation on foreign cars, passed some days ago. He was under the impression that the agitation for this governmental action came from the border cities.

Some people were of the opinion that the regulation was brought about as a result of representations by members of Parliament who said they were pledged to it. If so, these members had given pledges which the Prime Minister had not.

The action of the Government would not prove a solution of the unemployment problems, Mr. Pritchard said. The automobile industry was an industry which employed large numbers of men at certain seasons of the year and threw them out of work. This was well illustrated in the city of Detroit where unemployment was great. The automobile industry was not a "benign" industry. Men were thrown out of work "ruthlessly."

FIFTEEN YEAR OLD BOY FACES

when the three youths were shortly afterward rounded up by police and citizens and placed under arrest.

Juvenile courts are closed to the public as a means of saving young offenders from the atmosphere, the stigma and the hardening effort of accusation as ordinary prisoners. And following that custom and regulation, Magistrate Floyd presided in the juvenile court this morning with only the usual attendants present, including Rev. Dr. Daley, agent for the Children's Aid Society of the United Counties.

The older companions of the alleged "master mind" of the Dominion Bank hold-up, are Walter Clifford, 21, and Leonard Forbes, alias Forest, 20. The court room was crowded to its last corner when Magistrate Floyd ordered these young men to stand up while he read the charge to them. The whole proceedings were a merely formality, as the Crown had asked for adjournment for another week while the investigation of the antecedents of the prisoners is continued.

Archie Cochrane represented Clifford and Thomas Hall, K.C., also of Cobourg, appeared for the two other prisoners. A second charge of vagrancy, upon which they were held in custody last week, was also read by Magistrate Floyd. Mr. Cochrane suggested that it be withdrawn, but Crown Attorney Fred Boggs advised that it be retained until next Tuesday when the court could then announce its decision.

Not Asked to Plead

Forbes and Clifford were not asked to plead nor elect how they would be tried and the proceedings were terminated in less than ten minutes.

Clifford, the oldest, is said to have lived in Ottawa and Cape Breton. Leonard Forbes' home is in London, Ont. Both are Canadians. Blanchard, the youngest, and the reputed ringleader of the group, is of United States citizenship, but recently came from Montreal.

Clifford is a rugged looking youth, whose clothes indicated recent buffeting about on the road. Forbes was smartly dressed, and bore all the marks of respectable family connections which have been reported from London, where his association in the bank raid astounded his friends. His blue overcoat with a velvet collar seemed almost new, and the harmonizing scarf and tie suggested the taste of a youth accustomed to fine linen.

Forbes had the only gun, it is believed. The trio had no car, but as the robbery occurred during the noon hour, it is thought they may have planned to catch the 1 o'clock train.

Confronted with the gun, James Forbes, cashier; Thomas Smith, accountant and J. F. Bowman, were forced to enter the vault, while the three scooped up the cash in the teller's cage. Owing to the way in which the staff had fixed the door of the vault the bandits were unable to lock them in. With the warning to stay where they were, the three fled.

Immediately the bank men rushed out in pursuit, while the three divided in their mad run through the streets.

Cecil Wilson, garage man, picked up the accountant in his car. A bus driver of the British hotel, James Markle, also joined in the chase.

One of the three was hauled out of a packing case in the rear of the yard of Denton the florists. A second was caught in Jex's lumber yard by Wilson and Smith. The third fled to the basement of the public school on James street where he was followed by George Roraback and Wilfrid Throop. He showed considerable fight, and Roraback's face was bleeding from a blow in the eye, before he sent the youth reeling with an uppercut and managed to pinion him.

Dr. H. Brezing Accepts Wagner College Call

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Feb.24.—After 26 years as pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, the Rev. Dr. Herman Brezing will leave here on June 30 to become President of Wagner College on Staten Island. His resignation was accepted by his congregation last night.

Dr. Brezing is a native of Kitchener, Ont. He is an alumnus of the college of which he will become head next summer. His first charge as a clergyman was at Jamestown, where he served four years until 1901, when he accepted a call to a Toledo, Ohio, church.

He came to Niagara Falls in 1906. From 1926 to 1929 he was president of the New York Ministerium of the United Lutheran Church. Last summer he refused the Presidency of Waterloo Seminary and College at Waterloo, Ont.

John H. Fowkes died recently at Leicester, England, aged 104.

BASE METALS PROVIDE STRONG ACTION ON STANDARD MARKET

MINING BRIEFS.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 24 (Special to Examiner)—Taking its cue from larger boards the mining market displayed some particularly strong spots today, with base metal and oil groups still supplying the outstanding features. There was a little in the news of the day to justify bullish action, but a spirit of confidence, supported by sustained strength in New York, prevailed in board rooms. Although it is conceded a technical reaction, at least, is in the offing, most circles are looking for a distinct improvement in general industrial and market conditions with the coming of spring.

For pure enthusiasm, it is hard to beat the northerner. The following sample was received from a resident of Elk Lake. "I wish you could be here when the train pulls in, to see the crowds that get off. The fact the hotels are full and people are wandering the streets looking for some place to sleep will give you an idea of the number arriving here. There's a new crowd going in every day while others come down from the camp, record their claims and go out.

"It's one of the greatest rushes I have seen in many years, and I tell you next summer we are going to see some fireworks. Claims are being bought, sold and traded every day and interest seems to be increasing all the time. The new find made at the mining corporation property while excavations were being done for the power house, is said to be important and is believed by those who have seen it, to indicate an ore zone much wider than anyone expected. Some of the samples picked up from the vein certainly show plenty of gold.

"Moyneur's place (jumping off place on the Montreal river for the scene of activity) is packed full, and the road lined with teams. Believe me, I would like to have some of the boys who visited the district during the last year or so, see the things as they are now; there would certainly be a different story to tell."

Washington reports the house ways and means committee has voted to postpone all tariff and embargo measures because of insufficient time during the remainder of the session for consideration of such bills. Action on the question of an embargo or tariff on oils imports, expected to have an important bearing on conditions in the domestic oil industry, is therefore held up. Independants are planning another effort immediately, however.

The annual report of Canada Wire and Cable, in which Noranda has acquired a large interest through the "B" stock, is in the course of preparation. It is understood a decrease will be shown as compared with the previous report which showed earnings of $5.67 per share on the "BB" stock, but it is expected the dividend of $1.75 per share on this stock will be earned by a substantial margin.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 24. (CP)—Prime mercantile paper 2⅛-3⅛ per cent.

Foreign exchange easier, demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents): Great Britain 4.85 11-16; France 3.91 7-8; Italy, 5.23 1-8; Germany, 23.76 Canadian dollars at par.

Gains Almost General in Best Section at Noon Hour Trading.

GOLDS IRREGULAR.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 24 (C.P.)—Base metal and oil groups again provided some strong action on the mining market today; gains being almost general in both sections at mid-day. Golds remained somewhat irregular.

International Nickel moved to a new high for the year of $20 and when taken at noon was up a half at $19.75. Noranda gained 10 to $8.10. Hudson Bay was up 15 to $5.80. Sherritt Gordon 8 to $1.20 and Chibougamau prospectors 5 to 27.

Chemical research remained active and in good demand, price advancing another 30 to $5.25. Nordon came to life to gain 7 at 34, Ajax oil was up 3 at $1.70 and Petrol and oil selections somewhat firmer.

Siscoe and Howey sold up a few cents and small gains were established in Mining Corp. Manitoba Basin and Bidgood, Eldorado Vipond and Kirkland Lake Gold lost two to three cents apiece and fractional recessions appeared in Moss and Ritchie.

matriculated. He argued the case before the Supreme Court of Canada, and their judgment was delivered a week ago.

A. C. Lawson, a rancher of Carson, B. C., was the nominal plaintiff in this test case attacking the constitutionality of the Provincial Produce Marketing Act. The British Columbia Court of Appeal more than once upheld the validity of the Act, but this decision has been reversed by the Supreme Court of Canada. The judgment, in effect, declares that the province has no right to regulate or control the marketing of the appellant Lawson's products beyond the boundaries of British Columbia.

GRAPE GROWERS

Vine-Land Co-operative Company, said it would be a good thing if a brand were adopted certified by the Government giving assurance of quality. He also suggested establishment of a Government broadcasting station to distribute prices and market information to growers.

Freight rates on grapes from Ontario to Winnipeg were higher than on grapes from Arkansas, said Captain Thompson, if the western buyer were urged to buy Ontario grapes and informed when they were available Ontario could obtain the western market.

The spread between producers' price and consumers price at Winnipeg was about $1.00 a basket. This should be reduced it was said.

People of England have taken much interest in the report that a secret United States commission is in that country studying the working of the British Unemployment Insurance Act.

SHERIFF ACTS PART OF BELL HOP TO SERVE SUMMONS ON W. P. BULL

Deputy Claims Canadian Barrister Baffled Him For 12 Hours.

CARRIES UP LUNCH.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 24.—W. Perkins Bull, K.C., Canadian barrister, stayed a while at a lake shore hotel on his last visit to Chicago, but he held only one conversation of any length, with a bell boy.

W. C. Riddle, a deputy sheriff when he isn't impersonating bell boys, told about that one conversation to-day while attorneys were reported talking about terms of settlement of a $250,000 damage suit filed against Bull by Dr. John Streeter Sidley of Racine, Wis., who charged that Bull hired detectives to harass him without apparent reason. Riddle said he worked for 12 hours trying to serve the summons for the suit without success until he hit upon the bellhop idea.

The Lunch

At luncheon time a bell boy, brass buttons, gold stripes and all, knocked on the door of the suite occupied by the Canadian Attorney.

"Mr. Bull's luncheon," he said, and was admitted.

Bull, in an adjoining room, heard the rattle of dishes and called out:

"Is everything ready?" There was no answer.

"Young man, do you hear me. Is everything ready?" There was more rattling of dishes, but no reply. Then Bull appeared at the door.

"When I asked a question I expect a reply."

"Say you," said the bellboy as he looked at Bull, "I'm from the Sheriff's office and I've got an invitation for you to come to a party."

But Bull will not need to come if the reports of impending settlement of the case prove to be true. At present he is in a Toronto hospital recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident near Coldwater, Mich., while making a hurried trip out of Chicago for Ontario.

BOARD WANTS TABLE CHANGE

Allow Better Train Connections For Children Attending Campbellford Schools.

NAME COMMITTEES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 24 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The regular meeting of the Campbellford Board of Education was held last night in the Public Library, Campbellford, with the president, T. E. Hall, in the chair.

The report on the naming of the committees for 1931 was presented by the secretary, which showed the following list:

Internal Committee: J. A. Loucks (chairman), Dr. H. B. Longmore, Dr. O. C. Watson, A. G. Thompson.

Finance Committee: Dr. H. O. Richardson (chairman), G. O. Sullivan, J. C. Anderson, G. A. Kingston.

Property Committee: Walter Henson (chairman), Rev. N. Clark Wallace, William Cook, D. J. Lynch, W. M. Stephens.

Mr. Loucks reported for the Internal Committee in regard to the fact that owing to the illness of Miss Harrington, a teacher on the staff of the Campbellford High School, a substitute had been hired by Principal E. H. Grieg, a Miss Mary Stevens of Toronto. On motion this action was adopted by the board.

Dr. Watson brought up the matter of the alteration of the train service, in connection with the school children coming from points west of Hastings. It was thought that it was time action was taken to enable the time table to be altered.

On motion it was decided that a committee, comprising Rev. N. C. Wallace, Dr. H. O. Richardson and Dr. O. C. Watson, look into the matter and take action, Rev. Wallace to act as chairman.

On motion, accounts amounting to $37.23 were presented and passed.

48 FEWER CASES BEFORE COURTS IN PAST YEAR

Twenty-three of those charged were females.

According to age the greatest number of offenders, 203, were between the ages of 21 and 30 years. Between 31 and 40 there were 97, 79 between 16 and 20 years; 52 between 41 and 50 years, and 23 under 16 years of age. Two gave their age as over 71.

The amount collected in fines totalled $4,313.45, which was a decrease of $1,371.83 from 1929.

Five hundred and twenty-nine unfortunates sought a night's lodging in the Police Station of their own free will, which was an increase of 332 over the year 1929.

The Department answered 12,493 telephone calls and attended 14 fires. Accidents to the number of 265 were investigated during the yar.

Property Lost and Stolen.

Peterborough citizens reported that they lost property to the value of $1,830.45 during the year, but of this $993.90 was recovered, leaving $836.55 as being unrecovered. Value of property reported stolen totalled $23,332.79, and of this sum $18,784.75 was recovered. This leaves an unrecovered balance of $4,548.04.

During the year there were 231 doors and windows found open or insecure, an increase of 71 more than in 1929. Commenting on this Chief Newhall stated: "This carelessness led to an increase of property stolen, as in many instances owners refused to attend when called up by police, simply saying, 'Have a look around and close the door or winodw.' The result was that thefts went undiscovered at the time."

The report follows:

Traffic.—"During the year there were 2 fatal accidents and 283 non-fatal, all of which are to be deplored, but considering the number of motor vehicles and few prosecutions in police court, this city must be blessed with fairly careful drivers.

"Thanks to the local press for their co-operation with the police, also the removal of snow from the streets, no doubt prevented many accidents. Lastly the electric stop and go signals have made crossings where they are installed very much safer and should be added to from time to time.

Warnings.—"A large number of drivers of automobiles, first offenders were warned or cautioned during the past year for minor breaches of the traffic regulations.

Fires.—"Several outbreaks of fire were nipped in the bud by the viligance of the police and citizens combined. The police attended and reported on 14 fires during the past year.

Crime.—"During the year 1930 there were 298 cases of theft, house- and shop-breaking and other serious offences reported to the police, the majority of cases being where there is little or no police supervision.

Carrying of concealed weapons.—"During the past year there were no cases reported to the police, which under the present condition is worth noting.

Disorderly houses.—"The city is practically free from houses of ill-fame, although 1 house was prosecuted during the year arising from the abuses of home made beer, which takes up a lot of time with a limited force, obtaining the necessary evidence.

Pool-rooms—"These licensed places have received special attention which resulted in there being no breaches of the law observed.

Narcotic drugs.—Through the vigilance of the police to suppress this evil only two breaches of this act were observed and prosecuted.

Discipline.—"During the year 1930 the members of the force have discharged their duties in a very creditable manner, with the exception of one member since discharged and prosecuted which I and the rest of the force deeply regret. But I am pleased to say that a great number of our citizens have assured me that their confidence is in no way shaken in the present staff.

"I express my sincere appreciation to the members of the 1930 council for enabling me to improve and equip the force and I trust that they may see their way clear to strengthen same during the coming year which is badly needed.

Recommendations.—"I strongly recommend that the police force be increased by three men in order to give some outside protection, to properly relieve beats, to try and meet the increasing demands regarding traffic and last but not least to give the members a night or Sunday off once in awhile.

Police Matron.—"In brief I wish to thank the police matron for her tireless efforts in carrying out the many unpleasant duties called upon her to perform, pursuing cases, with such determination and success against great odds.

"In conclusion I wish to thank the Board of Police Commissioners on behalf of myself and the members of the force for their kind consideration, assistance and co-operation during the past year."

force as we have here. Citizens of Peterborough can not complain if they have not sufficient police protection. And I am the first to admit that they have not. We have but thirteen men. If the citizens are receiving only half the police protection they should get it is their own fault.

"I understand the difficulty of taxation," stated His Horior, turning to Mayor Denne." We should have a considerably larger force and until we get more constables the citizens can not expect ample police protection.

"I wish to assure the citizens of my absolute reliability in the present police force. The men are honest and truthful. And I desire to express to the citizens the deep debt of gratitude I feel they owe Chief Newhall for doing what he did do."

The dismissal of Matthews which was made a special meeting of the Commission on January 24 was ratified.

Chief Newhall in explaining the need of a larger Force declared that had the Force been adequate Matthews could not have got away with his thefts for more than a week. He explained that a relief man could have been placed on Matthews' beat while he was taking his customary turn in the station nightly and that the thefts could readily have been fastened on the culprit.

PRINCE'S DANCING STARTS FASHION

Combines Waltz Steps With Tango at Party in Vina del Mar Cafe.

GIRLS LIKE PRINCE GEORGE.

VINA DEL MAR, Chile, Feb. 24. (AP)—The "Waltz-Tango" is the Prince of Wale's contribution to the terpischorean art.

He and his brother, Prince George, came here with a reputed fondness for the South American tango, but when tango music was played at a casino dance last night the Prince of Wales did not dance to the straight tango, but worked in waltz steps which made his dancing the most unsual and newest on the floor.

Both Princes had a wonderful time dancing with old friends in the crowded new cabaret. The elder brother danced most with Teresa Artara de Davis, wife of the British tobacco representative here, while Phince George was partial to Miss Anne Chilton, daughter of the British Ambassador.

They were so interested in the dancing that they declined to go into the roulette room, where one man playing the number 18 won 10,000 pesos on small bets.

They remained at the casino until 3.45 a.m. when they and the Davises and members of their entourage left for another party elsewhere.

Of the two brothers Prince George is proving the more popular with the Chilean girls. His charming smile and reserved manner have won him many admirers.

UNIQUE PROGRAM AT TWEED SOCIAL

United Church Congregation At Home Held in Form of Parliamentary Session.

TWEED, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence)—The church parlors of Tweed United Church was the scene of an unique gathering on Monday evening when the third of a series of congregational At Homes took the form of a parliamentary session.

The position of speaker was filled by W. E. Tummon, M.P., and the ladies of the group which was in charge of the entertainment formed the government, under the leadership of Mrs. T. E. Moffat, while the opposition was led by Mr. McGuire.

The speaker entered, preceded by Charles Porritt, sergeant-at-arms and attended by the two pages, Jack Tummon and Roy Trumpour. With customary parliamentary formality came the call of prayer, and the presentation of reports and orders for the day.

References were made to the policy of the Department of Public Works in respect to the Tweed Water Supply.

Bill No. 74 was presented, it being an Act regarding household finance; that "we give to the ladies of the household absolute right and authority to control and spend all moneys of the household. The Bill was introduced by the leader of the Government in a very efficient way. Mr. McGuire in an eloquent manner accused the government of selfishness and of lack of past achievement, followed in rapid succession by a number of speeches from the government and opposition.

The ladies strassed the discomforts of the present regime and held out optimistic hopes for the future, while the men painted woeful pictures of their own fate should the Bill be passed in spite of the desire of the Opposition to abolish levity from the debate.

Speakers such as Mr. Moffat, Mr. Wager, Mr. Ardenne, Mr. Frost, Mr. Sayers and Dr. Reeves evoked much mirth from the audience while in no way was lacking in humor the speakers for the Government, Mrs. Reeves, Mr. McGuire, Mrs. Tummon, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Grier and Mrs. Wager.

An amendment that the bill be not read but be left for six months' consideration was introduced by Charles Porritt, but was defeated by the House. Miss R. Porritt acted as clerk of the House.

The meeting was brought to a conclusion by a sing song contest and social hour.

Presbyterial Reports Read at Keene Meeting

KEENE, Feb. 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of Keene United Church W.M.S. was held recently when fine reports were given of the Peterborough Presbyterial held in Trinity Church at Peterborough, by the delegates, Mrs. Sam Comrie and Mrs. W. S. Taylor. A vote of thanks was tendered the ladies for the splendid reports.

A report was given of having sent bales of clothing to needy ones in Saskatchewan and letters of appreciation for flowers sent during illness were received from Mrs. R. J. Short, Mrs. Wright and Roy Francis.

On Friday, Feb. 20, the World's Day of Prayer was observed. A letter was received from those to whom clothing had been sent in Saskatchewan, expressing thankfuiness. An appeal from the pulpit is to be made for another urgent case at once, to prepare another bale.

Cut Your Expenses!

The easiest way to cut expenses and save money this winter is to prevent sickness expense. Thousands of women are adopting the health habit of giving a mild laxative to every member of the family once a week. Thus preventing or checking colds, headaches, dizziness, biliousness, and constipation. NATURE'S REMEDY—NR—being safe, mild and all-vegetable, is ideal for this family use. Try it and save sickness expense. Only 25c.

and that situation with you, as representatives from both areas involved. If you expect us to go on—as I think the league does expect—I leave the query with you: Where are we going to get the money, if every last one of our citizens seeks to be relieved as being the source of those funds?"

Premier Henry outlined the gradual growth of the traffic laws since promulgated in 1923 by a committee on which he described himself as "a minor member—because in those day I was in the cold shades of Opposition, and possibly enjoyed developing problems for the Government then in power." He pointed out the desire for "uniform traffic legislation on the entire continent"; that they had waited anxiously for the results of a committee in the United States at work along similar lines, "and have been waiting ever since."

PROFESSOR FINCH

men change with their passing and the coming of others, thus making addresses difficult. Each store handles one line of goods only, and are closed for two hours at noon.

The itinerant craftsmen provided Mr. Finch with an interesting diversion, that of reproducing and copying their distinguished calls. The mattress stuffers,t he pottery vendors, the "marchands de vieux habits," the glaziers, the menders of china, chair menders, goatherds, and chestnut sellers, each have their own peculiar cry.

Traffic Problem Acute

The traffic problem in the city is acute, as there are intersections where from 8 to 11 streets converge, and pedestrians walk where they like. The policemen only do the best they can. On the even days of the month cars are parked on the side of the street with even numbers; and vice versa. The buses are green and white juggernauts, declared the speaker. They have three classes, and people embarking buses do so in the order of numbers they tear off a lamp post near a "stop."

Les Alles is the central market of Paris, and the best bargains are to be had by going there in shabby clothes. At Champs Elysee there are frequent street fairs, at which the outstanding articles for sale are pig-shaped gingerbreads with the inscription "To my mother-in-law" or "To my concierge." There are also many other novelties, merry-go-rounds, etc.

Much time is spent in the cafes which are patronized like clubs. From 4.30 to 7 a.m. the Algerian soldiery come in; then the dwellers of the quarter make their appearance; the tourists follow in due course; at 12 noon there are always the "drinks"; and in the evening lights, music, etc. change the usual leisurely attitude of the cafes.

Paris by night is most bewitching, declared Profesor Finch. The streets are jostled with Arabian carpet sellers; with Koreans selling their pearl necklaces; with visitors to the Paris underworld—to the catacombs, underground wells, and robbers' caves. The foreigners take advantage of the freedom of the city in the matter of their dress, and the patience of the Parisians tolerate their costumes.

Holiday times are gay times. Legal holidays are given for the Ascension, the Assumption, All Saints', and Christmas Eve. New Years' day is noted for its visiting, gift giving and free flowing wine. There are mid-Lent processions, and a time of masquerading when the Queen is chosen. On November 11 there is a procession to the monument of "The Unknown Soldier," near the Arc de Triomphe, where a light burns perpetually. "Le Pont" is a custom whereby Saturday is proclaimed a holiday if Friday is, and Monday if Tuesday is. Good seats in the theatre or opera house may be bought for 15 cents, and the most interesting part of the program is the entr'acte when the performance gives way to social visits.

The Ice Palace in Champs Elysee is a popluar resort for skaters. The Luxembourg Gardens have a "round pond" just as beautiful as the one in Kensington Garden, London. Besides the usual lovely gardens, trees and terraces, there are croquet tournaments for serious old men. However, the chaisiere makes the visitor pay for sitting on a chair in the gardens.

"The literature which has been written on Paris and its various aspects and attractions is voluminous," said Professor Finch in concluding. "The tourist attractions for the city have been given too much stress, and many sides of Parisian life have been exaggerated. The real Paris is still French; the real Paris is still a city of homes."

No Cases On Docket In Victoria Court

LINDSAY, Feb. 21. — (Examiner Correspondence.) —The Spring Sessions of the Supreme Court of Ontario proved a brief one to-day. Mr. Justice Logie of Toronto, was the presiding Judge, and the only case on the docket was settled out of court by the interested parties. Justice Logie congratulated the authrities on the healthy conditions prevailing in the district. No jurors were called. It will be recalled that the Fall Session of the Supreme Court cost the county over $4,000.

Mrs. Herbert McCracken Hostess To Society

ROSENEATH, Feb. 23 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. Herbert McCracken entertained the ladies of St. James' Women's Auxiliary on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance of members and a few visitors present. The president, Mrs. James Timlin presided at the meeting and opened by singing "The love of Christ constraineth" and followed by repeating the W.A. prayer in unison. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. A. V. Lucas of Toronto, acknowledging the bale and money sent to the W.A. House.

Material had been purchased and was distributed among the members to be made up in readiness for the bazaar which will be held in the fall. It was also decided that each member make two print blocks for a quilt and have it quilted at the March meeting at Mrs. Clara Braithwaites.

Mrs. Ernest Timlin read a very interesting letter from Miss Mary Holiby, a missionary in India, telling a few of her many experiences in mission work in the Foreign Land.

Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite gave a reading that was greatly enjoyed, entitled "Keep on doing." After singing hymn 517 "Jesus shall reign," Rev. Mr. Battersby brought the meeting to a close with prayer.

A delicious luncheon was served by the hostess and a social half hour was spent over the teacups.

DR. G. H. NEEDLER IS SPEAKER AT MILLBROOK CONTINUATION SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT SOCIAL

Cameron Vance Awarded Dr. Norman Allen Scholarship for Best All-Around Boy.

PLEASING PROGRAM

MILLBROOK, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Commencement Exercises of the Millbrook Continuation School held in the Town Hall on Friday, February 20, at 8 p.m., drew a large and appreciative audience, the speaker of special note for the evening, who presented the diplomas, and the scholarship certificates, being Dr. G. H. Needler, Dean of the Department of Modern Languages University of Toronto, a former Millbrook boy, who took his Ph.D. degree from the University of Leipsic, Germany, and who has made good in his chosen profession.

L. W. Smith, chairman of the school board, welcomed the audience on behalf of the staff and pupils of the Continuation School and an-ly applauded as she took her seat, and the speaker of the evening, Dr. G. H. Needler, was introduced by his life-long friend, and former schoolmate, ex-Warden W. T. Wood who referred to events occurring in their school days together when the old red brick schoolhouse was the local seat of learning, "with no playground but the street, and the building, with its four rooms primitive both outside and within."

Mr. Wood also referred in passing to the work accomplished by Miss Sara Dean, who held an honored place in the teaching profession for more than fifty years, and whose pupil both he and Dr. Needler had been. They had also been members of the class of boys, from eight to ten years of age, who acquired a knowledge of Latin under the tutelage of the late Venerable Archdeacon Allen, Saturday mornings at the Rectory being the time and place of study.

Splendid Address

Dr. Needler in opening his address mentioned his gratitude to the principal of the Continuation School, and to the members of the school board for granting him the privilege and honor of being present at the Commencement Exercises, and having the very pleasant duty of presenting the diplomas.

A reminiscent mood was natural to the occasion, and among many events recalled, the speaker spoke of the fact that while the boys of his day played Red Lion on the roadway "that was a more leisurely age, and we were in no danger of being run over by an automobile because there wasn't any such animal'."

The happy occasion which Commencement Exercises always provide was stressed with added emphasis on the fact it is but the beginning of higher things, and the gateway to the future lying ahead of the pupils. "Examination tests are a sad necessity of our educational world, but from now on you will be meeting the real, daily, perennial examinations, that will prove the genuine test of the fibre of your characters."

A spontaneous burst of applause greeted Dr. Needler's announcement that "this month is a special anniversary with me, as it marks the fortieth year since I was appointed to the staff of the University of Toronto." Warning the students that any hope of making money either in quantity, or rapidly, in the teaching profession was doomed to disappointment, the speaker dwelt upon the satisfaction enjoyed as the outcome of devoting oneself to such a constructive life purpose, money-making being in no sense its sole object.

"Among the advantages connected with Continuation Schools, of which there are 217 in the province, Dr. Needler listed the fact that smaller classes are more readily and thoroughly taught, and personal contact with the teacher as a possibility. Pupils suffer a sad loss, the speaker insisted, through entering the University from one to one and one-fifth years older from the large High Scools and Collegiate Institutes of the cities, enlargement of the schools, and enlargement of the staff being stressed as an absolute necessity.

Several other interesting points in the educational problems of the day were dealt with by Dr. Needler, who scored especially the system of penalizing the bright boys and girls for those who cannot go so fast, and closed with the injunction: "Millbrook is as good a place from which to go out into the world as can be found on the face of the globe."

Diplomas Presented

Prolonged applause showed appreciation of Dr. Needler's fine address and the chairman invited the members of the graduating class to the platform when they were presented with their diplomas by the guest of the evening. The list included: Francis Jones, Margaret Seens, Marian O'Brian, Clara Bonner, Audrey Larmer, Margaret McCarthy, Eddie Nattress, Cameron Vance, Jack Hutchison, and Gladys Williamson.

The Dr. Norman Allen Scholarship awarded the best all-round boy in the Continuation School, and won this year by Cameron Vance, was also presented by Dr. Needler, together with the framed certificate, a message of hearty congratulation being extended to the recipient, who made an appropriate reply. Jack Hutchison, who won the Scholarship in 1929, but who was not publicly presented with the framed certificate owing to the fact that no Commencement Exercises were held last year, was honored on Friday evening by the circumstance that his certificate was in readiness, his father Jas. Hutchison, receiving it at the hands of Dr. Needler. Jack was not present as he is now a student at Queen's University, Kingston.

Pleasing Program

The opening item on the program Friday night was a group of songs by the massed pupils of the school accompaniment being furnished by the school orchestra, which also provided music while the audience was gathering, and at intervals on the program itself. The members are: Gordon and Nelson Davis, Gerald Todd, Henry Gray, Harold McCamus, Wilson Ford, Margaret Russell, Jean Stinson, Winnifred Lord, and Mary Burnham, who is the pianist, and who presided at the piano throughout the entertainment.

Gay caps in the school colors of black and orange, distinguished the orchestra, and the boys who gave a clever demonstration of gymnastics, under the direction of S. Cawker, assistant principal of the Continuation School, wore white shirts with wide orange sashes, and dark trousers, those who went through the various figures and movements being Harry Kennedy, Marshal Larmer, Jack Stinson, Stanford Brown, Henry Gray, Nelson Davis, Reg. McKnight, Wilson Ford, Gordon Muspratt, George Harkness, Harold McCamus, Gordon Fall's, and Gordon Davis.

One of the most beautiful numbers of the evening was the 'Flower Drill' by sixteen girls, each couple representing a different blossom, and each girl carrying a wand wound with her particular colors and tipped with a flower similar to those with which her dress was trimmed and her becoming cap was made. Those in the drill were: Dorothy McDowell and Phyllis Armstrong morning glories; Mary Vance and Madeline McDowell, sweet peas; Martha Earle and Ilean Widdis, daisies; Anna Rowland and Jessie Armstrong, water lilies; Ethel Belch and Ruth Ball, blue hair bells; Charlotte McMahon and Betty O'Brian, red roses; Pearl Swanson and Nellie Miller, poppies Margaret Fallis and Marian Earle, Sunflowers.

The closing number was a play, "Mr. Bob" a two-act comedy, featuring the following caste: Rebecca Luke, a maiden lady much enamoured of cats, Sadie Rowland; Katharine Rogers, her niece, Helen Mitchell; Philip Royson, her nephew, Henry Raper; Marian Bryant, Katharine's friend, Vera Qian; Robert Brown, clerk of Benson & Benson, Alvin Widdis; Jenkins, Miss Rebecca's butler, Johnston Rowland; Patty, her maid, Bryar Edmunds.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the pupils had prepared a pleasant surprise for their principal's wife, Mrs. Howard Jordan, who was presented with a lovely arm bouquet of crimson roses tied with white tulle and for their two teachers, Principal H. W. Jordan and Assistant Principal S. Cawker, each of whom was made the recipient of a handsome desk pen.

Appropriate replies were made by those receiving the gifts, and the pupils, gathered in a happy, informal group upon the platform, applauded warmly. Mrs. Jordan's generous expenditure of time, patience, labor and strength, in training for the drill, the play and the music, extending hospitality of her home for the practices, and making a considerable share of the caps, flowers, and other accessories for the costumes, planning the stage arrangements, etc., was particularly appreciated and deserving of special mention.

Mrs. Land Is Visitor Madoc Lodge Members

MADOC, February 23 (Examiner Correspondence).— Oakdale Rebekah Lodge, No. 134, of Madoc, held their regular meeting on Friday last, at which Mrs. Land, of North Bay, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, was an official visitor. Mrs. Land gave a very interesting and instructive address on the activities of the Order.

During the evening Mrs. Land was presented with a silver tray, and the following address was read by Sister Verna Tanner:

To Sister Land, President of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario,—

It is with great pleasure that we welcome you, on this your official visit to Oakdale Rebekah Lodge. We appreciate the honor of having this opportunity of entertaining you. In token of our appreciation, we ask you to accept this small gift, which carries with it friendship, love, and truth of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge.

Fraternally yours,

Lottie Smith, N.G.
Eliza Moon, R.C.

Mrs. Land thanked the Lodge for the gift, and told of her pleasure in being in Madoc to meet with the Lodge members.

After the business meeting of the Lodge was closed a very pleasing entertainment was given, at which the mmebers of the Frankford hockey team and the Madoc hockey team and ladies were invited. A short musical program was given by local people. Vocal numbers were given by William Hawthorne, R. F. Welman, Mrs. Hulin, and C. I. Ross, and enjoyed by all. Mr. Darley gave a pleasing piano solo, and Mrs. Ashley and Mrs. Hulin a duet. Master Will Stockloser played a guitar solo in a very capable manner.

After the program, the ladies served delicious refreshments and then all were invited to dance and everyone had a splendid time.

Rev. Father Meagher, manager of the Madoc hockey team, when called on for a few words, spoke for the boys, thanking the Lodge for the entertainment and also for the wholehearted support which they had given the hockey team in the past, and soliciting the same for the future games. Mr. Finnegan of the Frankford team, also thanked the members for the pleasant evening, after which the party broke up.

MARMORA

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Potts spent Friday in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sanderson spent the week-end in Toronto.

Miss L. Morton visited Toronto over the week-end.

Mr. W. F. Bowen is visiting his sister, Mrs. H. R. Pearce.

The meeting of the Marmora Girl Guides held in the White Hall on Thursday again proved to be very interesting. Inspection followed the opening excercises. A high mark is still being obtained in this particular feature of the meeting. Patrol corners was succeeded by two lively games—a marching game called "Cappy Says," and a tag game of "Fox and Hare." The company was again divided into two groups to take Ambulance and Guide Excercises. Discussion followed and yells were handed in. The winners of these will be announced in the near future. "Taps" was then sung and the company dismissed.

CHARLES DOLAN ROTARY SPEAKER

Addresses Campbellford Club on Origin of Movement 26 Years Ago.

H. N. CARR PRESIDES

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 24 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The weekly luncheon of the Campbellford Rotary Club, held on Monday in the St. Lawrence Hotel, Campbellford was featured by Charles Dolan as guest speaker. The president, H. N. Carr occupied the chair. Owing to the bad state of the roads Mr. Dolan was considerably late in arriving but nevertheless gave an interesting address, interjecting his remarks with much humor. A new member of the club was also announced by the president, this being T. J. Craighead.

Mr. Dolan drew attention to the fact that February 23, was the twenty-sixth birthday of the Rotary movement, explaining how the club started many years ago by Paul Harris in Chicago, with just a party of four.

Explaining the primary motive of the origin of Rotary the speaker said that the first reason had been for personal gain. Then had come the motive for fellowship and the emphasizing of the spirit of play that was so essential, especially among the older business men. And then there was the stressing of the inducement of the clubs members to take part in public affairs. Of the three things the speaker thought that the latter was the most important for it helps in the making and keeping of good citizens.

Up until 1920, Mr. Dolan said, Rotary was entirely American, then a club was formed in Winnipeg, and after this it spread to Great Britain and became International. It was Jim Davidson of Calgary who took the Rotary idea to Australia and formed clubs in that country. In 1922 the new constitution was drawn up owing to the wide spread of Rotary, which now covers sixty-five countries totalling 3,400 clubs.

Rotary, said the speaker, instils into its members a sense of being fair, making of them square fellows. Boiled down he thought that the whole of the Rotary teaching was summed up in the ideas of being square to ones neighbors and fostering a civic spirit. And in conclusion he praised the Campbellford club on the work it had accomplished, declaring that it was an example of what a small club can do.

Dr. H. B. Longmore and N. Alex MacColl moved and seconded a vote of thanks to the speaker which was conveyed to him by the president.

CITY CARS CONSUMED $1,307 OF GASOLINE

As Shown by Committee Statistics for Vehicles in Service of City.

Automobiles and trucks in the service of the city, last year consumed something over 5,000 gallons of gasoline at a total cost of $1,307, statistics issued by the Fire, Water and Light committee reveal. Of this amount the Board of Works heads the list with a total consumption of 1,567 gallons, and the Police Department coming a close second with the use of 1,565 gallons. The Fire Department used but 730 gallons, while a further 124 gallons was distributed between each of the various departments used on line work, the relief truck and for cleaning purposes.

Taking advantage of the concession, which permits city employees the use of the Department gasoline pumps—for which of course the city employees pay—1,116 gallons of gasoline was used.

At the end of the year there was on hand 80 gallons of gasoline, bringing the total amount purchased in 1930 up to 5,134 gallons, distributed among the five different oil companies as follows:

Imperial Oil, 1,000 gallons; British-American, 1,000 gallons, Sunco, 1,228 gallons; Shell, 1,017 gallons, McColl, 809 gallons.

QUEENSBORO Y.P. PUT ON DEBATE

Negative Team Wins on Topic, "Resolved, Automobiles Do More Harm Than Good."

SOCIAL HOUR HELD.

QUEENSBORO, Feb. 24 (Examiner Correspondence)—There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Young People's Union on Friday evening, the main item on the program was a debate entitled, "Resolved that automobiles do more harm than good," given by Mrs. Harry DeClair, Miss Alice Relyea, Miss Ida McCaw and Miss F. M. Carey.

Mr. Everson presided and read Psalm 90, after the singing of "Ye hosts of Christian Young and Strong." Mr. Bruce Leslie contributed a solo, "There is a shepherd who cares for his own." Miss Margery and Jessie Relyea and Jessie Lynn gave a trio accompanied by Miss Marion Love at the organ.

The judges for the debate were Miss Annie Thompson, Mrs. C. B. Mann and the Rev. J. F. Everson, while Mr. John O'Rorke acted as time keeper. Each debater was allowed fifteen minutes. The affirmative was upheld by Mrs. DeClair and Miss Relyea and the negative by Miss McCaw and Miss Carey. Some of the points advanced are given below.

Mrs. Harry DeClair stated in opening the debate, "The auto destroys home life; injures man's appreciation of nature; causes roadhouses; creates millionaires; prevents saving; to sell autos in New Zealand Canada must take New Zealand butter and this does harm; autos aid the rum-runner; aids smuggling of foreigners; hurts the country church; produces an effeminate kind of manhood. Young men used to go to the home for the young lady now the young fellow drives up and honks for her to come out; it encourages an excess of pleasure; crowds out other businesses through garages situated on front streets; they are responsible for higher taxes because of building highways; takes children from Sunday School; lessens religious training; they are the cause of many persons becoming criminals; they hinder thrift; destroy chivalry; destroy love of horses and bring down their price; wages paid in auto factories cause young men to become discontented on the farm; they help promote depression; lessen the need of men and therefore they are responsible for unemployment; makes road building more expensive because trucks especially tear up the roads; destroys the old time neighborly spirit; takes away man's independence; winter relief is given to a large number who spend all they earn in summer on the upkeep of a car; money that would otherwise be spent locally is spent in far away towns and cities; breeds poverty; injures frugality; causes discontent in local rural life and is an aid to wickedness and profanity."

Miss F. M. Carey for the negative said, "Autos make possible greater church attendance for more can go in a car than in a buggy and then one can go to church and to see his friends at a distance the same Sabbath because of owning a car. Autos enable people to see more; the tired laborer relaxes through a motor drive in the evening; the only country without cars are those without highways, Bermuda, ex. highways increase the value of the farms. Criminals come from homes where no cars are owned; the horse is still used and valuable and cars have not made him unnecessary; people were profane before cars were used; there is the same neighborliness only the size of the neighborhood has increased; cars enable people to shop in a city where they can get what they want and see what they get; we have better roads now that we have cars; the highways are a great asset; cars are a big convenience to the farmer; they promote cleaner travel; also more comfortable travel; they have been the means of more country being opened up; building highways helps unemployment; cars are a great advantage to people living a distance from rivers or lakes and railways; they have encouraged tourists to come to Canada and these have brought large sums of money into the country; they have been the means of a better understanding between nations; tourists create markets; their spending helps to keep money in circulation; travel broadens man's outlook and the cars made this possible; lives have been saved through doctors having cars; during the war motor lorries could have run where horses or other animals could not; soldiers were rushed to hospitals in cars; cars make cheaper travel possible; money invested in automobile stock gives good dividends; farmers can hurry to town to the busy season and have breaks in their machinery quickly repaired."

"The high death rate is due to cars," said Miss Alice Relyea, taking up the affirmative side. "They breed carelessness; they encourage drunkards, and make them a menace; they aid criminals to make good their escape; encourage lawbreaking and bootlegging; they are ruining many young people; they encourage kidnapping; they ruin railway business; cause higher freight rates for farmers to pay; they take away the benefit of physical exercise; encourage disease and bad health; they are a big drain on men's salaries; cause homes to be mortgaged; bring pain and suffering; make people dependent financially; they ruin trade in small centres; they ruin the life of friends through loved ones killed in accidents; they destroy thriftiness; they bring tourists who bring vice and immortality; they are disastrous on roads; the farms along the highways are mostly under mortgage; are not needed for long trips which can be made more cheaply and more comfortably either by rail or steamship; they damage the trade of the dealer in the small centre and injure the life in the rural community. The horse could do both the pleasure and the work."

Miss McCaw replying said, "If a man went to town in a buggy and happened with an accident you would not blame the buggy why blame the car, lay the blame where it belongs on the brewer and the distiller; the manufacture and running of cars gives work to thousands of men; cars are practically all made in Canada; they help poor families to find life worthwhile; they have brought renown to the British Empire; they enable the poor to get into the city and see the sights; the maimed can get work through car manufacture; young people can get an education because they can go to college and return the same day in a car; cars are a benefit to the police; firemen save many dollars worth of property and often life because of cars; money [illegible] gasoline is kept going around cars must be good or so many [illegible] have them; missionaries can do a bigger work because of cars; boys are returning to the farm now there is a car at the home; travellers in cars are always spending their money freely; there was worse depression when there were no cars; men drank when there were no cars; cars promote health; to-day people diet and do not require so much excercise; men go to golf links in cars; tractors are a great benefit on farms."

Mrs. DeClair summoning up the affirmative cause stated, "There were more people at church when they went in the buggy; thousands carry the pocket flask to-day, where only a few knew the brown jug; there are accidents every day now when to hear of one was unusual; a vacation by car is more expensive; the boys are not coming back to the farms because of the cars but going with the car out into the high-handed and fast living; we never had a depression so great as the present one and we have not recovered from this one yet."

The judges gave their decision in favor of the negative. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies and a social hour enjoyed.

A new Recipe for BRAN MUFFINS
(Makes 1½ doz. Muffins)

¼ cup Butter
½ cup Sugar
2 tablespoons Molasses
2 Eggs
1 cup Milk
2 cups Flour
4 teaspoons Baking Powder
½ tablespoon Salt
2½ cups Quaker natural Bran
1 cup Raisins

Method—Cream the butter; add sugar. Cream thoroughly together. Beat eggs; add molasses and milk. Add to butter and sugar mixture. Add bran and raisins, then flour, baking powder and salt, sifted together. Bake in well-greased muffin pans in hot oven—about 425° F.—reduce to 375° after 10 minutes.

MUFFINS made with Quaker Tillson's natural Bran are delightfully appetizing. They are lighter than muffins made of other bran. Invaluable as a preventive to faulty elimination.

The natural roughage of Quaker Tillson's natural Bran stimulates the intestinal muscles to get rid of waste, regularly and completely. Constipation is banished . . . headache, bad breath and consequent mental depression disappear. When you sprinkle Quaker Tillson's natural Bran liberally over your regular cereal you add a valuable health factor to your breakfast.

But use natural bran only—and be sure it's Quaker. Your doctor will tell you that Quaker Tillson's natural Bran is the most effective laxative cereal, because made of the finest wheat, milled to a softness to guard against undue irritation.

FASHION SERVICE

Quite the smartest thing for practical wear beneath the fur coat is the woolen jacket suit.

To-day's model chooses a cunning blouse of washable flat crepe. To show it's very feminine, it uses pleated ruffling. And the jacket doesn't hide this pretty trim, for it is collarless.

A cricket green monotone tweed with darker blending shade wool jersey blouse is distinctly smart.

Style No. 2910 may be had in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

to dress up to the minute at very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, etc.

(1) A very smart mannish model which comes into vogue with the return of the redingote. It is of beige wool coating and is worn with a gay plaid scarf. (2) Two of the new spring models in gowns. The first is a Bruyere frock of dark brown crepe marocain. The wide sleeves are in one piece with the V shaped yoke draped around a square neckline. This is outlined with beige crepe georgette with a jabot and scarf at one side in beige georgette and brown marocain. The lower half of the sleeve fits closely to the arm. The second is also a Marie Marot sketch of a Worth evening gown in a thin black velvet. It is Greek in inspiration. (3) An interesting new wool fabric, wool net in plain and check, featured in a smart tailored ensemble in blue and white, with bell-boy coat trimmed with metal buttons.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

As we are now observing Lent, I think it would be a good idea if you readers would send in recipes which are used a great deal at this time of the year.

• • • • • • •

I will start off to-day by contributing a couple of recipes. The two recipes are known as "Souffles" and no doubt are familiar to a large number of housewives.

• • • • • • •

A souffle is a mixture which is "light as air." The word comes from the French verb "to blow." Owing to its delicate texture, a souffle must be served immediately after it is cooked.

• • • • • • •

Sometimes a souffle is cooked on the top of the stove, as a sweetened omelet, while at other times it is cooked in the oven as a pudding.

• • • • • • •

The latter can be sufficiently hearty for the main course of a meal. Meat, fish, vegetables, cheese as well as fruits can be made into souffles.

• • • • • • •

Hearty souffles and those baked in the oven frequently have a white sauce as a base. This is a preventive against falling but it is due to eggs that the lightness is acquired, except in rare instances when whipped cream supplies the fluffiness.

• • • • • • •

Souffles are among the dishes to be enjoyed when eggs are cheap which is the case during the Spring and especially during Lent. Fish, vegetable and cheese souffles are hearty enough for a main course dish.

• • • • • • •

This is well to remember with Lent at hand. Also since souffles are generally dependent upon the nourishing egg as a main ingredient, sweet souffles for desserts will add nourishment to an otherwise simple meal.

• • • • • • •

Here is a recipe for Halibut or Salmon Souffle.

1 cup finely minced boiled halibut or salmon.
1 cup white sauce well seasoned
1 tablespoon minced parsley
¼ teaspoon onion juice
4 eggs
½ teaspoon finely minced sweet pepper.

• • • • • • •

Rub the boiled fish through a sieve. Add to the white sauce made of all the other above ingredients, except the whites of eggs. Set aside to chill.

• • • • • • •

Brush with melted butter and cover so no air can form a top crustiness and half an hour before serving, whip the egg whites very light and fold into the mixture. Put in a well buttered dish and bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes.

• • • • • • •

For fruit souffle any preferred fruit may be used but which is well drained of juice and pressed through a sieve. Sweeten to taste and add a little lemon juice to give zest.

• • • • • • •

If prunes are used add very little sugar. This is true of any sweet fruit. Make a souffle of sweetened white sauce.

• • • • • • •

As one tablespoon of sugar is put into this it must be allowed for when sweetening the fruit. Use one-eighth teaspoon salt in the white sauce and four egg yolks.

• • • • • • •

Stir in the fruit pulp and chill. One half hour before serving add the well beaten whites and put into making dish, and bake for twenty minutes. Serve immediately with whipped cream on the side of each serving.

HUMANE INSPECTOR REPORTS ACTIVITIES

Society is Doing Good Work in Putting Away Neglected Cats.

At the regular executive meeting of the Humane Society held recently, Dr. Johnston, inspector, reported the following activities:

Inspected a local stable, where several horses and cattle are kept. Found stock in fair condition, but ordered a cleanup.

Took charge of a dog, which had been brought to the city by someone, who asked a small boy to hold it, and then did not return. An act of this kind is listed in the Criminal Code as abandoning an animal, and for which there is a severe punishment if the owner is located.

When making market inspections during the week, found several teams, which had drawn wood to the city from a distance of several miles out. Advised food and water for these animals after a long trip with a load.

Picked up a hound lying in the snow in an exhausted condition. Located the owner.

Warned a man in the north of the city about keeping his dog tied night and day in the cold.

Destroyed a stray cat, which was badly frostbitten about the ears and in an emaciated condition.

Investigated complaint regarding horse being tied out in the cold, while its owner spent hours in the house where it was warm. Gave a warning to this man, who was very impudent when spoken to.

Destroyed several dogs, suffering with the results of distemper and paralysis of hind quarters, also located owners of several dogs.

At the meeting of the Humane Society it was pointed out that many neglected cats which have become diseased are constantly being humanely killed. It was felt that this is a great benefit to the citizens of Peterborough, as neglected cats often carry disease.

WILLING WORKERS PRESENT PROGRAM

Delightful Gathering in Aid of Charity Held in May's School.

A splendid program was given by "The Willing Workers" in May's School on Friday, and were assisted by well-known artists, being given to contribute a little to alleviate the distress in North Monaghan.

Mr. May made a splendid chairman for the occasion when Mr. Stephens gave an interesting address about trying to solve the problem of finding work for the unemployed.

About twenty-five dollars was raised on this occasion and Joe Flagler was presented with fifty cents given by Mrs. Poole to the person selling the most tickets for the entertainment, the presentation being made by Mr. May who thanked the boys and girls who helped on the program which was as follows: "Oh Canada" by Willing Workers; overture, R. Howarth; duet, Thelma Winterbottom and Dorothy Deline; selection, Joe Todd; song by two little girls, "Won't you Buy My Pretty Flowers" Betty Deline and Joan Nicholls; Fairyland Waltz, Ethel Kelly; "I love a Lassie" Charles Coleman, responding to an encore, "The Horse the Missus Drys the Clothes on"; Fairy's Wedding, Arthur Hosker; reading, "The Little Hero" Wilma Hall; Natrona March, Annie Sheers; Goblins' Frolic, Thelma Winterbottom; dialogue, Dorothy Eastabrook, Annie Sheers, Dorothy Wallwork, Wilma Hall, Dorothy Deline and Thelma Winterbottom; Mountain Belle, Wilma Hall; "Smiling Thro," Mrs. Clarence Scholey, with encore, "The Song that Reached My Heart"; "Maiden's Prayer" Dorothy Eastabrook; Frolic of the Frogs, Violet Todd; comic songs, Ted Markham who responded to encore; Wedding of the Painted Doll, Dorothy Wallwork; Laughing Song, Charles Coleman; Moonlight on the Colorado, Miss Alice Winterbottom; My Task, Mrs. Clarence Scholey; Orvetta Waltz, Maisie Evans; Eidlewies Glide, Dorothy Deline; comic song, Ted Markham; Fairies Waltz, Muriel Panter; reading, Joe Todd.

A vote of thanks was extended by Mr. May to the assisting artists and Mrs. G. Poole and her "Willing Workers" being seconded by Mr. Stephens. Mrs. T. Poole also thanked the management of May's School for the privilege of holding the concert there and all who had made the concert the success it was. Dick Howarth and Mrs. Poole were pianists for the entertainment.

'On-to-the-Sea' Slogan Heard In Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Feb. 24. — Definite steps toward organization of a St. Lawrence deep waterways or "On-to-the-Sea" Association, were taken by the City Council here last night. Acting on a suggestion made by Mayor P. V. Ibbetson in his inaugural address in January, a special committee of the Mayor and five aldermen was appointed to make arrangements for a convention to be held here at an early date and announcements are being sent to the mayors of all cities in Canada and several towns directly affected.

Announcements are also being sent to Premier R. B. Bennett, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal Leader, and President Hoover.

English is becoming so generally adopted in Norway that practically every important business concern can correspond in it, and American salesmen seldom need an interpreter.

Frogs Are Reserved For The Maskinonge

LINDSAY, Feb. 24.—Would-be eaters of frogs' legs were deprived of 25 pounds of this delicacy during 1930 in the county of Victoria, according to the report of the game and fisheries department. This confiscation is unique in the history of Ontario, according to Game Warden Peter Stevenson of Orillia, and is enforced because frogs are the staple diet of the muskalonge during certain months.

BRITISH WOMAN PLAYS BIG PART IN INDIAN DRAMA

Daughter of Distinguished Naval Officer Turns Hindu, Worships Gandhi.

Rules Mahatma's Household.

Madeline Slade Active in Independence Move—Deportation Rumors Rise.

NEW DELHI, India, February 24 (C.P.). — Behind the scenes of the present political drama in India, playing a quiet but vital role, is a British woman, Miss Madeline Slade, daughter of Sir Edmund Slade, for many years distinguished Commander in Chief of British naval forces in India.

Renouncing all the pleasures, comforts and amenities of everyday existence, Miss Slade has embraced asceticism and the mysteries of Hindu life, and has become the ardent disciple of Mahatma Gandhi, who took her to the sacred city of Benares, and after immersing her in the holy Ganges River, initiated her into the mysteries of the Hindu religion.

Given Money Away.

She has shaved her head in monastic fashion, given all her money to the poor, goes about barefooted, has burned all her European clothes, and wears only the cheapest homespun Hindu garments. She has taken the Hindu name of "Mira Bai." When asked by her British friends if she is "Miss Slade," she replies: "No. Miss Slade has been dead and buried for five years."

Miss Slade prays, fasts, and indulges in various forms of expiation, and enters into regular periods of silence and meditation with Gandhi. She has charge of Gandhi's household, prepares all his meals, makes his bed, sees that he is properly clothed, prepares his bath, and looks after him with a mother's solicitude for a child.

Gandhi's own wife, who is a woman of advanced age, could not show more devotion to the great leader than Miss Slade, who worships Gandhi with the ardor of the most intense religious zealot. Mrs. Gandhi, who has not seen her husband since he entered prison nine months ago, keeps quietly in the background, never appearing among those who share Gandhi's counsels.

Active in Councils.

Miss Slade, however, who is a woman of marked culture, ability, and executive capacity, is much more than a mere servitor or disciple of Gandhi. She takes a most active part in the independence movement, and in addition to giving Gandhi constant advice on political and other matters, she attends to his large correspondence.

There have been frequent rumors that the British authorities were on the point of deporting her. She is Gandhi's closest confidante, sharing all his secrets, hopes, aims, joys, sorrows. This close relationship has given rise to some criticism on the part of those connected with the Congress Party, but the feeling among the majority is that it is a personal matter for Gandhi alone to decide.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S. PLANS ON LECTURE

Miss Craw's Group Has Charge of Program at Regular Monthly Meeting.

The members of St. Andrew's W.M.S. held their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the Ladies' Parlor, with the president, Miss F. Dixon, in the chair.

After the opening exercises, Mrs. Zeihr, treasurer, reported a good balance in the bank. A discussion followed on ways and means and it was decided to arrange for a suitable lecture in March. The corresponding secretary reported having written a letter of condolence to a bereaved member.

Miss Craw's group had charge of the program for the day, and after the Bible reading by Mrs. Porteous, Miss Craw read a selection from Ralph Connor's work, showing the power of love. Mrs. Harstone read a beautiful short poem, after which Mrs. Porteous and Mrs. Evans led in prayer. Mrs. Stacey took from the watchtower interesting items relating to missions in Japan. Miss Craw read portions of interest from the Missionary Messenger and gave hints on how we might increase our givings. Following the close of the meeting, a short executive was held.

Three E.P.L. Teams Have Chance For Play-Offs

NORWOOD CLIMBS INTO SECOND PLACE BY BEATING LAKEFIELD IN THEIR FINAL FIXTURE 8-2

Three Teams in E. P. L. Have Chance of Entering Play-offs.

Norwood	5	5	2	12	0
Cogs	4	4	2	10	2
C.G.E.	2	5	2	6	3

Next game Wednesday night: C.G.E. at Lakefield.

Norwood reached the climax of its sustained drive through the second half of the East Peterborough schedule last night by defeating Lakefield 8-2, thereby perching more or less precariously in second place.

It was their final game of the regular series, and they thrilled their home crowd of supporters with one of the best games the league has produced. Whether Norwood gets into the play-offs depends upon the outcome of the remaining games. C.G.E. go to Lakefield Wednesday night, and although Frank Barrie's Electricians are trailing in the cellar position they are not yet out of the running. They have to win in Cementville and then take two games here from the Cogs.

Of course that is a possibility, but it isn't exactly a rosy one. If the C.G.E. could turn the trick they would be tied with Norwood for second place, and the winner of the resulting games would meet Lakefield who are sitting pretty out in front. On the other hand if Cogs win both their remaining pair of games from the C.G.E. they will nose out Norwood and qualify to meet Lakefield in the finals for the championship. Again, if C.G.E. lose to Lakefield but win both games from Cogs, the final will bring Norwood and Lakefield together. Norwood's expectations obviously depend on the fortune of the Cogs.

Norwood Looks Good

It may be that Lakefield was indifferent about their game in Norwood last night. They had nothing to worry about, but granting that they encountered Norwood at the peak of their form and condition which have been steadily improving in spite of the fact that the Combines are so scattered they are unable to get together for practices. The Havelock-Norwood team has set the pace, all through the latter half of the schedule, climbing from last place to second, with five victories, and last week's tie in Lakefield. They have been undefeated in this splurge, and on their recent performances they will be a dangerous crew if it turns out that they get a place in the play-offs.

The ice at Norwood last night was lightning fast, and just suited the home forward line, composed of Glenn Wright as pivot man with Charley Brennan and Ware on the wings. This trio was backed up by the speed of McLaughlin and Shannon on the defense, and they gave the home crowd a succession of thrills as they carried the battle to Lakefield. Norwood was without Hill and Stevenson of Hastings who were laid up with colds, and when the relief men, Kempt, Jacks and Webb were sent out the team was practically the complete junior O.H.A. outfit the Combines recruited this season.

Tally Opens in 50 Seconds.

Scoring started almost from the drop of the rubber in the opening session. Wood had time to make one rush and Brennan return it, when Blewett passed over to Stabler who laid it into the twine behind Beavis exactly 50 seconds after play started. The shot was made from outside the blue line and evidently took Beavis off his guard.

With this as an incentive the Cementville outfit opened up and for a few minutes bottled the Kempt crew around their own citadel. Somehow the Combines couldn't get away, but when they did break, Ware with Brennan and Wright walked right through. Wright passed to Ware, who with a beautiful chance missed. Tom Wood and White made several boring rushes but each time were met by the defense and lost the disc. Shannon got in some effective work, uncorking a nice showing of speed that boded ill for the opposition.

Junkin made a pretty save on Ware's spurt, who was foiled only by quick action on Junkin's part in rushing out to meet him. Shannon in making a drive was halted at the blue line and in the melee of checking took a long shot at the Lakefield net which, much to Junkin's surprise was lifted out of the twine behind him. Only eight minutes were gone and the score was evened up. Louie Sabatino tried hard to even it up, but the sub Combine front line of Kempt, Jacks and Webb kept the Murdifffites busy on the back checking. Shannon was given a rest for dumping Wannamaker. McLaughlin bored through and White to save a goal upset him and ended in the penalty den. Blewett and his mates, Stabler and L. Sabatino, bored in and for a few minutes the game slowed up while the outfits played around the Combines' goal.

McLaughlin and Brennan clipped into action and ten minutes after the count had been tied Brennan took a pass to beat Junkin to it for their second tally. McLaughlin took a rest for dumping Wingett on one of his drives.

The Second Period.

Early in the second session Louie Sabatino got a bad shaking up when he went on into the end boards after a spill. He and Ware followed the puck towards the corner. Ware lifted Louie's stick throwing him off his balance, and in the upset Sabatino fell and slid hard against the end of the rink. He continued after a few minutes of rubbing the stars from his vision. McLaughlin and Ware tossed two in a row at Junkin. McLaughlin's direct shot was stopped by Junkin, and Ware went in for the rebound which the Lakefield goaler also turned back. "Ruggs" Wright scored the first goal of the period. He grabbed the puck from a face off near the blue line, and, skirting the defense, neatly flipped it into the net. Kempt and McLaughlin missed a chance close in, but their passes went astray. Louie Sabatino went off for an accidental trip of Webb. The Lakefield substitutes worked a nice combination to the Norwood backyard. They carried the rubber beyond the goal and as Wingett brought it out in front Wannamaker pushed it in.

Norwood nicked up their fourth goal on a somewhat similar play, McLaughlin passing out from behind the goal line to Ware who found an easy opening.

Tom Wood's rush carried him too far for the shot he deserved. Blewett found his way into the Norwood territory, but some one tripped him behind the net as he tried to swing around it. Junkin went to his knees on a Norwood attack, and literally grabbed the puck from McLaughlin's stick. Ware wound up the scoring by getting the rebound from Brennan's shot that bounced off Junkin's pads.

The Third Period.

Abbie Rose stepped into an outbreak of tripping and bumping with a row of penalties during this period. Blewett was the first for holding. Wood missed the Norwood net after a combination rush with White. Shannon reeled off a fine display of stickhandling, but with both wings abreast of him for a pass he hund on to the puck and Junkin blocked his shot. Shannon drew a penalty for dumping Louie Sabatino, and Ware followed him for riding White against the boards. This brief advantage failed to help Lakefield. Ware finally flashed along the wing groove, and breesed the sixth goal past Junkin.

Webb got the gate for a trip, and Wannamaker and McLaughlin followed him. White and Wingett went in close but Beavis stopped the shot. White was benched for upsetting Ware, and shortly after Wannamaker was warming the bench for tripping Ware.

Norwood pulled the smartest play of the game, a long combination by McLaughlin, Brennan and Ware, the latter scoring. Wannamaker drew Abbie Rose's attention again for hacking, and returned to the penalty box. Ware almost scored on a fast dash with Brennan. Wood carried the puck all the way from his own goal area, but McLaughlin bodied him as he was about to shoot. Wright was handed a scoring chance form about ten feet out, but he hit the goal post.

Brennan ended the scoring with a shot as he closed in on the defense. Junkin partly stopped it, but it apparently slid in behind him off his skate.

"Pa" Stribling Continues Preparations For Third Battle Of The Palms To-Night

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24.—(CP)—In defiance of threatening weather, the fistic jinx that has been pursuing the big fellows and the absence of many of the regular winter customers, promoter "Pa" Stribling planned to pry the lid off the 1931 heavyweight outdoor season tonight with a card featuring Mickey Walker and Johnny Risko in the ten-round final, besides exhibition performances by the forthcoming championship rivals, Young Stribling and Max Schmeling.

The elder Stribling, with a last moment "break" in weather and a reasonable rush for the turnstiles, expected about 25,000 to 30,000 customers to contribute to a "gate" of $50,000 to $60,000 at the bargain scale of $2 to $5. This he said, would put the show "in the clear."

If it rained tonight, the promoter was prepared to move the whole show back to Wednesday night.

Unconcerned by such wire-pulling and manipulation, Walker and Risko meanwhile were ready for just an old-fashioned socking bee. Walker won the "Duke" the last time this pair collided in Detroit, but Risko with a 25 pound pull in the weights, looked to be in condition to spring one of his typical upsets.
